PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—The War Office officially to-night says the Germans again have been driven back into East Prussia with terrific loss.

Helping Working Women.

The Queen's work for Women Fund is the instrument to provide money to help women thrown out of work by the war, and to enable them to become self-supporting. Contract work has been placed with nearly one hundred firms whose workers are unemployed. These contracts have been placed, with assistance of the committee, in such a way as to secure prompt delivery of goods which are urgently required, and at the same time to assist women's work in localities where unemployment is most feared. Both small and large firms have been benefited. The smaller firms are principally those engaged in the millinery and dressmaking trades.

A GENERAL BATTLE IS IN PROGRESS TO-DAY

Germans Heavily Reinforcing Their Positions--Ground Fronting the Trenches is Covered With Dead and Wounded Men

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A series of engagements which at times take on proportions of a general battle are in progress to-day. The Germans are making determined efforts to recover ground lost to them during heavy fighting of the last few days. This is especially so on the heights of the Meuse, where a series of desperate counter attacks have been delivered in the vicinity of Eparges. There the Germans have taken several outlying trenches at a heavy cost in lives.

In the Champaigne region likewise, the Germans continue to pour their fresh regiments into action endeavouring to retake a series of parallel trenches captured by the French African troops. Several important strategic positions in the vicinity of Perthes have been taken and retaken three times during last two days.

The ground fronting the trenches is covered with dead and wounded men as it is impossible to remove them in the face of a terrific artillery fire from both sides. Near La Bassee the Germans are still trying to cut the railway line which runs parallel with the canal and a few yards to the north of it. This is a most important strategic position, and the British forces, which hold a section of the line from the south of Lens to Estaires and Armentieres have been heavily reinforced, especially in the neighbourhood of Givenchy, where they are now occupying trenches originally constructed by the Germans.

Only slight progress is possible in Upper Alsace where the Germans continue heavily to reinforce their positions. It is declared by prisoners lately captured that among the troops now fighting there are a large number of Austrian Slav detachments who were transferred from the Carpathian front because their loyalty was questioned.

BRINGING THE WAR TO ENGLAND

An Interesting Synopsis of an Article in Collier's by Frederick Palmer, Correspondent of All the Wars in Recent Years

It is the personal note that goes home. A few words from one who is stricken cut deeper than all the generalities about the sufferings of the tens of thousands. In the same hotel porter pool I shared the same hotel porter with a man who had a drawn, ashen face. "I'd been in Africa five years," he said. "I had come home to see my sister. I got a telegram of welcome on my arrival. In London I got another after the shelling. I've come for my sister's body. Though the British navy kept the seas safe for him on that long voyage from Africa, it did not prevent the house in which his sister lived on the beach at Hartlepool from being blown to pieces by German naval guns, and she with it. Towns and towns have been shelled on the Continent. But their people were warned. They realized that the battle line was approaching. Two or three shells always came first as introduction before a general bombardment. Every Frenchman knew what to expect if the enemy approached. He had heard his elders talk about Franco-Prussian war times. At Antwerp there were weeks of shelling on the outskirts; and no more houses were damaged in Antwerp and fewer people were killed there than in this English city of 60,000 inhabitants. Neither Rheims, nor Soissons, nor Arras in months of intermittent bombardment had as many civilian casualties as Hartlepool in half an hour. Hartlepool people had been expecting Zeppelin bombs, of course. Every city in England has been expecting them. The failure of the repeated German threat of a Zeppelin raid to materialize has whetted anticipation. But the Germans had not suggested any naval bombardment. Hartlepool and also Scarborough and Whitby had the experience of getting an earthquake when a tornado was on the programme of horror. War between soldiers is a professional business. You expect casualties as surely as you expect death for the bull in a bullfight, or that somebody will get hurt in a riot. This business of tossing man-organized and premeditated death out of the blue on women and children without a second's notice was the most dramatic and horrible thing of the war thus far.

Will Free Belgium And Get Alsace

Is the Determination of the French Government

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 19. — Premier Rene Viviani took occasion to declare afresh to the Chamber of Deputies to-day that it was the determination of the French Government to prosecute the war until victory for the allies had been fully attained.

"The Government is determined," the Premier said, "to bring about the restoration of Belgium and to retake Alsace and Lorraine."

The deputies wildly applauded M. Viviani's statement.

Premier Viviani alluded eloquently to the tenderness felt by France for the heroic fidelity of the populations of the provinces occupied by the Germans in Northern France, which, he said, were "suffering under the brutalities of Prussian militarism."

France, he added, would persist until German imperialism, which had endeavoured to crush all liberty, was itself crushed.

FOOD SUPPLIES EXHAUSTED IN SOUTH GERMANY

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 19—"The German people are more terrified by the possibility of being starved out by England than by the thought of final disaster overtaking their forces in the field. Von Bethmann-Hollweg's recent utterance that England is using barbaric methods in attempting to starve seventy million men, women and children has had an effect on the nation the Chancellor did not foresee. He has frightened the people, has focussed the nation's thoughts on the food peril, and by repeatedly accentuating it he has drawn the people's attention from the military aspect. The terrible crisis of starvation, laughed at a few months ago, is now not far from being a real thing in some of the "country districts in Germany."

This confession by a German just returned from Hamburg and Munich, sounds a note of alarm, which, though never heard in the columns of the German papers, is frequently uttered over the frontier in Bavaria and Southern towns.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—In the Congress this afternoon, the Opposition leader, Mann, said he realized the gravity of the relations of the United States with Japan and European countries, and America should loyally support President Wilson in the crisis.

Stop Wheat Speculation

Dr. C. C. James Thinks Government Should Step In

TORONTO, Feb. 19. — Deploring the indifference found in some parts of Canada in regard to the war, Dr. C.C. James, Agricultural Commissioner for the Dominion Government, told the Toronto Ad. Club members that it would take some awful calamity to arouse some people to a sense of their responsibility. The production of Canadian farms could be increased fifty per cent., he said, and there need be no fear in regard to marketing.

On the question of speculating in wheat he was of opinion that if a Government was ever justified in stepping in, the time is now. "Meat prices will increase as surely as we are here," he added, pointing out that the great new expenditures must be met by the products of the soil. Financial and transportation men should do their share, and if proper action was taken there might be a development never heard of before. If it went wrong some provinces would go back twelve or fourteen years.

GET THE BUSINESS

WHAT do people buy and why do they buy it?

This problem should interest everyone who has anything to sell, and the fact that your business is not as large as that of a department store, does not mean that your methods of selling should be radically different or that you need give no thought to the subject.

Count on your fingers ten things that you buy regularly and see how many of them are articles that are extensively advertised. Go home and look in your wife's pantry and see how many advertised articles she buys, and then stop and think. Why does she buy these things in preference to many others which are in many instances, just as good? It's advertising.

You have a desire to try a particular article because you have learned something about it,—you become convinced it is good and you want it. A local dealer advertises it for sale and you ask for it, as though it were an old friend. The sale is the result of good advertising.

POTATOES AND THE WAR

Humble Tuber a Big Feature in Struggle, But Not a Fighting Ration

The two greatest potato-growing countries in the world are at war, Germany and Russia. Following these two countries in order of production are Austria-Hungary, France, the United States, Great Britain and Ireland, and Belgium.

This common, homely, plebeian product of the soil has contributed to the sustenance of the people, played a most important part in the development of great industries, and to-day forms a most appreciated and necessary part of the soldiers' ration at the front. Without potatoes and sugar beets Germany to-day would probably not be the ambitious, warring nation that she is for on these, she has built up her wonderful agricultural industry which formed the basis on which she constructed her industrial and commercial prosperity. And, strange to say, she owes a debt to France for both of these field crops. Beet sugar was a product of French investigation and necessity in the Napoleonic era, and potatoes as a European food came into use through Louis XVI.

Germany has utilized potatoes for enriching her light soils and sugar beets for rendering productive her heavy soils. She annually grows 3,000,000 acres of potatoes, producing over 1,600,000,000 bushels. Russia comes next in production. Thus we see that Germany has a potato crop nearly approaching in area our prairie wheat in Western Canada.

What does she do with it? Twelve per cent. for seed, 40 per cent. for feeding live stock, 28 per cent. for human food, 6 per cent. for alcohol, 4 per cent. for starch, and 10 per cent. for loss and waste.

It is a crop which the old men, the women and children can grow and therefore it may play a very important part in feeding the people during the war, for the Germans have developed to a large extent the processes of evaporating the tubers, whereby the food can be concentrated and stored. Potato meal is being used for mixing with wheat and rye flour. It is useful for sustaining a people on short rations but it will not be sufficient to maintain the army fighting in the trenches. As a source of alcohol it may be useful as fuel for motors when petrol gives out. Germany's immense potato crop, with a big surplus over home requirements, must not be overlooked in studying the situation; but it should be remembered that a sustaining ration for the people at home is one thing and a fighting ration for the soldier in the field or at the front is quite another. —C. C. James in Ave Victoriana.

HAD INDIGESTION
FOR OVER 10 YEARS.
ALMOST DESPAIRED OF EVER GETTING WELL.

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitating feeling in it. After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation. It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion if you will only try that old and well-known remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which is a combination of nature's best known roots, herbs and barks for the cure of all stomach and blood troubles.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors' medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings.

STOMACH TROUBLES DUE TO ACIDITY

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, and stomachache are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralise the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralises the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids. —M. LONDON'S VOLUNTEERS

First Corps Was Raised in the Time of Henry VIII.

In the days of Henry VIII., when England's shores were threatened by the French, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London took a census of the number of men in the City between the ages of twenty-one and sixty who were capable of bearing arms, and it is rather amusing to read, in the quaint phraseology of the time, that the Corporation decided that "only able persons who had white harness with white coats, bows and arrows, halberds, bills, or pole axes, and none others, should appear, except such as bear Moorish pikes or hand gonners, and write coats and caps with feathers, and white hose, cleanly shod. With fifers and minstrels."

Apparently, however, the old London Volunteers made a brave show, for we read that it was a grand thing to behold them marching through the streets of London with pikes, archers, and billmen, thirteen pieces of light ordnance, carried on carts, with powder and stone, leading the way to Westminster, where they were ultimately reviewed by "Bluff King Hal." This was in 1539, and was the first Royal review of the City of London Volunteers, although Edward III., in the fourteenth century, insisted that every man in the City should spend his spare time practising with bow and arrow and learn to shoot.

Queen Elizabeth was as enthusiastic as her father in regard to the training of London's volunteers. It was she who regulated the price of bows, caused practice butts to be erected, and, when Spain threatened an invasion, caused 4,000 volunteers to be picked from the companies under training for the defence of London.

And although the volunteers then, as now, were apt to be scoffed at, more or less, by the professional soldier, the records go to show that they could give a magnificent account of themselves. Historians tell us that at the Battle of Newbury the London trained bands quitted themselves like men of undaunted spirit, and were able to withstand the most furious charges of Prince Rupert and his brilliant cavalry.

BATTLEFIELD RUSES

Deceptions Can be Practised in Legitimate Manner But Not By Flag

International law does not permit a commander to trick his enemy in a dishonorable manner. For instance, there are rigid rules concerning the use of the Red Cross flag. It must not be placed on wagons carrying anything but medical supplies or wounded soldiers, and vehicles bearing the Red Cross should not carry guns. Combatants cannot shelter in buildings flying the red flag unless they lay down their arms, for to turn a hospital into a fort is as great a crime as concentrating shell fire on a building sheltering wounded.

Red Cross trains are meant to be solely used for the conveyance of wounded, and they must not be utilised as a means of escape for harassed troops or for transporting artillery.

The sole purpose of the white flag is to notify the enemy that their opponents wish to parley, and a commander has a perfect right to refuse a request if he deems it necessary. Even if he consents he can request that the bearer of the flag of truce be blindfolded so that he may not secure information concerning the camp which he enters. In no circumstances must the white flag be shown to trick an opposing side into relaxing their attack, so that a retreat may be prepared or reinforcements brought up for a fresh attack. In this connection a common ruse is for a harassed commander to request his enemy for an armistice, apparently for the purpose of burying his dead. He then takes advantage of the truce by retreating with his troops under the cover of darkness.

Although it is a common practice, it is not considered to be playing the game for soldiers to disguise themselves in the enemy's uniform for the purpose of facilitating an approach. It is quite legitimate, however, for an enemy to wear captured uniforms, if their own are too mutilated or weather-worn to protect them. In such a case all distinguishing badges must be removed, and some conspicuous sign must be worn on the annexed garment to denote the nationality of the wearer.

Justice of Peace Praises Dr. Chase's Ointment

After Nine Years of Agony He Escaped an Operation by Using This Great Healing Agent.

As a means of healing sores and wounds that defy ordinary treatment Dr. Chase's Ointment has long stood supreme. It is known far and wide as a positive cure for eczema and piles. Whatever uncertainty there may be about the results obtained by the use of medicines taken internally there can be no question of the healing of the skin when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied.

You can actually see with your own eyes just what takes place. The sore parts are cleansed and gradually the new skin is formed and the sore becomes smaller and smaller, until it finally disappears. It is often wonderful the results which are accomplished in a single night by the use of this great healing ointment.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PAYING THE RENT

"What for was mother crying?" asked little Patrick.

"Och, shure," said Eileen, his sister, "it was because my father has the rent to pay to-morrow, and never a halfpenny toward it has he got."

"Then what will we do? And where will we go?" asked Patrick.

"I heard my father say to mother, sez he; 'Shure enough, Judy, the poor little children and us will be turned out of the farm to starve on the high road, for a hard man and a cruel is the agent, O'Flaherty. Ohone! that ever I should hive to see this day,' sed my father."

Patrick and Eileen were sitting on a rock looking at that beautiful lake, Killarney, glittering in the sunshine and sprinkled with fairy isles of rock and verdure and bounded by giant hills.

On the hillside behind them stood the little farm where father and mother found it so hard to pay their way, work as hard as they might.

"And who is it will come and turn us out?" asked little Patrick.

"Shure it's the agent that will come. And he will take away everything we have, and we shall be turned out to starve on the high road."

But what could two little children do, with their father so poor, and the agent so cruel, and rent day to-morrow. They looked at the bright lake and big tears began to roll down their little faces.

The day before, when Patrick was playing in the bracken field, he had found a tiny whistle on a round little mound under the shadow of a rock. It was a beautiful little whistle to look at, but when Pat tried to blow it, never a sound would it make.

"It's maybe a fairy whistle and only fairy's lips that can blow it," his mother had said.

As he now sat there looking at the lovely lake, which didn't seem to mind their misery at all, he could feel the whistle in his pocket.

Almost without thinking, he put it to his lips and blew it. Wonder of wonders! There came a beautiful, sweet sound that seemed to come right across the lake and echo again and again as if it would never cease.

"Oh, it must be a fairy whistle!" Patrick cried.

"Of course it is, if fairy you'd call me, for it's my whistle, Master Patrick."

This was said in a deep voice, and the two children jumped to their feet in surprise.

They saw coming out of the furse-brake a tall gentleman, portly and pleasant looking. The furse-brake grew in a hollow near the margin of the lake, and, of course, the children thought at once that the strange gentleman must have come right out of the fairy land which their mother had told them was at the bottom of the lake.

"What for were you crying just now?" asked the stranger.

"It's so poor we are," said Pat.

"And my father it is who can't pay the rent," said Eileen.

"And it is to-morrow is rent day," said Pat.

"And never a halfpenny has my father got," said Eileen.

"And it's the agent, O'Flaherty, will come and turn us out into the road,' sobbed Pat.

"And it's starving we shall be," they both said together.

"Starving!" exclaimed the stranger. "Surely the man won't have the heart to turn you out!"

"Heart, your honour! That's just what my mother said to my father: but, sez he, 'Where would an agent get a heart, Judy?'"

"Of course," said the gentleman. And as he spoke he took out of his pocket a bag which he opened and showed to the children.

The bag was full of gold coins.

"It's here," said he, "your father will find the gold to pay the rent with. Be sure you tell him I will take care the money he pays O'Flaherty shall do the cruel man no good."

Patrick took the bag with both hands and began running up the hill toward home without stopping even to pick up his hat.

Eileen stayed behind, wanting to thank the stranger. But while she stopped to pick up her little brother's hat the stranger was gone.

She looked all round for him, but could see no trace of him at all. Not until she was half-way up the hill did she see what she thought looked like the gentleman riding on a white horse, a long way off on the surface of the lake.

Their father and mother were sitting one on each side of the empty fireplace—empty, though the day was cold enough.

Patrick put the bag of gold on his father's knee and said:

"Here shure is money for the rent and more besides, for this."

His father opened the bag and let the gold guineas slip through his fingers with a pleasant jingling sound.

"Shure, Judy, it's good gold it is. Tell us where ye found it, my colleen."

Then the children, speaking together, told how the stranger had come out of the furse-brake at the sound of the queer little whistle, and how he talked to them, and was sorry for them, and took the bag of gold out of his pocket.

"And he said I was to be sure and tell you that the money will do O'Flaherty no good at all at all."

"And where did the good man go, Eileen?"

"Over the lake on a white horse, father," she replied.

"Then shure it was the O'Donoghue! The good and blessed O'Donoghue!" cried their father, "who never lets the children of an honest man want bread on the shores of fair Killarney."

Next morning their father set out with the rent to the agent's house. He walked with his head up and his shoulders back, and O'Flaherty did not like the proud look of him.

"Take off your hat to a gentleman!" says he.

"So I will, when I see one," said Patrick, his nose still in the air.

"You're forgetting I'm a magistrate, with great powers to do what pleases me with the likes of you."

"If I couldn't pay my rent, you might," answered Pat, "but I've got gold and to spare, praise be!"

"Put it down on this table and let me see the gold with my own eyes, or I'll not be believing you at all at all," said O'Flaherty.

"Right you be," said Pat, as he started counting out the rent, guinea piece after guinea piece.

As he did so, O'Flaherty's face fell. He had wanted Pat's farm for a man who was willing to give him a bit for himself.

"There ye be, and now I'll take my receipt, if it please you," said Pat.

Not a word had O'Flaherty to say. He piled the guinea pieces on his desk and wrote out the receipt.

Pat took it and put it in his inside pocket. Then he said:

"Good day to you, Mister O'Flaherty. And may the ould money do ye a world of good."

Then he put his shoulders back and threw his head up and walked home.

Mister O'Flaherty was so taken aback by receiving Patrick's rent on the day it was due, that he sat for a whole hour staring at his boots, and as he afterwards told his wife, when he woke up he found he had been right off to sleep.

The first thing he did was to open the drawer where he had put the money brought by old Patrick. What did he see but a pile of little ginger breads where the gold coins had been.

With a howl of anger he rushed out, asking every one he could see who had been into his office while he slept and changed the golden guineas into little gingerbreak cakes—little gingerbreak cakes, with the king's head stamped on them all complete.

But no one knew anything about it. So he fumed and raved and raged, and kicked his own furniture till there wasn't a chair left to sit on, or a desk left to write on.

"It's to Patrick O'Dowd's I'll go this minute," he said; "he's the villain has got my guineas, by jabbers."

But all of a sudden he stopped. For he remembered that Patrick had got the receipt, and would only laugh at him. So he went home and to bed and turned his face to the wall.

BRONCHIAL COUGH STUBBORN AILMENT

Must Have Constitutional Treatment—Ohio Woman Tells How She Was Relieved by Vinol.

Crestline, Ohio.—"For years I was in a weak, nervous, run-down condition and while in this condition contracted a bronchial cough, which made it very hard for me. I lost weight and had no ambition. All the medicines I had taken did not relieve me to any extent.

"One day I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it. Within a week after taking it I commenced to feel better and I am happy to say four bottles of Vinol have completely restored me to health, so I am feeling fine now."—Mrs. H. H. CARLISLE, Crestline, Ohio.

This is one more proof that our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, which is free from oil or grease, is a remarkably strengthening and vitalizing medicine.

Men and women who are weak and in poor health, unable to sleep or eat well, and who have given up hope of ever being strong again, should certainly take Vinol without waiting another day, for it is exactly what they need.

We are having such wonderful results from Vinol that we offer to return the purchaser's money when not satisfied.

PEOPLE OFTEN SAY

"How Are We To Know When The Kidneys Are Out Of Order?"

EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD!

The location of the kidneys, close to the small of the back, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter. The note of warning comes from the back. The kidneys become overtaxed and fail to do their work at nature's call.

Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble.

The danger lies in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills stimulate the action of the kidneys, and enable them to perform their duty perfectly.

Mrs. Greig Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor East, N.S., writes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with great success, and don't think there is a better pill for the kidneys. I was very miserable with my back, and could hardly get about. I got a box, and tried them, and found that they were really good, so I took in all about six boxes, and soon found my back cured, and my kidneys as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

CROWN LOST AND FOUND

Superstition always runs rampant in times like these. It may be true, or it may not, that in the year 1794, when the Prussians marched into Cracow, the desire of the King of Prussia to be crowned as the King of Poland could not be fulfilled because the Royal crown had disappeared, and for over a century could not be found. Over 100 years after the fall of Cracow a terrific thunderstorm burst upon the city, and an ancient elm, standing in a field just outside the walls, was rent asunder, and in its hollow trunk was found hidden the famous crown of Poland's ancient kings. This was about four years ago.

When it was removed some of the precious stones which had been loosened in the process of time dropped out, and it is asserted that this was the first omen of the great war now raging.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Nass, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

For restaurant use there has been invented a spoon with a detachable bowl of paper or fibre, to be thrown away after use, the handle being fitted to another bowl.

Of French invention is a smoke-consuming device for kitchen ranges that admits fresh air, superheats it, and, combining it with the coal gas and dust, causes them to burn.

Mumps May Be Serious.

That mumps is a disease far too serious to be laughed at or joked about is proved by the fact that it causes an average of 100 deaths a year in England. It is more serious in adults than in children, as it often affects other glands than those that produce the saliva.—New York World.

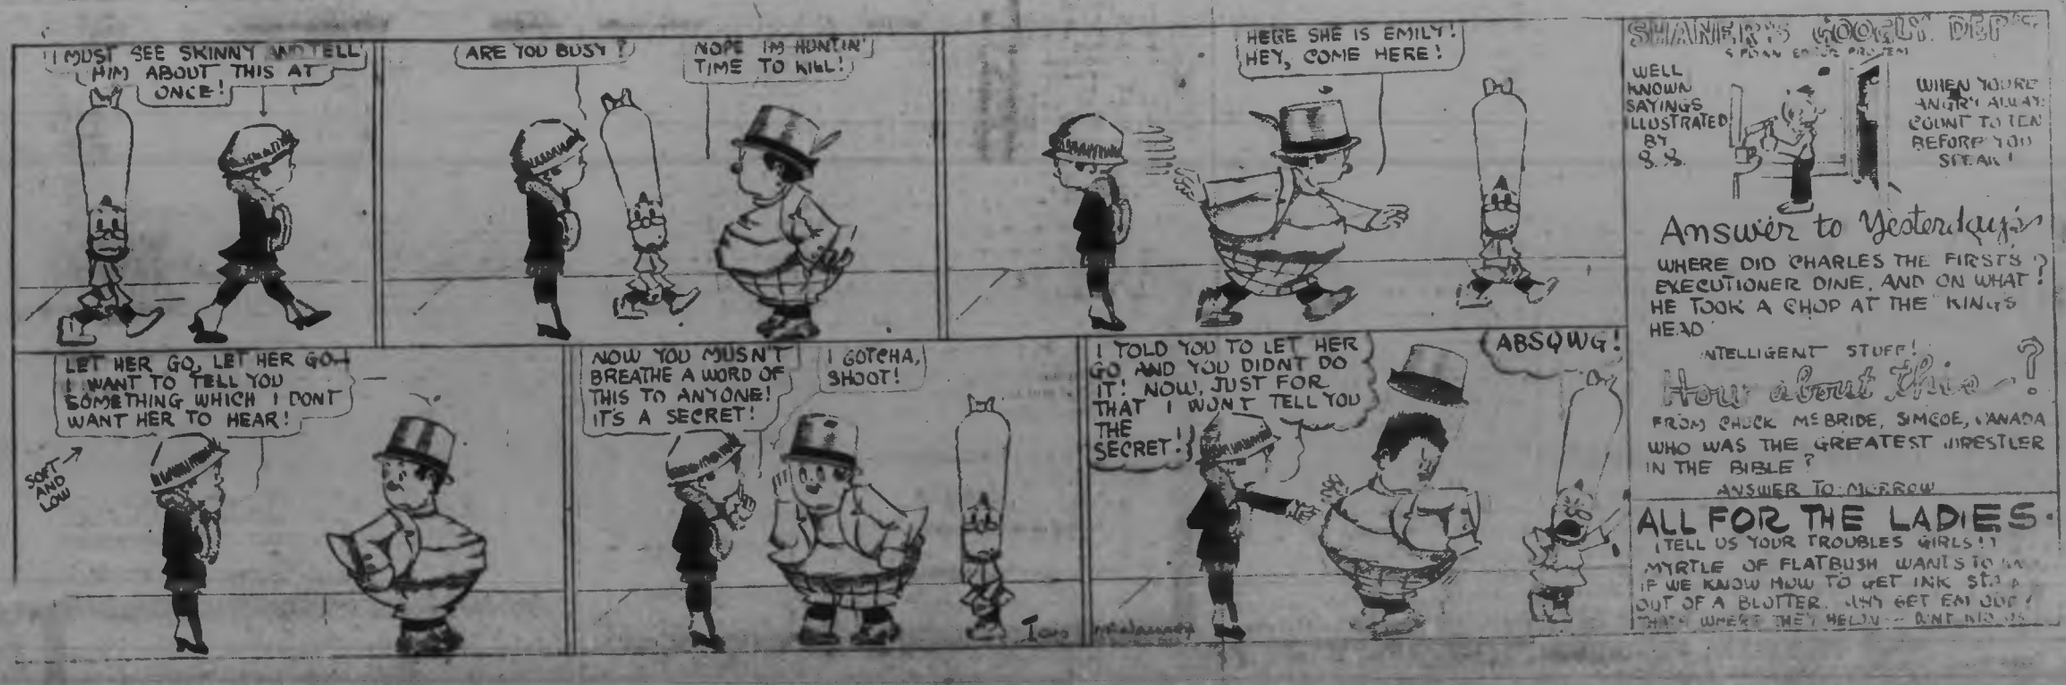
Us Boys

No Secret For Skinny To-day



A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Tragic End To Financier

"King Climax" Killed as he Was Leaving the Bank

LEESBURG, Ga., Feb. 19. — The sheriff and a posse in autos were pursuing three men who shot and killed A. D. Oliver, banker and speculator, whose meteoric career in finance had astonished middle Georgia, where he was known as "King Climax."

Oliver had left the Farmers Bank and Loan Company's building when three men approached and opened fire. Oliver fell shot through the heart and neck.

Oliver came to Climax in 1908 with nothing but a handbag and soon rose to affluence through "Wallingford" manoeuvres. The crash came when an investigation followed his arrest for bigamy. He served a short prison term, returned to Climax and again won a fortune. His creditors lately had throttled him and it is reported that they have lost $100,000.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back its Natural Colour, Gloss and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, grey or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

1,400,000 Belgians Have Lost All--Dependent On Charity

Twenty Per Cent of the Country's Population is Utterly Destitute and Cost of Them Will be $3,000,000 a Month Declares Rockefeller Commission

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The relief commission sent abroad by the Rockefeller Foundation to investigate conditions in the war upon the non-combatant populations of belligerent countries in a report from Rotterdam, Holland, under date of January 1, made public last night, regarding the steps that must first be taken by the agencies engaged in Belgian relief, enumerates the tasks as follows:

"First—To supply bread to the whole population of Belgium. There are at present in Belgium about seven million people, and eighty per cent. of them are able to pay for their bread, but the grain must be purchased in foreign countries, must be transported into Belgium and distributed under the protection of the American government to the communes.

"Second—To supply all food— bread, soup and coffee—to about 1,400,000 people who are wholly dependent upon charitable aid.

"Third— To supply clothing of all kinds to certain communities where the people have lost their clothing through the burning or looting of their houses.

"Fourth—To supply temporary shelter for families whose homes have been destroyed.

"Fifth—To give employment as far as possible to the unemployed."

In advising the foundation regarding the means available for accomplishing these ends, and also concerning the problems to be met the commission further says:

"For the purpose of providing relief in Belgium two distinct but intimately related sets of agencies have been created. In their financial operations these agencies are interdependent, but in organization, in function and in administrative control each, while co-operating with the other, maintains its separate identity and independence. These agencies are the commission for relief in Belgium and the Comite' de Secours et d'Alimentation de Belgique.

The Financial Problem.

"It is obvious that a work of such magnitude and complexity requires for its successful conduct a high order of intelligence and administrative ability. Our investigation has left no doubt in our minds that the two organizations engaged in the work measure up to these requirements. We are satisfied as to the integrity, ability and high purpose of the men who are conducting these organizations and their work.

The financial problem of Belgian relief may be divided into two parts: First, the supplying of bread for the total population of the country, and second, the supplying of food and all other requirements to that portion of the population which is wholly upon charitable aid.

"First—Supplying bread to the total population of Belgium. The present population of Belgium is estimated at about 7,000,000. As the grain supply of the country has been exhausted, all these people are dependent for bread upon grain to be shipped in from the outside.

"The Belgian National Committee has estimated as a basis of distribution that each person should be granted 270 grams of flour per day and that to produce this amount of flour will require about 300 grams of grain.

"This is about one-half of the average consumption as figured by Rountree. On a basis of 300 grains of grain per day, the total population of 7,000,000 people will require about 2,000 tons of grain per day, or about 60,000 tons per month.

"It is estimated that this grain, purchased abroad and delivered in Belgium, will cost on an average $40 per ton. To purchase the 60,000 tons of grain per month required by the population calls for a monthly expenditure of about $2,400,000.

"Second—Relief to that portion of the population wholly dependent upon charitable aid:— Of the 7,000,000 people now living in Belgium it is estimated that about eighty per cent. are at present able to pay for their bread and other supplies, while about twenty per cent. or 1,400,000, are without resources and are dependent upon charitable relief for the whole of their supplies.

"Of the 750,000 people living in Brussels, 250,000 are now in the 'soup' line. Of the 40,000 people now living in Machlin, 24,000 are in the 'soup' line. It is estimated that one-third of the present population of Liege is already dependent upon the 'canteens.'

Conditions in the Cities.

"The chairman of the Belgian National committee has estimated that in the industrial towns and cities of Belgium about one-third of the present population is now being supported by charity.

"In the rural communities conditions are better. Most of the farmers have some resources. From the few remaining cows they get milk and butter. From the land they have some supplies of potatoes, turnips and other vegetables. In some of the more favoured rural communities the proportion of the population wholly dependent upon charity is at present small.

"In other communities where the destruction of houses has been great and the requisition of cattle and food supplies has been heavy, a much larger percentage of the people are dependent upon charitable aid.

"Combining the surveys of both the industrial and agricultural communities, the chairman of the Belgian National Committee estimates that at present about twenty per cent. of the population or 1,400,000 are unable to pay for their food, clothing or other needs.

"It is estimated that to provide for these 1,400,000 persons who are without resources will require a daily expenditure of thirty centimes per person for food—bread, soup and coffee—and ten centimes for other needs, such as clothes, shelter, medical attention, &c.

"For the 1,400,000 persons to be aided, this represents a total expenditure of about $112,000 per day, or, in round numbers, $3,000,000 per month.

"Of this sum of $3,000,000 required to meet the present charitable burden of Belgium the communes have undertaken to provide one-third— i.e., each commune undertakes to provide one-third of the funds required to supply the needs of its own dependent population. The other two-thirds must be raised outside the communes.

"This means that to support the 1,400,000 people in Belgium who are now without resources, and who are, therefore, wholly dependent for all their needs upon charitable aid, the Belgian National Committee and the friends of Belgium in foreign countries must supply the sum of $2,000,000 per month. This fund must be raised in the main outside Belgium."

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—9 Petrograd despatch to the Times says:

"Princess Schakhovsky, who recently proceeded to the front in the capacity of a military aviator, gives to the readers of the Bourse Gazette the first impressions of flight over the enemy's positions. She made three flights, none of which was less than one hour, and one was of two hours' duration. She writes:

"It was a novelty for me to observe beneath us small clouds, which indicated that the enemy had opened fire on our machine. But I did not feel afraid even when the bullets whistled past the machine. At times they even pierced the wings, but fortunately did not touch the vital parts of the apparatus.

"After 20 or 30 minutes one grows accustomed to this characteristic humming, which somewhat differs from the ordinary sound of a bullet during its passage parallel with the earth. When fired upwards to a great height the bullet loses momentum, so that when many bullets are discharged the sounds are more prolonged."

In military circles the official report of the fighting in the region of Augustowo is understood to indicate that the enemy's flanking movements have been countered. Forthcoming operations will apparently resolve themselves into a struggle on the flanks on the East Prussian front. The enemy's movements on this front and the operations of his separate groups are co-ordinated and, although only the initial stages of these movements are discernible, it may be assumed that a general engagement is not far off.

Colonel Shumsky, in the Bourse Gazette, contends that the German operations on the Russian front constitute an active defensive which the enemy cannot convert into a large scale offensive until the achievement of a victory on the French front, the impossibility of which already has been abundantly demonstrated.

EVERY NEURALGIC HEADACHE CURED! USE "NERVILINE"—IT WON'T FAIL

The Miraculous Healing Power of This Liniment is Unfailing

RUB ON NERVILINE

There may be a thousand pains; yet, excepting sciatica, neuralgia is the worst. Most remedies are not strong enough or penetrating enough to relieve neuralgia. You know everything you have tried has failed to give even momentary relief, and you have decided that neuralgia must be borne forever.

Do not make this mistake—try NERVILINE.

Apply it to the sore spot. Notice the glow that spreads deeper and wider as Nerviline's curative power is carried further and further into the tissue. How quickly the pain is soothed! How rapidly it lessens! In a little while you have forgotten the pain—it has actually gone.

Neuralgia gives Nerviline an opportunity of demonstrating its superiority over all other pain remedies. No magic, as you might imagine after you have used it—simply the application of scientific knowledge to the relief of pain.

Nerviline is a great outcome of modern medical ideas. You cannot afford to without it, because pain comes quickly and comes to us all. Guaranteed to cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Large bottles, 50 cents, trial size 25 cents; at druggists, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Young Man Injured While Uncoupling a Hose Bag—Havelock News

HAVELOCK, Feb. 19—Mr. Thompson, M.P.P., spent the week-end in town.

Mrs. Moffatt of Marmora is the guest of Mrs Ben Chambers.

Mr. Charles Southgate of Kingston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hogg.

Mr. Johnston of Norwood is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Will Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Knox of Peterborough are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Williams.

Mr. Harold Patterson of Toronto is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Patterson.

Mr. Wm. Martin of Campbellford spent Monday last in town.

Mr. Jack Roche of Toronto spent Monday last in town.

Mrs. Thos. MacMannus of Campbellford was the guest of Miss Bertha Bryans for a few days last week.

Mr. Spurr of Madoc was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Ghent, last week.

Sapper Wm. Holderoft of No. 6 Company, Division Engineers, of the Second Contingent, now in training at Ottawa, spent the past few days at his home, here. It is likely his last visit before going to the front.

The Valentine Dance which was held in the town hall on Monday night last, by the Maids of Havelock proved a great success. Mr. Given of town furnished the music. A number of Peterborough boys attended the dance, including Messrs. Jack McNabb, Vigo Elliott, McBaine, Bert Macavoy, Fred Sedgwick, Hall, English and G. Stewart.

Mr. Arthur E. Bunnett of Belleville returned home on Thursday after spending a few days with friends in Prenevaeau.

Mr. Kukeguard, Manager of the Cordova gold mine, which, by the way, is in full operation again, was in town on Saturday, to deposit a gold brick in the Bank.

The first real hockey match of the season will be held at the rink, here, on Friday night, when the Hastings team will be the visitors. The game will commence at 8 o'clock, sharp.

Mr. Frank Watson had a narrow escape from serious injury on Thursday night of last week when he was slightly scalded about the eyes by the steam from a hose bag which he was uncoupling. Another inch or so nearer and he would have undoubtedly lost his eyesight.

But They Want Cold Weather and Bright Sunshine as a Change—Hospitals Are All They Could Desire

LONDON, Feb. 18.—From Northern France: "Zero weather and a little of our Western sunshine would be welcome just now," remarked a member of the Canadian contingent to me as the rain beat heavily on the encampment that sheltered the officers and men of the clearing hospital of the Canadian Army Corps under Lieut.-Col. F. S. Ford. The scene at the moment was anything but cheerful. The clearing hospital corps preceded the main contingent in crossing to France, and although they were aware the latter had safely landed, they were totally ignorant of the whereabouts of the main body to which they will be attached. Everyone, of course, recognized the necessity of secrecy in such movements, but there has been considerable speculation as to the exact location of the main contingent since the arrival of the Clearing Hospital Corps.

Good Health in Bad Weather.

They have experienced some of the worst European weather, but I was informed that the health of the camp is excellent. The spirit of the corps is buoyant, particularly with the prospect of soon moving forward, now that the main body had arrived from Salisbury Plain. They anticipate being shortly linked to them in the move to the front. It was impossible not to admire the cheery spirit of the Canadian soldier and his cheerfulness seems infectious. Shortly after leaving camp, I met an English officer, who, referring to the rain, which had converted the ground almost into a quagmire, remarked: "Conditions are not ideal, but Canadians just adapt themselves to the situation, they are splendid. One felt his conclusion was right. At the same time there was no mistaking the anxiety of both officers and men to be at the front, in close proximity to the main body.

Smart Transportation.

While the movement of troops is shrouded in mystery, transportation is carried out with the efficiency which is part of the wonderful military organization in Northern France that is daily becoming more perfect. To meet the exigencies of the situation ambulance work and the creation of hospitals are among the most splendid efforts of the campaign. In this connection Le Touquet has come into prominence. English, Canadian, and French hospitals are located at this delightful spot on the French coast. Much has been written concerning the No. 2 Canadian Stationary Hospital, which has a most delightful situation, but not too much. I have just had the opportunity of visiting the institution, and in addition to going through it, of meeting the wounded, including several from the German lines. The majority of them have been engaged at the battles around La Bassee and the Germans presented an interesting contrast, but before referring to them and their appreciation of Canadian treatment, it may be appropriate to say a few words about the equipment of the institution, which is now on the verge of completion.

Right Up to Date.

Lieutenant-Colonel Shillington, who is in command and who is supported by Major McKelvy Bell and other officers of the staff, was asked to find a building and then equip it for a hospital. If people in Canada interested in this work could see the place which he had the good fortune to find and the manner in which it has been equipped, they would be proud of the Canadian institution. I was informed that the idea has been to render the hospital so efficient that wounded soldiers might be able to have treatment equal to that which he could receive in a hospital whether it be London or any Canadian city. I can only say the internal arrangements of the institution and its equipment have excited much admiration. Several interesting surgical cases have been successfully performed, and it may be interesting to mention that out of the 900 cases received between December, when the hospital was opened, and the end of January, there have been only three deaths.

Not All Are Canadians.

It will, of course, be gathered that the wards have not been reserved so far strictly for Canadians, but they have been used by wounded soldiers of other allies.

When I was at Letouquet there was ample accommodation for Canadian cases which may arise. Miss Ridley, matron, has an efficient staff of graduate nurses, and it was interesting to see how friend and foe were being treated without slightest distinction. Germans were very appreciative of the treatment they were receiving. One of them treated every suggestion that the allies will win as a huge joke. It is rather strange to hear these expressions of absolute certainty from German wounded and prisoners that Germany cannot be beaten. It shows how deeply-rooted is the idea of Prussian military superiority. This wounded soldier, for instance, who is able to sit up in bed and take an interest in things, remarked: "Beat us! Why, we have four million men which we have not called out." He laughs and is quite happy because, as he says, he knows "Germany is going to win."

Talkative Thief In Night Call Squeezes Girl Teacher's Hand

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Miss Anna G. Dinon, a public school teacher, was awakened in her home at No. 57 Washington Street, Harrison, N. J., at three o'clock yesterday morning by two men searching her bedroom.

"What do you want?' she demanded.

"Hush, now little girl," said one of the burglars, tiptoeing over to her. "Don't make a fuss, Bright Eyes, but just be quiet."

This fellow pushed her pillow over a bit and sat down at the head of the bed. As she raised her arm from under the covers he seized her hand, gently but very firmly. Then he squeezed it slightly.

"You wouldn't strike a fellow would you?" he inquired.

"Just don't make a noise to awaken the family," Miss Dinon pleaded, "and you can have anything you find."

"Do you know 'Tom' Dinon?" the burglar asked.

"Yes, he is my nephew."

"I thought so. He's down in the Railway Reformatory for refusing to go to school."

"He's a good boy, but he didn't like school," said the teacher.

"You don't know me?" asked the burglar, squeezing her hand.

"No, I never saw you," Miss Dinon said, as the man struck a match so the light would illumine his face.

"I'm glad of that," he said "How's Irene?"

Miss Dinon was startled. This man also knew her niece. She was trying to think who he might be, when the other burglar burned his last match and asked for more. The teacher said there there were matches in the kitchen, down stairs. She was invited to accompany them to the kitchen, and as she left her bed each of the burglars took one of her hands, and the three went down to the kitchen.

After obtaining matches the men tried to light a gas jet in the hall. It would not ignite, and while they were working with it Miss Dinon slipped away from them in the dark, ran to the front door and out into the street. She screamed on her way to a neighbour's house. The burglars, frightened by the screams, escaped through a rear door which they had forced open. They obtain about $150 worth of Miss Dinon's jewels.

No Temple of Childhood

Will Be Number of Disappointed Mothers in Peterborough

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—There will be no Temple of Childhood at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, and thousands of New York mothers who had photographs of their children taken for that exhibit will be disappointed. The occasion for the Temple of Childhood granted to the International Child Exhibit Company has been revoked. Legal damages will be claimed by the Childhood promoters.

According to all accounts there will be a number of disappointed mothers in Peterborough.

SELECT MEDICINE CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only of healthgiving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c. box yourself.

A rifle target patented by an Oregon inventor is a figure of a man, the head of which drops back when a bullet strikes its belt plate.

CARE OF THE EYES

Health as Well as Beauty Demands That Eyes Get Attention.

The woman who takes care of herself should give as much attention to her eyes as she does to her skin or to her hair. In the first place after driving or being in the dust of the city or country she should wash or bathe her eyes with tepid water. This removes the irritating dust or small particles. After reading or before going to bed she should bathe the eyes with salt water or tepid water to which is added a pinch of salt, and using an eye cup, will be surprised at the difference in the sparkle of the eyes. If inflamed they should be bathed several times a day. The dull, sunken eyes, the hollow circles and the shallow complexion of many women is due, however, to the complaints and diseases peculiar to women. The best thing I know for this is Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription, because it is a temperance tonic, being made of roots and herbs with pure glycerine. Dr. Pierce publishes the ingredients on the wrapper so it is not a secret, and I have seen many women cured by it and not only that, but the dull, sunken eyes, the sunken cheeks, and bust, have taken on a sparkle and healthful appearance. Thousands of women have testified to having been cured of womanly diseases by this Prescription. It speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Keep the bowels healthy by using Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They don't gripe.

When Flour Was Scarce.

The scarcity of flour drove the privy council to some remarkable sumptuary recommendations in 1795. All families were begged to give up puddings and pies and the privy councilors announced that they promised to set up an example by confining themselves to fish, meat, vegetables and household bread, partly made of rye. One quartern loaf a week was recommended as the maximum allowance per head, and the loaf should be put on the table for each to help himself so that there might be no waste. Rich people were urged to do without soups and gravies, to take only the prime cuts and leave the rest for the poor. The poor should be taught how to make soup and rice pudding, rice being a new food which until then had been little used.—London Chronicle.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends stomach misery, indigestion in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

Berlin Newspapers Say Time Has Come When Germany Cannot Stop to Consider Anything Other Than She's Fighting For National Preservation---"Her People Are Threatened With Starvation."

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

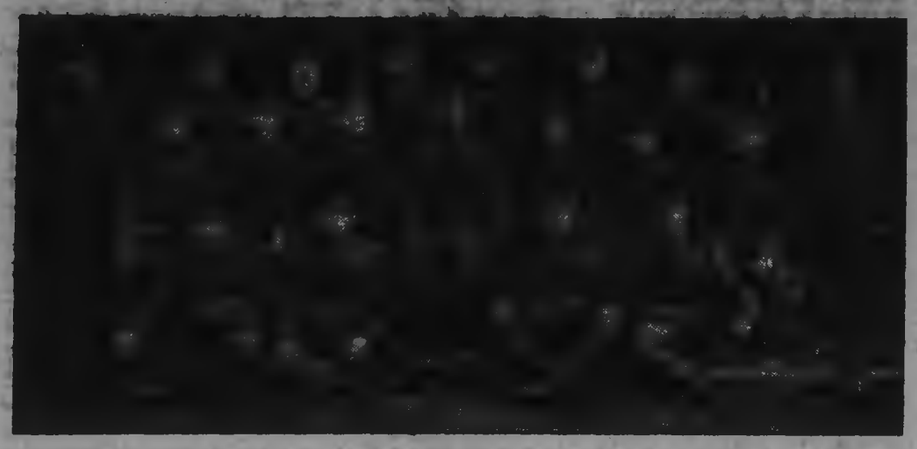
BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Feb. 19.—"Germany is fighting now without regard to consequences." This was the declaration of the Lockal Anzeiger, which reflects the view-point of the highest government officials. In a leading editorial to-day, discussing the blockade plans generally, the newspaper insists that the time has come when Germany cannot stop to consider anything other than she's fighting for national preservation. "Because of the illegal and unwarranted methods of her enemies," the editorial says, "Germany was forced to begin yesterday a defensive fight to retain her place as a world power. Her people are threatened with starvation. There is no intention on the part of the German government to wage a commercial war against neutral shipping but whoever enters the danger zone must expect to perish therein."

LONDON, February 19.—That the fighting along the entire front held by the British arms, incudng the Canadian contingent in France, is very severe, was stated in another report from General French made public to-day. It reviewed the operations up to yesterday and paid a high tribute to the gallantry of his troops, who are under constant fire. Once more the British commander in chief has praised the work of the British airmen, who have covered themselves with glory at all times since they went into the field. "The enemy has displayed considerable activity," the report says. "At certain points the Germans succeeded in occupying some of our trenches but our men drove them out by a series of determined counter-attacks. The gallantry of our troops was especially marked when it is realized that the entire ground over which the operations took place was water-logged."

WASHINGTON, February 19.—The State Department was advised to-day that all travel between England and the continent has been suspended by the British admiralty until further notice.

The order was taken to mean that Britain does not propose to risk the lives of any passengers in that area. At the same time the State Department received a notice that the German military authorities are now requiring every individual, man, woman or child, to have an individual passport in entering Germany.

DR. GREER'S STRETCHER BEARER SECTION



The above picture has a special local interest. It represents the Stretcher-bearer Section of Captain Garnet Greer, M.D. (son of Dr. Greer, city), of the 2nd Battalion of the 1st Infantry Brigade of the 1st Canadian Contingent at Salisbury, now in France. The middle figure in the second row sitting, is Dr. Greer, and the first figure on the left of the first row sitting, is Private Griffith, Peterborough, of the 57th; and the figure at the extreme right standing, is Private Kelsey, Peterborough, of the 57th. The picture was taken on Feb. 5th, just before the departure of the Canadians for France. It might be stated here, that Dr. Greer, who is medical officer for the 2nd Battalion, deserves great credit for his excellent care of the men under his charge, for the excellent bill of health, he could present. His battalion was the only one in his division that did not have a death. Everything was kept scrupelously clean, and the health of the men was greatly benefitted by Dr. Greer's expedient of frequently changing the site of the tents. To this precaution the Divisional Medical Officer, who was very warm in his praise of the effectiveness of the means employed to safeguard the welfare of the men, ascribes the excellent health enjoyed by the 2nd Battalion.

PRESENTATION BY SOLDIERS TO PTE. GASH

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

An interesting event took place at the local Armouries yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the parade, when the members of the local Company of the 39th Battalion staged a surprise presentation for one of their number Pte Gash who last week joined the ranks of the benedicts. Pte. Gash was presented with a most handsome clock, the gift of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Peterborough Company of the 39th Battalion. In making the presentation Sergt.-Major Harry Willord neatly expressed the feelings of the members of the Company and wished Pte. Gash and his young wife every success. The recipient replied suitably, after which the gathering gave three rousing cheers for the bride and groom.

"B" Squadron of the Mounted Rifles and the local company of the 39th Battalion took advantage of the beautiful weather this morning and sent out on rute marches. The 39th Battalion, carrying their rifles, left the Armouries at 9.15 o'clock and invaded the northern part of the Township of North Monaghan, carrying by storm the school house on the Jackson Park Road. They met no further opposition than the camera of the school teacher in charge. The Company then marched south to the Gravel Road and returned by that thoroughfare, reaching the Armouries at 12 o'clock.

"B" Squadron got away at 10 o'clock and made a successful attack on Browntown, which capitulated without a shot being fired. The Squadron returned to the Armouries at 11.45. Both units finished their tramp in splendid shape.

Nearly all the 39th men have been supplied with the scarlet uniforms.

The Examiner has received the following message from Capt. C. P. Fee, of the 22nd Overseas Battery, which of the 22nd Overseas Battery, which left Kingston on Wednesday for Halifax:

"On troop train near Drummon, P. Q. Singers good wishes to all kind friends in Peterborough. Our troops very fit. Hope to sail soon."—C. P. Fee.

In addition to Capt. Fee there are two other Peterborough boys in the Battery—Fred Cole and Fred Reed.

TORPEDOED BUT STEAMER KEPT AFLOAT

French Vessel, Bound From Havre to Dunkirk Struck, But is Towed Into Dieppe

MAY HAVE BEEN MINE

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A Paris despatch says a German submarine torpedoed the French steamer Dinorah, from Havre to Dunkirk, 16 miles off Dieppe. The Dinorah, however, was not sunk, but was kept afloat by her pumps until towed into Dieppe. It is possible that the Dinorah struck a mine.

THE BAKERIES WERE INSPECTED

By Sanitary Inspector Spence—Some Changes May Be Made

Sanitary Inspector Spence visited the bakeries last evening. The nature of conditions as revealed by the inspection will probably be disclosed to the Board of Health at a meeting to be held this afternoon. The inspection was made in the evening for the purpose of ascertaining conditions as they exist during the maximum period. As a result of the inspection some recommendations will probably be submitted for the consideration of the Board and if accepted will mark the inauguration of some hanges concerning the operation of bakeries. For one thing the men employed in the bread foundries may be required to wear a suitable uniform, instead of juggling the bread in a state of semi-nudity, as is sometimes done under present conditions.

CASE WILL BE RETRIED IN PETERBORO'

Litigation Continues in the Case of Mrs. Pressick vs. Cordova Mines—The Grose Murder Trial Will Open on Tuesday

AT THE ASSIZES

The Spring Court of Assize will open on Tuesday next, before Chief Justice Mulock. The criminal docket will be represented by one case, namely that of Edgar Grose, who will appear before the Grand Jury on a charge of murder. Grose, it will be remembered, engaged in a scuffle with William O'Brien, on the 24th of December last. The fracas culminated in O'Brien's death, which is said to have been caused by a rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain. If the evidence submitted at the inquest and the preliminary police court hearing is any criterion, the case will be largely made up of medical testimony. A patheologist will likely be called, in addition to Doctors Eastwood and Gallivan. The latter conducted the post mortem. Mr. G. N. Gordon will appear for the defence.

The Civil List.

In the civil list, Benjamin Clute is plaintiff in an action to recover the sum of $1,500 from the Grand Trunk Railway. Plaintiff, while in the employ of the Company, sustained the loss of a foot, for which he is asking compensation.

Mr. W. H. Biggar is acting for the Company and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the plaintiff.

A New Trial.

The Supreme Court has ordered a new trial in the case of Mrs. Pressick versus the Cordova Mines. The case, which was originally tried in Peterborough, concerns an action in which Mrs. Pressick seeks to recover damages alleged to have been sustained through the loss of her husband, who was killed while in the employ of the Cordova Mining Company. She was awarded the sum of $1,750.

At the time of Pressick's death, he was operating a compressed air drill. It appears that while adjusting a nut the wrench slipped and Pressick plunged over the ledge and disappeared down what is known in mining phraseology, as a "glory hole".

Mr. F. D. Kerr is appearing for the plaintiff and Mr. M. K. Cowan, K. C., of Toronto, for the defendants.

RECRUITS WANTED.

Recruits still wanted for Third Contingent Infantry. Apply at Armouries 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. daily.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER IS STRUCK WITHOUT NOTICE

Bound From New Orleans to Amsterdam, the Belridge is Torpedoed But Did Not Sink, Being Towed Into a British Port.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, February 19.—The Norwegian tank steamer Belridge, from New Orleans to Amsterdam, was torpedoed by a German submarine in the straits of Dover this morning, without notice. The crew took to the boats and landed on the British coast. According to later advices there is no doubt that the French steamer Dinorah was torpedoed and sunk by a mine.

LATER.—The Norwegian tanker Belridge did not sink after being torpedoed, but was towed to a British port after being abandoned by the crew, except volunteers.

LONDON, February 19.—(Special Cable.)—All the advices received here agree that the German blockade is being enforced from the air, and under the sea, and that the German fleet is not participating. The Zeppelins are patrolling the North Sea, and watching for vessels with cargoes of foodstuffs. Following the holding up of the Dutch steamer Helena by a Zeppelin, which after ascertaining the identity of the steamer, signalled it to pass on, came reports to-day that other Zeppelins had been sighted in the air. It is believed here that they are scouting and that they have a general plan whereby they can signal the approach of steamers to the various secret German submarine bases. This is the first time with the exception of the abortive raid along the British coast, that Zeppelins have actually been real factors in the war operations. It is generally believed that not only will they be used as scouts but that another visitation can be expected from them at the first favorable opportunity.

HEAR PRESIDENT FALCONER'S ADDRESS AT COLLEGIATE HALL

Everybody will be welcomed at the Collegiate Hall to-night to hear the address of President Falconer of Toronto University. His address will be of interest, as its subject, "Perversion of Loyalty," will doubtless involve a reply to the intemperate criticisms levelled against President Falconer on the head of his relations toward certain German professors at the university. President Falconer is one of the most scholarly speakers of the country, and his address to-night will be well worth hearing. Though the adress is given under the auspices of the Canadian Club, an invitation is extended to every citizen.

BLACKLISTER WAS FINED IN COURT

Edward Quinlan was fined $10.00 in police court this morning for being drunk yesterday while on the prohibited list. The fine was to be paid forthwith or thirty days in gaol. He did not have the money so will have to go to gaol.

In the witness box he told Chief Thompson that he got porter and sugar and whiskey yesterday forenoon and afternoon at the Montgomery House. He was served over the bar in the ordinary way. The bartender did not ask him if he were on the prohibited list. He did not know the bartender and did not believe he was known to the bartender.

Dan McDonald, who is being held on a charge of non-support, was remanded until Monday morning, as Mr. Widdifield, of Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, his counsel, was in Lakefield to-day

THE BETTER WAY.

We can't anticipate what action the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada will take in respect of the demand of the railways for permission to make an increase in freight rates. This much, however, is evident, as a means of financial adjustment to meet the conditions of the time, it is a much better and more humane way of financing the situation than by a reduction of the wages of railway employees. The latter way would concentrate the burden upon a few thousand men with painful directness. With the increase of carrying rates the burden will be distributed over the whole eight millions of our population. The merits and justification of the increased rates demanded may be a matter of argument, but there can be no question that it is more just than would be improvement of finances by a cut in wages of employees not any too large now.

FAIR AND UNFAIR TAXATION.

The new tariff measure of the Dominion Government, is a legitimate subject of discussion, without infringement of the party truce. It does not propose a war tariff—since the money voted for war is borrowed money and a matter for posterity to deal with. Extravagant government expenditure in the past few years, conjoined with a lessened revenue due to the influence of the war, may make the new tariff bear some resemblance indirectly to a war tax; but strictly speaking, it is neither a war tax nor a patriotic tax measure. We have voted 150 millions to help Britain in the war. On the one hand we have a course of the highest patriotism and loyalty to the Empire, but an increased tax of 5 per cent. against British goods coming into Canada, is not so distinctly patriotic and loyal. This surtax added to the higher cost of ocean freightage, shows a discrimination against the Mother Country at a time when she is doing enough for us. She will find the money we contribute as our share in waging war, and it is fortunate, even if an oversight, that the increased tax against British goods does not apply to the money we borrow. Another feature of the new taxation to which objection can be made, is the wrong principle of taxing a cheap article of food, bananas. It is pointed out, by way of objection, by the Colonial Press, that ninety per cent. of the bananas imported into Canada is consumed by the poor. The banana is described as a fruit of high nutritive value, and opposition to the tax is urged because it means a tax on the food of the poor, who are less able to pay it, especially at a time of unusual unemployment.

CRAWFISH PROGRESS.

Alabama, one of the United States, is practicing the finicky feasting, implied in "making two bites of a cherry." The legislature has prohibited newspapers from publishing liquor advertisements. This is rather putting the cart before the horse. Did it not occur to the Alabama legislators that they could have more effectively served its evident purpose, moral and social reform, by prohibiting the sale and consequent consumption of liquor? That they would have a right to do; but they haven't the same right to do violence to principle by muzzling the press and keeping the muzzle off the liquor traffic. They legalize the liquor traffic, but make it a crime for the traffic to use legitimate means to give effect to the rights conferred by legislation, making whisky selling as legitimate a business occupation, as legitimate in a strict legal sense, as selling bread. Our lawmakers and governing powers can't consistently make faces at German culture. In its strict meaning the word "kultur" is used by the Germans to express "efficiency." Alabama and Ontario government "culture" does not even mean efficiency. It means retaining a traffic, that outside of its moral malefaction, results in the worst form of physical and industrial, and economic inefficiency. Political considerations, and political advantage take precedence of considerations of the highest good to the people governed. it needs no argument to prove that any country would be better in every sense, if there were no liquor traffic. Lloyd George testified strongly to this, when in his recent speech on financing the war, he exalted the immensely increased financial efficiency of Russia, through the abolition of strong dring throughout the Empire; and France has become as a giant refreshed with new wine through the abolition of absinthe, a synonyn for national, through individual degradation. Yet the governments of our superior civilization, have lower standards of moral courage than "semi-civilized" Russia. We should at least, have the decency to cease boasting of our superior civilization, in the face of our disregard of its demands for consistent action.

THE SUBMARINE MENACE.

The German threat of starving Great Britain by submarine sinking of all ships—neutral as well as British—bringing in food supplies may not be an empty threat. It is monstrous enough in its conception to be worthy of the diabolical ideals of the war lords, and the will is not lacking to give the threat effect. But the power to give the threat effect may not be as great; we do not have need to feel greatly alarmed when the British authorities tell us they are prepared to deal with the menace. And we need not be unduly alarmed over German boasts of their capacity for carrying out their threat. We have been so bombarded by German lying since the war began that we must accept with large reserve the yarn coming from Berlin that Germany has 100 submarines ready. This is in the highest degree improbable. At the beginning of the war, seven months ago, Germany had, according to Archibald Hurd's "Fleets at War," 36 submarines. Whittaker tells us that in 1913 Germany had 25 submarines, so that the rate of building during the year was less than one new sumbarine per month. If Germany had 36 submarines when the war began seven months ago, she must, to have a hundred now, have built 64 within the past seven months. That would be at the rate of nine new submarines per month, almost as many per month as she built in 12 months from 1913 to 1914, not counting the submarines that have been sunk since last August. The submarine menace may be as real as its idea is revolting to civilized ideals; and it is disquieting; but its danger should not be exaggerated. We must take it with the calmness and undismayed attitude of the British Government. They know more about it than we do, and their declaration that they are prepared to meet it should be reassuring. We have in this terrible time bad enough actual things to meet and endure, without disquieting our souls with possibilities that may never be realized. Great Britain has "muddled through" many hard situations, and we have faith that she and her allies will come out triumphant in the present struggle.

WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

The Liberals are the fathers of British preference in this country, and they could not permit the heavy increase to be carried without a protest. If they do not go on record, they would be accused of failing to do so in the event of an election.—London Advertiser.

Sam Hughes ever ask his subordinates as to how Canada's soldiers would be shod if they were suddenly called upon to go forth to battle? NO; so far as the evidence shows, NO. —Toronto Telegram (Conservative).

ANOTHER DETHRONEMENT DUE.

Real patriotism which means service to our fellow-men, has been crushed in the struggle for wealth, while neither farmer nor industrial worker has received his due reward. Before Canada can develop into the great democratic nation for which it is destined King Gold must be dethroned and the idea of service be inculcated in the minds of our youth.—Grain Growers' Guide.

To aid in picking cotton a cuff has been invented which holds a large number of bolls.

To protect hosiery while low shoes are being polished there has been invented a celluloid shield held by springs against the ankle.

How To Pronounce War Map and Other Tough Names

This war has so many irredeemably bad features that one is glad to discover that it has even a little educative or informative value—especially in the matter of geography and geographical nomenclature.

The outbreak of war in Europe has brought into common use scores of words, names of persons and places, and military and naval terms, which the average man has but a very hazy notion how to pronounce properly.

So far the greatest puzzle in this respect is probably the word Przemysl. Przemysl is the great Austrian fortress which was expected to be such a stumbling block to the Russians on their march Vienna-wards. It has not proved more of a stumbling block to the troops of the Tsar than has the correct pronunciation of its name to the general run of newspaper readers in this country, however.

It is quite easy to say the word—when you are told how, and have had a little practice at it. Here it is in straightforward English — "P-jemixzle." You only have to remember to sound the "p" by itself and that the second syllable is "jem," and the rest is simple.

Rheims, whose beautiful old cathedral was so madly and wontonly bombarded by the Huns of the Kaiser ("Ki-zer," not "Kay-zer") is another word that puzzles most of us. "Rimes" or "Reems," many render it, as a popular way out of the difficulty, but few Frenchmen would recognize either as being the name of a town in France. "Rhanc" is approximately the proper pronunciation of the word.

Lee-aije and Na-mure.

In the early days of the war, Liege and Namur were places roughly handled by others besides the Germans; Liege was frequently spoken of as "Lee-gee," and Namur was given an assortment of renderings—all inaccurate.

"Na-mure," not "Nam-moor," is the right pronunciation of the latter, while Liege is properly pronounced "Lee-aije." There is no proper rhyme in English for "aije," and an expert on the subject has confessed that, after a severe mental struggle the following is the nearest approach he can get to rhyming Liege:

"When they nobble a spy in Liege,
It is 'Good-bye' to lies and evas—"

"If you break off the word 'evasions' where we have, you get much the same sound as in the second syllable of Liege," he explains.

General custom more or less now admits of Luxembourg and Louvain being here pronounced as they are spelt, but there are a number of places on the map of the war which should be taken greater pains with if one wishes to avoid the risk of smiles from people who "know better." Here are some examples worth studying and committing to memory. The little tick (') is put against the syllable you should accent:

Aisne—Ain.
Alsace—Al-sass'.
Soissons—Swos'-on.
Amiens—Arm-yan'.
Calais—Kal-'ay.
Meuse—Merz.

Three British military terms often mispronounced by those who are not soldiers are "howitzers," 'route," and "rations". In the army they call these words "howtzer," "rowt" (the latter rhyming with 'clout"), and "rash-ons."

The pronounciation of the Allies' commander-in-chief's name is best indicated by clipping the final "e," thus—"Joffr'"; while his great opponent, Von (pronounced "Fon," by the way) Kluck, calls himself "Klook."

Goben pronounced Gur'ben.
Herr pronounced Her.
Landwehr pronounced Land'-vair.
Uhlan pronounced Oo-lahn'.
Breslau pronounced Brez'-low (as in cow).

How Britain's Vast Wealth Helps Her Breast War Wave

Some wizard of finance has estimated that the total income of the people of the British Isles is about $11,500,000,000 a year—a sum equivalent to five dollars a week for every man, woman and child The figures are stupendous, and, as they are not challenged, it proves how justified Mr. Lloyd George was in his optimistic statement this week as to Britain's ability, if necessary, to face the financial burden of a five years' war, and at the same time to lend monetary aid to her allies. Taking Mr. Lloyd George's estimate of war expenditure of $2,250,000,000 a year, Great Britain could pay this out of income and still have nearly four dollars a week for the maintenance of every man, woman, and child within the United Kingdom.

The war, of course, is interfering with the national income, as some two million wage-earners have been diverted from productive labour to unproductive employment in the army. The returns of the Bankers' Clearing House—which is a rough index to the trend of national wealth—shows a falling off of $8,855,000,000 for 1914 as compared with the previous year. There was a steady improvement after the first shock of war in August, and by the end of the year the London clearings had reached about two-thirds of the usual amount, while the country clearings were about normal The decrease in London was largely due to the closing of the Stock Exchange. Trade and manufactures are also looking up. Thanks to the British navy, shipowners and ship-brokers are reaping a rich harvest out of the higher freights. German competition has been practically killed on the continent of Europe, and a large portion of the trade has been secured by the British. The war itself has stimulated the productivity and increased the profits of a large number of industries. Armaments, boots, uniforms, food, saddlery, and other requiresmnts for the army have counterbalanced to a considerable extent the reduction in the consumption of luxuries. People in a general way of business and who can adapt themselves to the changed conditions are doing well. This holds good of small shop keepers, particularly, who cater for the working classes. Those who know London well declare that never in all their experience have they witnessed so little distress. The school children of the great cities are well fed and clothed.

The adaptability of the British people has enabled them to adjust themselves to the new conditions and to overcome the difficulties that faced them on the outbreak of war. Makers of cheap jewellery have become manufacturers of shell-fuses and other implements of war. Dress-makers who aforetime were the creators of delectable gowns have turned their idle hands to the sewing of shirts for soldiers. Unemployment has fallen to a minimum in the United Kingdom, and there is work for everyone except the shirkers. At the London docks, for instance, once the refuge of destitute casuals, two thousand more hands are employed. Under the stress of a national emergency Britain has reorganized her industrial forces and has set her house in order against the severest strains which the pressure of a prolonged war may impose. —The Globe

OBJECT TO TAXING FOOD OF THE POOR

TORONTO, Feb. 19—A statement setting forth the facts bearing on the banana trade will be forwarded to the Minister of Finance with the request that before the new revenue act is finally ratified, he will go into the matter thoroughly to see whether the interests of the Canadian consumers would not be better served by placing bananas with other foodstuffs exempt from the new levy. The general grounds on which opposition is based is that the tax would result in a loss of cheap food for the poor and a further decrease in banana importation which would increase very materially the present cost of this food. A very small proportion of bananas are consumed by the rich, in fact ninety per cent. of the imports of this food are consumed by the poor.

It was proposed some time ago to impose a banana tax in the United States, but after the question had been thoroughly discussed by press and people, as to its bearing on the cost of living, it was abandoned.

The banana is a highly nutritive food, and contains a greater porportion of flesh forming elements than either apples or oranges. In brief, the opposition to the tax is urged because it means a tax on the food of the poor who are least able to pay it.—British and Colonial Press Ltd.

Dog's Grip Holds On Man In Leap

Stranger Goes to Cell on Burglary Charge

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The noise that two stranger men made while they packed silverware and other valuables awakened Mrs. Helena Kornervitsch and her fox terrier, Trotter, in her apartment on the second floor at No. 224 1-2 Twenty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, before daylight yesterday.

Trotter ran into the dining room and clamped his saw-like teeth into the calf of one man's leg. The other man fled down a fire escape and got away. Trotter held on, and as the stranger struggled to discourage him a large china cabinet was knocked over with a terrific bang.

Then the man, unable to loose Trotter, ran to a window, the terrier holding on, raised the sash, and, in desperation, leaped out. Trotter never released his hold for a second, but kept on sawing his teeth into the man's calf.

This man's cries, with the screams of Mrs. Kornervitsch, attracted Policeman Lee. He could not persuade Trotter to let go, and they had to wait for Mrs. Kornervitsch to dress and appear. She opened the mystic "Open Sesame" that caused Trotter to release his hold.

After Dr. Kelly, of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, had dressed the wounds inflicted by the dog, the man, who was John Dolan, was locked up and accused of burglary. He was held later without bail.

GUARDING AN ARMY

Order of Advance of a Division on the Marsh.

TACTICS IN TIME OF BATTLE.

Careful and Elaborate Disposition of the Detached Troops to Secure the Main Body Against Surprise—The Flanks and the Rear Guard.

"The civilian in reading stories of battles and accounts of marches and attacks by an army in times of war finds many expressions that he does not clearly understand—such, for instance, as references to independent cavalry, the advance guard, advance cavalry, point and flank patrols, the support, the reserve, the main body, flank guard and rear guards—and it is reasonable to believe that there is confusion in many minds as to significance and relation of these things," said an army officer.

"Let us assume that a division is on the march, and, by the way, a division is the basis in the United States organization for the mobile army and is a unit made up of all necessary arms and services complete for independent action incident to ordinary operations.

"One or two marches ahead goes the independent cavalry, which seeks to check the enemy's cavalry and send back information as to the enemy's movements and his intentions. This cavalry is so far to the front that it could not prevent the enemy slipping in between it and the following army and could not prevent the enemy's patrol from observing the movement of the troops. Thus other precautions are taken, and one or two marches behind the independent cavalry marches the advance guard.

"First in the advance guard is the advance cavalry, commonly one squadron, which sends ahead a point or leading patrol and sends on both sides to march across country or on roads paralleling the line of march small bodies called flanking patrols. All this is to clear the country of the enemy or give timely notice of his approach or his presence. Four or five miles in the rear of the leading patrol rides the advance party of the advance cavalry.

"In the rear of the advance cavalry marches the support, commonly formed of one regiment of infantry and a mounted detachment of engineers. Five hundred yards ahead of the support marches its advance party, composed of one company, and from 300 to 500 yards ahead of the advance party is its 'point' patrol, and other patrols may be sent out on the flanks or to places on the line of march where they can get good views of the country.

"About 1,000 yards behind the support marches the reserve in the following order in the United States army: One battalion of infantry, one battalion of artillery, one regiment of infantry, one company of engineers less the detachment with the support, an ambulance company and perhaps a detachment of signal troops. One or two miles behind the reserve marches the main body. If danger is suspected on either flank, flank guards are sent out, and they may be mere patrols or detachments of all arms, according to the requirements of the situation. Behind the main body marches the rear guard. Its component parts are generally as far behind the main body as those of the advance guard are in front of it, though on a night march it draws closer to the main body.

"This careful and elaborate disposition of troops on the march is to secure the division against surprise, to prevent small parties of the enemy delaying the march and, if the enemy is encountered in force, to hold him long enough for the main body to prepare for action and take up the best position offered by the country.

"The arrangement and position of the various forces as given above," concluded the military man, "are, as I said at the beginning, the usual disposition of advance troops of a division on the march, and for larger commands than a division you want to increase the strength of the independent cavalry, advance cavalry and patrols, support and reserve, and also increase the distances. In this you will see the reason for all the relatively small but frequent and sharp collisions during the early stages of a big battle."—Washington Star.

The Sheet Anchor.

"That was my sheet anchor"—i. e., my best hope, my last refuge—the sheet anchor of a ship, which in stress of weather is the sailors' chief dependence. The word sheet is a corruption of the word shote (thrown out), meaning the anchor "thrown out" in foul weather. The Greeks and Romans said, "My sacred anchor," referring to the sheet anchor, which was always dedicated to some god.

NATIONAL HYMNS.

SING THE PRIDE OF COUNTRY.

Patriotic Airs of Austria, Russia, France, Germany, England and Norway

The Austrian national anthem is one of the finest in existence. It was composed in 1797 by that great national composer, Haydn, who is chiefly known to concert goers by his magnificent oratorio "The Creation," in which occurs the splendid and florid chorus, "The Heavens Are Telling." The anthem was based upon an old national song, but Haydn made it a thing of beauty. It is the only national anthem composed by a musician of the foremost rank.

But the song which is sung in cities by civilians is not always, or, indeed, generally, the one sung by the soldiers who have to bear the brunt of battle and siege and march. The battle song of the Austrian soldier is "Prinz Eugen der edle Ritter," which tells how the noble cavalier, Prince Eugene of Savoy, laid siege to and captured Belgrade from the Turks in 1717. It ought to be a good song for the purpose, for it was actually written in the trenches before Belgrade.

Probably the most stately national anthem is the Russian. Its very title, "God the All Terrible," seems to strike a heroic strain. Sung by a great mass of peasant soldiers with simple fervor its effect is grand in the extreme. Played upon the great organ in the cathedral at Moscow it sounds like a prayer. Not only are the words very poetical, but the tune is forceful and haunting.

Of course the greatest of all war songs pure and simple is unquestionably "The Marseillaise." What memories it has clinging to its fervidly patriotic words! It was the song of the French revolution and did more to bring down the dynasty of the Bourbons than half a dozen army corps. It was called by the name which still is universally applied to it, because the men—and women—of Marseilles, the port of the Mediterranean, marched all the way to Paris, singing it as they went. Its first fruits were reaped a few days after their arrival, when the hated Bastille fell to its strains. It is now the national anthem of republican France.

In Germany no patriotic song has been sung with such fervor as the famous battle hymn of the Germans, "Die Wacht am Rhein" ("The Watch on the Rhine"). It was written in 1840, but remained practically unknown until the outbreak of the war with France, when it was sung by every soldier and every man, woman and child throughout the German empire. "The Watch on the Rhine" was to Germany at that time what "The Marseillaise" was to France—a soul stirring composition which made men eager to take up arms and fight for the cause which they thought was right.

England's national anthem is a Georgian product and originally opened with the words, "God bless great George, our king." It has been honored by Beethoven with seven variations for the piano, and it is introduced into his "Battle Symphony." On the whole, perhaps, the tune to which is sung "God Save the King" has probably the largest circulation of any tune in the world. Then there is "Rule, Britannia," which was composed by Dr. Arne, the English musician, who wrote several operas. "Rule, Britannia," was included in the "Masque of Alfred," a musical farce produced in 1740.

Just as the Austrian national anthem is the only one set to music by a great composer, so the Norwegian anthem is the only one whose words were written by a real poet. This was Bjornstjerne Bjornson. On one occasion he was asked when he got the greatest pleasure out of his fame as a national poet. He replied: "It was when a delegation from the Right came to my house in Christiania and smashed all my windows. Because when they had done all the damage they could and were starting home again they felt they ought to sing something. So they began to sing, 'Yes, We Love This Land of Ours.' They could do nothing else. They were obliged to sing the song of the man whom they had attacked!"

Singularly enough, the country which has the best variety of patriotic anthems in the country which has had less warfare than any other, the United States of America. Her songs are fine.

The real national anthem of America is "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and it is sung to the same tune as "God Save the King." But perhaps the real, genuine, rock bottom anthem of America, after all, is the famous "Yankee Doodle," which has the great advantage of being a real marching song, which not only helps to keep the men's spirits from flagging, but also helps to keep them in step. A band playing "Yankee Doodle" would take a regiment ten miles further than any other tune!—London Tit-Bits.

Anthem Titles.

A certain Edinburgh organist, who "posts up" his Sunday service titles at the church door, had recently a very practical illustration of the risks that may attend the shortening of anthem titles. The late Dr. H. J. Hopkins of the City Temple wrote an anthem, "I Will Wash My Hands In Innocency."

The organist in his haste set down at this down as "I Will Wash —Hopkins!" and was surprised when next day some wag sent him a cake of soap "to help wash Hopkins!"—London Globe.

Fry's Chocolate Powder

makes every Chocolate Cake a triumph. Daddy, kiddies, guests all alike enjoy its purity and its rich, healthful flavor. Even inexperienced housewives get perfect results—its so easy to make. Mix one-quarter cup of FRY'S CHOCOLATE POWDER, with two cups of powdered sugar, adding two tablespoonfuls of cream or of boiling water.

Of course, remember, "nothing will do but FRY'S."

THE SMALLEST PASSENGER LIST IN TWO MONTHS

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Although officials of the White Star line denied Germany's "war zone" threat was the reason for the small number of passengers carried by the Megantic when she steamed yesterday for Liverpool, it was generally accepted that the passenger list would have been much larger had it not been for the disquieting news.

The Megantic carried twelve saloon, forty second, and forty steerage passengers, one of the smallest lists of any of the large passenger vessels to clear from this port for England in the last two months. She will stop at Halifax, where additional passengers will be taken aboard.

Among the passengers was Mr. H. A. Sanderson, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company. He characterized Germany's threat as a huge joke and said the Kaiser would not dare to sink a vessel on board which citizens of neutral nations were passengers.

"Germany's new method of warfare, if she puts her plan into action, will not prove any greater danger than what the merchant marine has had to face since the beginning of the conflict," he said. "She never will be able to bring about an effective blockade of the British coast and I firmly believe that she would not dare to sink a vessel carrying citizens of neutral nations in view of the complications which undoubtedly would arise from such action."

The Manchuria, of the Atlantic Transport line, left at noon for London with twelve passengers. She carried an unusually heavy cargo and in being compelled to pass through the English Channel to reach London, will enter the field where German submarines have been most active.

Should her destruction be brought about by the Germans it would prove a serious loss to American shippers. A conservative estimate placed the value of her cargo at $600,000. Most of the cargo, it was said, is destined for the use of the British expeditionary force.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Makes It Dull, Brittle, Lifeless, and Causes It to Fall Out.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Victoria Cross Is Awarded

Lieut Martin-Leake Wins Clasp to His Previous Cross

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Lieut. Arthur Martin-Leake of the Royal Army Medical Corps has been awarded a clasp to the Victoria Cross, an extremely unusual honor.

Lieut. Martin-Leake won the Victoria Cross in the South African War and the clasp has been given him for "most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty throughout the campaign, especially during the period from Oct. 29 to Nov. 8, near Zonnebeke, in rescuing, while exposed to a constant fire, a large number of wounded who were lying close to the enemy's trenches."

Lt.-Col. E. W. Alexander of the R. F. A. has been awarded the Victoria Cross for saving his guns at Elouges, Belgium, while under a flank attack, and for rescuing a wounded man while under a heavy fire.

Victoria Crosses are also awarded to Drummer Wm. Kenney, Lieut. J. A. O. Brooke (dead), Capt. J. F. Vallentin (dead), Lieut. F. A. Depass (dead), James MacKenzie, Henry Robertson, A. Acton, James Smith, Lieut. Neame, and M. Leary.

The government of Natal has engaged a Kentucky expert to improve the quality of native tobacco and foster the industry generally.

D'Annunzio For War.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—In an interesting interview yesterday Gabriel D'Annunzio declared that within the next couple of weeks Italy will have drawn her sword for the liberation of her people in Trentino, Dalmatia and elsewhere.

D'Annunzio himself is about to open a campaign in favor of armed intervention in a sequence of chants entitled "Forstokens and Orisons." The first will appear next week.

Rate Against Franco-American War.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Insurance was placed at Lloyds yesterday at 20 guineas per cent. on policies covering the holder against war between the United States and Germany within six months. One month ago the premium for the same risk and period of time was five guineas per cent.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Sage Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief — no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

Contributions To Ensure Comfort Of 21st Battalion Men

Lt. Col. Hughes is Planning to Provide Travelling Field Kitchens and Other Equipment for 2nd Contingent Men

The following letter and communication will be read with interest here:

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 18, 1915.
To the Editor of The Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—As Captain of No. 3 Company, 21st Battalion, C.E.F., second contingent, it has fallen to my lot to raise funds from the districts from which the men in my Company come, and as there are over eighty men from Peterborough, I am appealing to Peterborough for help. The use of the funds is set forth in the circular letter, herewith enlosed.

I have written to Mr. T. F. Matthews of Peterborough, urging him to take up this matter and help me. Should he consent to do so, I trust that you will help him through your paper by urging it upon the good people of Peterborough to do all in their power to see that those who go to the front are supplied with proper comforts. Anything you can do to help this good cause along will be greatly appreciated.

Yours sincerely,
S. M. Gray,
Captain No. 3 Company, 21st Battalion, C.E.F., Kingston, Ont.

21st Battalion,
Canadian Expeditionary Force,
Headquarters, Kingston, Ont.
February 1st, 1915.

To the Friends of the Battalion,
Eastern Ontario.

In view of the expected early receipt of marching orders to leave Canada for the front, the officers of the Battalion are faced with the serious problem of immediately raising funds to purchase the necessary equipment and supplies to supplement the Government issue so as to insure the health and comfort of the non-commissioned officers and men of the Battalion when on the march and in the fighting line.

Amongst the many necessary adjuncts to the Regimental Equipment not issued by the Department are travelling field kitchens which accompany the troops in the field and ensure hot meals for the men at all times and practically under all circumstances. From information received from the front in recent reports it is claimed that the efficiency of men fed by the field kitchens, compared to those who are fed by the ordinary company arrangements, is increased over twenty-five per cent. (25%). To equip the Battalion with the necessary number of these kitchens will alone cost in the neighbourhood of five thousand dollars ($5,000).

There are many other items of equipment and supplies not provided by the Government which experience in this and previous campaigns has shown the utmost importance in order to keep the morale and physical fitness of the men up to the highest possible standard which is so essential in this war, and it is the intention of the Officer Commanding and officers of the 21st Battalion to provide such necessaries and comforts for the men.

It has been estimated that a sum of at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000) will be required to carry out these plans and the officers of the Battalion confidently appeal to the public for liberal aid towards this fund..

It is therefore proposed to appeal to the different City, County, Township and other municipal bodies throughout Eastern Ontario as well as to the generosity of private citizens and societies. Subscriptions will be gladly received of any amount, and the donors may rest assured that the Fund will be used to the greatest advantage of all concerned.

The Battalion is now at full war strength, 1118 of all ranks, and has representatives from practically every city, town, village and municipality in Eastern Ontario in its ranks.

Subscriptions may be sent to Lieut.-Colonel W. S. Hughes, Commanding 21st Battalion, C.E.F., or to any officer of the Battalion addressed to The Armouries, Kingston, Ont.

Escaping Murderer Shot.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—Romolo Cesari, an Italian who was under sentence to be hanged at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, yesterday for murder, made a dash for liberty and was shot down by Constable Hayes of the Northwest Mounted Police. The two shots took effect and Cesari died.

A telegram had been just received by the authorities at Whitehorse from the Minister of Justice here, stating that the murderer's sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment. He was believed to be insane. Cesari made his attempt to escape before the news was conveyed to him.

Rescued By Indians.

THE PAS, Man., Feb. 19. — Six Winnipeg men, lost in the Churchill barrens in northern Manitoba, were found by Indians headed for the Arctic, after they had wandered seven days without food. They had given up hope of being saved.

Turkey shoot at Allies Rifle Parlours 370 Water St. Fine turkey will be given on Saturday making highest scores out of 15 consecutive shots.

POLE YARD ARRANGED TO BRING CERTAIN PILES OF THEM INTO PROMINENT VIEW

Business as usual was the character of the Arbitration hearing this morning, but it was the thinning out of the case. There is an evident disposition to conserve the time afforded to-day, and it is likely the argument will be concluded this afternoon.

City Clerk Armstrong at the opening of the morning session related the details of the city's sale of $120,000.00 debentures.

Herb Fife Recalled.

Mr. R. A. Fife was recalled by the company to give evidence on fact, not expert opinion, regarding certain chapters of the Jeffery compilation.

Mr. Tilley—What have you to say as to the digging of post holes in Peterborough at 75c each?

"I knew this man was going to come in before the tail of the hunt as an expert," Mr. Cowan stated and objected to the question.

Mr. Tilley—From your experience during 13 or 14 years what do you say as to the cost of digging lost holes at 75c.

Mr. Fife—I'd pretty nearly starve at 75c a hole, and I should have some knowledge. I dug many myself.

Mr. Cowan—I'm sure I would at 75c, and equally certain I'd starve at $1.50. Well, Fife starves at 75c a hole. Fact No. 1.

Mr. Fife said the nature of the ground had to be taken into consideration, but the average price per hole should be $1.00 or more.

Cost of a Pole Shave.

It might do for a 45-ft. pole, but not for 50's, 60's and 75 feet poles.

About 2 cents per foot.

Mr. Fife placed the average at 2¼ to 2½ cents per lineal foot.

What would that figure out per pole?

As you get to larger poles the circumference is greater and the pole is more difficult to handle.

Two and one half cents would be an average per foot for poles between 30 and 50 feet. Getting to 60 foot poles and over you couldn't do it for 3 cents a foot.

A Shaving Test.

Mr. Fife said he made a pole-shaving test a year ago on two poles in each of the following sizes: 30 ft., 35 ft., 40 ft., 45 ft. and 50 ft. The returns of the foreman showed that the average cost per foot for those 11 poles was 2 1-16 cents. The workmen peeled the poles in the regular way and without the knowledge that this was a test.

Mr. Tilley—When was the pole yard last cleaned up?

In the spring of 1913. We went through the yard and cleaned up everything that couldn't be used as a pole and cut them into ties.

Mr. Tilley—Have the poles been moved recently? They seem to have been turned about for a purpose.

Mr. Fife said they seemed to have been moved so that certain poles would be more apparent bu these did not represent the real value of all the poles in the yard. Those that had been taken down from the system were placed out where they would be seen first.

In the 400 poles turned over to the city less than 10 per cent. had been used before.

Mr. Fife described the examination of the pole system made by him and Mr. Fiske.

Did you put down any figures which he did not express his approval of? Mr. Tilley asked.

No.

The figures represent what you and Mr. Fiske considered the life of the poles would be?

Yes.

The Aid to Mr. Jeffrey.

Asked about Mr. Jeffrey's examination of the system, Mr. Fife said that when Mr. Jeffrey applied at the office for information regarding the size of wire he said he had spent only four days for going over the system and hadn't a chance to climb the poles to get the wire sizes. He also said he had made his horse get a good jig on to get around in that time.

Mr. Fife believed it would be impossible to get out in this district and buy 2,100 poles. In 1911 he said the company had purchased all they could get and the number was a comparatively small one.

The Incandescents.

Speaking of the much criticized incandescent lamps, Mr. Fife said the age of the system ranged from 1908 when the first section of this system was installed on McDonnel street, and 1913, when the last section was put up on Downie and other streets.

Going back to the test of erecting a pole described by Mr. Fiske, Mr. Tilley asked Mr. Fife if he could read the time slips brought up from the Utilities office.

Mr. Fife said he could not get the necessary information from them to check up the figures of the pole-raising test.

To Mr. Tilley's suggestion that the city's side had not presented the information desired, Mr. Cowan replied that he had presented exactly what Mr. Tilley had asked for.

If you wanted to be so very fair you could have given us the information you knew we wanted, was Mr. Tilley's padded thrust.

You can see our books if you want them, although I don't think you are entitled to them.. We have nothing to conceal, and I am looking hard at

Kaiser Said to be Directing The Submarine Campaign

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Copenhagen, says, "The Kaiser, with Prince Henry of Prussia and Admiral von Tirpitz and representative staffs, left Berlin yesterday for Wilhelmshaven, Heligoland, and other naval stations, to direct arrangements for the blockade of the British Isles. It is reported that the Germans built 120 mine-laying submarines for this purpose during the last six months. Every submarine is able to carry more than a hundred mines, which are placed on deck so they can be discharged quickly. The weight of each mine is believed to be about 1,100 pounds.

No incidents, so far as is known, have yet marked the opening of Germany's submarine blockade of the British Isles, although it has been in force for nearly 24 hours. Nor has the British Government thus far announced its promised retaliatory measures.

Precautions, however, are being taken on this side of the North Sea, and although the German Government has warned the German people not to expect any sensational developments for some days, the regular cross-channel passenger service have been somewhat curtailed and altered. Otherwise the sea-borne trade of the country is proceeding much as usual.

A despatch from a correspondent in Amsterdam says:

"I learn authoritatively that Germany intends carrying on her threatened blockade by combined Zeppelin and submarine action.

"Great airship activity continues in the North Sea.

"According to latest information from Berlin, Unter Den Linden cafes and restaurants have been filled with excited crowds reading special bulletins entitled 'Der Tag'."

A Copenhagen despatch says that Norwegian shipowners do not fear the German mines, but should the threatened blockade hinder Norway's trade with Britain, Norway will stop all trade with Germany.

Begged For Their Lives

Surprised German Soldiers Offered Money, Fruit and Cigars

LONDON, Feb. 19. — The Official eye-witness with the British forces on the continent describes as follows the recapture by the British on Feb. 15 of the position south of the Ypres-Comines Canal, which the Germans had taken from them:

"During our bombardment previous to the assault the Germans took refuge in underground dugouts. Our assault was so well timed and sudden that when they emerged they found our infantry on top of them. Those who showed fight were bayoneted. Many surrendered, some crying for mercy and offering watches, money, cigars, and fruit in order to buy their lives.

"One German officer was bayoneted while telephoning presumably for reinforcements. Four Germans were killed by one of our men who was armed only with a shovel.

"Among the spoils of war captured was a large amount of dum-dum ammunition.

For finding a keyhole in the dark, an inventor has patented a key with a tiny electric lamp near the end and a dry battery in the shank.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE.
Agrees With Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favour of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients.

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate, (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing.

"This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice for flavouring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients.

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone — well or sick."

In stomach trouble, nervous prostration, etc., a 10-day trial of Grape-Nuts will usually work wonders towards nourishing and rebuilding and in this way end the trouble. Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

OLD MEN ARE CALLED OUT

Germany Summons All Members of the Landsturm

HANOVER, Germany, Jan. 19.—All German men attached to the landsturm or last reserve of the army, whether they had had previous training or not, were called out by decree on Jan. 25. The order applied to all men who had not completed their 45th year by Aug. 16, 1914, in the case of those who had been trained, or Dec. 14 of untrained men. The service of the men is to continue till the end of the war.

The German War Department in calling on the elderly men at the present time, and in keeping its eyes open to the future. The announcement was made by the Minister of War in a recent interview that the recruits due to come up this year in the ordinary course would not be called before the normal date in May next. This apparent holding back from active service of good material in the shape of young men was decided on as a precaution for the future.

Partial Moratorium Applies Only to Mortgages

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Three important Government bills were brought in at the opening of the Legislature yesterday. The Premier introduced a vendue act amendment to allow loans of sums for seed grain purchase by settlers, Hon. I. B. Lucas brought down the moratorium, and the third dealt with the Toronto-Hamilton Railway.

The moratorium is confined entirely to real estate dealings. In no way does it relate to commercial paper or personal debts. All agreements of sale are included and can be dealt with by a simple application to the judge-in-chambers. Before proceedings can be taken to collect principal money this method must be followed, with the mortgagee applying. Insurance and interest will proceed in the usual way.

It will be retroactive, dating back to Aug. 4, or further back if sale occurred after that date. In case of interest default, action may be taken only for interest recovery and not for principal.

The debate on the speech from the throne was concluded yesterday and patriotic addresses from the representatives of both parties.

Although emphasizing the unity of thought and sentiment on occasion of a war session Mr. Rowell felt that the Ontario deficit was not traceable to the war. It was due to "the natural, inevitable result of treasury management in recent years." He made no amendment to the motion for adoption of the speech.

Taking up the points of Mr. Rowell, one by one, the Premier expressed appreciation of the lack of bitterness.

The war permitted of a national stock-taking. Adverse balances of trade were decreasing. Canadians should buy articles manufactured beneath the flag.

"If in Ontario we are not prepared to shoulder rifle and knapsack, we should be prepared to do all possible in the line of production," he said, amid universal applause.

V. A. Sinclair, of South Oxford, made an appeal for "a direct war tax assessed on every man through the municipality where he lived." Such a system, he declared, would be approved by all Ontario.

"MILESTONES"

One of the most popular plays ever transported from British soil is "Milestones," the three act comedy by Arnold Bennett and Edward Knoblauch, which ran for a year in New York City, which is to be the attraction at the Grand Opera House Wednesday, Feb. 24th, one night only.

An unusual story is told in the play, one that lasts over three generations, and the youth of the first act is the grandfather of the last.

Venerable truths and a whole host of philosophy and moral facts that carry their message effectively yet never descend to the tiresome level of preachment, lurk in the charming picture— or to be more correct, three charming pictures which their distinguished authors have pictured. Characters drawn with rare fidelity and acted with grace and distinction by a splendid cast of players tell of the world's old story of the march of progress against the obstacles of tradition and its resultant prejudice, concealed against the obstacles of tradition and its resultant prejudice, concealed as it is by a filmy web of the romance of three periods, some happy, others unfulfilled or blighted in their early bloom. The result is a picture combining heart interest, intellectual stimulus, gentle wit and pathos the whole illumined by the brilliant, elusive lines of the authors.

The story carried through the three generations which detail the romances of the Rhead and Sibley families is already familiar to most readers and it is not necessary here, to amplify it. This graceful, serial story, is carried along solely by character development, done in a fashion that might convey many a valuable lesson to some of our aspiring playwrights. A repetition of story and action which might easily be made wholly tiresome, is made not only entertaining but wholly plausible, and the consistent way in which the characters are held within themselves and the changes of years has been the subject of favourable comment wherever "Milestones" has been played. The company includes Florence Born, Mary Goulden, Winefride Lethmer, Katharine Herbert, Bettie Barnell, Rupert Harvey, Gerald Rogers, L. G. Carroll, Ernest Lacoley and Gilbert Coleman.

Montreal and Hamilton Experts Support Jeffrey's Inventory of Valuations

Mr. F. B. Brown, of Montreal, and Mr. Edgar Sifton, of Hamilton, Reported on Most of the Items Included in the Company's Property—End of the Case in Sight

THE INCANDESCENT SYSTEM

A special session of the Board of Arbitration last night indicated the beginning of the end of the argumentative stage of the proceedings. Today's evidence will practically conclude the submitting of all the facts and near facts by both sides, and open the way to the final consideration by the arbiters after the stenographers have transcribed their notes. Thursday's work wound up the hearing of R. T. Jeffrey, whose encyclopaedia of data on the expropriated plant has already been mentioned.

Mr. Fred B. Brown, of the engineering firm of Walter J. Francis & Brown, of Montreal, and Mr. Edgar Sifton, general manager of the Hydro-Electric system in Hamilton, were also heard. Their testimony was largely corroborative of the figures compiled in the Jeffrey volume with incidental opinions of the local system.

To hear Mr. Cowan, the city's principal council, tell it, one might conclude that the citizens' Hydro purchase was a pile of junk with few exceptions. On the other hand, Mr. Tilley endeavoured to present the system in a favourable light, and as a going concern good for years of service. Whatever their opiniens on the Peterborough plant, they were unanimous in declaring the Toronto lighting about the poorest under the moon. Whenever they overlooked an opportunity to drop a facetious jibe on the Queen City equipment, Mr. Wallace Nesbitt came up as a reserve and made good the deficiency.

As a good natured finale last night, Mr. Tilley addressing Mr. Jeffrey said: On your theory wouldn't you want to take over the Toronto Street lighting system as mere scrap? It is old, antiquated, obsolete, according to you engineers.

Several improved lights have come into use since Toronto's lights were installed.

Mr. Jeffrey admitted the progress made in street lighting, but refused to commit himself further.

Mr. Tilley—No city would put that type in now?

Mr. Jeffrey—Yes they would. They are doing so.

Mr. Tilley—Well, I would trade Peterborough's arc system for Toronto's gem jar lights.

And apparently he did not mean the local mercantile section's lights.

Mf. Brown's Evidence.

Mr. Brown began his testimony with the usual biography of his engineering experience. He is a 1903 McGill graduate with a degree of Master of Science. His examination of the Peterborough plant was made in December, 1914, with Mr. Jeffrey, Mr. Sifton and Mr. Howse, late manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

Based on his experience with poles in general on his inspection in Peterborough, Mr. Brown said he regarded 20 years as a fair allowance for the useful life of a pole. He had heard of an average pole lift as low as 3 or 4 years in parts of the United States where insects had an injurious effect, but Mr. Jeffrey's allowance of 20 years as a generous average by several years.

The 85 per cent. depreciation on cross arms he regarded as a fair allowance. Line hardware ungalvanized he said was hardly worth using again. The labour of taking out bolts, etc, was scarcely worth while because the unit cost of new material was so small.

Incandescent System.

Throughout his evidence Mr. Brown's opinions were not so strongly expressed as Mr. Jeffrey's, but the ultimate impression he conveyed was probably as strong.

As far as the material in the incandescent street lighting is concerned he regarded the fixtures of low grade. The reflectors were only pointed on the under side, was rather dirty and rust spots were showing on them.

The lamps are supposed to be 32-candle power, but at present, he continued, the city is not getting above 8 or 9 C. p. out of them.

Arc Lamp System.

Mr. Brown said the arc lamp system is obsolete and apparently very old. The light was not steady nor of good quality.

Mr. Cowan—When you want to get one of these Peterborough antiques where would you go.

Mr. Brown—The only place I know of is Fred Thompson & Co., of Montreal. They have a second-hand supply business.

Concluding his opinion of the local arcs he said: I would not use it at present for a street lighting system.

Murray Street Station.

Hurrying over the Jeffery text book Mr. Cowan paused awhile over the Murray Street Station to which he directed Mr. Brown's attention. "If I wanted to replace six of the generators, I don't know where I could get them even in second hand places. You can't buy them now; they have been superseded by other types. It would be more economical to put in a new system."

Mr. Tilley at Work.

In his cross-examination, Mr. Tilley endeavoured to secure a statement from Mr. Brown that there was a material difference between an engineer's opinion of material that should be scrapped and the view of those who operate it for practical results.

Mr. Brown admitted that there was room for a difference, and that in the consideration of a plant he would approach it from the standpoint of an engineer.

Mr. Tilley—How would you get at the value of any plant as a going concern, that is with services connected up and customers taking power?

Mr. Cowan—This has no business with what we are considering. If it includes the franchise taken off it may be getting near the firing line.

Mr. Tilley—We may take the franchise off later.

Mr. Cowan—The question is purely hypothetical. My learned friend is merely not going to ramble over the earth.

After a consultation, Judge Huycke announced that the Board admitted the question subject to Mr. Cowan's objection.

Not Prepared To Say.

Mr. Brown—That's a broad question. I am not prepared to say, off hand, what I would do.

Mr. Tilley—I agree it is a broad question, but I am talking to a broad man, not a Hydro Electric Commission man. Come now, you're from Montreal.

Mr. Brown—I am not prepared to answer, there are so many by-paths.

The discussion passed on to other figures in the Jeffrey exhibit.

Mr. Tilley—Would you consider the value of the plant as a going concern, supplying power, etc.?

Mr. Brown—I think I would consider if it were doing business and getting profits

Mr. Tilley—Even if it were not earning profits, if it were a going concern and getting a revenue that would enhance its value?

Mr. Brown—Yes, if the losses were not too heavy.

Engineer's Fee.

On this point of the engineer's fee there was some discussion.

Mr. Tilley—What about 5 per cent. for engineering?

Mr. Brown—In constructing a system of this kind the bulk of the work is done by a competent engineer, a manager and assistant. That is the usual manner of constructing a municipal system.

Mr. Tilley—What would be a proper fee, say for the Peterborough system?

Mr. Brown—For reproducing this system, $7,800.00.

He also said it was quite usual to allow a 5 per cent. fee in Canada. It depended on the work.

Mr. Tilley—What would be a proper fee for some person who would come along and lay out the work, organize it, build, and so on?

Mr. Brown—Five per cent. would be a fair fee.

Many would not take it at that he admitted.

Mr. Tilley—What do you get for jobs like that?

It varies.

What's your tariff? Have you a union?

I wish we had. We haven't the privileges of the bar.

Mr. Brown held to his opinion that 5 per cent. was a fair allowance for engineering fee.

Mr. Tilley—Very well. If you put it that way, I'll leave it that way. I didn't think you would.

Mr. Sifton Called Up.

Mr. Edgar Sifton, S.P.S. graduate of 1908, with a varied electrical experience, joined in the assult on the city's expropriated system. Many of the poles, he said, he would not leave stand in the system. It would be taking great chances of having serious loss by not removing them, unless they were so guyed and wired they would not fall.

On his own valuation he would not allow more than 18 years as the average useful life of a pole in Peterborough. Mr. Jeffrey's allowances were very fair, he said. He had not been at all harsh on the company.

Prices Very Fair.

One dollar for each of Peterborough's house services, Mr. Sifton considered very fair.

The unit cost of installing meters in houses in Hamilton is 35 cents each.

Mr. Cowan—Is there and season why they should cost more in Peterborough?

No.

Mr. Jeffrey's allowance of 50c is very liberal?

Yes.

Mr. Sifton's comparison of cross arms in Hamilton and Peterborough was as follows:

Peterborough—Red fine arms, with pins and nails—35, 55 and 75 cents.

Mr. Sifton claimed the yellow fine superior to the local red fine arms.

Incandescent Lighting.

Further, he termed the incandescent street lighting system antiquated. "They are not giving 25 per cent. of the light that ought to be got. The system is of no use to anybody who gets it in view of the lighting in use to-day."

Mr. Sifton said he understood Peterborough was paying $12 per year for each incandescent lamp. "If that price is correct they are only getting 50 efficiency out of each. They are actually losing $9 per light per annum."

Mr. Cowan—In other words they are paying for 32 c.p. and getting only about 8 c.p.?

Mr. Sifton considered Mr. Jeffrey's allowance of $1.25 for each incandescent too liberal.

And the Meters Next.

Of the Peterborough meters Mr. Sifton said he wouldn't have them at any price. They would cost in repairs and customers' complaints more than the value of standard meters in their life time.

Mr. Tilley—You wouldn't take them at half their price?

Mr. Sifton—No.

Witness said he had the purchasing of $100,000 worth of meters for Hamilton, and had made a special study of meters.

What do you say of the allowance that has been made by Mr. Jeffrey for the Murray Street Station.

Mr. Sifton—I think it is very reasonable. I think that no attempt has been made by Mr. Jeffrey to replace at anything below what I am confident the items can be replaced for. There is no value to the arc light generating machines except as scrap material.

PLANS FOR A ONE-MAN CIVIC ADMINISTRATION

Is Being Discussed in Hamilton by the Board of Trade—Business Men in Peterborough Favour the Plan

THE DAYTON IDEA

Hamilton is discussing and planning for a one-man city control. A short time ago the Board of Trade took up the subject and arranged to have a representative from Westmount, Quebec, where the system is now in actual operation, address a meeting in the near future. The idea is to make the management of city affairs a business proposition, and controlled by a first-class business man, with the capacity to make civic business pay. Many Peterborough business men are in favour of this same plan, and it is safe to say that once the movement were inaugurated here it would have influential support, and the plan be rapidly matured and an effort made to speedily put it in operation.

The Dayton Idea.

So much interest has been displayed recently in this form of government that some details are here given of the Dayton (Ohio) idea. The city affairs in Dayton are managed by a board of five commissioners who are elected by the people and subject to recall. These in turn employ a manager—more frequently called the city manager—who serves during good behaviour, subject to recall. He is given full power to go ahead and use his best judgment in all matters relating to the welfare of the city. He hires and fires and fixes salaries.

Under the ordinary commission form of government, each commissioner—and there are usually five—becomes the head of one of the operating branches of city work. The chief objection to this has been the combination—in the commissioners—of the legislative and administrative functions. Dayton has modified the stereotyped commission plan along the lines of a business corporation; that is, to elect commissioners whose sole task is to create a policy and then have a hired expert manager to carry it out.

Along in the fall of 1913 the Dayton chamber of commerce, which is somewhat similar to the board of trade, here, appalled by the failure of city government, appointed a committee of five representative business men to investigate and recommend some new plan of government. The present system of government is the result. Its keynote is centralization of administrative authority. One man—the city manager—is head and front of city operation, and, what is more, he is responsible for it. He can appoint, discharge and fix the salaries of all his immediate subordinates, including the heads of the five principal departments of law, finance, public service, public safety and public welfare. He can choose them wherever he pleases. Their one qualification must be training.

This order of things has been in effect only since January 1st, 1914, but has already demonstrated its feasibility and economy. The city is being business-managed and its affairs have been absolutely divorced from politics. The city manager in Dayton, which has about 25,000 more population than Hamilton, has effected a big saving in the cost of running the government, and has given better service than the city has ever seen. Through the efforts of a city purhasing agent a saving has been made on the purchase of supplies amounting in some cases to as much as 60 per cent.

Important Feature.

One step in this radical but practical regime is worthy of notice. It provides for the appointment by the commission, of non-partizan citizen boards to advise with the city manager or his chief aids on specific public matters. It may be parks, playgrounds or policy. Dayton goes further and provides for a new branch of city government. It is the department of public works which has among its projects a municipal loan shop; a welfare loan agency; a free legal aid bureau, where the poor man can get protection for his legal rights, a social survey, a municipal quarry to provide employment, and a municipal employment bureau.

The success of this commission government lies in having a strong and constant public opinion behind it, and it has a perpetual prop in the Greater Dayton Association — a by-product of the old Chamber of Commerce, but with bigger perspective and broader powers. The association has seven thousand members.

Pole Yard Arranged To Bring, etc.

the manager of the company, (Mr. W .S. Robertson, Toronto), Mr. Cowan concluded to the amusement of the little select assembly.

No Pole Discussion.

Mr. Cowan—Do you think Mr. Jeffrey would have to drive very fast through the streets to cover them all in four days?

No, I don't think so.

Did you have any discussion with Mr. Jeffrey about these poles, their condition, their age, etc.

No.

Did you not tell Mr. Jeffrey that you thought 12 years a fair average for the remaining useful life of the poles in the city?

No sir.

What did you tell him?

I told him the size of wire and designated the circuits marked on a map.

Were you not instructed to give him any information he wanted?

Mr. Fife—Mr. Munro told me Mr. Jeffrey was coming in for certain information. He told me to remain in the office so I would meet him.

I asked Mr. Munro just what I was to tell Mr. Jeffrey. Mr. Munro telephoned to the Toronto office for instructions, and then told me I might tell him anything about the sizes of wire, number of meters and transformers, and designate the several circuits coloured on a map. I gave him that information but told him not a word regarding the poles.

Mr. Hawkins was recalled by Mr. Tilley. One of his statements applied particularly to Mr. Sifton's estimate yesterday that the local system could be built in 8 months. Mr. Hawkins declared this impossible. The system would have to be built piecemeal; its construction would keep up with new business, and the fact could not be overlooked that all the business now held would not be secured at one stroke.

Mr. Almert, consulting engineer, Chicago, was also recalled in rebuttal to statements that had been made by the city's expert witnesses regarding meters, pole life and several other [illegible] decks cleared for the counsel's arguments.

Splendid Speakers Heard At Meeting of Sunday School Association

The Regular Annual Convention Was Well Attended by Sunday School Workers at Afternoon and Evening Sessions Yesterday—4,571 Pupils Enrolled in 19 Sunday Schools

The regular annual convention of the Peterborough Sunday School Association, which was held in the city yesterday afternoon and evening, was brought to a successful close in Charlotte Street Methodist church, where the closing general session was held. The afternoon session was held in Murray Street Baptist Sunday school quarters. Both sessions were well attended by Sunday school workers and the enthusiasm was very encouraging to the officers and speakers. The members of the Institute Faculty from Toronto were well chosen and they had their subjects well in hand.

It was noticeable in all the addresses that there was very little or nothing as to rules and methods to be used in Sunday school work, but the trend of the addresses seemed to be towards the other side entirely the teachers and workers being asked to seek a conviction and inspiration, when they would be sure to do something.

The reports of the officers and department superintendents were received in the afternoon. The following is an extract from the report of the secretary Mr. F. E. Kerr.

The year 1914 was a fairly successful one as regards the Sabbath schools of the City of Peterborough. The secretary desires to thank so many of the secretaries of the different schools for their promptness in sending in reports. In this regard the Anglican denomination was easily the first as a denomination. Mr. R. C. Braund has been on the whole for several years the promptest amongst the different individuals reporting. There are still some procrastinating secretaries, however, and a few who are not careful to see that their reports are accurate. This means that the secretary of the City Association has either to guess at the statistics or go to some other person who guesses at them; thus when the secretary of the school does not report carefully or has not the correct figures, there is small hope of statistics being correct.

Of nineteen schools in the City or near vicinity, reporting, two failing to report, there are 4,571 pupils on the roll and 514 teachers and officers.

Denominational group suppers were held at 6 p.m. as follows: The Anglican, St. John's church; the Baptist, Murray Street church; the Methodist) Charlotte Street church; the Presbyterian, St. Paul's church, and led by the members of the Institute Faculty.

Place of Sunday School.

Rev. T. L. Farewell, B.A., Field Secretary General Board of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies of the Methodist church, was the first speaker at the afternoon session. His subject was, "Place of Sunday School in Modern Education."

In dealing with his subject the speaker discussed the relationship of the Sunday school to the home, Public school, church, community (meaning environment, street life, social life and general moral tone of the community.)

There were generally three conceptions of the relationship of the church and Sunday school, namely: "different institutions," "part of the church" (a nursery as it were), "Sunday school is the church" (doing the functions of the church).

The church was to teach the Word of God and the Sunday school does that. We should get the idea into our lives that the Sunday school was the church doing the church's teaching work and carrying on the educational side of the church, teaching young, middle-age and old.

If asked which was the most important in modern education, the Sunday school or the home, most people would readily answer, the home. There were different kinds of homes. There was the Christian home, where father and mother were in harmony with Christian ideals, and where they were seeking to carry out the full responsibility placed upon them. If all our homes were Christian the problem of our Sunday schools would be solved. There was also the moral home. Then there was the indifferent home. One which, somehow, did not care. It was unresponsible to the appeals made by the church. Also there was the delinquent home.

The Christian home and moral home could have a great part in developing spiritual ideals. The indifferent and delinquent homes were detrimental to the work of the Sunday schools. It was in the case of the latter two classes of homes that the Sunday school came in and did the work which should be done there, teaching the little children. The work of the Sunday school was to look after the children of that kind of homes. In respect to the Christian and moral homes it was a helper. It naturally competed with the delinquent home to get the attention of that home. It could be done particularly by the personality of a Christian leader in the Sunday school. The responsibility of Sunday school teachers and leaders was first to the children and young people of delinquent and indifferent homes.

As to the relationship of Sunday schools and Public schools public opinion generally concedes that Public schools were more important. The buildings, equipment, specialist teachers, examinations and promotions demanded of the trustees indicated the interest in the schools. As to the Sunday schools, the average parent did not inquire as to examinations or promotions. The Sunday school was at least as important a factor in the training of the intellect of the young life in Peterborough as the Public schools. It was not simply as a vocation, but to educate out lives to be prepared for living (not—a living), and the Public school was coming more and more to stand for that too. Without the Sunday school there could be no true education.

The Sunday school was the permeator of street life, and social life of the community with highest ideals of Christian service. Amusement frequently led a boy to make the first wrong step. The Sunday school could play an important part in the recreation and amusement of children.

Rev. Mr. Farewell in conclusion, said God had called Sunday school workers into as great a work and as sacred a work as any other Christian leaders. Might He add His blessing.

Rev. E. W. Halpenny.

It was arranged that Rev. E. W. Halpenny, B.D., General Secretary Ontario Sunday School Association, should follow Rev. Mr. Farewell with his subject, "The Efficient Sunday School."

The speaker divided his remarks into three parts, an efficient Sunday school comprising intelligence, ability and inspiration. The efficiency was intelligence, plus ability, plus inspiration.

In connection with intelligence, there were three or four things outstanding. The Sunday school must have the intelligence to get a grasp of its purpose. A grander and nobler conception of the purpose of a Sunday school had come. So much time was not taken now to fit people to die. They were fitted to live and when fit to live they were fit to die. It was necessary to have an intelligent grasp of conditions. We had always thought that because this was Ontario it was the ante room to Heaven, but we were liable to be mistaken. It was necessary to know what we had and what we had not, and how we should be reaching out by missionary endeavour. Things should not be taken for granted. If home conditions were gone into much light would be shed on your efforts. The Sunday school must also have intelligence to grasp the materials. Lives were divided into three spans ranging in ages from 1 to 12 years, 12 to 20 years and over. They were characterized by absorption, adjustment and service respectively, and looked after in our Sunday Schools by Primary, Elementary and Adult Departments. If the workers wanted to do the best in their life work they must decide in what division they would serve. We were concerned too much by the rules and regulations and not enough in giving people what they wanted. The secret of success was to study the material with which you had to deal and apply teaching according to the demand of the material with which you had to deal. Many teachers without taking the material into consideration taught only the verses submitted for the Sunday school lesson. To be efficient as a teacher you must have a grasp of the material and must make the most of it and the most of the situation.

Rev. Mr. Halpenny said some of the delegates would go away from the meeting with a conviction. They would be sure to do something. Others would receive an impulse. If they received only an impulse it would leave them before breakfast. "He" asked them to seek a conviction.

The Teacher.

"The Teacher," was the subject of an address at the closing general session in Charlotte Street Methodist church in the evening by Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, M.A., General Secretary Baptist Board of Sunday Schools, Ontario and Quebec.

A teacher must have personality, whether professional or non-professional. The personality of the teacher must be strong. A teacher might be a gold medalist and very clever but not have the personality to handle the pupils. The same applied to Public school and Sunday school.

The personality of the teacher should be kind. This applied to the secretary as well as the teacher. The speaker had an evidence of the kindness of a teacher while in Peterborough. At Murray Street Baptist church a lady went to him and asked for a lady teacher whom he knew. He asked why she wanted so much of the teacher. "Oh, she was so kind," was the answer.

The personality should be inspiring. In conclusion he said, "Whether you be an untrained teacher or a professional, ask the Lord to give you a personality that will be strong to command and control, and a kind, unswerving character and the ability to inspire."

Dean C. A. Myers.

The "Closing Inspiration Address," by ev. C. A. Myers, B.A., B.D., Associate Secretary, Board Sunday School and Young People's Societies Presbyterian Church of Canada, the fourth member of the Institute Faculty was a great wind-up to a successful convention. His remarks were well chosen for the close of the session.

The speaker said in the course of his remarks that the whole genius and method of the Sunday school proper had almost completely changed during the past ten years. There was formerly too much about rules and methods. Too much about the mechanical side. Just as soon as the people got the fundamental idea as to their relationship to the Sunday school, there would be nothing to keep them from Sunday school conventions.

He dwelt for some time on patriotism and citizenship. We all thought we knew what it meant. The kind of patriotism demonstrated in Vancouver when the Hindus were not allowed to land because they were not of our kind, and when the Hindus were pounded by the citizens, was a deplorable kind of patriotism. What was it to a patriot and true citizen of one's country? You might say a man who sought to build his country. That might be very good too. Thank God we could say there were men in Canada who responded to the call of the Empire and who caught the spirit of patriotism to lay down their lives for their country. War was wrong. If it was a necessary evil it was nevertheless an evil. No nation had perished because of a lack of arms and bulwarks or by the enemy having bigger guns. Holland was an example of this. No nation or empire could put their trust entirely in defences material and win. The true defence of the Empire was not in the material defences, but in the character and personality of its citizens.

Sunday School Association.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., was elected president of the local Association for the ensuing year, Mr. Jos. Wearing secretary, and Mr. A. J. Johnston treasurer.

MR. IRVING MAKES REPLY

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of a clipping from your paper forwarded here. The writer, "Enquirer," asks me to answer three questions propounded. It would take, Mr. Editor, more space than you have at your disposal, and more time than I have at mine, to give anything like a full answer to these questions.

My surmise is that "Enquirer" is either a follower of self-styled, Pastor Russell or a Seventh Day Adventist. The questions are part of their stock in trade, and have been answered again and again. If, however, "Enquirer" is sincere in his quest for truth, he will find a full, scriptural and exhausted reply in "Facts and Theories of a Future State," by F. W. Grant. Bible Truth Depot, Yonge Street, Toronto. We submit a brief reply:

Question 1. "If eternal torment is the penalty for sin, why did God tell Adam it was death?"

The penalty of eternal and conscious punishment is for, and, on account of, the deliberate rejection of God's remedy for sin, viz., the sacrifice and death of His beloved Son. Upon all those who reject God's one and only way of salvation, from sin's penalty, the wrath of God abides. John iii., 36. Death, in scripture, is not a cessation of existence, as Annihilationists teach. It is not a terminus: it is a junction: it does not for the unregenerate end all: there is something after. Christ said of some, "These shall go away into everlasting (eternal R.V.) punishment." Matt. xxv., 46. To prove that death in Bible language does not mean a ceasing to be or cessation of existence, I submit the following: "Thou hast a name that thou livest and art dead." "She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." "Let the dead bury their dead."

Question 2. "If the dead are really more alive than ever, how can there be a resurrection of the dead?"

Resurrection applies to the body. There will be, according to scripture, a resurrection of the just and unjust, when the body and spirit will be reunited, but in the interval between physical death and resurrection, scripture plainly teaches a conscious existence. Abraham at his death was "gathered unto his people," and his sons buried him in the cave of Machpelah. Gen. xxv., 8-9. As none of his people was buried there, his being gathered must refer, not to his body, but to his spirit, which manifestly continued to exist. To the Sadducees, the Annihilationists of our Lord's day, He made answer, "As touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead but of the living." The whole basis of our Lord's argument is that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, though long before dead and buried, were surviving personalities when God appeared to Moses. Further, the rich man of Luke xvi. was solemnly and keenly conscious of his existence after death. This is no parable; our Lord says, "There was a certain rich man." This settles it for all who revere scripture.

Question 3. "Why does God tell us to love our enemies if He designed a place of torture for His enemies before they were born?"

God prepared hell for the devil and his angels, scripture says. It also says, "Herein is love not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins." God has demonstrated His love to a world of sinners. If, however, sinners reject His Son, then God can by no mean clear the guilty, but will fulfil that word in Psalm ix.: "The wicked shall be turned into hell and all the nations that forget God." The soul or spot of mankind is determined by their acceptance or rejection of His Son. "To some say as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in His name." John i., 12. To those who reject Christ scripture is emphatic, "He that believeth not shall be damned." Mark xvi., 16.

Children of God are exhorted to love their enemies; in so doing they exhibit the Spirit of Christ, and seek to win them for heaven; but

"If they still His call refuse, and all
His wondrous love abuse,
Soon shall He from them sadly turn,
their bitter prayer for pardon spurn,
Too late! Too late! will be the cry,
Jesus of Nazareth has passed by."

Rich. Irving.

ESTIMATING PLANT.

Yesterday's Review stated that Mr. T. H. Sears, an expert valuator from Toronto was in the City valuating the plant of the Times for Mr. Stratton of The Examiner. Hon. J. R. Stratton is not interested in any newspaper proposition outside of the Examiner, and is not likely to be, as the newspaper business at the present time is not a bed of roses by any means.

Caveat Emptor.

(Let the Buyer Beware.)

"Caveat Emptor" or "Let the Buyer Beware" was the motto of the old time merchant. His business was to get all he could and give as little as possible in return.

That was dishonest, of course, and experience has shown that it was not even profitable. The successful merchant or manufacturer to-day is the one who gives real value. The dealer to-day who wants to establish a permanent business knows that Honesty is the best policy and to prove that he is there to stay, he advertises.

You can depend on getting a square deal from the regular and persistent advertiser.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Footballers On Saturday And Soldiers On Week Days

Players Appear in Uniform---Some High-goal Scoring in the English League---Old Country Football News

"People in football have short memories," says the Athletic News. "A considerable proportion of the spectators who saw Birmingham beat Glossop by 11—1, were sure that the St. Andrew's men had put up a record in Second Division football.

"Many were aware that Notting ham Forest had defeated Leicester Fosse in a First Division match at Nottingham on April 21, 1909, and they were also aware that West Bromwich Albion beat Darwen by 12 goals to 0. This was on March 4th, 1892. But many forget that Birmingham in their Small Heath days had twice scored 12 goals in Second Division football, when they beat Walsall Town Swifts, on December 17, 1892, 12—0, while ten years later Small Heath, playing Doncaster Rovers on April 11, 1903, again won 12—0.

"On Saturday A. W. Smith and Windridge each scored five goals, and Eyre one against Glossop. The folly of the one back game was exposed. We have been waiting for such a display."

Popular "Red Lichtie."

The many friends of Mr. Albert Buick, the old Hearts and Portsmouth International half-back, will regret to learn of the somewhat sudden death of his father, which took place in Arbroath on Friday last after only a few days' illness. A pathetic incident is that the once famous footballer lost his mother only a few weeks ago.

"Old Bill," as he was popularly termed, was a keen follower of football, and in addition to attending many of the great games in which his youngest son, Albert, played in, he was also seldom absent from Gayfield Park, and usually travelled with the Arbroath team in their more important away engagements.

Deceased had two sons, and both were great players. "Steve," the older of the two, in the heyday of the Arbroath team—away back in the time of the old Forfarshire clubs, Dundee Strathmore, Harp, Our Boys, and East End—was a prolific goal-scorer, and one game he took part in will be ever memorable—the day Arbroath put up a world's record by beating Aberdeen Bon Accord at Gayfield Park 36 to 0. "Steve" Buick that day had a dozen goals to his credit.

A big, bustling fellow, wee betide the goalkeeper who came in his way. In these days a player was allowed to pay attention to the keeper. The same season "Steve" scored 100 goals! He has resided in America for many years.

Brave Hearts.

It must have been pleasing to see the Hearts' players arrive at Cathkin Park the other Saturday in their army uniform. John O'Groat writes: "It is not for me here to say whether a man should enlist or not, and I believe there is too much random talk as to who should and should not join the army; but I am at liberty to congratulate the Hearts' players, not only on their manly action, but upon their splendid appearance in the King's uniform. Every man of them is already a soldier to his finger-tips.'

Serving Two Masters.

Continuing the same writer opines: "I believe in these columns I was the first to discuss what effect the army training would have upon the Hearts' players, and I have now good reason to believe that the result is not for the betterment of their football. At the close of the match against Third Lanark, Jamie Duckworth confessed to me that the army was 'killin' thae laddies.' He spoke in a football sense, of course, for there is no sign of "killin" about them otherwise. Duncan Currie told me that he felt stiff when it came to Saturday, and that it took some time in a game before he felt 'at himself.'

Andra of Sheffield.

The goal which carried Sheffield Wednesday into the second round of the F. A. Cup, and compelled Manchester United to bid the competition adieu, was scored by Andrew Wilson, the heaviest. Like Tennyson's brook, this good-natured Scot looks like going on for ever. Certainly he gives promise of qualifying for a third benefit in the Wednesday's service. Wilson was Scotland's stock forward leader against England for several seasons, until he failed to shine, being "held up" by Wedlock, Bristol City's pocket Hercules centre half. But in league games Wilson, who has of late years made the inside left position his own, has been quite good enough for Sheffield Wednesday, and this season has scored 10 goals in 23 games.

It has been said of him that he is very "heavy on his feet," and that he wears through more football boots than two average players. Irvine, in Ayrshire, is his native place, and he was with Irvine Meadows and Clyde clubs before going ot Owlerton (which is now Hillsborough) in 1900. An engineer by trade, he worked for a long time after taking up his residence, and for his first benefit he and Harry Davies pocketed about £250 apiece. If he lasts long enough for a third benefit, that amount should be easily exceeded.

Belleville Wins Final In Ladies' Tankard

The Bay of Quinte Aggregation Finish With a Margin of 22 Shots—Peterboro' Enters the Consolation Final This Afternoon

The weather clerk is a gallant gentleman. He provided perfect weather for the Ladies' Tankard Tournament yesterday and to-day. Weather outside, smiling as the faces of a winning rink, and bright as their eyes and ice inside of perfect quality. The tournament attracted about forty outside lady curlers, including camp followers from east and west as far as Kingston and Toronto, and south as far as Belleville; and a good field of entries of local ladies—two rinks of lady curlers—ten rinks altogether. The ladies put up a splendid sample of the "roarin' game," though the roarin' was subdued and lady-like. It was to be expected that the ladies, from their familiarity with the T and the more professional swing of the broom, would score heavily, but the scoring was in spots—hollow victories and decisive ones. On the whole the play was the heaviest. Like Tennyson's brook, this good-natured Scot looks like going on for ever. Certainly he gives promise of qualifying for a third benefit in the Wednesday's service. Wilson was Scotland's stock forward leader against England for several seasons, until he failed to shine, being "held up" by Wedlock, Bristol City's pocket Hercules centre half. But in league games Wilson, who has of late years made the inside left position his own, has been quite good enough for Sheffield Wednesday, and this season has scored 10 goals in 23 games.

ladies curled well, and with genuine spirtsman-like good nature. There were none of the "spats" with which ladies are wont to relieve the dull monotony of social intercourse. The games came under the critical eye of the gentlemen curlers to a large degree. The foyer of the rink was crowded with gentlemen spectators, with of course as many noses as possible flattened against the glass, watching the scene; and it was well worth watching. The ladies, attired in sweaters of different hues, presented a picturesque ensemble; and their animated and graceful movements made a charming moving picture. The result of the play was rather a disturbance of the provincial centre of gravity, Toronto, the hub, being decidedly displaced. The Belleville belles were the belles of the ball—they captured the Tankard, and Kingston and Peterborough are this afternoon discussing the Consolation fixtures of the tournament.

The Toronto Victorias and Belleville rinks quantified for the final clash by defeating the Peterborough and Toronto Granite quartettes in the semi-finals yesterday afternoon. The Victoria rinks totalled a lead of 16 shots over the locals, Mrs. Matthews' going down to defeat by a margin of four, while Mrs. Sanderson's rink received a rather severe drubbing from Mrs. Dobieson and her trio of supporters.

Good Curling.

The other Queen City club did not fare as well yesterday, although on the two games Belleville had only a lead of four shots. It took some splendid curling, however, to secure that lead, and the ladies were looking forward yesterday to a battle royal in the final matches.

If possible the interest in the bonspiel after the games yesterday was more intense than during their progress and blended with the discussion of the best plays of the afternoon, were opinions as to whether the Queen City or the Bay of Quinte club would land the honours in the final game.

The following scores tell the story of the play:

CURLING NOTES.

Mrs. Alexander, who suffered a slight injury to her hand, was replaced on Mrs. Rennie's rink by Mrs Bickford. Mrs. Alexander watched this morning's game from the spectators' gallery.

Last evening the visitors were entertained at the home of Mr. W. G. Morrow and Miss Morrow.

Kingston and Peterborough will contest the final in the Consolation. Peterborough drew a bye. The game will be played this afternoon.

The local lady curlers, who played an excellent game in the opening round, were decidedly off colour in the afternoon. They fell an easy prey to the Queen City aggregation.

While the ladies were deciding the finals, word was received at the rink to the effect that two rinks of Detroit curlers were due in Peterborough at noon. Mr. W. G. Morrow, together with a number of others, were notified to organize a reception committee.

The Detroit curlers will play friendly games here this afternoon, following which they will leave for Lindsay, where they are scheduled to play to-night.

HOCKEY

A game of hockey which promises to be the best of the season, will be played at Brock Street rink to-night between 10 and 11, when the fast North-Enders" clash with the "Disturbers." The line-ups:

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Export demand broader than ever whirled the price of wheat upward today after a break of 1 3-8c that was largely due to the deadlock over the so-called submarine war zone. The market finished strong at 1 3-8c to 1 3-4c net advance. Corn gained 3-8c to 3-4c and oats 1-2c to 1-4c. In provisions the outcome ranged from a shade to 27½c decline.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb sacks, in car lots, $2.20; in small lots, $2.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18.—May wheat opened at $1.53½, dropped to $1.53½, rallied to $1.53⅝, and closed at $1.53⅝. Export buying was the chief feature of the local market. All exporters bought futures, and there was a keen demand for cash. Offerings were very light the. Receipts were 247 cars, as against 736 last year, and there were 270 cars in sight for today.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today and as cables were stronger at a further advance in prices, a fair amount of business was done for March-April shipment and sales of No. 1 northern were made in London at 44s 6d, and No. 3 northern at 44s 6d, while bids from Avonmouth at 2d per quarter less were turned down. There is also a good enquiry for wheat for May-June shipment from this port at 1s 6d per quarter below the above prices, which exporters would not entertain, as they are not disposed to make sales so far ahead. There is no change in the condition of the local market for coarse grains, for which there is a steady demand for carlots. A firm feeling prevails in the flour market, with a steady trade passing for domestic account, and some sales of small lots of export patents were made for shipment to London at 46s 6d. Demand for millfeed is good and prices are firm.

Demand for butter is good and prices are firmly maintained at the recent advance in prices. Cheese is quiet but strong. The tone of the market for eggs is firmer on account of the increased demand for supplies and the smaller arrings of new-laid.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 18.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.55½; No. 1 northern, $1.51¾ to $1.55½; No. 2 do., $1.47¾ to $1.53½; May, $1.51½.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 71½c to 72c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 56¼c to 56⅝c.

Flour and bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Feb. 18.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.54½; No. 1 northern, $1.53½; No. 2 do., $1.50¾ to $1.51½; May, $1.53¾.

U. S. Ship Bill Blocked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Effectually blocked in their efforts to get the House ship purchase bill to a vote Democratic Senators yesterday agreed to take up appropriation bills and send the shipping measure to conference until Feb. 27, when it must take its chances of being filibustered to its death on March 4.

INHUMANE, SAYS GERMANY.

Starvation Compels Her to Blockade Britain's Supplies.

BERLIN, Feb. 19. — The German reply to the American note regarding the submarine "blockade" published yesterday says the steps taken are not against neutral commerce, but against Britain's method of warfare in starving Germany.

"All these encroachments," the note says, "have been made as has been admitted, in order to cut off all supplies from Germany, and thereby starve her peaceful civilian population—a procedure contrary to all humanitarian principles.

"Germany, after six months of patient waiting, sees herself obliged to answer Great Britain's murderous method of naval warfare with sharp counter measures," it concludes. "If Great Britain in her fight against Germany summons hunger as an ally, for the purpose of imposing upon a civilized people of seventy millions the choice between destitution and starvation or submission to Great Britain's commercial will, then Germany to-day is determined to take up the gauntlet and appeal to similar allies."

What Constitutes the Game?

I asked a magnate great,
In wealth and power and ease;
He said "In brief I'll state
The game is mainly these—
My turnstiles clicking around,
My bankroll gaining heft,
While thousands leave my grounds

I asked a lawyer, grand,
A nestor of the bar;
He paused and slowly scanned
My face with mien bizarre—
"The things that count," he said,
"Are affidavits, please,
Injunctions, seals of red
And fat and juicy fees."

I asked a big league star,
Of fame and great renown,
He stopped his motor car
And looked benignly down,
"I take it that the Game,"
He said with some hauteur,
"Is signing up your name
For thirty thousand per."

I asked a ragged lad,
He stared in blank surprise;
The wonder that he had Shone in contemptuous eyes;
"De game? A big lot—See?
A gluv, a bat, a ball;
Yer gang, my gang and me,
An' den—some scrap—dat's all."
—R. E. M'MILLIN.

Pittsburg base ball writers are sorry to see Frank Kafora leave the Pirates. This young catcher, recently released to the Omaha Western League Club, furnished the Pittsburg scribes with many a funny paragraph, according to Ed. F. Ballinger of the Post. Kafora has no equal in base ball for pulling bright bits of humour, and it was a delight to be in his company. Ballinger recalls his first trip East with Kafora, and the impressions he got of the catcher's never-ending run of comedy.

Bright and early one Sunday morning the Pirates hustled away from the hotel in which they were stopping in New York City, boarded a steamer and went to Long Brank, where they played an exhibition game, says Ballinger. Kafora was brimming over with the spirit of mirth that day and he had everybody within earshot laughing constantly as the boat steamed on its little journey down the Jersey Coast.

Just before Jack Dailey led the players through the passageway at the wharf, Kafora was missed, but a moment later he was seen standing in an archway through which a line of drays were carrying heavy freight to the vessels. The comedian was asked why he didn't board the steamer with the rest of the ball club. Pointing to a large sign above the archway where he was standing, Kafora exclaimed:

"This is the place where we go to the boat. Don't you see what it says on that sign? 'All teams enter here.'"

When the steamer pulled out upon her course Max Carey remarked that the sea was unusually calm. "Yes," chimed in Kafora, "I wish the playing field over in Brooklyn was half as smooth as that sea."

As the boat passed the Statue of Liberty, Kafora was asked what the goddess might be doing out there in the water. "That's easy," he replied, "She's umpiring for the 20,000 leagues under the sea and she's calling a strike on Ham Hyatt." It was suggested that possibly she was purposely giving the big pinch hitter a base on balls. "When they call a ball," answered Jake, "they don't raise their right hand like she's doing."

"Guess this is going to be a light-hitting game," remarked Kafora as the steamer passed a lighthouse, and swung in rather close for a land lubber's comfort. Suddenly he requested Joe Kelly to toss a dime into the ocean. "What for?" inquired the outfielder. "Why, to tip the bellboy," answered Jake as he pointed to a bellboy some distance away.

Observing a large number of slim poles that were sticking up out of the water, somebody inquired what they were for. "That," instantly replied Kafora, "is a patch of bushes and every day in the early spring you will see people out there picking ocean currents."

There are a few samples of the sort of spontaneous wit that always was ready to pop from Kafora's tongue. On the players' bench, on the coaching lines, on the railroad trains, in the hotels or during the training trip, Jake had a never-failing supply of drolleries that kept his companions in good humour.

OBITUARY

MR. BERT MARTIN.

The many friends of Mr. Bert Martin, who formerly resided at 50 Aylmer street, Peterborough, will regret to learn of his death, which occurred in the Hamilton Hospital yesterday, at the early age of 27 years.

The late Mr. Martin was well known here, being a member of the Park Street Baptist Church. He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, his mother and one brother, who resides in Hamilton.

The body will arrive here on the noon train to-morrow (Saturday) via C. P. R., the funeral taking place from the residence of Mr. John Stiner, 50 Aylmer street, on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

Rev. J. R. Webb will conduct the funeral service.

J. T. VOSPER.

On Thursday night there passed away a well-known and respected citizen of town in the person of the late John Thomas Vosper, after an illness of several months of heart trouble. Born on August 20th, 1850, in the town of Callington, County of Cornwall, England, he came with his parents to Cobourg in May, 1857. He was educated in that town, and became a printer's apprentice under Mr. Floyd, publisher of the Star. After a few years he went to Toronto where he was employed on several papers, and for a time was a reporter on the staff of the Globe. Later he went to Brighton, and was employed on the Ensign. Coming to Campbellford in 1873, he shortly afterward founded in Herald, of which he was editor and proprietor until 1904, when he sold the business to Mr. G. R. Kingston. Since that time he has retired from active business.

While a resident here, Mr. Vosper took a lively interest in the advancement of the town's welfare, and was on the Council of the Board of Trade He was also tax collector of the town for several years. A member of the Methodist Church, he was also treasurer of the Bible Society, an active member of the Lord's Day Alliance, Royal Templars of Temperance, and other societies.

A widow, one daughter, Miss Lil[illegible], at home, and one son, Dr. Louis L., of Kingston, survive, and mourn his demise. Two brothers, Louis, of Hamilton, and George, of Toronto and one sister, Miss Mary, of Cobourg, also survive. The funeral which was private, took place on Tuesday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.—Campbellford News.

LOCAL PEOPLE INHERIT FORTUNE

Mr. Mark Spenceley and Two Sisters Will Receive Ten Thousand Dollars Each and One Son Five Thousand

Four people will share in the estate of the late Mrs. Van Vliet, whose death occurred in New York on February the eleventh. The names and the amounts which they will inherit are as follows: Mr. Mark Spenceley ten thousand dollars his two sisters, namely, Mrs. John King of Peterborough, and Mrs. James Chatten, ten thousand dollars each, and Mr. Mark Spenceley's son Albert, who is in Winnipeg, the sum of five thousand dollars.

The late Mrs. Van Vliet was a sister of Mr. Mark Spenceley. She was born in Peterborough and some years ago removed to New York, where she married Mr. Clinton Van Vliet, head of the New York branch of the Goodyear Rubber Company. The estate is valued at five million dollars.

The nature of the will was disclosed to-day in the office of Mr. W. H. Moore, Mrs. James Chatten has been residing in Bowmanville for some time. She is on her way to this city, also Mr. Albert Spenceley, who is in Winnipeg.

WHAT BRAND DO THEY USE IN BUFFALO?

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUFFALO, NY., Feb. 19. — An aeroplane headed directly northeast passed over Buffalo this morning a few minutes before eight o'clock. It was flying at an altitude of between 2,500 and 3,000 feet. The outline of the aircraft could be plainly discerned and at times the machine seemed to head directly for the Canadian shore, and then quickly swerve back again toward this side of the river. Thousands of people on their way to business anxiously watched the machine as it sped along. Some believe that the airman was spying on Canadian towns and fortifications as a part of a suspected aerial raid of German emmissardies. It was going at a terrific pace and caused considerable excitement here.

"SAN TOY" TO BE GIVEN HERE

The musical play 'San Toy,' a famous Daly production, will probably be given here next fall by a company directed by Mr. R. J. Dovey, who was responsible for the "Geisha," in the Earl Grey competition some years ago. The airs of "Yen How," and the dainty ladies' guard, "The Emperor's Own," "Motherland," and others will well bear repeating. The play was given years ago by the same conductor in England, but not as yet in Canada. Some years ago a professional company gave a performance here, but it is seldom that amateurs attempt such heavy work.

Concert By Choral Society

Splendid Miscellaneous Programme Arranged For Next Tuesday Night

The announcement that the Peterborough Choral Society will give their mid-winter miscellaneous concert next Tuesday in the Collegiate Institute recalls what a prodigious amount of work this society has achieved in the three years of its existence. This concert will make the seventh, four of which were given in the Grand Opera House, the others at the Collegiate Institute, by the kind permission of the Board of Education, who have done a great deal to help the society from the beginning. Had any person stated that in this City no less than three oratorio productions would be given in a year and a half, he would have been ridiculed. Yet it was done. "The Messiah" once and "Judas Maccabeaus" twice. The second production of "Judas Maccabeaus" was in aid of the Patriotic Fund, in co-operation with J. J. Turner and Sons, in lending the Opera House. The principal work this season is Elgar's "Banner of St. George." Others are the "Ode to Music," "Unseen Choir," by Stainer, and Balfe's "Gipsy Chorus," from "The Bohemian Girl." "The Banner of St. George" will be given in April next, only one number on Tuesday next, namely, the epilogue, "It comes from the misty ages."

The members of the Society include singers from no less than ten of the City church choirs, and for that reason alone the organization deserves the hearty support of every citizen.

INVESTIGATION INTO QUESTION OF BAD BOOTS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19. — The Parliamentary Committee appointed to investigate the question of boots supplied to Canadian troops got down to preliminary business this morning and apointed its chairman. It had been expected that Sir James Aikins would be chairman, but in the course of an awkward pause at the commencement of proceedings Sir James coughed and mover that W. S. Middleboro, M.P., for North Grey, should

There was no dissenting voice. Mr. Middleboro said "Thank you" and took his place in the chair.

The new chairman declared that the investigation should be full and complete in order that the country should be assured in future that men who had gone across the sea to fight in trenches should be well equipped for the strenuous work ahead of them. "Let us hew to the line and let the chips fall where they may," he said, "but at the same time let us see that all justice is done to the manufacturers and to any officials who may be connected with the supply of boots to the soldiers."

Sir James Aikins urged that the enquiry be carried as speedily as possible and

If there were any dereliction of duty which had worked either to the disadvantage or the discomfort of troops the committee should find it out.

The Germans Have Lost Heavily in the Alsace Region

RUSSIANS FORESTALL GERMAN ADVANCE

TO STRIKE A MIGHTY BLOW AGAINST GERMANY

Premier Asquith's Speech in the House To-day Intimated That the British Government is Considering Question of Reprisals---No New Attacks.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 22. — Fresh hints that the British Government is about to strike a mighty blow at Germany in retaliation for Von Tirpitz's new submarine warfare, were dropped in the House of Commons this afternoon by Premier Asquith. The Prime Minister made his remarks shortly after unconfirmed reports were brought here from Paris that Austria has followed Germany's course and has launched an attack upon the merchantmen traversing the Adriatic. Reiteration by the Premier of the statement that the Government is about to launch a new campaign, revived interest in just what course England is to pursue. It was intimated that not only will an embargo be laid against foodstuffs consigned to Germany, but that an aggressive naval policy designed to wipe the German fleet from the sea is about to be launched. Up to a late hour this afternoon no new attacks by German submarines on merchantmen had been reported to the Admiralty.

Replying to questions, Premier Asquith said that Great Britain was deeply considering method of reprisals to be taken against Germany in its attacks against the allied and neutral vessels, and torpedoing them without warning, and he intimated that a note would be sent from the allies to the neutral powers in regard to the situation.

BLOW FALLS SHORT

LONDON, February 22,—The crushing blow which Germany hoped to deliver against the Russians from East Prussia, has fallen short, telegraphs the Daily Mail's Petrograd correspondent. "The Russians have extricated their main body from the German pincers, and the Germans, instead of attacking are being attacked," says the despatch. "Russian reinforcements are arriving constantly in large numbers."

EFFORTS AT PEACE

ROME, February 22.—That the time is rapidly approaching when the neutral nations must demand that the present war be ended, is the opinion of all the high officials at the Vatican. Up to the present time Pope Benedict has been contenting himself with efforts to mitigate the sufferings caused by the war. But during the present fast period it is said an effort will be made to determine whether concerted action by the neutrals is not possible.

BERLIN'S BIG CLAIM

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Seven Russian generals and 100,000 men are now en route to the German prison camps as Von Hindenburg's armies continue their successful sweep against the Czar's forces, it was officially announced here to-day. It was officially admitted this afternoon that the pursuit of the Russians who retired from the Mazurian Lakes region has ended, a gap of several miles now separates the fleeing forces of the enemy and their German pursuers. The Russians are entrenching and preparing to resist further German advances into Poland.

NEUTRALS ARE INDIGNANT

CHRISTIANA, Feb. 22.—The indignation of Norway and Denmark over the sinking of the Norwegian tank steamer Belridge by a German submarine has done much to alienate the sympathies of the small pro-German section of the public here. "We will not conceal the fact," says the Trade and Marine News of Christiana, "that a repetition of the occurrence will produce an extremely serious position between the three Scandinavian countries and Germany." The paper adds that Norway will not stand for German interference with shipping on the high seas. The Morgenbladet, a daily paper of Chistiana, Norway, says, "Germany must make a prompt report stating whether the torpedoing of the Belridge was an accident. If it was an accident Germany must indemnify the owners handsomely, and if not an accident the paper suggests that Norway seize one German ship from the many now taking refuge in its ports for each Norwegian merchantman destroyed. The paper remarks that incident cannot but lessen the dwindling sympathy among the neutral nations for Germany." The article concludes: "Neutral countries are not to be frightened by piratical German submarines."

Rain Is Looked For This Evening

The rain which the weather man predicted for Sunday evening is about twenty-four hours overdue. There was a light sprinkling of rain this afternoon with prospects for a more substantial amount this evening. According to a number of Indians, who having been watching the weather with a prophetic eye, the spring will open up early. The rabbits are beginning to turn grey which is an indication that they are shedding their winter coat and adopting a raiment more in keeping with the colour scheme of the woods. In some places throughout the country the roads are getting bare and the fields are taking on a drab hue, all of which testifies to the increasing strength of the sun's rays. A few isolated robins have made their appearance together with the carrion crow.

Charcoal will absorb the odours of food if placed in a refrigerator.

Operated by two men, a machine invented by a Chicago hotel steward will wash and dry more than 18,000 dishes an hour.

AFTER THE WAR LASTING PEACE

Lloyd George Says This Will Be Secured However Only at a Cost That Will Almost Stagger Belief

GIVES AN INTERVIEW

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 22.—After the war a lasting peace, but at a cost that will stagger belief. The first full year of the present war will cost Great Britain two and a half billion dollars, in addition to its cost in human lives. That is the opinion of England's financial expert, David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer. In an interview granted to Henry Beech Needham, the American writer, copyrighted by him and printed in the current issue of Collier's Weekly, the Chancellor [illegible] cost of warfare have already been shattered. But he believes the cost will be justified by the lasting peace and the reduction in costly armaments, including a reduction in the cost of Great Britain's naval maintenance. "I believe," says Lloyd George, "when peace comes it will be predicted first of all upon new German geographical boundaries, boundaries based upon national lines, on the will of the respective peoples, and, secondly, on a mutual pledge of the signatories, not only to respect guaranteed neutrality, but to chastise the nation which offers to break the international compact.

39th Battalion At The Temple

Infantrymen Had a Church Parade Yesterday Morning

The local detachment of the 39th Battalion held a church parade to the Salvation Army Temple yesterday morning with Lieut. Eastwood in charge. The company close to one hundred strong looked very smart in their scarlet uniforms. At the Temple they were addressed by Adj. and Mrs. McElhiney, and by Envoy Brewer Brown. Adj. McElhiney spoke on "True Patriotism," using the Hebrew children as an example, and showing how they needed moral courage, self-denial, and the ability to endure persecution, but how they eventually won out. The Temple Band headed the parade from the Armouries to the temple, and also played for the soldiers on their return to the Armouries.

The Mounted Rifles' route march this morning took them north to Smith street, over the Smith St. Bridge to the canal, south to the lift lock and return to the armouries.

Lieut. Ross Cameron, of the 39th Battalion, who has been taking a course in machine gun work at Kingston, has returned to his duties at the local Armouries. Lieut. Cameron says that the 21st Battalion, 2nd Contingent, which has been training at Kingston, is a superb organization.

Lieut. Sneath, of the 8th C.M.R., spent the week-end at his home in Napanee.

The many friends of Sergt. Geo. Grange, caretaker of the Armouries, will regret to learn that he is confined to his bed with a severe attack of la grippe.

The 39th Battalion drilled in the Armouries this morning and did not take a route march.

A number of the artists from the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion entertained the Peterborough Club with a concert at the club on Soturday evening.

Fine Imposed On Peterborough Man

For Undertaking a Plumbing Contract in Lindsay

LINDSAY, Feb. 22.— At Saturday's police court, George A. Brenton, of Peterborough came up on a charge of an infraction of the local plumbing by-law. It will be remembered that the accused appeared in court to answer a similar charge but the case was withdrawn. Since then, it appears that Brenton proceeded with his plumbing contract, and another information was laid against him by Sanitary Inspector Douglas. At the police court session the accused was fined $20 and $3.45 costs. The accused was represented by Mr. L. V. O'Connor, while Mr A. M. Fulton represented the town.

HEAVY FINES WERE INFLICTED

Otonabee Youths Pay a Total of $142.65 For Their Conduct in Circulating Defamatory Matter

MUST KEEP THE PEACE

Magistrate Dumble ordered in police court this morning that the two Otonabee farmers who were found guilty last week of defamatory libel and against whom judgment was reserved, should pay a fine of $100.00 and costs $16.15, amounting in all to $116.15.

In the case of wilfully damaging a gutter in the Munro House yard, only the one who threw the stone was found guilty. He was ordered to pay $26.50, made up by a fine of $10.00, compensation, $14.50, and costs, $12.00.

Each of the young men was bound over to keep the peace for a year and were required to give bonds of $1,000 each to guarantee that they will keep the peace.

On behalf of his clients, Mr. F. D. Kerr said he was authorized to tender a public apology and regret for what has been an annoyance to Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, and to state that there was nothing they knew derogatory about Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald. He hoped the common good will which characterized the people of that community would be re-established and continue for many years to come.

His Worship, in giving judgment, expressed his utter abhorence of practices of that kind. It made trouble in a neighbourhood which might easily lead to bloodshed. He was sorry these young men, who were old enough to know better, nursed this spirit for months. One of the young men admitted he was sorry, but said he was found out. He did not make reparation until he was found out.

It was not too late for them to pull up, and His Worship hoped they would pursue a better course in future.

There was no provision made for compensation and damages by the Fitzgeralds and His Worship hoped there would be no further proceedings on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

The Judgment.

The defendants are charged with having in December, 1914, and February, 1915, without legal justification or excuse, published a defamatory libel likely to injure the reputation of Michael Fitzgerald and his wife Catherine Fitzgerald, by exploiting their hatred, ridicule and contempt, etc. The defendants are young men of most respectable families living in the neighbourhood of the Fitzgerald family. The evidence showed that the offence consisted in posting up in most conspicuous places along the highways scurrilous posters, written in plain writing and printing. The names of both Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald were on them, the language was filthy and on some of the papers obscene pencil drawings were made. There were vile imitations, reflecting both Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald. Besides the posters numerous written and hand printed papers were circulated, some directed to Mr. Fitzgerald, were sent through the Peterborough post office, and some were dropped in the post boxes along the rural route, so that they came to the hands of strangers. A lot of these papers were gathered up and brought to Mr. Fitzgerald by neighbours.

After the arrest of prisoners they owned up and confessed they had written all the papers complained of and posted them up and sent some by mail.

The offence was long continued so that the entire neighbourhood was familiar with it.

There appears to me no justification whatever. I find that both the defendant co-operated and jointly wrote and published the defamatory matter complained of, but it was defamatory to both Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, that it was vulgar, coarse and obscure; the language and pictures were vile. I find both defendants guilty and I adjudge that they do pay a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $16.15, to be paid forthwith and in default of payment that they be imprisoned in the common jail of the County of Peterborough for six months.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Police Magistrate.

Another Peterborough boy at the front. Pte. Wilbert McIntosh, son of Mr. Angus McIntosh, caretaker of the Charlotte Street Curling Rink. Pte. McIntosh enlisted with the 21st Highlanders of Hamilton in the first contingent. Another brother, Angus, Jr., is with the 57th detachment in the 21st Battalion, 2nd Contingent, at Kingston.

THE PRICE OF BREAD IN PETERBORO'

Will Be Kept Down to the Present Level if Possible—A Rise is in Prospect for Other Parts of Ontario

STOP SPECULATION

While the report is being circulated throughout Ontario that by the end of April bread will be unobtainable at less than seven cents for a pound and a half loaf in the city, and eight cents in the country, the Peterborough bakers are inclined to believe that such a course will not be necessary. The bakers are unanimous in the opinion that a rise in price would be justifiable, but as a body they are reluctant to inflict any additional hardship on the consumer. At the present time bread is retailed in Peterborough at six cents for a one-and-a-half pound loaf.

Flour for bread has increased in price from $4.60 to $6.50 per barrel of 196 pounds since the outbreak of war. Each barrel contains sufficient flour for the manufacture of 98 three-pound loaves of bread or 178 1½-pound loaves.

Difficulties in Cake Making.

Manufacturers of cakes are beset by many difficulties. The price of Ontario wheat flour, which is required for confectionery, has risen from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel. But the confectioner must also meet a 100 per cent. increase in the price of sugar, which is now $6.00 a hundredweight, though formerly only $3.15 and $3.30. Malt extract has increased from 7 to 10½ cents, or 50 per cent. Western Canada oats are now 75 cents, where last year they were 45 cents a bushel; lard is 12 cents, and shortening is also on the increase. The result must inevitably be a decrease in the size of cakes and then an increase in their price.

Avoiding Any Increase.

Some correspondence has taken place between the Department of Trade and Commerce, and the Bread and Cake Manufacturers' Association, which seems to portend a general and substantial advance in the price of these necessities.

A letter to the minister of trade and commerce, Sir George Foster, from last August, when the convention of the association was held in Winnipeg, the association was held in Winnipeg,

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT

A local baker, who appeared in Police Court this morning, on a charge of non-support, preferred by his wife, was given two weeks to do better. Judgment was reserved for that length of time by Magistrate Dumble.

GERMANS' HEAVY LOSS IN ALSACE FIGHTING

Enemy Forced French to Retire From Advanced Positions But Advance Cost Them Very Dearly---Allies Gain Between the Argonne and the Meuse.

Special Cable:

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Heavy German losses in savage fighting in Alsace, was claimed in the official despatches received here this afternoon. It was admitted that on both banks of the river the French were forced to retire. Three German regiments attacked the French positions near Hebroth, northwest of Munster. The enemy's infantry advanced in dense formation. Into this human mass French shells were hurled and at closer range rapid firers tore great holes. By sheer weight of numbers the Germans forced the retirement of the French forces to strong positions a few hundred yards to the rear. French gains in the region between the Argonne and the Meuse were claimed in the official despatches this afternoon. The enemy was forced to evacuate a trench that communicated with other trenches previously occupied by the French. Only desultory artillery firing was reported elsewhere along the battlefront in Flanders and France.

PARIS, February 22.—With the troops apparently exhausted by the see-saw fighting of the last ten days, which has resulted in no sweeping gain by either side, conditions along the battle line are reported to be comparatively quiet to-day. The most action was in Upper Alsace, where the Germans continue their efforts to get possession of the main roads leading towards Belfort and Nancy. The fighting has been bitterly contested, despite the fact that the wooded country in which it is taking place is filled with snow.

At the other end of the line, 400 miles away, just inside of the Belgian frontier, two German infantry attacks have been repulsed by the British with much loss. Elsewhere only artillery exchanges are taking place.

CONCESSIONS TO ITALY

LONDON, England, February 22.—The Frankfurter Zeotung, in a leading article suggests that Austria should make territorial concessions to Italy to insure the latter's neutrality. The article suggests the holding of a conference by Germany, Austria and Italy to discuss their differences.

Another significant despatch comes from Rome and says: "Reports received by the Secretary of State, of the Vatican, says the Giornale D'Italia, show that Germany, although maintaining an excellent military position, feels seriously the consequences of the war, and therefore has modified materially her views on peace conditions to be 'imposed.'" The paper says the Pontiff considers such conditions of affairs lends itself favourably to diplomatic steps.

NO CONFIRMATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—No confirmation is obtainable here to-day of the reports from Berlin last night that a British transport with troops had been sunk by a German submarine. Inquiries sent by the United Press to its London Bureau remain unanswered. This was taken to mean that the British censor is permitting no information touching on the report to be cabled to the United States. Whether the transport were sunk or not it is not believed the censor would permit news of it to be cabled to New York before the Admiralty issued a statement.

Motion Pictures To-night

In George St. Methodist Church

To-night and to-morrow evening at 8 p.m., Dr. F. C. Stephenson, Secretary of the Forward Movement for Missions in the Methodist Church will show moving pictures of mission scenes in China, Japan and our Canadian West in George Street Methodist Church.

These films were obtained under the direct supervision of Dr. Stephenson at large cost and they convey a vivid, personal view of the work being accomplished in these mission fields and have been in much demand for imparting missionary information.

Dr. Stephenson has been brought here by and for the young people of Peterborough at considerable expense and all, young and old, will find it well worth while. Come and bring the children. There is no admission charge but a free will offering.

OUT IN THE COLD.

The disloyalty of Mr. Gustave Evanturel to the Liberal party, who was sent to the Legislature to support it, is not easily overlooked; he is not to be recognized by the Liberals in the Ontario Legislature. This was made plain at the time of the elections when Mr. F. A. Senecal ran as the candidate of the Liberal party in Prescott; and it was made plainer at the Liberal caucus held since the opening of the Legislature. The fact that Mr. Evanturel was not invited to attend the caucus is proof that he has not been taken back into the Liberal fold. Neither is he welcomed as far as is known, into the Conservative fold. As is natural no party is anxious for the adhesion of a man whose fidelity and good faith have not been proof against temptation. He must therefore, in regard to his party affiliations, be something like the coffin of Mahomet — suspended between the heaven and earth of government and opposition favour, respectively.

WHEN TO SPEND.

The question of the wisdom of liberal expenditure of government money (the people's money) in fat times, in times of buoyant revenue, is debatable. It is claimed that the public require certain permanent services — post offices, customs buildings, drill halls, wharves, etc., and that advantage should be taken of the good times to provide the public with such necessities. There are those who argue, especially under the pinch of war conditions, that the money should be husbanded and spent in a way to provide employment when hard times come; when owing to certain causes the demand for employment is small. It would no doubt be a good thing if we had the money now to prosecute vigorously, say, the public works promised for Peterborough. This would put money into circulation and provide the employment, from lack of which so many are suffering. That would be one means of a partial solution of the unemployment problem. It is worth considering if the government would not do well to imitate the action of the City Council last autumn, which provided a good deal of employment, which helped to ease the unemployment situation and the conditions accompanying it. The Council got money by the issue of short-term bonds subscribed by the citizens. If on a larger scale the Dominion Government should do a little similar financing, we should get the benefit that comes from the large employment the general construction of public works would involve. This would perhaps involve the assumption of large financial obligations. It would have its disadvantages, but would they be greater than the paralysis of industry and the other material and moral evils that come from general and long-continued unemployment?

CHILD LABOUR.

Child labour in the United States is one form of industrial and moral evil, which Congress is trying to combat. The greatest prevalence is in the Southern States, and Alabama seems to be a special sinner in this regard. But Alabama has paved the way of making abolition of child labour a matter of easy accomplishment. It has abolished drink, and thus the most potent contributor to child labour is eliminated. If the money of the "breadwinner," formerly wasted in drink, is kept in the home to maintain it, there will be less necessity for forcing children into employment in factories in order to feed the home. A great many evils we suffer from, and find difficult to remove, would largely disappear, if the gigantic parent evil, strong drink, were removed. Would there be as much, if any, considerable child labour, would there be an incentive to it, or necessity for it, if through the abolition of strong drink, the robbing of the home, were eliminated? Would many of the other evils directly and indirectly, traceable to strong drink, be so difficult to cure, if the cause were removed? If our governments want to destroy the evils that thrive under the shadow of the Upas tree of strong drink, they can accomplish their desire by striking at the roots of the tree. Modification of the license law, tinkering amendemnts, only scotch the snake—not kill it.

PROTECT OUR SOLDIERS AND OUR GOOD NAME.

It is estimated that Canada has received war orders to the amount of 200 million dollars. This is a considerable amount of money and will do much to keep some of our industries in profitable operation, and give a good deal of employment. In connection with these orders, which come from Britain and the countries of her allies, it is to be assumed that the work done must come up to the specifications and stand inspection, whose rigidity will not be affected by local considerations. If our Canadian manufactures can produce articles that will meet the approval of foreign countries, they should certainly be able to furnish reliable goods for the equipment of our own soldiers — goods whose quality will be a life assurance, or at least a reasonable assurance against disease and death from defective footwear. It is enough to ask our soldiers to face the inevitable hardships of campaigning, which is hard enough with the best of equipment. Haste may be an excuse for the defective character of many of the boots supplied the first contingent, but haste is no justification. It would have been betetr to wait a few days in order to permit the manufacture of proper boots than to make a gain of a few days that would be neutralised and worse by sending men upon active service, clad in boots that made them inefficient; so that whatever time was gained by rushing boot orders was lost by the destruction of the efficiency, the loss of health and loss of life, to be directly traced to bad boots. We should spare no effort to get at the bottom of the shoddy boots enterprise, to discover the culprits and mete out such justice as will prevent a repetition of the cruel outrage upon our brave soldier boys. Wives and mothers give up their husbands and sons, willing for them to face the ordinary and inevitable, and therefore, unpreventable, dangers of war, on the understanding that their health and lives should not be sacrificed to preventable causes. We don't want Canadian manufacturers to get a bad name for bad work; nor do we want the companion condition, injury and danger to the health and lives of our soldiers—our relatives, our friends, and our neighbours.

THE LIBERAL ATTITUDE.

The Montreal Gazette, the leading organ of the Conservative party in the Province of Quebec, paid a fine tribute to the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party since the outbreak of the War, when it said in the course of an editorial on January 27th:

"There is no fault to be found with the attitude of the official Liberal party, in Parliament or out of it. Its attitude has been in general keeping with hat of the Unionists of Great Britain. Its leaders recognized that when Great Britain was at war the whole Empire was at war. They recognized also that the responsibility for action rested upon the government of the day, and quietly assented to all that it was proposed to do. In this they strengthened the ministers' hands for the great work events have put into them. For the first time since Confederation, it may be said, a great political issue arose and was dealt with by Parliaments as something not to be used to help or hurt a party cause. All this was well, and is duly appreciated."

WILL THIS HAPPEN?

(Ottawa Free Press)

Experience in the past has shown that our manufacturers take advantage up to the hilt of all tariff protection afforded them, and there is every reason to believe that they will add the extra five or seven per cent. to the selling price of some manufactured articles, and so hit at the receipt of customs with the Dominion Government, in order that the Dominion Treasurey may be enriched by twenty-two million dollars, and the money has all to come out of the Canadian people. We should find less room for grumbling at the demand to pay up if we had more assurance that the watchfulness and extravagance that marked the conduct of Dominion affairs in fat years was to give place to carefulness and economy in the lean years that are now upon us.

Can Germany Carry Out Her Submarine Threat?

Germany has entered upon her "blockade by fright" with plain proof that neutral nations refuse to be frightened, and with documentary evidence, of the most uncompromising character that neutral nations will conduct their shipping as usual and will call her to instant account for any destruction wrought upon that shipping. This, possibly, is a handicap which Germany did not count upon. But since she has started her "blockade" under that handicap, and since, by her note to the United States, she has denied the rights of neutral nations and repeated her threats, it will be interesting to speculate as to what may happen in case these threats are put into execution.

First of all there is Italy. Italy has declared that her merchant shipping will go about its business as usual, and that if any vessel of hers is made the object of an unprovoked attack, Germany will be called upon to accept responsibility to the full. Nobody need speculate as to what this means. The sinking of an Italian vessel would bring Italian arms to the aid of the Allies with an overwhelming rush. Holland has warned Germany that if a Dutch ship is sunk by Germany, she will not accept the excuse that that vessel was sunk because British ships might be hoisting neutral flags. Holland undoubtedly would be brought into the contest by such an act, and if she were her ports and notably the entrance to the Scheldt, would be opened to British forces who could thus cut in on the flank of the Germans in Belgium.

And what about the United States? Practically every responsible organ of public opinion in that country has plainly intimated that a declaration of war would follow. Such an act on the part of the United States would be an immense blow to Germany, even though neither a warship nor a single soldier were sent by the United States to Europe. First of all Uncle Sam would undoubtedly seize every German vessel interned in his harbours. Then he might place practically unlimited munitions of war at the disposal of the Allies. In a hundred diplomatic ways he could apply the pressure to Germany, and lastly, he could prevent the United States from being a base of operations for German spying and German propaganda. Germany knows all this, of course. We shall now see if her threats against neutrals are mere bluff or in sober interest. If they are bluff her diplomacy will be made the laughing stock of the world. If they are in earnest they will bring upon her crushing humiliation. — Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

Velocity of Sound.

The velocity of sound depends upon the medium through which the sound has to travel. The mean velocity of sound in air is 1,123 feet per second, while the velocity of sound in water is given at 4,708 feet per second, being about four times quicker than in air. Cast iron conveys sound at the rate of 16,822 feet per second, or about sixteen times more quickly than air.—New York American.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20.—Wheat sold on the Winnipeg market for May, $1.57¼ to $1.58¼; July from $1.57¾ to $1.58⅝.

The market opened easier for wheat to the extent of 1¼c on each month; oats were ¼c lower at the opening and flax ¼c lower. Wheat generally was fairly steady and some holders realized, being unwilling to carry over the week-end in the face of holidays in the south.

Exporters were, however, buyers of futures, which assisted in holding prices about at par.

Oats were extremely quiet, nothing being sold of this cereal for export. Flax was steady, only a few cars changing hands.

Inspections Friday 247 cars, against 150 last year, and in night today 209 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 20.—There was no improvement for Manitoba spring wheat from abroad and business was quiet. The feature of the trade is the good demand for American corn from outside sources and quite an active business is doing in carlots for shipment from Chicago. In oats the feeling is firm with a fair trade passing in local grades, but the demand for Canadian Western is limited. Flour is quiet but the undertone to the market is firm. Millfeed active and prices firm owing to the lighter offerings. Butter firm ¼c higher. Receipts for the week 853 packages, against 245 last week. Cheese in fair demand. Receipts for week were 140 boxes. Demand for eggs good. Receipts for week 2145 cases, compared with 4250 for the same week last year.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS Feb. 20.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.55⅝; No. 1 northern $1.59⅝ to $1.54⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.56⅝ to $1.72⅝; May, $1.56⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 70½c to 71c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 56c to 56½c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $7.50; first clears, $6.45; second clears, $5.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 20.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.54⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.53⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.50⅝ to $1.51⅝; May, $1.53⅝.

CATTLE MARKETS

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 300; market steady; beeves, $6.35 to $9.50; cows and heifers, $3.40 to $7.90; calves, $7.50 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 20,000; market strong; light, $6.40 to $6.65; mixed, $6.20 to $6.65; heavy, $6.15 to $6.60; rough, $6.15 to $6.25; pigs, $5.50 to $6.70; bulk of sales, $6.40 to $6.55.

Sheep—Receipts, 1000; market slow; native, $6.40 to $7.25; yearlings, $7.35 to $7.90.

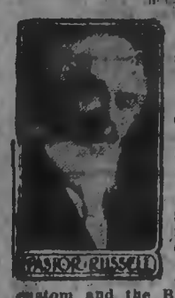
BILLY SUNDAY UNIQUE; VIRTUES AND FAULTS

Prelude to Pastor Russell's Sermon.

NOVELTY AS A DRAWING CARD

Kindly But Pungent Dissection of Billy's Furor—Fake Preaching Abominable to God — God and Man Dishonored by False Doctrines Which Preachers Do Not Believe — Instilling Superstitious Fears a Crime—If the Bible Does Teach That Eternal Torture Is the Fate of All Except the Saints, It Should Be Preached, Yea, Thundered, Weekly, Daily, Hourly—If It Does Not So Teach, the Fact Should Be Made Known and the Foul Stain Dishonoring to God's Holy Name Removed.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]



February 21.—Pastor Russell spoke to-day from the text, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." (Romans 1:16.) Prior to his sermon he made some kindly but pungent remarks on "Billy" Sunday, "the most noted preacher of our day." The Pastor would not depart from his custom and the Bible rule, "Speak evil of no man." His remarks merely [illegible] of the Gospel.

"Billy" Sunday catches the public eye and ear by the novelty of his methods. Some go to hear him lambaste the preachers on the platform behind him, and to watch their faces and see them smile as though it were a good joke when he tells them that their preaching has made the churches cold storage places with little storage, or when he likens them to the Scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites, of old, or when he tells them that they are leading their congregations straight down to Hell. These things told in the newspapers seem so astounding that people must see and hear for themselves.

Others go to hear "Billy" because it is the "fad." Business men and electric and steam railway managers realize that thousands will come to town as they would to a circus. They bring pressure to bear upon the poor preachers; for "Billy" wisely insists that he will not come and save the citizens from Hell if there is any competition in the business—insists that all the churches close down. Under the pressure the preachers cannot help themselves and try to make the best of it, hoping that people will not take "Billy" seriously as respects their hypocrisy, etc., and assured that he will divide the spoils evenly amongst all the churches—not the financial spoils, but the souls for "cold storage" or to be let down to Hell.

Others attend to see "Billy's" acrobatic feats, jumping onto a table or smashing a chair; others because they have been invited to be of the large choir; others to say that they have heard "Billy" Sunday. The worldly adage is, "Nothing succeeds like success"; and every time "Billy" succeeds he has more success.

Amongst Billy's virtues we should not forget the fearless way in which he attacks the social customs and sins which assail the family and the community, the fearless way in which he tells the preachers what he really thinks of them and what the masses of the public think of them, and the above-board manner in which he bargains the result of his efforts for cold cash—the meeting of the expenses and the giving to himself of certain collections for himself and his troupe. If the Gospel must be sold, it is better to have it done in the open rather than in the name of the

BACKACHE WAS SO BAD
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

For backache, lame or weak back, one of the commonest and most distressing symptoms of kidney inaction, there is no remedy to equal Doan's Kidney Pills for taking out the stitches, twitches and twinges, limbering up the stiff back and giving perfect relief and comfort to all poor, suffering women who suffer so much from a weak lame back.

Mrs. Blackburn, R.R. No. 1, Fishburn, Alta., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep my floor. I was advised to try your kidney pills. Before I had used one box there was a great improvement as my back was much better. However, I kept on taking them until my back was completely cured. I highly recommend these pills for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

refuge of lies."—Isaiah 28:17.

If belief in the real Gospel is the Divine power which works in the believer, it follows that whoever has not the Gospel has not this Divine power; and that in proportion as the Gospel is perverted its power is lost. So we see to-day millions of people professing to believe the Gospel yet acting like devils under delusions from the Dark Ages which have been fostered by the preachers of Christendom. If they knew the real Gospel, they would act differently and not dishonor Christ by claiming to be His followers.

The Gospel Message is double. It has one portion of promise of blessing for the Church and another for the world. For the Church, who renounce earthly hopes and ambitions, and cultivate the Heavenly, it promises the high reward of glory, honor and immortality with Christ in His Millennial Kingdom, to be entered into by the power of the First Resurrection. The Gospel Message tells the Church of God's gracious purpose for the world—that through Christ's Kingdom the blessing of Restitution (Acts 3:21), everlasting life as perfect human beings in a world-wide Paradise, has been made possible for all mankind through the Redeemer's sacrifice, and that as soon as the Church shall have been glorified, the blessing of the world will begin—to be accomplished fully during Messiah's Reign of Righteousness. We leave for next Sunday the discussion of the beautiful teachings of the Bible vs. the teachings of Mr. Sunday, the Adventists and the creeds on this subject.

Only a comparatively small number of humanity have opportunity of believing during this Age. Messiah's Kingdom will give the whole world an opportunity of believing in Christ—not merely those living when Messiah's Kingdom will be set up, but, as the Bible says, "All that are in their graves shall hear the Voice of the Son of God and shall come forth" from the grave—not from Heaven, not from Purgatory, not from our Protestant Hell of eternal torture, but from the grave.

The Church will constitute the First Resurrection class; and having passed their trial successfully, they will have the reward of life everlasting on the Heavenly plane. The world to be awakened at that time will include the heathen, and all the millions of Christendom who have never known what real Christianity is. They will all be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, that they may be tested, or judged, thereby and prove themselves either worthy or unworthy of everlasting life as human beings, in that world-wide Paradise.

So Jesus declares of them, "They that have done evil"—that have not been approved of God—"shall come forth unto a Resurrection of Judgment"—trial, testing—with a view of seeing how they will respond to those judgments, enlightenments, etc., that the willing and obedient at the close of Christ's Reign may be received into all the liberties properly appertaining to God's children. (Romans 8:21.) The wrong thought in the mind of the translators of our Common Version Bible has misled them occasionally into giving poor translations. See John 5:29, Revised Version.

All God's work is perfect. (Deuteronomy 32:4. Man originally was perfect, in the Creator's likeness. Disobedience brought upon man not a penalty of eternal torment, but a death penalty—"Dying, thou shalt die." "The wages of sin is death." For six thousand years the world has been undergoing this sentence. Cut off by sin from fellowship with God, man has degraded himself. Satan has contributed to this reign of Sin and Death by deceiving mankind, fostering errors, misrepresenting God, etc.

God has the situation fully in hand. He purposed to permit both angels and men to see one great illustration of the effect of sin, leading on to disease and death, mental, moral and physical. Meantime the Creator has gracious purposes for man. Their experiences with sin and death will not be fruitless. They will have opportunity of learning valuable lessons, profitable for eternity. The first trial as to their worthiness of eternal life or of everlasting death was through one man; and his disobedience settled the matter for

THE COLOR OF GOLD.

Gold that is used in jewelry and coins is always alloyed with copper or sometimes, as in the former, with silver. Addition of copper makes the color the popular "golden yellow," orange or reddish gold. Silver turns gold pale yellow. We seldom see pure gold, but it has that indescribable yellow that so often fascinates.

The pure metal is so malleable that it can be beaten between strips of vellum into sheets two-hundred-and-fifty thousandths of an inch in thickness. In this form it is transparent and transmits green light.

When very finely divided, gold is suspended in a liquid by precipitation from a solution it transmits green light similar to that of the leaf gold. Yet in ordinary well diffused light it seems purple, for this is the color it reflects. In other words, if a light is placed behind a jar containing a liquid with gold in fine suspension it looks green, whereas if the light is placed in front or at the side the color is purple. The vapor from boiling molten gold is also purple.

What, then, is the real color of gold? The color of a substance depends on its ability to reflect only light of that color, which in turn is due to the arrangement of the molecules. It seems, then, even the simple mechanical changes which we mentioned before as altering the physical properties are accompanied by radical changes among the molecules as far as their mutual relationships are concerned.—New York World.

SHELLED BY AUSTRIANS

Italian Fishing Craft Attacked by Two Torpedo Boats

BARI, Italy, Feb. 22.—The fishing boat Gesu arrived yesterday from Antivari, Montenegro, and the members of her crew said that the Gesu and the fishing boat Saturno, when flying Italian flags, had been fired upon by two Austrian torpedo boats. This report has caused great popular excitement in Rome.

Members of the crew of the Gesu said that the vessel was anchored near Antivari, with the Saturno when the Austrian torpedo boats approached. The captains of the fishing vessels ordered their crews to land, and at the same time hoisted Italian flags.

The Austrians, according to this report, fired on the crews and then on the vessels, while Austrian aeroplanes dropped bombs. No one on either vessel was injured, but the Saturno was damaged so badly that she was unable to sail for home.

Tried It on the Postman.

A young business woman on her way to the car, at closing time, stopped at the box to mail a letter. Just as she was about to drop the letter in the box the collector arrived and, reaching for it, said, "I'll take it."

The young woman looked at him a moment and handed him the letter, with the remark, "Now, don't forget to put that in the postoffice."

The collector looked at her in disgust and said nothing.

"He never saw the joke," the young woman said after she had told the story of the incident. "I suppose he has no women folk in his family who know that the letters they intrust to the men are carried around in their pockets for days before they are mailed."—Columbus Dispatch.

He Brought Them.

Mr. Sweet opened the door of the kitchen and said:

"Hello, Ella; company for dinner."

"Goodness, Tom, you don't mean that you have brought any one home to dinner tonight?" queried the wife.

"Sure I have!" replied Mr. Sweet. "Haven't you got any grub for them?"

"Why, no," said the wife despairingly. "Don't you remember you told me you would bring home a couple of lobsters for dinner, and I depended on them?"

"Well," said Tom, "they're here."—National Monthly.

Seeing Thin Glass.

Everybody who has tried understands how difficult it is to bore a hole in a strip of thin glass. The following method is said to be very successful: Press a cake of wet clay upon the glass and then make a hole through the clay of the desired size, laying bare the glass at the bottom of the hole. Then pour melted lead into the hole, and it will drop through the glass, making a round aperture. The explanation is that the sudden application of heat cracks the glass in a circle corresponding in size with the hole in the clay.—New York Tribune.

Military Reservists.

A foreign nation in time of war cannot compel its subjects, living at the time in another country, to return for military duty. It can call upon them to return, but in the event of their refusing to do so it would be helpless in the case. A foreign nation, for instance, could not forcibly seize its subjects living in this country and take them out, nor could this country force such subjects to depart.—New York American.

WEALTH AND WELCOME.

A young merchant went abroad and after many years, having made a large fortune, returned to his native land. When he reached home he found that his relatives had gone to a feast at a country house a few miles away. He was so eager to see them that he did not take the trouble to change his clothes and was wearing the things he had used on board the ship coming home.

When he entered the large hall where the guests were all assembled his cousins showed very little pleasure at the sight of him. It was plain to them that he had come back a poor man. A young negro who had accompanied him from abroad was quite upset by their coolness to his master and said, "They must all be very bad men to receive you so cruelly."

"Wait a minute," whispered the merchant, "and you will see a change in their looks."

He quietly put a fine diamond ring on his finger, and, lo, every face began to smile, and they pressed at once around him and called him "Cousin William."

"Has a simple gold ring the power to charm people like this?" asked the black servant in perplexity.

"It is not that," replied his master, "but the ring is worth a good sum, and they guess from it that I am rich, and riches are dearer to them than anything."

"What deluded men!" exclaimed the negro. "They think more of yellow metal and a piece of glass than all my master's virtues and loving kindness."—Baltimore News.

Killing Off the Race.

From the Christian era till the present time as statists and historians tell us, there have been less than 240 war less years. Up to the middle of the nineteenth century it was roughly computed that nearly 7,000,000,000 men had died in battle since the beginning of recorded history, a number equal to almost five times the present estimated population of the globe.—Christian Herald.

CANADA'S IMMIGRATION PROBLEM ABLY DISCUSSED BY MR. H. H. STEVENS M. P.

Class of Immigrants Should be Well Chosen to Insure Development of Highest Type of National Life—People to Say Who Shall Enter.

NO FOREIGN QUARTER

Those who heard Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., of Vancouver, yesterday afternoon in the Empire Theatre, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., on "Canada's Duty to Her Immigrants," must have gone away with a clearer conception of the seriousness of this problem in our Dominion at the present time. He is a strong speaker, and has made a careful study of the immigration problem, and his views on this subject were well worth hearing. Mr. Stevens has been heard in Peterborough on former occasions, and is welcomed here as a member of the House of Commons and as a former Peterborough boy. The Empire Theatre was not packed yesterday afternoon, but there was a large crowd. Mr. Jos. Wearing acted in the capacity of chairman, and introduced the speaker.

In opening, Mr. Stevens said that the privilege of being a citizen of Canada was one of the highest privileges that could be offered to a man to-day. Canada had a lot to be proud of in her heritage, in her traditions, institutions and history as part of the Empire, and as a young and growing country she had the privilege of sharing all this with the people of the older countries. Canada was a country richer in natural resources and opportunity beyond probably the highest anticipation of any man.

A few years ago Canada was looked upon as a residence for civilized people, probably around that part skirting the international boundary line, but now it was quite different. We could now look to the extreme north, east and west and see the evidences of possibilities for settlers of all walks of life. And there were no greater natural resources in the world. It was ours in trust for the interests of mankind generally.

But there must be many problems faced and solved. One of them was to hold the financial balance from that element in our community who had the idea that all the natural resources of the country were expressly for their benefit, and for them to get rich quick. A national life must be raised up in Canada which would be fair to all mankind within her boundaries, to give every one a fair chance but to put the brakes on those who would enrich themselves at the expense of their fellow-men. The water power, forest areas, mineral areas, and all resources must be conserved.

The administration of our laws was also very important. It was a tradition in our Empire that law was fairly and properly administered. Under no system of government in the world was the law better administered than under the Union Jack.

We wanted population in the Dominion of Canada. There were two extreme views about population. One was that view, which held that this Canada of ours should be peopled as fast as it was possible to people it. That vast areas should not be kept idle but that people should be invited to settle here. There was a great danger in that proposal. A second extreme view on peopling the country was that we should exclude as far as possible almost every class of people, and keep Canada for ourselves and our children.

The speaker did not agree with either of the above views. It devolved upon us to develop the highest type of national life. We might get the benefit of the wealth, culture and science of other countries by the first method, but we might not get character and a country which had no character would be better blotted out of history. Wealth, culture and science were only accessories to a great country.

The matter of who we would let in rested entirely with ourselves. We should all be interested. Any man who would freely take of all the efforts of the past and say he had no interest in the future had no right to a place among the civilized nations of the world. If we were going to people this country at all we must have some immigrants.

There were certain principles we could hold fast to in connection with immigration. The first was that the people occupying a given country and territory should have the privilege of determining who should enter that country or who should not. Another country should not be allowed for a moment to determine this for them. In that way we would be merely handing over the destinies of our country to that other country.

What class of immigrants were we going to admit? There was a law on our statutes which said we could exclude immoral, vicious or criminal people. This was a good thing. When a country densely populated and which had many of this class of people by their own faults, and deliberately shipped them off to another part of the world, the provision was a wise one.

Canada must know if the proposed immigrants were capable of assimilation. This was well worth a lot of consideration. She must be mighty careful with the class of people she invited to the country. Any people or class of people not capable of being readily assimilated should be shut out. The duty of the Canadian people, as far as possible, was to preserve their type. People coming to Canada from the Old Country or to any other country would naturally have the inclination to preserve their type. Take the Galicians, Doukaboors and Germans in our Western Provinces for instance. There were a number of people there who would make good citizens, but they have brought a lot of their traditions, customs and practices from their homeland and they are allowed a colony by themselves. These customs, etc., did not work in with the life here. There should not be any foreign quarter. We should treat the value of our citizenship more highly and not carelessly give it out.

We should be proud of the Empire to which we belonged. An Empire which was held together by bonds of sentiment yet held more firmly, as evidenced in the present war, than any other country of the world. We should be proud that we had thousands of our sons volunteering to help the Motherland and that not a man had yet been called by conscription in the British Empire. It was the fine blood of the Anglo Saxon race which was showing up. The speaker had a facsimile of the "Piece of Paper" which the Germans treated so lightly. The British Empire would sooner cease to be an Empire than lose her own self respect and honour. We should therefore not deal with our citizenship too cheaply. It should not be squandered upon everybody. The principles for the upbuilding of this country we should cherish as our lives.

Our citizenship should be looked after more carefully. Before extending immigrants the limit of citizenship in Canada they must have a knowledge of our methods. Speak of the horrors of war. The horrors of peace were to be considered too. We could look about and see hundreds of thousands losing their lives in the world every year through the greed of some one else. Taking railroad accidents, the great theatre disaster in Chicago and tenement disasters for instance. The duty of a citizen of Canada was to protect those coming into our midst. They should be given a fair chance to make good. They should not be sacrificed upon the altar of greed. The idea of getting rich quick and exploiting our resources rapidly to this end should not be countenanced. There should be no foreign section in any city in Canada, and if there was one in Peterborough it was the duty of her citizens to see that conditions were changed.

In conclusion, the national life of Canada would be what we made it. It was our duty to take this great heritage and develop it and preserve its type and traditions.

MME. BERNHARDT OPERATED ON

Special to The Examiner:

BORDEAUX, Feb. 22.—"For the sake of my art," Mme. Sarah Bernhardt to-day submitted to an amputation of her right leg from the knee.

The operation was performed here early to-day. Unless there are unexpected complications she will have a rapid recovery.

Mme. Bernhardt was in a cheery mood when she was removed to the clinic of Augustins for the operation.

She greeted the surgeons with a smile and urged that they hurry the operation along so that she might return to Paris as soon as possible.

T. A. S. Notes

The regular meeting of St. Peter's branch was held yesterday. After the regular business was transacted a discussion took place, having for its object the plans for a vigorous campaign in the interests of the branch. It was decided to canvass the entire parish for new members and make a determined effort to secure as many new members as possible next month.

The dramatic section is hard at work getting into shape for the annual concert on March 17th. This section is in the capable hands of Miss L. Simons. The play chosen is entitled, 'A Bit of Blarney' and promises to eclipse anything attempted before.

The committee appointed to carry out arrangements for the amalgamation of the three branches is hard at work and hope to have everything in order by the next meeting. Everything points to a successful outcome for their efforts and will no doubt be a source of great benefit to the different branches.

Boys' Department.

Saturday afternoon the Junior School Boys had the time of their lives at Jackson Park. The boys made a fine toboggan slide in the park and to see them shoot through the trees and across the creek on their toboggans was a hair-raising sight. Scouting games were also played and the boys had a fine afternoon in the fresh air.

At five o'clock the boys returned to the building where a bean supper was waiting for them. After supper the boys played games for an hour. The boys claim it was one of the best times they have had in their department.

To-night the Junior Collegiate class will have a social evening. After playing games the boys will have a bean supper, at 8:30.

The attendance at the Saturday morning Bible classes is increasing. Twenty-five boys were at Bible Study Saturday morning.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Bridesmaid, Groomsmas and Fifteen Other Couples Were There as at Wedding Fifty Years Ago - Peterboro Relatives

LINDSAY, Feb. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Denis Fitzpatrick celebrated their golden wedding at their country home near here Mr. Fitzpatrick was born January 18, 1839, and Mrs. Fitzpatrick (nee Eden Meehan) was born September 18, 1841.

The celebration took the form of a banquet. The bridesmaid and groomsman, now Mr. and Mrs. John P. Fitzpatrick, of 63 Havelock Street, Toronto, the only living brother and sister of the bride and groom, were present, with about fifteen other couples who attended the wedding fifty years ago. After the banquet an adress was read, the sons and daughters presenting their father and mother with a purse of gold.

There were ten children, nine of whom are living. One of the family Denis V., now resides at home. Hillary is married and living not far distant. William L. is in Globe, Arizona, and Joseph J., in Bakersfield, California. Robert F. Fitzpatrick, the youngest son, lives in Toronto, and is President and Manager of Fitzpatrick & O'Connell, Limited. There are four daughters: Mrs. H. M. Shaw, of Perth; Misses Margaret and Mary, graduate nurses, and practicing in Montclair, New Jersey, and Sister St. Joseph of St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. Twelve out of fourteen grandchildren were present for the celebration.

A BIG SLUMP IN FUR PRICES IN THE WEST

Principal Buyers From Trappers Drop Out of the Field Temporarily

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 22.— The fur trade in the west is almost demoralized so far as the business of trappers and traders is concerned, as the result of the announcement of the Hudson's Bay Company and Revillion's, Limited early in the winter, that they would not be in the market this year for the purchase of skins.

It was a common thing during former years for a buyer from one of the world's largest fur houses to purchase some $25,000 worth of raw furs during a trip. This year the aggregate buying of all who have come north will not reach $2,000.

One of the most interesting deals ever made by a fur trader in this territory is credited to Colin Fraser, king of all the northern trappers and a man who for 61 years has caught fur-bearing animals of all kinds.

Fraser makes two trips to the city every year, and never fails to bring from 10 to 40 bales of raw skins. His catch this year was very moderate, a paltry 9,683 skins being secured.

Having spent six months in the wilds of the Mackenzie River basin, Fraser had not heard of the European war until he reached Edmonton.

He expected upon his arrival here to sell his furs at about $30,000 to $35,000. The skins were put up for auction, but there were no bidders. At last a bidder appeared in the person of a representative of a local firm. He would pay Fraser $13,000 for his 20 bales of new skins—$13,000 spot cash. The market was bad, he explained, very bad. Fraser had no alternative but to accept the offer, for raw furs once bought cannot long be left in storage unless properly cured. Never did a king have such a hard fall.

Never before has milady had such an excellent chance to lay in a stock of the finest furs that money will purchase. This is one result of the war from which the buying public is certain to benefit.

TOOK DINNER WITH MR. STEVENS

The following men took dinner with Mr H. H. Stevens, M.P. of Vancouver, in the Oriental Hotel dining-room Sunday noon: Mayor Wm. Butler, Geo. Gillespie, M.P.P., School Inspector A. Mowat, Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George Street Methodist Church, Joseph Wearing, and C. N. Meserve, general secretary, Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Stevens proved to be a very interesting conversationalist, and is very well informed, not only regarding immigration matters, but all other problems that the Dominion is undertaking to solve.

A FIELD CONFERENCE.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Dear Sir,—Although not the author of the questions replied to by Mr. Irving of Kingston in your issue of Feb. 19th, yet I take a keen interest in dealing with the answer of Mr. I., at the same time, asking "Enquirer" to pardon me for trespassing on his right to answer. Mr. I. thinks no doubt, that his answers are satisfactory. It may be to Mr. I., but to the thinking people it must be evident that this Plymouth Brother knows very little about Scripture interpretation. For instance, to prove that people are alive after death, he refers to Rev. 3:1—"Thou hast a name that thou livest and art dead." Now, the Lord was not speaking here to people who were dead, physically. These people were physically alive, but because they were guilty of sin while professing to be Christians he reckons them dead In other words, their souls were dead in trespasses and sins like every sinner before conversion. See Eph. 2:1. The same thought is true of Mr. I's other Scripture I. Tim. 5:6—"She that liveth in pleasure is dead (in trespasses and sins) while she liveth (physically). The same is true of his other reference in Luke 9:60—"Let the dead (in trespasses and sins) bury their dead (those who die physically). We would like to ask Mr. I. how people who die, physically, can bury anyone? What logic! Such is Mr. Irving's proof? If Mr. I. wants to know if the soul, as well as the body, really dies, let him turn to Ps. 78:50, also Ps. 22:29; Ps. 49:15; and Ps. 89:48, etc.

He refers to Matt. 25:46 to prove endless torture. "And they shall go away into everlasting punishment." Does Mr. I. realise that the punishment is death. Rom. 6.23. Will Mr. I. say that the wicked will live always in hell fire? If they do they must have everlasting life in hell. Such foolishness! The wicked will be destroyed forever. (See Ps. 92:7). If you burn up a stick of wood it cannot be burnt over again. It is destroyed for ever. So with the wicked—they will be reduced to ashes. (Mal. 4:1) and never rise again after. Isn't this everlasting death? Sure. Only righteous people are going to live eternally in heaven. (See I. John, 5:12).

He refers to the rich man and Lazarus, in Luke 16, and says it is not a parable. Very well, it must be literal. If so, Mr. I. will of course agree to stand by its literality. This being true, we would like to ask Mr. I. the following: Do people, when they die, go to Abraham's bosom? Remember, you say it is literal. Again, can people talk between heaven and hell, and can they see each other as the parable represents? Again, do people in hell pray to Abraham. We thought that only the Catholics believed in praying to the Saints in Heaven. Now, the fact of the matter is, this is not only a parable, but a prophecy of a future hell. Its being written in the past tense does not invalidate this fact. For instance: In Isa. 53 a prophecy given over 700 years before Christ was born is there recorded, and Isaiah, in speaking of it, says: "He (Christ) was led as a lamb to the slaughter, etc." Why does he use the past tense. Christ had not then arrived, and was not even born in the flesh at that time. Here is a future event written in the past tense. This explains why in the parable of the rich man the hell of the future is referred to as actually existing simply because it was not only a parable but also a prophecy. There will be a hell by and by. (See Isa. 34:8, 9) right upon this earth, and the wicked will be destroyed in it, and the same hell fire will renew the earth, after which we will have a new earth like Eden. See 2 Pet. 3:10—13.

Mr. I. says further that the expression used concerning Abraham, when he died, "that he was gathered to his people" does not mean that he was buried with his people in the grave, but that it means his soul went to heaven. We invite Mr. I. to read Gen. 49, 30, 31, where it distinctly says that he was gathered in burial with his people and says in verse 31 "There they buried Abraham and Sarah, his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebecca, his wife." Was he not, therefore, buried with his people? Sure.

Yours truly,

Critic.

The Price of Bread In Peterborough

the price of all commodities used in the bakers' trade had advanced, in some cases one hundred per cent.

In spite of this advance the association as a body, the letter says, "did loyally carry out the idea of avoiding any increase in the cost of bread to the consumer as long as our stock of flour and other materials purchased before the war was on hand. The high prices prevailing to-day do not exist because of any shortage in supplies, but rather because of reckless speculation."

Stop Speculation.

If the government could, by any feasible method, stop such speculation the price of flour could be kept at a level consistent with the supplies on hand the world over, and such as "would enable your petitioners to maintain a reasonable price for bread."

"Further, the abnormal prices of flour would not be a thing to be so much deprecated if the difference between reasonable prices and present prices was going into the pocket of the farmer. On the contrary, we make bold to state that for every dollar going into the farmers' pocket, there are ten going into the pockets of the speculators."

The letter of the bakers conclude with expressions of belief that an extraordinary increase in the price of bread would be a national calamity, and hoping that beneficial legislation will be enacted this will mean an economy to the general public.

Sir George's Reply.

In reply to this letter Sir George Foster says the matter of the price of commodities has been receiving the attention of the government here as it was also in the Mother Country. "It is, however, much easier noting the changes in price than it is proposing a remedy therefore and there are many difficulties that face the government in any consideration of legislative measures. You may rest assured, however, that the matter is not escaping the attention of the government."

A letter has also been received by the association from W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., stating that he has a resolution on the order paper dealing with the price of flour and foodstuffs.

A senator from Mississippi asked an old coloured man what breed of chickens he considered best, and he replied:

"All kinds has merits. De w'ite ones is de easiest to find, but de black ones is easiest to hide after you gits 'em."

After a steady decline each year, since 1910 the number of beef cattle in the United States increased more than three per cent. last year.

THE NEEDS OF THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

TORONTO, February 22. —By the time this story has reached the homes of our readers the first Canadian expeditionary force will have said farewell to Salisbury Plain and will be making new friends amongst our gallant allies in France. Quietly and silently the great transports will plough their way across the English Channel to the unknown and unnamed ports of France and as silently they will disembark their human freight and go back for more soldiers to fight in the great battle of the Empire.

When our Canadian soldiers have taken their places in the trenches and received their baptism of fire, when the Red Cross ambulances begin to gather up those who are wounded in the fight, this terrible war will come home with greater reality to all Canadian people than it has done up to the present. The booming of the great guns and the everlasting rattle of the musketry will almost echo across the great ocean, the only thing that separates the people of this country from the actual realities of war.

The Red Cross Society has been supported in a splendid manner by people of Canada ever since the outbreak of hostilities, but it will need a still greater support when it is realized that over thirty thousand soldiers from the Dominion are in the fighting zone. Although everyone trusts and prays that the casualties will be small, it is only reasonable to conclude that in such a conflict in which the empire is now engaged, when we are fighting against the most modern and deadly engines of war, there will be no small proportion who will suffer and who will need the attention of the Red Cross nurse.

Until lately there has been no great demand for surgical supplies but the following cablegram, received recently from Colonel Hodgetts, Canadian commissioner for the Canadian Red Cross Society at Headquarters in this city, will clearly show that surgical supplies of all kinds are now needed badly. The message from the Commissioner is as follows: "Continue to make hospital garments as before and send surgical dressings and bandages as great demand will be made in the near future." This cablegram speaks for itself.

Although the present campaign is being carried on under the utmost secrecy, it is generally known that the general offensive of the allies will start in the early spring, or perhaps before that time. The reinforcements from Kitchener's army will have crossed to France and the Canadian soldiers will be already there, and probably will have had their first taste of powder. Naturally in offensive warfare the loss of life and numbers of wounded are greater than in defensive tactics; therefore a huge supply of surgical and medical goods will be needed, and it rests with the people of Canada to do all in their power to keep the supply in excess of the demand.

The new leaflet, dealing with the making of surgical supplies, has just been printed and can be obtained on application to Mrs. Plumtre, Supt. of Supplies, 77 King Street East(Toronto, or to the provincial branches. Great care has been taken by Mrs. Plumptre in compiling this valuable little booklet and she has had the able assistance of Miss Gunn, Superintendent of Nurses, Toronto General Hospital.

The suggestions, which appear in the leaflet, are primarily intended for the guidance of doctors and nurses who are good enough to supervise the preparation of such supplies and to whom the society is greatly indebted for their willing help. Ladies who cannot obtain such skilled advice are advised not to undertake the preparation of surgical supplies.

If any difficulty is experienced in obtaining the necessary materials for these supplies in local centres, orders may be sent to the Superintendent of Supplies, Head Office, 77 King Street, East, Toronto, who will have the orders filled and sent C.O.D. The exact address of the person to whom the parcel is to be sent must be enclosed with the order.

The compilers wish their readers to understand that these are suggestions and not regulations. They are intended for guidance as to the general line of articles required. Doctors and nurses who are supervising this work will know how to vary the articles and also what additional ones might be made. It is safe to say that any surgical dressing or supply which will stand packing and transportation will be of use in Red Cross work. It is of the greatest importance that all supplies should be packed according to directions and that the contents of each parcel should be fully described on the outside, with number of articles, size, etc.

The following suggestions may be of interest to those who are engaged in the work or intend to take the work up. Surgical dressings, consisting of large surgical pads, 9 inch by 12 inch; small surgical pads, 6 inch by 7 inch; gauze compresses, 6 inch by 4 inch gauze wipes; bandages. Materials needed, hospital gauze, 36 inches wide; good quality non-absorbent cotton, usually purchased in packages of six or eight ounces; good quality absorbent cotton, purchased in one pound packages; material for bandages should be the cheapest quality of unbleached cotton. Large pads, 9 inch by 12 inch when completed. Cut gauze 21 inches wide by 18 inches long. Cut non-absorbent cotton 9 inch by 12 inch. Separate this into three layers, as one-third the thickness is sufficient for one pad. Cut absorbent cotton 9 inch by 12 inch, separate this into layers, as one half the thickness is sufficient for one pad.

Place one layer of absorbent cotton in centre of gauze, taking care to have the longest dimensions of the cotton, that is 12 inches, placed lengthwise of the gauze. Place one layer of non-absorbent cotton next the absorbent cotton. Fold edges of gauze around cotton, folding first crosswise fold and then lengthwise fold. No sewing is necessary. Small pad, 6 inches wide by 7 inch long when completed. Cut gauze 15 inches wide by 13 inch long. Cut non-absorbent cotton 6 inch wide and 7 inch long. Cut absorbent cotton 6 inch wide and 7 inch long; otherwise the small pads are made like the large pads.

Notes. The absorbent cotton measures about 12 inches wide when taken from the roll. This can easily be stretched to 15 inches, thus making it possible to cut a large pad, 9 inches wide and a small pad 6 inches wide from one width of cotton.

These directions will be of great use to those ladies throughout the country who will undoubtedly take up this work. In Toronto there are now a large number of ladies working circles who devote their time to making surgical supplies and the city trusts that these circles will be formed in all the towns and villages throughout the Dominion so that a continual stream of these absolutely necessary goods can be sent to England, where they will be used by the Red Cross hospitals in England and in France, and also for the benefit of our wounded Canadian soldiers.

In connection with the new Duchess of Connaught hospital at Taplow, Bucks, the beautiful Thames-side residence that Major Waldorf Astor, M. P., has handed over to the society, for the reception of Canadian wounded, Colonel Hodgetts says that the ladies of Canada can rest assured that it will be kept up to the highest standard as regards the material used for both officers and men and the colonel is pleased to know that the work appeals to all Canadians for it is the earnest endeavour of the Society to make it a great success.

The Canadian War Contingent Association is collecting contributions and comforts, or funds to purchase the same, in anticipation of the requirements of the Canadian contingent while on active service at the front and to meet the necessities of the present contingent while in England and of the other contingents that are to follow.

These comforts will be distributed as and when required to supplement supplies from the government stores. The following are among the articles that are specially needed by the association, socks, body belts, mufflers, gloves mittens, cardigans, sweaters, sleeping caps, coloured handkerchiefs and any other things that might assist in making the soldiers comfortable.

There are no doubt many in this country who do not know what to send to officers and men at the front. Some of the most useful things that may be sent are, candies, tobacco of all kinds, cigarettes, pipes, and also condensed milk and oxo, and in fact, concentrated foods of all kinds.

These may be sent to Mrs. Plumtre, Secretary, National Committee of Women for Patriotic Service, 77 King Street East, Toronto.

TURKS ARE CHASTENED

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Reuter's correspondent in Cairo learns from trustworthy sources in Palestine that the United States and Italian consuls there have found it expedient to warn the German general in command that great disaster is threatening non-Moslems as a result of the propaganda being organised by certain Turkish Government authorities, who are publishing pamphlets of a firebrand character and exciting the Moslems, urging them to massacre all non-Moslems by atoning them to death.

Thanks to the intervention of U. S. Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople, the Turkish Minister of the Interior has telegraphed to Jerusalem instructing the local Government to protect those against whom the threats of massacre have been directed.

The Turkish defeat on the Suez Canal is more disastrous than previously reported, it is indicated. Wounded Turks state that the disaster to the Turkish forces was complete, and that it had a very salutary effect on the minds of the sanguinary Turkish authorities.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

To-day the United States is celebrating the anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

tian Science Monitor published the Mastan Science Monitor published the Masonic record of George Washington, giving the heretofore unpublished correspondence between him and Paul Revere. In the same connection appears a specially drawn picture of Washington, copied from a painting made from life in his later days by Williams, of Philadelphia. The original of this picture is in Alexandria Lodge at Mount Vernon, and shows the first president of the United States in full Masonic regalia. It is considered a remarkable likeness.

The picture is drawn by a member of the Monitor staff, and the article is prepared by a thirty-third degree Mason who is also a member of the editorial staff.

For the accommodation of the local brethren who might want this special article, R. J. Todd, 456 Aylmer Street, has a number of copies.

GERMANS ENGAGED IN COSTLY OPERATIONS IN POLAND

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22.—In northeast Poland the curtain is now considerably lifted and the scope of Von Hindenburg's last strategic manoeuvre is clearly outlined. His aim from the beginning has been to confine the Russians within the line of the Vistula throughout the entire course. His first attempt, directed from southwest Poland in October to press the Russians behind the great river, failed mainly because of a successful sortie by a strong Russian cavalry column from Novo Georgievsk, through Levitch, which undid in three days all the dearly paid for work of the huge German armies which had then been facing Blonl and Ivangorod. In a fortnight Von Hindenburg, in a determined effort again to tie his adversaries to the Vistula, has given his most serious attention to Novo Georgievsk and all the line of fortresses stretching northeast from the right bank of the Vistula and Pultusk, Ostrolenka, Lomza and Ossowiec. East of this last stronghold, where the Germans were defeated last October, they have apparently two or three corps which came from the south of the Masurian Lakes, manoeuvring tentatively without much fighting in the direction of the road to Grodno.

They are not attempting new any speedy operations, and have left their flank threatened since the sharp defeat of the German cavalry on the Niemen, where all survivors of the Uhlan regiment which the Russians cut down are prisoners. The Germans have a larger army nearer Ossowiec which, however, they have not invested or even bombarded. Their other chief force in the northeast has moved on the road to Lomza and Berics. In pitched battles here the Russians generally are attacking along the marshy flat banks of Narew and Bebr. The Germans are believed to have nine corps in this region. Less is known of the battle area between Sierpec and Plonak, where very great forces are now gathering. It is plain that despite any developments in the campaign in western Europe the Germans mean to bring yet more men into their eastern operations and to keep them here, but the position here is now evidently strongly covered.

A very great German army will be needed for the northern campaign. The present aggressive tactics of the Russians in the middle disposition has surprised the Germans who, although they have been using Przasnysz for most of the last three months as an observation point and base for cavalry reconnaissances, have prepared no earthworks for the pitched battle that the Russians are forcing on them. Przasnysz is serving as a hinge for two German wings, one stretching sixty miles southwest to the Vistula, the other spreading eighty miles northeast into the Augustowo forest. The Germans are very cautious along the left wing where their reserves are kept within a dozen miles of the East Prussian border.

It is calculated that the enemy has now about twenty corps employed in the Carpathians, of which about a quarter are Germans. Their determined attacks on the Wyszkow Pass have failed decisively, and the Russians are able to develop a strong offensive. The German strategists in the southern campaign are striving their utmost to impose the lines of the San river as the western boundary for the Russians, and have begun vigorous fighting supported by masses of heavy artillery along the Dunajnets, but the Russians by the prompt seizure of Tarnow, with the control both of the roads and railways of western Galicia have anticipated and frustrated the bold plan for cutting between their western main army and its co-operating columns in the Carpathian passes. Two sorties from Przemysl were promptly beaten back, and the blockade is maintained complete.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles--Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

This week will be a busy week for committee meetings. Each of the committees will probably hold some kind of a meeting in view of the regular meeting of the City Council which will be held on Monday next.

The Estimates.

The estimates for the current year will probably receive some consideration at the next regular meeting of the City Council. Each of the committees will be represented.

Board of Works.

The Board of Works Committee will meet on Wednesday evening next for the purpose of giving the estimates "the once over." The committee has endeavoured to keep the estimates as low as possible so as to eliminate unnecessary pruning operations.

Hospital Tenders.

The tender for painting in connection with the Isolation Hospital has been awarded to the next highest tenderer. The first tenderer having raised the price of his tender.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

The Board of Trade of Smith's Falls has passed a resolution asking the authorities to have the mails from Toronto sent on an earlier train than at present.

Hydro for Sandwich.

Sandwich Town Council has finally agreed to authorize the Ontario Hydro Commission to proceed with surveys and complete as soon as possible estimates for the installation of a Hydro-Electric power system in the town.

Alderman Disqualified.

Owing to faulty property qualification Ald. Wm. Ward, a Niagara Falls (Ont.) alderman, has been compelled to resign his seat in the Council. His place will be taken by W. H. Newman, the next highest candidate.

Industrial Expansion.

The Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company announces that it will make a million-dollar issue of seven per cent., preferred stock at par immediately, the proceeds to be used in enlarging the Berlin (Ont.) factory and some Montreal plants.

By-law To-day.

The by-law for Metropolitan power for the town of Newmarket, will be submitted to-day. Every effort has been expended by the backers of the "Met" power, and a big vote is expected.

Council Remains Unseated.

Mr. Justice Middleton has dismissed the appeal from the decision of the district judge who unseated the Council of Parry Sound.

May Not Oppose Charlton.

The names of Alfred Barton, W. J. Griffith, and William Shields are mentioned as probable candidates for the vacant seat on the Weston School Board, the election for which is drawing near. Dr. W. J. Charlton will probably be elected by acclamation in the mayoralty contest.

New Mayoralty Election.

A writ calling for a new Mayoralty election in Vancouver was delivered to City Clerk McQueen Friday. At a meeting of the City Council Alderman Crowe was chosen Mayor pro tem., taking the place of ex-Mayor Taylor.

In Mayor Buller's Footsteps.

It is understood that Mayor J. H. Spence will receive the appointment of Collector of Customs at Brantford, vacant for some months. He has served on the Board of Health, the Library Board, as Alderman and as Mayor. He is a Conservative stalwart and hard election worker.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

"I never robbed a man but once," said the honest tramp. "And then I was starving. He would not give me a penny, and I couldn't stand the gnawings in my stomach any longer. So I knocked him down and went through his pockets. What kind of a haul did you make? Just one little bottle, which read on the label: Pepin—For that full feeling after eating."

Sunday Evening Service at All Saints' Church

Lessons From the Life of Jacob

During Lent, the Rev. Mr. Grobb will preach a series of special sermons, Sunday evenings, on the life of Jacob. Last night his remarks were largely introductory. Next Sunday he will deal with "Jacob supplanting his brother."

Choosing as his text, Genesis, 25: 26, "And his name was called Jacob," and Genesis, 32: 28, "Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel," Mr. Grobb in a thought-inspiring sermon sought to show the marvelous change that came over Jacob's life after contact with God. "What's in a name? That which we call a rose, by any other name would smell as sweet."

In the Old Testament, names invariably were indicative of the character of the persons possessing them. This was not always the case, however, because parents were not prophets, but often the name of the child expressed the hope of the fond parent.

Jacob was so called by his mother Rebekah, because it had been revealed to her that Jacob should supplant his elder brother, that he should be the stronger, the bigger man. The word "Jacob" means, supplanter.

Rebekah's great ambition, then, was that Jacob, whom she loved, should supplant Esau, loved by Isaac his father. She, therefore, did all she could to obtain her end by concocting schemes at various times. Jacob obtained the birthright of Esau in a mean way, and the name Jacob came to mean all that was unscrupulous, mean, deceptive, fraudulent.

"Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel, for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed." This signifies a moral and spiritual change in the man. The name "Israel" has been perpetuated down through the ages. He was considered worthy to be the father of God's chosen people, the children of Israel. From being a man with a mean, low disposition, he became a prince with God, a remarkable study of the development of man's character. There is nothing better in scripture which shows the effect of the grace of God on a man's life.

In contemplating a subject of this kind we should see both sides, the bad as well as the good. The Bible always shows up a man's imperfections. All the saints were far from being perfect. Their very imperfections gave them a place in a text-book on salvation, because they were saved from something; and they were not made perfect in a day, but took a long time to develop.

"Heaven is not reached at a single bound;
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round,"

Jacob's growth and development was a slow but sure process, and shows the result of choosing the good to overcome the bad, revealing a mighty faith in God.

The story of Jacob is an old, old story, with a peculiar Oriental flavour, but it is a faithful picture of human nature, and human nature has remained the same through all the ages. It is the same in all parts of the world and at all times. Some tell us that it is an old biography, out of date, that it seems to have little to do with our modern life, but we find it permeated with the same passions, the same problems and the same loves as we experience, and the same grace of God moulding men's lives.

God's revelation—His Book — has come to the world through the medium of men's stretching over hundreds of years, all gathered together and put down in black and white between two covers as a text book on salvation for all ages. The story of the life of Jacob is the story of the life of a man in touch with God.

Jacob was a creature of flesh and blood, not better than ourselves; indeed, far worse. He had no halo around his head. We read that he was a plain man dwelling intents, an ordinary man subject to temptations the same as we are. But he had a vision, which saved him from himself, from mere animal existence, and raised him up to be known through history as a Prince with God.

In many parts of His Word God refers to Himself as the God of Jacob, thus linking His own holy name up with that name which suggests everything that is mean and low. He might have said "God of Israel," but God took him at his worst. "God is the same yesterday, to-day and forever." He shows Himself as the God of the sinner as well as the saint. There is nothing pharisaical about God.

Some are under the impression that we have to work up to a measure of perfection before God will have anything to do with us, but "God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

God is ever with us, endeavouring to draw near. The separation is all one sided; our sin separates us from God. We have not seen the vision, therefore we cannot see God. The love of God is as broad as mankind. He is ever waiting for us to draw near unto Him. "But we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." First the vision of God's love then the regenerated life.

TURNBULLS

Sun Life Assurance Co. Absorbs The Federal Life

The most important deal that has ever been consummated in Canadian life insurance was announced on Wednesday. The Sun Life of Canada is re-insuring the business of the Federal Life of Hamilton, and the plant of the Company will be absorbed into the organisation of the Sun Life. The deal has been entirely completed so far as the respective companies are concerned, the only step necessary to formal completion being the assent of the Treasury Board, which will be given until 30 days have elapsed. There is every reason to balance that in due course this sanction will be forthcoming.

Through this arrangement, the Sun Life of Canada adds substantially to its existing business. While no official figures regarding the Federal Life's operations during 1914 have been given out, it is stated that its business in force amounts to about $36,000,000. At December 31, 1914, the Sun Life had insurance in force to an amount of $216,290,895, so that with the addition of the Federal Life's business its insurance in force will be not far short of $250,000,000. The Federal Life's total assets at December 31, 1913, were $5,383,004; the Sun Life's at December 31, 1914, $64,187,656. With the new arrangement completed, the Sun Life's assets will be almost $70,000,000.

The Federal Life dates from 1883, the late Mr. David Dexter being associated with it for many years, formerly as managing director, and from 1902 until his death in 1913 as both president and managing director. Since Mr. Dexter's death, the active management of the company has been in the hands of Mr. A. N. Mitchell, formerly assistant general manager.

POLICYHOLDERS' FAVOURABLE POSITION.

Under the terms of the agreement, the policyholders of the Federal Life are placed in a favourable position. The profits of participating policies in the Federal life have been less than those of the Sun Life. The latter company now guarantees interested profits to the policyholders of the Federal Life. As soon as the reserves of the Federal Company's business are on a par with those of the Sun Life's business, the policyholders will receive the same rates of profits as those of the Sun Life. Meantime, the Sun Life guarantees that the profits to Federal policyholders will not be less than 70 per cent. of the profits to Sun Life policyholders. About 90 per cent. of the Federal's policies are participating.

The stockholders of the Federal Life, it is stated, will receive back the amount of capital paid in, about $130,000, plus the amount to the credit of the shareholders' account. Additionally they will receive an amount contingent on last year's premium income, details of which are not yet available, and an interest in the profits for a term of five or six years.

All the obligations of the Federal Life will be taken over by the Sun Life. Agents who have a contract with the Federal will have the option of working for the Sun. Where both companies have branches covering the same territory the Federal branch will be closed and the Sun Life organisation take charge of the business.

The deal means a considerable reinforcement of the Sun Life's organisation at important points, both at home and abroad, particularly in Ontario, where the Federal Life had important connections.

Mr. John New Appointed Director of the Choir

Mr. John New, law student with Gordon and Widdifield, has been appointed director of the choir of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Mr. New has been a member of St. Peter's choir, under his brother's leadership, since he came to Canada from England. Mr. New pursued his vocal studies in Southampton, and was also engaged in choir work there.

MORE CONGREGATIONAL SINGING AT ST. PETER'S

The desire of Bishop O'Brien that congregational singing may be more generally practised has been recently manifested at the Cathedral. Particularly in the hymn after mass and in the vesper service the encouragement His Lordship has given to this feature of the music has met with results similar to those which in this respect marked his pastorate at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Mr. Jos. Picard, Sr., has recently had charge of the Cathedral altar boys, and the effect of his instructions is now apparent. His Lordship preached an eloquent sermon on Sunday night, his subject being "The Dignity of a Christian," in which he spoke of the faculties with which man has been endowed, their purpose and proper use.

Son Wounds Father.

CORNWALL, Feb. 22.—John Lonkey, of Messina, went home and attacked his wife and son, Gerald, 13, Saturday night. The lad went upstairs and took a shotgun and fired a charge of buckshot point blank into his father's hip. The wound is serious, but not fatal. The boy was arrested, but was paroled in charge of his mother, to await the outcome of the injury to his father.

Artillery Superiority Grows.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—An official eye-witness' account of the recent nighting in France and Belgium was given out Saturday by the French War Department. The writer says:

"During the past ten days detestable weather, continuous rains in some parts and violent snow squalls in others and thick fog have hindered the operations nearly everywhere on the western front.

"Our artillery has been brilliant, and the enemy was unable to equal our fire. The French superiority in ammunition and supplies is being more and more confirmed."

A Deputation of Newsboys

Invaded the City Hall This Morning —To Regulate the Newsboys

This morning, the City Hall was invaded by a deputation of newsboys seeking advice concerning the formation of a Newsboys' Union, operating under license from the City. The deputation was directed to the office of Mayor Hiller. It is understood that if any action is contemplated by the newsboys of the City, it must be with the approval of the Board of Police Commissioners. The newsboys will have to appear before the Police Commissioners and state their case. The boys are desirous of having the Commissioners license them so that the sale of newspapers in the City may be regulated.

The Canadian Kitchener League requests all the members and the ladies who are knitting and sewing to kindly turn in all completed work by 10 a.m. Tuesday, as the League is sending a box to the boys in France.

All members are requested to be present at the regular meeting Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 p.m.

Pastoral Lenten Letter Read at St. John's Yesterday

One hundred persons took part in the early communion at St. John's Church yesterday when the newly confirmed received their first communion. There were large congregations during the day, and other evidences of the beginning of the Lenten season.

Rev. Mr. DePercier was announced as the preacher at the Wednesday night service.

A strongly worded pastoral was read from the Bishop of Toronto urging the observance of Lent upon all Christians as never before.

His main message was "descend to the deepest meaning of all you do this Lent and rise out of it at Easter full alive and quickened by the resurrected Christ to the tremendous responsibility of the times in which we are living."

A friendly match was shot off by 12 picked men of No. 1 Company against 12 picked men of No. 3 Company and resulted in a win by No. 1 Company by 16 points. The sights of the rifles were all set at normal and the rifles were juggled and each man had to fix his sight by the result of his sighting shot, which goes to show how well the men have improved.

"TIZ-IT"

The Name Selected for New Theatre

The new Theatre opened up Saturday evening with a crowded house. Mr. Clayton has advised the Examiner that he has made the selection from some 500 names which the Examiner handed over to him and accepted that of Miss S. Thompson, 649 George street, who suggested the name TIZ-IT.

Miss Thompson can receive the prize of $5.00 by calling on Mr. Clayton at the new theatre. Replies were received from New York City, Welland, Hamilton and other places.

ROYAL THEATRE TRANSFER NOT YET CLOSED

Mr. Pappas called at the Examiner Office to-day and stated that the deal for the Royal Theatre was not yet closed, but as soon as he takes it over he will advise the public of the fine programme he has arranged.

Took Part In Special Services

Envoy and Mrs. Brown at the S. A. Barracks Yesterday

Envoy and Mrs. Brown took part in the special services at the Salvation Army Temple yesterday. Very large crowds attended the services. In fact the corps is seriously considering the enlarging of the building to hold the ordinary crowds that are attending. The Sunday School yesterday reached the high water mark, the attendance being 465. B. R. Braund and his workers, with the Adjutant, are confident of reaching the 500 mark next Sunday.

$725.00 COLLECTED FOR BELGIAN FUND

In the Three Catholic Churches of the City on Sunday Morning

A special collection taken up in the three Catholic churches of the city on Sunday morning in aid of the Belgians, totalled slightly over $725.00. It is Bishop O'Brien's intention to appeal to the other parish in his diocese for contributions to this fund.

TWILIGHT MUSICALE

The Twilight Musicale at the Conservatory of Music hall on Saturday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, was one of the most successful, if not the best, of the series. The excellent Scotch programme attracted an audience of about three hundred persons. A very pleasing programme was presented by the Conservatory Orchestra, Miss McLaren, mezzo-soprano, who made her first concert appearance, singing her songs with delightful effect; Miss Mather, reading, and Mr Yeoman, in Highland costume, bagpipe solo. All the solo artists were recalled. The programme afforded an hour's great musical enjoyment.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

MANCHESTER CITY DEFEATED IN THE ENGLISH CUP TIES

Hearts Fall to Rangers and Derby County Beaten by Clapton Orient--Soccer Games in the Old Country

Never were the ups and downs of soccer better illustrated than in the results of Saturday's games in the third round of the English Cup ties, and, in fact, the same might be said of each of the principal leagues. Saturday saw many fair hopes rudely shattered and the birth of aspirations which a fortnight ago would never have been dreamed of. The Chelsea club performed none too promising against Swindon in the first round, and later wiped out Woolwich Arsenal somewhat easily, but on their showing very few placed the odds on the "Pensioners" giving Manchester City the order of the boot at Hyde Road. But this is what they did do by the only goal of the game, and there must be several bowed heads round Manchester way. On league form, which can never be reckoned on in Cup ties, City should have romped home winners. The Palatine club were not alone in the sorrowful happ, for Sheffield Wednesday, playing at home, had even a better chance of passing into the semi-finals, but bit the dust before Newcastle United. In both previous ties the "Geordies" had to fight stubbornly. West Ham pushed them to the limit, but in their second game with Swansea they showed up better, but never produced form regarded as sufficiently strong enough to put Wednesday out of the future reckoning, for the runners-up in the league had found Manchester United and Wolverhampton insignificant hurdles.

Sheffield United were also among the vanquished, so that the "Outlers" are out of the spoils for another year. Birmingham, who beat Crystal Palace at the replay and afterward Brighton, found their first serious trouble in Oldham, and it was one which they could not get over, though to run the Lancashire club to a goal in a heavy scoring game was something to be proud of. At Burnden Park Bolton Wanderers, visitors over Notts County and Millwall Athletic, compelled Burnley, the present holders of the cup, to relinquish all idea of repeating last year's performance. It was a regular "Derby" struggle, and now Bolton folks are prepared to back their pets to win the trophy. Everton just got home ahead of Queen's Park Rangers, who put up a better fight than was anticipated. Two of the games were tied, and especial interest attaches to Norwich City's opposition to Bradford City. The "Canaries" have already accounted for Notts County and Tottenham Hotspur, and they should find it less difficult to give Bradford City the "knockout" at The Nest.

Only three first English League games were played and Blackburn Rovers will have occasion to long remember one, for Sunderland wheeled them to the tune of 5-1. Derby County's 3-0 defeat by Clapton Orient was a big Second League surprise, and another lapse or two of the kind and Woolwich Arsenal will have a big say in the championship.

Rangers woke up sufficiently to give Hearts a nasty set-back. Had the game been at Ibrox there might have been reason for uneasiness as to the result so far as the Edinburgh men were concerned, but with Tynecastle the venue the Marcobs were considered safe. It was not so, however, as Rangers finished a hard game, leading by the odd goal in seven. Hibernians had a good victory at Aberdeen, but at Parkhead Dumbarton at one time looked like making Celtic disgorge a point.

Appended are the results:

Double Header In "Y" Basketball League

The new basket ball league was officially opened by two hard and well-played games at the "Y" on Saturday night, and gives every indication that there is going to be some good sport in store for players and spectators alike before the League closes.

The Beavers, under Capt. Dobbin, and the Maple Leafs, under Capt. Richardson, were the first attraction, and it was a battle royal from start to finish. Both the veteran captains are leading teams, made up of new material, as far as the men being together is concerned, and several of the players made their debut in basket-ball so far as an organized team is concerned. This can also be said of the Hustlers, under Bill Heaslip, and the Collegiate, under Hunter Lewis, but Saturday night's performance shows that all of these teams will have to be reckoned with before the season is over. Both games were nip and tuck all the way, neither team having a lead at any time which would allow them to let up.

In the first game between the Beavers and Hustlers, Thackeray, a new man, playing for the first time in the league, was high scorer, with ten points to his credit, H. Lees being next on his team. Smith was high man for the Maple Leafs, with 12 points; H. B. Cowan and Horsefield, with four points each. Dunsford, another new man, played a sterling game at defence, and will prove a tower of strength to his team. The final score of the game was: Maple Leafs 22, Beavers 16.

The Hustler-Collegiate game was a grand battle from start to finish, with little scoring on either side. Captain Heaslip, for the Hustler, was the most successful in finding the basket, while Harstone did the pioneer work for the Collegiate. This is the Collegiate boys' first appearance in a league this year, and they made a most creditable showing, as they are not represented at full strength, because of the fact that some of their best men are with teams that they played with in the first league, and preferred to stay with those teams. Hunter Lewis played a star defence game, as did his mate, Eastwood. The forwards also worked well. For the Hustlers Jones did some phenomenal shooting from the centre of the floor. The score at the end of the first half was 6 to 4, in favour of the Collegiate. Final score, Hustlers 14, Collegiate 10.

Following are the line-ups:
Beavers—H. Lees, Theckeray, Dobbin, Capt., Gilchrist, A. Flowers.
Maple Leafs — Cowan, Horsfield, Smith, Richardson, Dunsford.
Hustlers — Heaslip, Lang, Jones, Lewis, McKinley.
Collegiate — Green, Harstone, Stuart, Eastwood, H. Lewis.

Oshawa Bonspiel Indefinitely Postponed Until Colder Weather

The Oshawa Bonspiel has been indefinitely postponed. This was the information received this morning by the local curlers, who had been looking forward to the Oshawa trip. If the weather turns cold again the date will be announced.

A points competition will be held at the rink on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week for W. H. Taylor's prize. This contest is also dependent upon the weather.

The ladies were curling this morning and found the ice rather heavy. There was no frost in the rink to-day, but Angus has spoken with Delphian assurance that cold weather will report before many days pass.

The local bonspiel will be held at the rink on March 1, 2 and 3 next week. This usually proves an interesting feature of the season, and will likely call out most of the curlers.

All the scheduled games must be played before February 27, and the skips are advised to look over their lists.

Around the rink they declare the ladies' bonspiel quite a success, that is, without any attempt to be patronising. It is felt that a great deal of their curling was the real goods.

WHERE SUBSCRIPTION LISTS ARE TO BE FOUND

The canvassers for the Peterborough Ball Club report good progress. They have been meeting with a favourable reception and a good sum has been raised. Subscription lists have been placed in the Examiner, Review, C. Ray's store, the Empress, the Oriental, and Dan McCabe's cigar store. It is up to the fans. If they want baseball here this year they must say so and show it at once by contributing.

THE FIRST CANNON

They Were In Use Long Before Hand Firearms Appeared.

CRUDE GUNS OF EARLY DAYS

Curious Weapons From Which Have Been Evolved the Modern Deadly Engines of War—Uncle Sam's Famous Collection in the National Museum.

Specimens of military and other forms of firearms from England, France, Russia, Japan, Germany and many other countries, are to be seen in the small arms exhibition of the United States national museum. The exhibit includes some 1,400 individual pieces and comprises probably the best general collection in the United States, considering that there are represented examples of military rifles, pistols and revolvers, sporting shotguns and rifles, target rifles and pistols, and numerous odd and unusual pieces relating to the development of firearms.

Although the discovery of gunpowder is attributed by some to China, there is no positive evidence that the Chinese ever made use of it. At an early period they produced certain kinds of fireworks, accounts of which came through Persia, Egypt and the Moorish countries in southern Europe, but gunpowder for use in firearms, it is believed originated in Italy, Spain or Germany. While cannon of a sort were built in the early part of the fourteenth century, hand firearms were slow to be adopted on account of their unreliability, and it was not until about 1381 that they are known to have appeared in Germany, while Europe in general did not take them up until the middle of the fifteenth century, when they became known as hand cannon.

The earliest form of hand gun was a crude affair, fired by the application of a burning match to the touchhole. The first improvement was the mounting of the match on a springless lock or cock, which later, upon the addition of a spring, became known as the matchlock. Examples of this early weapon from India, China, Afghanistan, Japan, Formosa, Arabia, Morocco and Mexico are in the museum collection.

The next development was the wheel lock gun, about 1515 or 1512, fired by a spark struck on pyrites by a roughened wheel revolved by a spring. Specimens of this type of gun and pistol from Greece, Germany and England are also included in the museum exhibit.

A form of flintlock, called the snaphaunce, followed in 1540. This substituted in place of the wheel a cock, which held in its jaws a piece of pyrites and when released hit the cover of the pan, striking a spark, which ignited the charge of powder. A pair of pistols of this type from Constantinople illustrate the principle well. Further improvements in the snaphaunce resulted in the flintlock gun, in which a piece of flint replaced the pyrites. Examples of this style are more common, and some sixty are included in the museum collection, representing nearly every country and well illustrating the various changes and improvements made.

One of the most interesting and valuable arms in the collections is the John Cookson flintlock breech loading magazine gun, made in 1688, which has a magazine in the stock capable of holding ten rounds of loose powder and bullets.

One movement of the lever feeds the ammunition into the barrel, cocks the hammer and primes the pan. In spite of the English name of the maker, this odd piece is believed to be of Spanish origin on account of its general type and the style of its decoration. It was probably brought to Maryland by the early English colonists. At least it was found in Baltimore and confiscated in 1688 and held by the government until 1867, when it was thrown away. In 1892 it was purchased for a small sum and put in its present perfect condition by a gunsmith of Baltimore, from whom it was secured by an American collector and presented to the museum.

From a military viewpoint, the design of this gun evidences great advances of its time, for, with the magazine charging appurtenance, ten shots could be fired in a little more time than is required for a modern sporting gun. Altogether, the antiquity, design, workmanship and beauty of this gun make it a most valuable and remarkable relic.

The collection also contains several pillock, and the percussion cap guns which followed the flint lock, and the Prussia needle gun, and the French Chassepot which appeared somewhat later.

The development of the gun and ammunition in the United States is well illustrated by a series of historical cases showing the types used in the succeeding wars from the French and Indian to the war with Spain, thus connecting closely history and invention.

While many foreign guns are represented they are not all of the latest patent or of the type now in use. In the case of our military rifle, however, the latest developments are shown, and it is interesting to note that the Springfield rifle, generally known as the 1903 model, though it has been improved upon since, is to be found in three separate series—the target, game and military—showing that it is suitable, with different sorts of ammunition, to many uses.

Some of the museum specimens are the donations of individuals, others are from American manufacturers, the war and navy departments, and the patent office.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

ENGLISH FEMALE PORTERS.

Muscular Women Carry Heavy Loads in Covent Garden Market.

Visitors to Coven Garden market, the great flower market of London, will find that in addition to much floral beauty there is a wholesome, muscular athletic womanhood that is good to look upon to be found among the women porters. The flowers that are sold in huge quantities in this market are bought by retail flower dealers, to whose vans the flowers must be delivered in the surrounding streets. The work of carrying is done largely by women, and the Covent Garden woman porter is one of London's character studies.

These women, who carry loads of flowers on their heads, are hard-working, conscientious workers. As a rule, their hours are from 5 to 9 in the morning—not long perhaps, but during that time the women do what might well be considered a good day's work. It is not light work, as a woman porter frequently carries two dozen large pots of plants on her head over a distance of several hundred yards. Light and heavy loads may or may not come alternately, but all are accepted cheerfully. The payment, as a rule, is adequate, but depends upon the generosity of the temporary employer.

The powers of endurance these women possess are quite remarkable, and the work agrees with them. One woman recently pointed with pride to her daughter, a girl of twenty, with cheeks glowing with health and muscles that would do credit to any system of physical culture. The girl had been delicate, but a few weeks' work in the flower market caused a decided improvement, which increased as time went on.

A somewhat odd recognition of their work is received annually by these flower porters in the shape of a shawl and two aprons each, a gift from the Duchess of Bedford.—London Mirror.

AIR RAIDS CEASE.

German Admiralty Is Discouraged By Disasters to Zeppelins.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22.—The disasters which have befallen the German air fleet off the coast of Denmark have revolutionized the plans of the German Admiralty Staff. The failure of the raids on the English coast also has modified Admiral von Pohl's blockade scheme.

The German Admiralty Staff has now declared that no more risks can be taken with the Zeppelins in the North Sea during the stormy season of the year.

One reason for the Zeppelin activity off the Danish coast since the disaster of last Wednesday is stated to be to prosecute a search for the missing four men of the Zeppelin L-4, who sprang into the sea when their ship caught fire.

Vienna Demands Hungary's Grain.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Vienna says that the burgomaster of Vienna and the president of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce yesterday visited the Austrian Prime Minister and insisted that measures be taken to provide sufficient grain and flour to meet the city's needs.

"They said they thought," the correspondent adds, "that Hungary should be compelled to supplement Austria's inadequate supply of grain, and that all supplies from both countries should be treated as a common stock. The Prime Minister assured them that the Cabinet was perfecting a plan to relieve the situation.

"The people seems indignant over what they style Hungary's manifest reluctance to share with Austria her surplus grain."

To Make Prisoners Farm.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22.—The Department of Agriculture at Petrograd, upon which devolves the duty of making dispositions of war prisoners, resolved Saturday to apportion those of Slavic origin—Poles, Ruthenians, Bohemians, Croatians and Slovak—among farms for what is termed free labor. On the farms these prisoners will not be under guard. Germans, Austrians and Hungarians will be used in road-building and canal construction. Wages will be paid, from which will be deducted the cost of their clothing and of maintaining a guard over them.

ON A CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 22. — Chief Justice Sir William Mulock in the criminal assizes to-day decided that "conspiring to trade and give information to the enemy" did not come under the list of treasonable offences, and the conspiracy charge against Emil Nerlich, a wealthy toy dealer and his wife, Hedwig, was reduced to that of "conspiring to commit an indictable offence." This ruling does not affect the charge of treason against Mr. Nerlich, and upon which he will be tried as soon as the conspiracy charge is finished.

The charged now faced by the two accused is punishable by imprisonment of from one day to seven years.

The trial is proceeding in a crowded court room, social prominence of the accused making it of great public interest.

Opposition's Attitude

Debate on the Budget Will Be Commenced To-morrow

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 22.—The attitude of the Opposition will take upon the budget, the debate upon which will commence to-morrow afternoon is a matter regarding which there is considerable conjecture today.

The debate promises to be a lengthy one, and many things may develope before the passing of the tariff bill some time in March.

A. K. McLean, the Opposition financial critic, will open the debate tomorrow afternoon. It is understood that McLean will deal at length with the question of expenditures, and will point out where the Government could have cut down the cost of administration by greater economy in public service.

The special stamp, and other taxes, however, will come in for very little serious criticism, as the general opinion of the country seems to be that they are fairly equitable, and are justified under the circumstances. The main attack will undoubtedly be on the horizontal increase in the general, intermediate, and preferential tariff proposed by the budget, and now in effect.

It is very probable that the Government will be asked to give an undertaking that the new taxation will be simply for the duration of the war, and that as soon as possible after that the customs tariffs shall automatically revert to its former basis.

Whether the Government will be willing to give such an assurance is not known, but it is possible that if it does not, the House may be divided on the question, and a vote taken.

The vertical decrease of the preference granted to British goods will be a subject of strong controversy.

It is quite possible that here also there may be a division and vote.

IN BUTLER'S GUISE HE SERVES DINNER ARRESTS GUESTS

NEW YORK, Feb 22—So many things had disappeared from the apartment of Ubirjira and Juan Rays, at No. 155 Audubon avenue, that yesterday they asked the police to investigate. One of them said he is an assistant to the Brazilian Consul General in New York city, and the other a clerk, but they occupy a luxuriously furnished apartment, with servants, and have entertained extensively.

'Detective Maddock, of the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau, disguised himself as a butler, even to shaving his face, and wearing a white jacket, and in the Rays' apartment served the dinner last night to the brothers and their guests. The guests were Douglas Knox, who says he is an electrical engineer, and Eric McClusky, a civil engineer, both living at No. 20 West 105th street.

Maddock said he saw Knox take a wallet containing $19 from a table, and give $9 to McClusky, putting the wallet and $10 into his own pocket. Suddenly the butler became a policeman and arrested the two guests. He said he found the money and the wallet.

Both were locked up on charges of larceny. They had been guests in the Rays apartment many times.

Training Camp For Students.

TORONTO, Feb. 22. — Toronto University's Military Training Camp is practically assured, according to a statement made by President Falconer on his return from a visit to Ottawa, where he was in conference with Maj.-Gen. Sam Hughes.

Niagara is the only site for the camp which is under serious consideration. No provision has been made as to the number of men who will take the training, but fully 1,500 Varsity students are willing to receive it. President Falconer expects to receive an official communication from the Militia Department within a few days, deciding the matter definitely.

In the interest of cleanliness, an Iowa inventor has patented a wire frame to hold a milk pail up from the ground.

BIG PROGRAMME FOR THE MILITARY CONCERT

Arrangements have been completed for the big patriotic concert in the Grand Opera House, to-morrow night given by the men of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion, Third Overseas Contingent. A programme of unusual merit and interest has been prepared. In addition to the numbers by the soldiers a number of other artists will take part. A chorus from the 8th Mounted Rifles will sing a number of songs and a camp-fire scene will be a feature. Mrs. Sneath of Napanee, wife of Lieut. Sneath of the 8th C. M. R. will sing. The whole affair promises to be a great success and an unique entertainment. The grand finale will bring together on the stage all the men of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion, and will give the public a chance to see the Peterborough contribution to the Third Canadian contingent. There should be a grand crowd present in view of the patriotic object of the concert and the enthusiasm shown by the men who are leaving shortly to fight the Kaiser's battle. The people of Peterborough should turn out en masse and make this concert a demonstration that will show the boys that Peterborough is proud of them.

Following is the programme:

1. Overture—Orchestra.
2. Grand Opening Chorus and March, "Soldiers of the King"— 8th C.M.R. chorus.
3. Solo—(a) Sing Me to Sleep; (b) Jack's the Boy, Corp. Geo. Harris, 8th C.M.R.
4. Solo, selected, Mrs. Sneath, Napanee.
5. Recitation, selected — Lt.-Col. Miller.
6. Physical drill— 12 picked men from 9th Battalion, under Sergt.-Major Wilford.
7. Recruiting song — Sergt.-Major Wilford, 39th Battalion.
8. Buck and wing dance—Pte. Lalonde, 8th C.M.R.
9. Overture—Orchestra.
10. Typical Military Camp Scene.
11. Monalogue—Geo. Lynch.
12. Acrobatic Work— Maple Leaf Four from 8th C.M.R.
13. Violin and piano duet — Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Fenwick.
14. Bernard Sets, singing comedian, in his own latest compositions.
15. Bayonet exercise and bayonet contest.
16. Bernard Sets and Lieut. Rogers 8th C.M.R. in musical novelty.
17. Address—Judge Hayden.
18. Grand ensemble, introducing all members of the overseas contingent.

KIRKFIELD BOY LOSES AN EYE

Struck Dynamite Cap With a Hammer

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jobe, formerly of Peterborough, and now residing at Kirkfield, will be sorry to hear that their youngest son, Arthur, age seven years, had the sad misfortune to lose one of his eyes. It appears that the little fellow found a dynamite cap and placing it on a cement floor struck it with a hammer, the explosion inflicting serious wounds to his eyes. He was brought to Peterborough where he underwent a successful operation, the doctor being able to save one eye. Mr. and Mrs. Jobe wish to thank the staff of the Trent Canal Office and other friends for their kind remembrances to Arthur.

In France there has been invented a flourless bread-making machine that transforms the whole wheat into dough.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Two German Submarines Are Thought To Be Destroyed

No Further Depredations Have As Yet Been Reported

Cushaven is Anxious Concerning Two Large Submarines Which Are Thought to Have Been Sunk---Are Two Days Overdue

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 23.—No further depredations by German submarines had been reported up to a late hour last night. Three small British craft are missing, however, and fears are expressed as to their fate. The situation has become more serious for British and neutral shipping, owners having had time to appreciate the capacity of the Germans to sink merchantile vessels and to estimate the amount of damage they are liable to suffer.

Lloyd's showed regard for the German decree by raising the premiums on almost every voyage by from 25 to 50 per cent. above the rates prevailing at the end of last week. The rate on ships from the United States is now 25 to 30 shillings per cent. as compared with 12 shillings per cent. one week ago. Government war risk insurance is maintained at 21 shillings and there is a large demand.

A despatch from Amsterdam says reports from the German frontier state that much uneasiness exists at the German fortified seaport of Cuxhaven concerning two large submarines which have not returned to their base. The under-sea boats are said to be two days overdue and it is feared they have been destroyed.

SIX OF ENEMY'S SUBMARINES.

While there is no precise information as to the number of German "wasps" in the recently delineated war zone, officials have reason to believe that there are at least six hostile submarines in the Channel and the Irish Sea. Their destructive capabilities are not underestimated, and England is likely to lose many more ships during the blockade. The interesting fact has just been learned that the Germans have removed from some of their mines the apparatus intended to make them harmless when they break from their moorings. This precaution was prescribed by the Hague Convention and its violation adds a new menace to the many already faced by shipping. It is also declared that Germany has set numerous floating mines adrift since the east coast raids. Within a fortnight was the best official or semi-official estimate procurable this afternoon concerning the date when England will adopt the drastic measures against German commerce which have been so frequently predicted and which was referred to to-day by the Premier in Parliament. There is evidence that the action may come much sooner than indicated by that reply, possibly within the next two or three days.

Enemy Bombards Rheims In Revenge For Losses In Field

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, Feb. 23.—New and important gains by the allies are reported in the official communique by the French War Office in the regions where the fighting has been violent and incessant for the past few days. The most pronounced advances have been in Champagne on the front extending from Souain to Beausejour, between the Argonne and the Meuse, at Les Sparges and in Alsace, where the French now hold the greater part of the village of Stosswier.

The Germans attempted to retaliate for recent losses by a fierce bombardment of Rheims. Civilians suffered most from the German efforts, a large number of them being slain by heavy shells, which also did further harm to the city. The cannonading continued all last night and through the greater part of the day.

The afternoon communique told of further successes in the Cheppy wood, between the Argonne and the Meuse, where the Frenh lines are being pushed forward uniformly.

It is stated that Germain reinforcements are being moved up to southwest Belgium and Northern France from Louvain. Many troops are also being sent from the same point in a southern direction

"FORT TO LET" IN BELGIUM.

A correspondent at Rotterdam, telegraphing to-day, says:

"Antwerp is filled with sulky German soldiery and browbeaten civilians. This is how a correspondent in the Belgian city describes the situation. He says wholesale desertions have occurred recently and the German authorities are searching for the uniforms cast off by the deserters, who number several hundreds.

"The little garrison of Mortsem left a notice on the outside of the walls reading:

"'This fort to let.'

"Last week thousands of workmen employed on the outer works of Antwerp were suddenly discharged, although the work they were engaged upon was by no means finished."

The British Official Press Bureau to-day issued an official denial of the report sent from Berlin that a British army transport had been sunk by a German submarine.

PRICES OF FOOD SUPPLIES

In Peterborough and Other Ontario Cities

The appended table will give some idea of the comparative prices of foodstuffs in Peterborough and other Ontario cities. It will be seen that in a few cases prices are a little higher here than elsewhere, but the difference is more than counter-balanced when the whole list is taken into consideration:

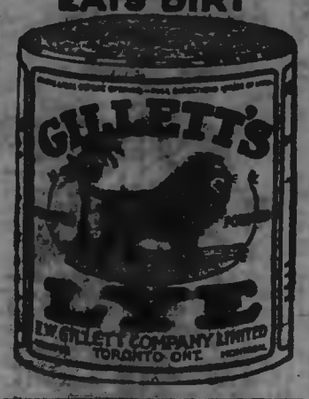
GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT



Americans Maltreated

United States Women Insulted by German Soldiers at Strassburg

OFFICERS TO THE RESCUE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23. — The Geneva correspondent of the Express cabled to-day that travellers reaching Basle, Switzerland, reported that six United States people, including two women, were insulted and maltreated by German soldiers at Strassburg because they spoke English.

One American woman's waist was torn completely off in the railway station, travellers reported.. A soldier struck another American in the party with the butt of his rifle, inflicting painful injuries.

German officers finally came to the rescue of the Americans and escorted them to their train.

The Geneva correspondent wired that many Americans are leaving Germany for Switzerland.

Characterized As Absurd

Report From Berlin That British Officer Guided American Steamer Into a Mine Field

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—The Admiralty officials to-day characterized as absurd the report wirelessed to America from Berlin that the ill-fated American steamer Evelyn was directed into a mine field off Borkum Island by a British naval officer.

"The Germans are attempting to dodge the responsibility for the sinking of the American steamer," said one Admiralty officer.

There is still no word of the missing crew.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

It requires only from one-fifth to one-third as much acetylene gas as hydrogen to do a given piece of welding.

New German Drive On Warsaw Is Not Viewed With Alarm

Germans Making Desperate Efforts to Press on to Fortress of Novo Georgiewsk--New Battles Have Begun

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23.—The Germans are making desperate efforts to press on to the great fortress of Novo Georgiewski, guarding Warsaw from the north, it was officially admitted here to-day.

Strong bodies of the Kaiser's troops are passing in a southwesterly direction along the Bobra and Narew Rivers toward Prasnys, where a great German force is concentrating. These comprise several divisions that participated in Von Hindenburg's campaign against the Russians in East Prussia.

New battles have begun southwest of Prasnys, where the Germans from the Mazurian Lakes region have effected a junction with the army moving upon Novo Georgiewsk from the northwest, in the Plonsk region.

In official circles the new German drive upon Warsaw is not viewed with alarm, but the Grand Duke's forces in this region are being strongly reinforced.

The fighting around the fortress of Ossowiec and west of Grodno continues, with the Germans making vain efforts to mask the Ossowiec fortress by swinging around the forts to the north. So close has the enemy approached to Ossowiec that the guns of the outer defences have been brought into play. The fighting here and near Grodno, however, is regarded as incidental to the main German movement upon Novo Georgiewsk.

The Government and Petrograd papers to-day made no attempt to conceal from the public the fact that the Grand Duke's army had met with serious reverses in East Prussia.

It was pointed out, however, that in the Carpathians the Russians continue the successful defence of important passes.

LAST NIGHT'S BULLETINS ON THE WAR

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—Part of the crew of the American ship Evelyn sunk near here has not returned and it is feared they are lost.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 22.—Berlin reports say that two German submarines engaged in recent operations have not returned to their base.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22.—Russian newspapers to-day praised the Grand Duke Nicholas strategy in withdrawing from East Prussia and assured the people that the Russian forces are now again on a successful offensive.

ATHENS, Feb. 22.—It is reported here to-day that the British-French fleets are now within range of the inner fortifications of Constantinople.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

DUTCH ANGERED AT GERMANY'S RELUCTANCE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

The Hague, Netherlands, Feb. 23.—A tense undercurrent of feeling has been running through all classes in Holland for the past two or three days. This is attributed to public concern owing to Germany's action in not replying to the Dutch note of protest concerning the North Sea war zone and nervousness as to what might result from the German blockade and submarine activity, which possibly might produce an untoward incident at any moment.

Although vessels belonging to other neutral States have suffered, Dutch ships up to the present have escaped damage, but many seamen are demanding increased wages owing to the risks. Some of the men decline to sail and have left their ships, especially those bound for England. Numbers of passengers for the Dutch East Indies have decided to pass through Germany to Genoa, in order to take their ship there.

Even the Dutch fishing boats, by Governmental order, are to be painted in the national colours, while their crews have been advised to carry with them evidences of their nationality.

The continued movement of troops towards the various frontier points and the constant work of military engineers on inundation works have increased the uneasiness of the people. The newspapers generally refrain from commenting on the situation.

A Squelcher.

He (feeling his way)—Would you get married if you were me?

"Will Not Sink U. S. Ship Unless By Design"

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

(Copyright 1915 by United Press. Copyrighted in Great Britain.)

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—"Germany will sink no United States ship, unless by design. The German torpedo fitting as its mark the hull of an American vessel, will have been aimed and fired from Berlin. If an American merchantman is sunk, it will be for the express purpose of dragging the United States into the war."

The speaker was Britain's best known and best loved sailor, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford. His name probably more than any other carries a picture of typical British sea-fighter. Also he is one of the clearest naval thinkers of the Age. He made the above reply to the greatest question of the moment here, one put by Americans a hundred times daily: "Do you think Germany is trying to force America into the war?"

"I don't predict to what extremes Germany will go. But I am confident she will not leave to the judgement of her submarine commander the issue of whether or not America is to join the ranks of her enemies."

More German Boys Are Called Out

Those Between 17 and 20 Must Take Up Arms—School Children For Farms

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 23 — The Morning Post has the following from Berne: All the young men in Germany between the ages of seventeen and twenty who have failed to volunteer for the army and cannot give an adequate excuse are now being called out to serve as untrained Landstrum. The older boys and girls, with the consent of their parents, are to be employed in farm work this spring, summer and autumn in the East Prussian provinces, as well as the Bavarian, for which purpose they will be excused from school attendance. It is significant that this measure is to remain in force till the end of the war, in other words, as at present foreseen, till November

FIVE KILLED IN ATTACK ON CALAIS

Special to The Examiner:

CALAIS, Feb. 23.—A Zeppelin flung five bombs on this city yesterday morning. Five persons were killed and a number of houses wrecked by two of the missiles, while three others fell without doing any harm.

Leaving here the airship went in the direction of Dunkirk, dropping several bombs along the Dunkirk-Calais railway, but failing to do material damage. Two incendiary bombs damaged several dwellings in Fontinettes Village. Near Dunkirk sharpshooters in the Allies' camp caused the craft to change its course and fly around the city over the Channel.

That Racking Persistent Cough
Can Be Quickly Cured By DR. WOOD'S
NORWAY PINE SYRUP

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the general action of "Dr. Wood's" for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks. This makes it, without any chance of denial, the best cough medicine on the market to-day.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that it is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark, and that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the wrapper. Price, 25c and 50c.

Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

Chapter I.

Outside the St. Jermyn's Club the rain pelted pitilessly upon deserted pavements. Mr. Robert Grell leaned his arms on the table and stared steadily out through the streaming window-panes for a second. His shoulders lifted in a shrug that was almost a shiver.

"It's a dence of a night," he exclaimed with conviction.

There was a faint trace of accent in his voice—an almost imperceptible drawl, such as might remain in the speech of an American who had travelled widely and rubbed shoulders with all sorts and conditions of men.

His companion lifted his eyebrows whimsically and nipped the end from a cigar.

"It is," he agreed. "But the way you put it is more like plain Bob Grell of the old days than the polished Mr. Robert Grell, social millionaire and diplomat, and winner of the greatest matrimonial prize in London."

Grell tugged at his drooping iron-grey moustache. "That's all right," he said. "This is not a meeting of the Royal Society. Here, in my own club, I claim the right of every free-born citizen to condemn the weather — or anything else — in any language I choose. Great Scott, Fairfield! You don't expect me to wear my mantle all the time. I should explode if I didn't have a safety valve."

Sir Ralph Fairfield nodded. He understood. For years the two had been close friends, and in certain phases of temperament they were much alike. Both had tasted deeply of the sweets and hardships of life. Both had known the fierce wander-lust that drives men into strange places to suffer hunger, thirst, hardship and death itself for the sheer love of the game, and both had achieved something more than national. Fairfield as a fertile writer on ethnography and travel; and Grell equally as a daring explorer, and as a man who had made his mark in the politics and finance of the United States. More than once he had been employed on delicate diplomatic missions for his Government, and always he had succeeded. Great things were within his reach when he had suddenly announced his intention of giving up business, politics and travel to settle in England and lead the life of a gentleman of leisure. He had bought a thousand acres in Sussex, and rented a town house in Grosvenor Gardens.

Then he had met Lady Eileen Meredith, daughter of the Duke of Burghley. Like others, he had fallen a victim to her grey eyes. The piquant beauty, the supple grace, the intangible charm of the girl had aroused his desire. A man who always achieved his ends, he set himself to woo and win her fierce impetuosity. He had won. Now he was spending his last night of bachelordom at his club.

A man of about forty-five, he carried himself well and the evening dress he wore showed his upright muscular figure to advantage. Every movement he made had a swift grace that reminded one irresistibly of a tiger, with its suggestion of reserve force. His close-cropped hair and a drooping moustache were prematurely grey. He had a trick of looking at one through half-closed eyelids that gave the totally erroneous impression that he was half asleep. The face was square, the chin dogged, the lips, half-hidden by the moustache, thin and tightly pressed together. He was the type of man who emerges victor in any contest, whether of wits or muscle. Plain and direct when it suited his purpose; subtle master of intrigue when subtlety was needed.

A nervous gust of wind flung the rain fiercely against the window. Sir Ralph Fairfield uncrossed his knees with care for the scrupulous crease in his trousers.

"You're a great man, Bob," he said slowly. "You take it quite as a matter of course that you should win the prettiest girl in the three kingdoms." His voice became meditative. "I wonder how married life will suit you. You know, you're not altogether the type of man one associates with the domestic hearthstone."

Their eyes met. The twinkle of humour which was in the baronet's did not reflect itself in the other's. Grell, too, was wondering whether he was fitted for domestic life. He had a taste for introspection, and was speculating how far the joyous girl who had confided her heart to his keeping would fit in with the scheme of things. He roused himself with an effort and glanced at his watch. It was half-past nine.

"You make a mistake, Fairfield," he laughed. "Eileen and I fit each other, and you'll see we'll settle down all right. Care to see the present I'm giving her to-morrow? It's to be a little surprise. Look here!"

He inserted a hand in his breast pocket and produced a flat case of blue Morocco leather. He touched a spring. "There!"

Soft shimmering white against the sombre velvet lining reposed a string of pearls which even the untrained eye of Fairfield knew must be of enormous value. Each gem was perfect in its soft purity, and they had been matched with scrupulous care. Grell picked it up and dangled it on his forefinger, so that the crimson glow of the shaded electric lights was reflected in the smooth surface of the jewels.

"Pretty toy, isnt it?" he commented. "I gave Streeters carte blanche to do the best they could."

He dropped the necklace carelessly back in its case, snapped the catch, and placed it in his pocket. Fairfield's jerk of the head was significant.

"And you are fool enough to carry the thing around loose in your pocket. Good heavens, man! Do you know that there are people who would not stick at murder to get a thing like that?"

The other laughed easily. "Don't you worry, Fairfield. You're the only person I've shown it to, and I'm not afraid you'll sandbag me." He changed the subject abruptly. "By the way, I've got an engagement I want to keep. Do you mind answering the telephone if I'm rung up by any one. Say I'm here, but I'm frightfully busy clearing up some business matters, will you?"

The baronet frowned half in perplexity, half in protest. "Why—forgive me, Bob—why not say that you are gone out to keep an appointment?"

Grell was plainly a little embarrassed, but he strove to disguise the fact. "Oh, it's only a fancy of mine," he retorted lightly. "I shan't be gone long. You'll do it, won't you?"

"Of course," agreed Sir Ralph, still frowning.

He strode away with an abrupt nod. Shortly afterwards Fairfield heard a taxicab scurry away down the sodden street. He leaned back in his chair and puffed a cloud of smoke toward the ceiling. There was a dim uneasiness in his mind, though he could have given no reason for it. He picked up an evening paper and threw it aside. Then he strolled up into the cardroom and tried to interest himself in watching a game of bridge. But the play only bored him. Time hung heavily on his hands. A servant spoke to him. Instantly he rose and made his way to the telephone. A call had been made for Grell.

"Hello! Is that you dear? This is Eileen speaking. . . I can't hear. What do you say?"

It was the clear, musical voice of the girl Robert Grell was to marry. Fairfield wondered if his friend had expected this,

"This is not Mr. Grell," he said. "This is Fairfield—Sir Ralph Fairfield—speaking."

"Oh!" He could detect the disappointment in her voice. "Is he there? I am Lady Eileen Meredith."

Fairfield mentally cursed the false position in which he found himself. He was usually a ready-witted man, but now he found himself stammering almost incoherently.

"Yes—no—yes. He is here, Lady Eileen, but he has a guest whom it is impossible for him to leave. It's a matter of settling up an important diplomatic question, I believe. Can I give him any message?"

"No, thank you, Sir Ralph." The voice had become cold and dignified. He could picture her chagrin, and again anathematised Grell in his thoughts. "Has he been there long? When do you think he will be free?"

"I can't say. I'm sure. He met me here for dinner at seven and has been here since."

He hung up the receiver viciously. He had not expected to have to lie to Grell's fiancee when he had promised not to disclose his friend's absence from the club. It was too bad of Grell. His eye met the clock, and with a start he realised that it was a few minutes to eleven o'clock. Grell had gone an hour and a half.

"Queer chap," he murmured to himself, as he lit a fresh cigar and selected a comfortable chair in the deserted smoking-room. "He's certainly in love with her all right, but it's strange that he should have used me to put her off to-night like that. Wonder what it means."

* * * * * *

Two hours later a wild-eyed, breathless servant bareheaded in the pouring rain, was stammering incoherently to a police-constable in Grosvenor Gardens that Mr. Robert Grell had been found murdered in his study.

CHAPTER II.

The shattering ring of the telephone awoke Heldom Foyle with a start. There was only one place from which he was likely to be rung up at one o'clock in the morning, and he was reaching for his clothes with one hand even while he answered.

"That you, sir?". . . The voice at the other end was tremulous and excited. "This is the Yard speaking—Flack. Mr. Grell, the American explorer, has been killed—murdered. . . yes . . . at his house in Grosvenor Gardens. The butler found him. . ."

When a man has passed thirty years in the service of the Criminal Investigation Department at New Scotland Yard his nerves are pretty well shock-proof. Few emergencies can shake him— not even the murder of so distinguished a man as Robert Grell. Heldon Foyle gave a momentary gasp, and then wasted no further time in astonishment. There was certain obvious things to be done at once. For, up to a point, the science of detection is merely a matter of routine. He flung back his orders curtly and concisely.

"Right. I'm coming straight down. I suppose the local division inspector is on it. Send for Chief Inspector Green and Inspector Waverley, and let the finger-print people know. I shall want one of their best men. Let one of our photographers go to the house and wait for me. Send a messenger to Professor Harding, and telephone to the assistant commissioner. Tell any of the people who are the house not to touch anything and to detain every one there. And Flack—Flack. Not a word to the newspaper men. We dont want any leakage yet."

He hung up the receiver and began to dress hurriedly, but methodically. He was a methodical man. Resolutely he put from his mind all thoughts of the murder. No good would come of spinning theories until he had all the available facts.

For ten years Heldon Foyle had been the actual executive chief of the Criminal Investigation Department. He rarely wore a dressing-gown and never played the violin. But he had a fine taste in cigars, and was as well-dressed a man as might be found between Temple Bar and Hyde Park Corner. He did not wear policemen's boots, nor, for the matter of that, would he have allowed any of the six hundred odd men who were under his control to wear them. He would have passed without remark in a crowd of West-end clubmen. It is an aim of the good detective to fit his surroundings whether they be in Kensington or the Whitechapel Road.

A suggestion of immense strength was in his broad shoulders and deep chest. His square, strong face and heavy jaw was redeemed from sternness by a twinkle of humour in the eyes. That same sense of humour had often saved him from making mistakes, although it is not a popular attribute of story-book detectives. His carefully kept brown moustache was daintily upturned at the ends. There was grim tenacity written all over the man, but none but his intimates knew how it was wedded to pliant resource and fertile invention.

Down a quiet street a motor-car throbbed its way and stopped before the door of his quiet suburban home. It had been sent from Scotland Yard.

"Don't worry about speed limits," he said quietly as he stepped in. "Refer any one to me who tries to stop you. Get to Grosvenor Gardens as quickly as you can."

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN
Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness.

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Another Bad Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysteric spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes.

WHAT TO DO TO GET FAT AND INCREASE WEIGHT

The Real Cause of Thinness

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks may think their trouble is that their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "any there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare those fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Painfully Particular.

"If you refuse me this time," he said, "I shall never ask you to be my wife again."

"Oh, please," replied the girl from Boston, "try to use better English. I never have been your wife. Why should you ask me to be your wife again?"—Chicago Herald.

Soft Answer.

Mrs. Nerves—Kitty, if you don't stop making that dreadful noise at your play I shall have to punish both you and Frankie. Kitty (judicially)—Well, I'm sure we would make a lot more noise than ever then.—New York Journal.

French President Wrote of Peace to King George

LONDON, Feb. 22. — Correspondence between President Poincare, of France, and King George, of England, just before the outbreak of the war has been published here. In a letter dated July 31 President Poincare expressed the opinion that "war would be inevitable if Germany were convinced that the British Government would not intervene." On the other hand, he said, "there would be the greatest chance that peace would remain unbroken if Germany were convinced that the British Government would intervene."

"It is true," added M. Poincare, "that our military and naval arrangements leave complete liberty to Your Majesty's Government."

The French President recalled the close friendship between the two countries and the confidence with which they had worked together for the maintenance of peace as justifying him in using the utmost frankness. He closed his letter thus:

"It is, I consider, on the language and action of the British Government henceforth that the last chances of a peaceful settlement depend. I am profoundly convinced at the present moment that the more Great Britain, France and Russia can give a deep impression that they are united in their diplomatic action the more possible will it be to count upon the preservation of peace."

King George, in replying, thanked President Poincare for the frankness with which the latter had expressed himself and added:

"I am personally using my best endeavours with the Emperors of Russia and Germany toward finding some solution by which actual military operations may at any rate be postponed and time thus be given for calm discussion between the Powers. I intend to prosecute these efforts without intermission so long as any hope remains for an amiable settlement."

BELGIAN GOV'T CONTINUES WORK IN SMALL SUBURBS

HAVRE, France, Feb. 12 (by mail to New York)—Squeezed into a little suburb, known as Nice-Havrais, is the aBlgian government. In the house once occupied by a rich German shipper, the Belgian war department carries on its busy affairs. In another mansion, deserted by a German, the foreign office holds sway and on the second floor of a long line of store buildings most of the other departments have their temporary offices.

France has turned over this little spot to Belgium. Nice-Havrais is not French soil, but Belgian, and it will remain so by the promise of France until the King of Belgium rides again into Brussels.

It is the Belgian postoffice that is the most interesting spot in this little Belgium. The French postmaster moved out, bag and baggage, when the Belgians came, and the Belgian department of posts and telegraphs took it over. The telegraph business amounts to a little, but in the matter of posts this little office probably holds all world's records for its size. It is a paradise for postage stamp collectors. They besiege the place, from the opening to the closing hour. They come from all parts of the countries of the allies. Some of them live at a nearby hotel and day after day they repair to the little postoffice and buy samps of all denominations which they affix to postal cards and throust into the letter slots.

It strikes an onlooker—especially one who is not a victim of the postage stamp craze—as a gruesome business, this matter of making the Belgian ill wind blow well for themselves, but this as a thought that appears to have struck neither the postage stamp collectors themselves nor the pretty English girl and the good-looking young Belgian fellow, with the brown mustache, who preside at the stamp window. They have batches of stamps including one of every domination—ready for any person wo comes up and says "Give me all of them."

Madame Romaine, who keeps the cafe at the corner nearby, is making a small fortune in picture postal cards. It is to her that the stamp collectors go for cards to stick their stamps on. The collectors say that stamps which are placed on letters are never so clearly and boroughly cancelled as are hose whoch are filled to the hard surface of cards, and the cancelling marks made all the differene in the value of a postage stamp, from the collector's viewpoint.

Three men work at cancelling in the Belgian postoffice at Havre, and they seem to have caught the spirit of the stamp collectors for they work painstakingly and seem to be careful, in spite of the mass of work they have, to be careful to put the canceling mark right over the centre of the stamp.

"Twenty-five years from now," explained an English stamp collector, "these Belgian stamps, with the Havre postmark, will be worth a great deal. It's one of the few stamps that will tell the history of the great war. There's only one stamp that the war has made as valuable as this Havre stamp, and that is the Belgian, with a German cancellation on it. For a while after they entered Belgium the Germans permitted the use of the Belgian stamps but now, I understand, only German stamps are used in that territory."

SELLS HER BABY TO AVOID HUNGER

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Upon the payment of $50 in the chambers of County Judge Burt Jay Humphrey in Long Island City Marie MacPhee, three years old, was deeded to Eric C. Colson and his wife and legally became their daughter.

This commercial transaction failed to hide the tears of James and Elizabeth MacPhee, of No. 714 East Fifaieth street, Manhattan, parents of the child, and of Eric Colson and his wife, Mrs. Rosamond Colson, who came into possession of just such a curly haired little girl as they had prayed for.

Mr. and Mrs. Colson, who live in Lambert street, Glen Morris, Queens, advertised they would adopt a little girl and reward the parents. The MacPhees saw the advertisement. MacPhee has been out of work a long time, and the family, according to their statement, has been existing on short rations.

They dropped a line to Mr. Colson and his wife, and when they saw Marie they fell in love with her. They offered $50 for the privilege of adopting her. The mother has been crying ever since, and she wept almost hysterically when the papers were signed before Judge Humphrey and little Marie passed from her guardianship and became, legally, Margaret Louise Colson.

In strange contrast to the shabby attire of her parents, Marie, or Margaret, as she is now, wore a new fur coat and was happy with a silver vanity box, the first presents by her new parents. She was the only one who was not crying. Mrs. Colson and her husband were affected by the grief of the mother, who even at the last hesitated and cried she could not let Marie go, but she was reminded that $50 stood between her and starvation, that she could not feed or clothe her child and that $50 would care for her and her husband and at the same time provide a good home for Marie.

The mother gave the child a hysterical last embrace and ran from the Court House crying.

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GERMAN WAR BUREAU HOLDS YOUNG MEN AS NUCELUS OF A NEW ARMY

HANOVER, Feb. 23.—All German men attached to the Landsturm, or last reserve of the army, whether they had previous training or not, were called out by decree on January 28. The order applied to all men who had not completed their forty-fifth year by August 14, 1914, in the case of those who had been trained, or by December 4 in the case of untrained men. The service of the men is to continue till the end of the war.

The German War Department in calling on the more elderly men at the present time is keeping its eyes open to the future. The announcement was made by the Minister of War in a recent interview that the recruits due to come up this year in the ordinary course would not be called before the normal date in the autumn. This apparent holding back from active service of good material in the shape of young men was decided on as a precaution for the future.

The recruits of this year will be needed to form the basis of the new army when the war is over, since the ranks of the standing army, whenever peace may be declared, will certainly be found to have been depleted by casualties to a large extent. To this depletion also must be added the large number of men who will be entitled to return to civil life before the expiring of their full term of service with the colours, since war service will give them the right to claim their discharge before they otherwise would have been able to do so under conditions of peace. As this will leave the army much below its proper strength, the War Office has resolved to retain the younger men to built the nucleus of the standing army at the conclusion of peace.

On the other hand the youths from sixteen to twenty years old who have volunteered to serve in the army before reaching the regulation age for military service, as well as the regular contingent of recruits called up last fall, are being assiduously trained in all parts of the East and West. The young soldiers display great enthusiasm for the field work in which they are undergoing instruction under the care of experienced non-commissioned officers, some of whom have returned from the front suffering slight wounds which do not hinder them in their work.

Much of the usual stiff drill of the German army has been done away with in order that the youths may devote more time to and make rapid progress in the more useful warlike arts of shooting and intrenching. Many of them were at first exercised in their civilian clothes or in old uniforms in consequence of the lack of sufficient stores to supply them, but the grey field uniform for all was soon provided.

Hard to Pronounce.

One of the hard names to pronounced is that of the central Russian government called Nijni Novogrod. The first "i" has the sound of "e;" the second is short. The "o" in the penultimate syllable is long, as in the English word "go." The "o" in the syllables "nov" and "rod" has the sound of "o" in the English word "rod." "j" has the soft French sound. The accents are on the first and last syllables, "Nizhnii Novgorod."

HOW AN ARMORED CAR BECAME A MINIATURE FORTRESS AND HELD AT BAY A BODY OF GERMANS

FROM THE SPHERE © N.Y. HERALD.

MR. THIRIAT, describing the above picture, writes in the course of his letter:—"It was a very desolate scene in Northern France. During a 'reconnaissance' we met a wrecked armored automobile, which appeared to be abandoned. After the first glance, however, we noticed dead bodies all around the car, and inside, in the travelling fortress, three dead French soldiers and one wounded. It is from the latter that I get the following description:—'We were running along a frightfully muddy road when our front tire burst. We stopped to repair it, and while at work a German patrol suddenly attacked us. It was impossible to retreat, so we immediately determined to give battle. Then for a whole hour we continued the heroic struggle. The reception of the Germans was so hot that they could not approach the car without being killed. All this time no help came. The Germans began to creep up to the car. Three of my comrades were killed, and I was severely wounded. My strength was rapidly failing; I fired at the last remaining German and then fainted. The moving fort was safe, and help came—unfortunately, only for me.'" Mr. Thiriat's picture shows the unequal duel at its height.

German Papers Dream of Vast Spheres in Asia After the War Is Ended

Hope of Extending Railways in Persia, Opening Route to Cabul and Road to India, and Regaining All Her Colonies Lost During the Conflict.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

LONDON, February 20.

In various German newspapers it is interesting to notice the suggestions made for increasing German spheres of influence in countries hitherto closed to her financial and trading circles. Of course, these suggestions are made with the firm conviction that Germany's ultimate victory is assured.

Persia seems to be much in the minds of nationalist writers. Recent events have shown them that the Shah's government is working hand in hand with the Turks, and as Turkey in the future will be a German sphere of influence, so also will Persia.

The Hamburg Nachrichtan maintains that it is in Persia's best interests to obtain financial backing from Germany. Railways must be built there, linking up the sea with the Asia Minor and Afghanistan systems. Then look at the natural products of Persia and the herds of cattle, the carpet industry, dried fruits, &c. It will be Germany's mission to put these on the markets of the world. Above all else, there must be a trans-Persian railway in German hands. Branch lines will shoot out in all directions from the trunk line, and the desert will blossom like a garden.

Then there are the mines, with their rich mineral stores. There are rubies and turquoises, and pearls in the Gulf, and other wonderful things beyond the dreams of avarice—all waiting for the "open sesame" of the kind German railway man supported by the Deutsche Bank.

And it is an easy cry from Persia to Afghanistan, and there again are more riches. Germany must get into communication with Cabul and prepare in time for the day when the star of England will decline and the road is open from Cabul through the Khyber to the swarming lowlands of India.

HATRED OF ENGLAND.

The Cologne Gazette contains an article headed "German Hate and German Idealism," the object of which is to prove that this hatred springs out of, and is the logical result of, the idealism which is characteristic of the German race.

The writer points out that the hatred toward France and Russia is not very deep, that it is evanescent, and need not be taken too seriously. But the hatred to England! Ah, that is another matter. Germans hate England because the English are filled with a "huckstering envy," because she it was who lighted this world fire, because all through her recent history she has injured and thwarted Germany at every turn and at every point where their interests clashed.

She would have patronised Germany, runs the article, but when Germany would not be huge of her patronage and determined to walk without British crutches, England spat poison and gall. And when Germany, undismayed, built ships, the fat was in the fire.

England therefore swore to crush Germany. Germany, with her lofty ideas, was to be crushed by British militarism! Germany, ready to spend the last drop of her blood, was to be crushed by this "coldly reckoning England," with its handful of "hired mercenaries!" It was well that hatred came to save Germany. There was perhaps danger that the country of Goethe, Beethoven, Kant, Bach and Luther would also fall under the influence of mammonism, but her idealism saved her, and out of the "consciousness of German idealism" springs this deep national hate for the "guild of hucksters on the Thames."

In the case of Germany, says the Cologne Gazette, hate has become a supreme virtue. It is a pure spiritual hate. And it is this hate which give Germans "giant powers in which all good geniuses will fight for the Fatherland."

The eminent German jurist, Professor Anschutz, of the Berlin University, has been lecturing to large audiences on "Problems of the Future." His sketch of the peace which Germany will probably conclude is interesting, especially as it has been described as most moderate.

In the opinion of the lecturer, there must be no annexations in Europe, except in so far as these can be justified by military reasons. The Baltic provinces must remain Russian, as only five per cent of the population is German. Belgium, it is true, has four million Flemings who are Germans, but the necessities of the case might be met by declaring Belgium a protectorate, with a Zollverein and military convention with Ge many.

In the matter of colonies a different policy might be pursued. These colonies are for the production of raw material rather than as settlements for a white population. The peace must not only bring back all her lost colonies to Germany, but others as well.

With regard to Poland the professor is in some doubt. As autonomous or independent Poland is not much to his liking. He would allow the Russians to retain Russian Poland.

One of the main considerations to be kept in view is the splitting up of the anti-German ring of England, France and Russia. With regard to France it is clear that all she is suffering from is injured vanity, and that need not disturb German statesmen. Would it not be possible to make some arrangement with Russia, asks the professor, by virtue of which she would concede her Balkan ambitions, and divert her eyes from Constantinople? Is it not possible to induce her to turn her gaze to the Far East, where her interests are directly antagonistic to those of England?

Should Russia quarrel with Great Britain, and perhaps with Japan, Germany's place would be at her side, and her object would be the final crushing of the British world dominion.

As to internal affairs, the empire, "after its contact with the earth" will rise Aphrodite-like in renewed strength and to renewed effort.

WAR CORRESPONDENT AT FRONT ON AUTOMOBILE TOUR OF LINES

Describes Marvellous Zigzag Trenches with Mazes of Barbed Wire Entanglements and Concealed Batteries and Is Entertained in Underground Home of French General Between Berry-au-Bac and Soissons.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

IN EASTERN FRANCE.

Riding westward by automobile along the battle front that stretches from Switzerland to the North Sea, we turned inward at a point midway between Rheims and Soissons to exchange a telescopic view of operations for one closer at hand.

As one of a party of correspondents representing Holland, Russia, Italy and America, escorted by the French government, I was seeing something of the realities of modern war, its terror, its heroism, its tragedies—and even its comedies—without feeling every minute that I was about to be imprisoned or shot as a spy.

Branching off the main road our automobiles began to move slowly along a smaller one leading to the battle front—slowly because of the endless line of transports of every kind, filled with food and ammunition, which were crawling toward the danger zone they dared not reach until night fell.

Within the thick woods were thousands of reserves and countless ammunition wagons, hidden so successfully that one must be in their very midst to discover them. Aeroplane scouts have no chance to get information unless they come in so close that there is no hope of getting back.

It is a marvellous sight to walk through these dense woods and see the little towns where the soldiers live. The transport and sappers' camps, and all the reserves also, have well-constructed bath-houses, where hot and cold showers and the comfort under the surface of some of these mountains is extraordinary. I have seen some roasts of beef in these lamplit homes worthy of Simpson's.

A Hidden Gun Booms.

On we went through miles and miles of this until the transport stopped and the automobile moved up a side road through a thick bush and stopped just in time to feel the sudden concussion and hear the boom of a monster hidden gun not a hundred feet away. The captain in whose charge we were was the only one who smiled, and while this vast mountain, alive with big batteries, was bellowing, booming and sending deadly shells among the Germans on the opposite hills a few miles away he calmly mentioned, while smoking a cigarette, that he thought it was time we had lunch—and we did.

After a long up-hill walk we came to the summit, which steeply looked down 1,500 feet into a valley stretching across to the foothills of the tree covered mountains from where the Germans were occasionally firing in a random way at the French guns they had been unsuccessfully trying for weeks to locate.

Up and down that vast valley were ruined towns as far as the eye could see, and in the centre of them stood Berry-au-Bac. From our coign of vantage we could see the German and French trenches running zigzag and parallel as far as powerful glasses could reach.

At one place they were only six yards apart and at another point their trenches and ours centred in a large rock about as big as a small house. Spurs ran out both right and left, giving it the appearance of a huge cross, while all the four spaces in between were impassable meshes of barbed wire, spikes and mines. It is believed to be the most curious formation in all the 250 miles of double trenches.

We stopped at the underground war home of the General and were introduced to a soldier whose courtesy and charm were of the same character we had experienced since the journey began. His burrow consisted of an eight feet square dugout, a camp bed and an oil stove. In a vault, at one side, a slit as big as a man's arm, opening through the face of the precipice, commanded a view of the entire battle valley.

A hundred yards on either side of this residence were batteries of four guns each and guards ready waiting for the word, waiting for the message by the little wire that stood over the precipice and ran along the valley to Berry-au-Bac, where a few brave men were watching at the telephone to discover the exact position of the German batteries.

Suddenly a telephone message arrived for our Captain, and, on the second, eight gunners jerked the cords that furiously let loose eight 15cm. shells that must have found a human mark fully five miles away. Then another volley rang out from the batteries next to us.

The enemy, evidently concluding that our signal as to their position came from Berry-au-Bac, concentrated their fire there, and in an incredibly short space of time at least 200 bursting shells fell among the ruins like fireflies in a swamp.

How any one could still live in that town after the storm of shrapnel had criss-crossed every space in it is a marvel, but some one did, for the telephone kept working, and all of our batteries rang out, and kept on ripping out, until not one single, solitary German gun was heard.

The smile that played on the faces of at least fifty French gunners was spiritual.

We returned as we had come, and when that evening the correspondents dined with M. Pol Roger, the Mayor, of Epernay, another guest was General ——, of Sir John French's staff.

He told me that the French gunners were the best in the world.

'DON'T SHOOT AT FRITZ,' 'TOMMIES' TELL RELIEF

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

LONDON, February 20.

Here is a story of the British lines. In the trenches the other day opposite one of our rifle battalions, near Ypres, a certain Fritz was very much in request. The first morning after they had taken up their position our men heard voices calling him all along the line, "Fritz!" "Fritz!" "Fritz!" And there was some curiosity to see what this redoubtable Fritz was like. Presently a big head commanding a very portly presence—portly even as Fritzes go—lifted itself out of the end of the trench and was carried at a speed quite incommensurate with the supporting bulk to the adjoining trench. A few bullets greeted this extraordinary apparition, but he escaped intact.

In the afternoon equally insistent voices called Fritz back, and again he ran the gantlet successfully. The men recognised only one man fired at him. After that they simply drew a bead on him and laughed. They laughed so much that it is doubtful if they could have hit if they tried. Evidently even Fritz was nobody ever discovered. Owing to his figure and the fact that he was in such constant demand, he was believed to be the cook. When the mistake was relieved the word was passed to the newcomers, "Don't shoot at Fritz."

NEW VERSION OF PREMIER'S RESIGNATION

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

LONDON, February 20.

Swedish newspapers which have just arrived state that one of the main reasons for the resignation of Count Berchtold, Austrian Foreign Minister, was a blunder of the police and military officials in temporarily detaining as spies the Swedish and Swiss Ministers at Vienna, and the Danish Chargé d'Affaires.

It is said in diplomatic circles that Count Berchtold incurred the displeasure of the high military authorities because of the manner in which he proffered the Austrian government's apology to the offended diplomatists.

German Rule in Brussels More and More Brutal, Says Escaped Englishman

About Two Hundred British Civilian Subjects Arrested and Sent Into Germany, One Being the Vice Consul, Who Was at the American Consulate When Seized.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

LONDON, February 20.

The following account of life in Brussels under German rule, from an English resident who escaped from Belgium under conditions described in the narrative, is interesting from the fact that the information it contains has been gathered at first hand by one well qualified for such a task. He says:—

"In spite of the German Governor's published proclamations that he would respect all individual liberty, the search for and arrest of Englishmen in Brussels commenced on November 13. Many of us were warned by the Belgian police, who were obliged to furnish a list of all English residents, of these 'raids,' but about two hundred were arrested and after being kept three weeks at the Kommandantur were sent into Germany. The Consul, Mr. T. E. Jeffcs, was not taken on account of his age, but his son, the Vice Consul, was, despite the fact of his being at the American Consulate.

"We who were warned in time hid, and now the majority have escaped in various ways, some disguised as priests or peasants, and others, myself among them, by means of false passports as neutral nationals. My wife and I left on December 11, and after many vicissitudes reached England and safety.

"The coolness of one Englishman amused the inhabitants very much. The Germans came to arrest him, and he answered the bell.

"'Yes, Mr. X lives here, but on the second floor. He's out; been gone about an hour. He generally comes in about three P. M.'

"'What's he like?'

"'Oh, about my height, but a little stouter, and wears knickerbockers.'

"The lieutenant thanked him and posted two men with fixed bayonets a little way off, and left another two in plain clothes to wait for his entrance. When Mr. X. went out, half an hour afterward, they were still there, and if they are determined to await his return they had better pitch tents, for Mr. X is now in England.

"German rule at Brussels becomes more and more brutal. Up till now there has been no wholesale murder or destruction, as in some other towns, such as Louvain and Termonde, but almost every day sees new and oppressive proclamations. Plain clothes police who speak French and often a blemish aware everywhere, and if they overhear you speak against the German government you are arrested and are lucky if you get off with a heavy fine and a month in prison.

"A well known Brussels dentist told his friend in the street that his villa had been pillaged, which was true. He was at once arrested, and three weeks after we were still without news of him. A schoolmaster, reading the proclamation that one mark must be taken as at least 1.25 francs, remarked, 'Why "at least"? it was never more.' He was arrested, and we heard nothing of him up to the time of our escape, some ten weeks after. When I left there were some seven hundred civilians awaiting trial.

"In spite of the sensational nature of the statement, I fully expect the city to be to a large extent destroyed when the Germans are forced to retire. It is quite certain that all the railway bridges are mined, as also many public buildings. I have seen boxes being passed down into the sewer which goes under the Ministries. All around Brussels trenches have been dug during the day, only to be filled up during the night, and particularly across the roads. There are no Zeppelins in Brussels, but the shed at Etterbeek—the object of the recent raid—has been lengthened so as to be large enough to take one and is protected by four anti-aircraft guns, while the plain in which it stands is protected by barbed wire."

"HAS ENOUGH WITH ME," WRITES SOLDIER'S WIFE

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, February 20.

A little girl in Naumberg recently sent a muffler and some cigars to a German soldier at the front whose name she had seen in some official report. With the articles she enclosed a card on which she asked the soldier to let her know whether he was pleased with the little gifts. After some time she received the following letter:—

"My dear Miss:—I have just received a letter from my husband at the front, including a card which you had sent to him, and it pleases me very much that you are so solicitous about the soldiers in the field, but I will give you one piece of good advice:—

"Turn your attention to the single men and shower them with your attentions and please spare the married ones. The soldier whom you addressed is Franz M——. He is married and has two children. Up to now I have been able myself to supply him with all that he needs and to satisfy him in every way. I have reason to be jealous. I will therefore ask you not to bother my husband any more, as we had enough with me. Mrs. M——."

This sharp note at first excited some sympathy, afterward there was considerable [illegible] when it was found that the sender of the muffler and the cigars was only a girl eleven years old.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A MYSTERY SOLVED

Mathewson was standing during a social function before a mantel with his thumbs in his waistcoat pockets and his legs at an angle of about 10 degrees gaping at the crowds of men and women passing and repassing. He had tired of the disconnected, choppy, aimless conversation which is the only possible kind in such places and stood alone rather than endure any more of it. But he did not tire of watching others who were hunting for something to say to one another that would fit in with a possible interruption at any moment.

Presently turning, there stood a lady beside him, evidently passing the time discontentedly like. She was about 24 years of age and at least, so far as her appearance was concerned, very attractive.

Suddenly the lady put her hand on his arm and said as familiarly as if she had known him: "It' is stifling in here. I must get some air."

Mathewson had met the surprise of his life. What was her object in appropriating him thus he could not divine, but he was not minded to throw a straw in the way of anything she might intend. Being a man of the world, a well bred man, a considerate man, he manifested no surprise; neither did he presume upon an acquaintance that was not his.

"You are quite right about the air in there being stifling," he said. "I was thinking of getting out of it myself."

This commonplace remark seemed to put the lady at her ease, and, guiding her companion into a cosy nook where they were not likely to be interrupted, she conversed not in the bits of nothing to be expected, but gradually led the way into topics of interest.

Mathewson spent a charming half hour expecting the while that the lady before parting with him would make known her reason for having appropriated him. But presently an old lady came and remarked, "I have been looking everywhere for you," and the younger woman, arising, nodded to Mathewson, and the two ladies walked away together.

Later Mathewson pointed out the lady who had appropriated him, asking who she was, and was told that she was a Mrs. Olcott. Having expressed disappointment, his companion remarked:

"She's a missus, but not married. She's a divorcee."

"Do you know her?" asked Mathewson.

"I do."

"Then introduce me."

There was no opportunity at the time, for the lady, together with the elderly woman who had joined her, was going upstairs preparatory to leaving the house.

A few days later Mathewson met Mrs. Olcott at another function. She passed him in company with others, but did not look at him. At this he was not surprised. Having an appointment to call upon her the next evening with the friend who was to introduce him, he found her kindly disposed; but, though he sat with her for some time, she made no mention of the matter of her appropriation of him. She discussed any subject that Mathewson proposed or toward which he led the way; but, although he several times gave her an opportunity to explain why she had used him, she refrained from an explanation.

Whether it was the lady's personality or the mystery attending their first meeting, it was not long before he was enthralled. She accepted his attentions not with the fickleness of a young girl, but with the experience of one who had been married. Mathewson, at first having a knowledge that she had been a wife, was somewhat chary of falling in love with her, for he argued that if one man could not live with her possibly another might find it difficult. But after a while he cast precaution to the winds, threw up his hands and was ready to marry her if she were a devil in human shape.

There is but one ending to a story wherein its hero is madly in love. He proposes and is either accepted or rejected. If he is rejected the story ends nowhere; if accepted, in marriage, Mathewson was accepted.

"And now," he said to his fiancee, "I suppose it is in order for me to ask why you saw fit on a certain evening when you and I stood side by side, utter strangers, to put your hand on my arm and lead me away as if we were acquainted".

"I fear to tell you," she replied.

"Why?"

"I did it to avoid meeting some one. You may think the day may come when I will put my hand on some other man's arm to avoid you."

"Please cease to speak in riddles."

"When I stood beside you I saw two men elbowing their way through the crowd making toward me. It was evident that one was bringing the other to introduce to me. This other I knew only too well, though his friend was not aware that I did. To have him thus presented to me in a room where we were both well known would have been a terrible contretemps. I avoided it by walking away with you."

"I see," said Mathewson, "but pardon my curiosity—we men are sometime curious as well as you women—why were you so averse to meeting this man?"

"Because he had been my husband."—By Sarah Baxter.

Safe Home Treatment For Objectionable Hairs

(Boudoir Secrets)

This attention needs is not required for the removal of hair or fuzz, for with the use of plain delatone the most stubborn growth can be quickly banished. A paste is made with water and a little of the powder, then spread over the hairy surface. In about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple treatment not only removes the hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.

Thoughtful Dog.

They were swapping dog stories. Abner Morgan had "all the best of it" with his yarns of the extraordinary intelligence exhibited by a collie belonging to his uncle. The others grew restive. Finally Job Perkins deemed the moment appropriate wherein to spring a tale that would cap all the others.

"That was a purty clever dawg, Ab," drawled he, "an' I make no doubt he was jest as knowin' as you let on; but, say, he wasn't a marker to a dawg my old man owned. Boys, the devotion of that dawg to the old man was shore amazin'. Once he heard the old man say he was pressed for money, so he went an' died the day before the dog tax was due!" — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

LAND OF THE LOOM.

Belgium, In Tapestry Work, Outdid Its Oriental Originators.

Belgium has been called the "Land of the Loom," and it was here in the ninth century that an art arose new to Europe, although familiar for centuries in the orient. Tapestries caused stone walls to bloom and brought prosperity to the cities. Pictured hangings of finely wool or silk, writes Mr. W. H. Gries in "Belgium—The Land of Art," opened commentaries on the Scriptures and the classics, became books for the illiterate, told fairy tales to the children, served as manuals of devotion to the pious, increased personal comfort and brought the textile art to its highest point of perfection.

This "wall clothing" passed through many styles and fashions and many revolutions in methods and values. Beginning in the castle or monastery, the craft passed into the shops and factories and formed the basis of the wealth of the cities and kingdoms.

The manufacture of tapestries came from the east, where it had long been practiced by the Moors and Saracens. The first imitation by the Belgian—or Flemish—craftsmen was rude enough. Gradually, however, through skill and care, the imitators became originators. The best artists co-operated with the weavers to produce pictorial results undreamed of in the orient. Painters of the very highest rank, even Raphael and Michelangelo, were glad to draw cartoons for the [illegible] to form the black and white designs into glorious colors in wool or silk.

In time their fame became world-wide and their value so great that they were worth, literally, more than "a king's ransom." In 1360 the Sultan Bajazet I. took as prisoner a son of Philip the Hardy, king of France. The Turk stipulated as a fair exchange "high warp tapestry, worked in Arras, in Picardy," but they should represent "good old stories."

It's a Good Letter, After All.

Some one has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. For some reason he overlooked the fortunates of the letter, so we call his attention to the fact "e" is never in war and always in peace. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there could be no editors, devils or news.—Fourth Estate.

How To Use Empty Cans.

If the empty baking powder cans are saved and the lids pierced with holes they may be utilized for a number of household purposes. They make excellent soap shakers when filled with the small pieces of soap. They may be filled with soap powder, sand, borax or cleaning fluid. They are also very handy in the laundry as sprinklers.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog, and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

England's Roman Canals.

England can claim equality with Belgium in the matter of possessing canals of Roman origin. During their stay in England the Romans cut the Foss dike in Lincolnshire, probably for water supply or drainage. The dike was deepened and made navigable by Henry I., and then allowed to decline until 1840, when it was so widened and deepened that it now forms the connecting link between the Witham and the Trent.—London Chronicle.

Some Hint.

"Hello, Blank! Where are you going in such a hurry?"

"To the postoffice to put up a kick about the wretched delivery service."

"What's the trouble?"

"Why, that check you promised to send me ten days ago hasn't reached me yet."

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

MRS. MASSEY.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXPLODING EXPLOSIVES.

One of Two Methods, Combustion or Detonation, Is Used.

An explosive is a body which, under the influence of heat or shock, or both, in, speaking popularly, instantaneously resolved entirely or almost so into gases.

Practical explosives consist either of bodies such as nitroglycerin and nitrocellulose, which are explosive in themselves or mixtures of ingredients which separately are or may be non-explosive, but when intimately mixed are capable of being exploded.

Explosives are exploded either by simple ignition, as in the case of black gunpowder, or by means of a detonator containing mercury fulminate.

The molecules of an explosive may be regarded as in a state of unstable chemical equilibrium. A stable state of equilibrium is brought about by the sudden decomposition of the original compounds with the evolution of heat. An explosion is thus an extremely rapid decomposition, accompanied by the production of a large volume of gas and the development of much heat.

There are two well defined modes of explosion which can be described as combustion and detonation. In the former case the explosive is simply ignited, and combustion takes place by transference of heat from layer to layer of the explosive. The rapidity with which the combustion proceeds depends not only on the physical form of the explosive, but also on the pressure under which the decomposition takes place. When in the form of fine grains combustion proceeds much more quickly than when the grains are large.

Detonation, on the other hand, has to be started by a sufficiently strong impulse, such as the explosion of a charge of mercury fulminate; it proceeds much more rapidly and is due to the formation of an explosion wave that has a velocity of thousands of meters a second.

"High" explosives indicate those, such as dynamites and nitrate of ammonia explosives, which detonate and have a greater shattering power than the "low" explosives. — New York World.

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

Pepa is the discovery!

Pepa are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air cells in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Pepa fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Pepa are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Pepa treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Pepa, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Pepa Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Pepa at 50c. box.

"Blockaders" Big Contract Mapped Out.—What a great task the Germans have undertaken in endeavouring to smash Great Britain's sea trade is indicated in the above map showing the Islands' chief ports and their distances from German naval bases. The German submarines probably will operate against the North English and Scottish trade routes from Heligoland and Cuxhaven, and against the Channel and South English ports from Zeebrugge, the Belgian port, where a German naval base has been established. Germany also has indicated that she will place mines at the mouths of all British ports.

Here's What War Did to Tailor Shop Located on Boulevard Montmartre

(By William Philip Simms.)

PARIS, Feb. 3.— In the Boulevard Montmartre there is a little tailor shop which I have known for nearly seven years. Would you like to hear how the war struck it? And would you like to hear how it and its personnel have fared?

First, at the head of the house is an Englishman, naturalized French, a typical short, chubby John Bull sort of man, whose hair is now fast turning gray. This is father. Next are his two sons, George, the elder, and Fred. George spent two years of his 26 in England and two more in a fashionable tailoring shop on Fifth avenue, New York. He was given a pretty good education before he took those "post graduate" courses for his father has always intended that George should succeed him as head of the house. Fred, who was just finishing his military service in the French army when the war broke out, was cashier in the shop, the business-office man. George was about to be married when the war came on, but Fred was only in love and not engaged.

After these come Andre, a bookkeeper; Julien, a cutter and Raymond, a salesman. The latter has just married an English girl, chum of the girl George was engaged to, and the four were looking forward to happy times together. They had leased apartments in the same building.

Then the war broke out. George, Fred, Andre and Raymond all marched away, George as second lieutenant of reserves; Fred and Raymond as sergeants; the others as privates. Only father, an old cutter too aged to answer the call, and a salesman too delicate for service, remained to keep the business going. Unable to do this they closed the shop from August 1 until now.

To-day I had a long talk with Father. He is not sad, as he has every right to be; rather he holds his head higher and there is the light of something finer and nobler in his eyes. But I must not go too fast with the story. Father showed me three letters. The first was from Fred, the younger son, to his brother, George. Part of it read:

"My Dear George; Courage? Why of course we will have it! But what I am thinking of at this hour, old man, is you and Raymond. It would be devilish hard to get along without you and I am making a demand on God that if it comes to that it must be me and not yourself. It simply must happen like that, that's all, for you, you lucky rascal, are affianced and your girl, lucky too, must not be made a widow.

"In my pocket I am carrying letters from those I love best. Like that I somehow feel that I have them close to me, even here in the trenches. In his letter father says—good Christian that he is— 'fix your eyes on the stars, my son, and they will talk to you of God.'

"I'm sorry we are not in the same company, old fellow, but everything will pass off all right and then we will be together again. Anyway we will not recriminate; everything must be as God wills."

And so on. The letter was found when George — But to keep on with the tale. George's letter to father went, in part:

"I have the fight fever again; I have become a red hot military anew and I shall sleep little to-night knowing that to-morrow we are to see some real fighting. My lascars are fully uniformed and outfitted now and we are all ready and on tiptoe. We—the officers—fear only one thing; our inability to hold our men back; they will begin charging bayonets while the enemy is a mile off unless we keep them well reigned in.

"Dorothy was truly courage. She is the finest girl in the world and I don't deserve such luck. And you, my dear parents, don't be downhearted; to the contrary be gay; be happy because your two sons are doing their duty. You are Christians are you not? Well, you know it is said that if you have faith even though it be no bigger than a grain of mustard you can tell the mountain to go and plant itself in the sea and the mountain will do it. What a lesson to learn! And what a duty it is to try to get that amount of faith. Now dear parents, don't be sad; away with tears! Be joyous. And ask God who holds us all in the hollow of His hand to switch over us. Have faith. Au revoir. Your son who loves you tenderly, George."

Well, George was killed in action. He fell while storming a German position and his men say he died the death of a lion.

Fred is dangerously wounded. He is a prisoner, too, in the hands of the Germans, at place not very far from Berlin.

"Julien had a leg blown off and died here in Paris, at an emergency hospital close to the Place Vendome.

Raymond was struck squarely by a 42 centimeter shell and they have never found even so much as a fragment of his body nor a button of his uniform. He was torn to atoms, literally.

"And Andre, the bookkeeper, poor Andre who had failed in business and was absolutely on his uppers when father took him in and gave him a job, married and father of a boy of eight writes:

"My Dear Monsieur Father:— People know me as a failure and the people are right. I am. I have always been a poor provider and a ne'er-do-well, albeit a well meaning one. I am afraid after this I shall be worse off than ever for I have one leg less than I used to have. Still I am quite satisfied eh. I feel I have at last done one little useful thing. I have suffered a great deal since they amputated my right leg some 12 days ago, and I suffer now. It's a strange thing though, for I who am such a terrible coward, love to feel this pain, for it keeps me reminded of the fact that I, ne'er-do-well, even belong to the multitude of the glorious mutilated. Do not tell my wife I have but one leg. She does not know it as yet and I rather she should not until I am out—if God will that I shall ever be.

"It happened while we stormed a trench on the 17th. The Germans were but 90 feet in front of us and when we got the order to charge bayonets, it was glorious. I can't describe it to you and no painter could paint it; it was simply indescribably great. We took one part of the trench which was V shaped but the Germans held the other side of the V. We tried to drive each other out all day but failed so a basket of earth was put at the angle of the trenches and that basket was all that stood between the Germans and us. Late in the afternoon I got a piece of shell in the knee'—"

So the letter ran. This is what happened to the little tailor shop. It is not fiction but as nearly the truth as I have been able to put it down.

And all over Europe it's the same story. My little tailor shop is but an example. There are many others.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making cause, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

"HATE FOR ENGLISH" READ PLACARD

In a letter to his sister in England a young French officer on service in the neighbourhood of St. Mihiel, recently promoted for gallantry on the field of battle, tells this story:

"The Germans could think of nothing better to do a few days ago than to put on the walls of their barracks at —— a large placard of white calico, on which was written:

"'Merci a la brave France—haine a l'Angleterre.' Our trenches are from 60 to 90 metres from those of the 'Boches,' and with glasses it was easy to read the placard. In the evening I was on patrol with three good fellows of my half section, and we crawled towards the German lines till we were within twenty-five metres or so, and we hid ourselves in a big hole made by a shell.

"I said to my men: 'I have given you socks, gloves, cigarettes and other things. You know where they came from—they were sent from England.' I want to see no more of that placard. Let us do away with it. We have our arms; let us put some shots through and destroy it.

"The thing was done. I gave the order to fire, and in three minutes only some shreds of the staff remained! The worst of it was that our fire provoked a terrible fusillade along the whole length of the line. We dropped into the shell hole and waited till the firing had finished—about half an hour—and then we regained our own trenches. My lieutenant greeted me with 'So it was you who started that fusillade?' And when I said 'Yes' he asked what for. I explained that I was half English, having married an English woman, and added that I wanted to see no more of a placard which referred to that nation in such terms. He 'chipped' me for a bit, but when we were relieved the story was told to the captain, who passed it on to the colonel. The end of it all was a promise of my stripes as under lieutenant.

WOMEN TO THE RESCUE.

(Boston Transcript: "Are you a native of this place?" asked a traveller in Alabama of a resident.

"Am I what?" was the puzzled reply.

"I say are you a native here?"

While the man was still hesitating over his answer, his wife came to the door.

"Ain't you got no sense, Bill?" she exclaimed, "The gen'lan means was yo' livin' heah when yo' was born, or was yo' born heiore yo' begin livin' heah. Now answer the gen'lan."

Havelock Man Was Picked Up Unconscious

John W. Seeney Seriously Injured —Was Found East of Norwood Beside C. P. R. Track—Was in Peterborough on Saturday

RECOVERY DOUBTFUL

John W. Seeney, a resident of Havelock, is now in the Nicholls Hospital in a serious condition as a result of injuries received in some manner at present unknown. He was picked up on the C.P.R. right of way at the mile board, east of Norwood yesterday afternoon by a couple of men, who flagged a passing freight and had him brought to Peterborough. Comstock's ambulance was at the station, also Dr. Cameron, C.P.R. physician, and the injured man was taken to Nicholls Hospital where he is in a precarious condition.

Injuries Serious.

When picked up Mr. Seeney was almost unconscious. One arm was bent double and frozen stiff. His face and nose were badly frozen. One leg was broken, also his collar bone. He had a gash in his skull and his right side was almost smashed in. He was unable to tell coherently what happened to him.

Left Peterborough.

Mr. Seeney was known to have been in Peterborough on Saturday afternoon. He was seen at the local C.P.R. station when the local passed through, but so far no one has been located who saw him board the train. If he went east on that train and fell off or jumped off, he would be in the position where he was found for several hours. In that case he would probably have been worse frozen.

Another theory was that he arrived at his home about 5 p.m., and finding no one at home started walking towards Norwood, and was hit by a passing train.

Again he may have boarded a later train going east from Peterborough and in some way fallen off.

On the way from Norwood yesterday afternoon he is supposed to have been able to utter a few words and the train crew gathered that he had fallen from a train at some time. His condition is so serious to-day that but little hope is entertained for his recovery, and the real nature of how the accident happened may never be known.

Feeling Against Germans Grows Keen in England

LONDON, Feb. 20 — The swagger imperial restaurant was the scene of a near riot last night It was jammed with well-dressed diners when the orchestra, one of the most noted in London, struck up the Barcarolle from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman". A few of the diners started to applaud only to have their hand-clapping immediately drowned out by a storm of hissing.

"It's German; it's German, stop playing it immediately!" went up cries from every part of the big restaurant. Half a dozen of the male diners arose and started for the orchestra platform. The French leader jumped to the front and protested in broken English.

"It is not German and Offenbach never was a German!"

The men and women, garbed in the latest fashion, would not be denied. A number arose and demanded their wraps. Others shouted threats at the Orchestra while still others appealed to the management. Finally when the situation seemed most critical the Orchestra leader started up "Tipperary" and in a few minutes the entire crowd was singing.

The women, among whom were many of the leading music hall and theatrical favourites of England, were the most demonstrative. They flatly contradicted the contention that Offenbach was French and promptly told the management that he was born in Cologne of Jewish parents, and that his residence in Paris after his fourteenth year did not qualify him as a Frenchman.

Similar scenes have taken place in other restaurants recently, and there is a generally increasing demonstration of anti-Germanism observable everywhere. The German threats to destroy all British shipping regardless of the fate of the passengers and crews, and coast cities and towns bombarded by battle cruisers and Zeppelins, has added to the flame of hatred, so that the least suggestion of anything German is certain to bring about a hostile demonstration.

The newspapers are protesting bitterly against the reinstating by the leading hotels and restaurants of hundreds of German waiters who have been released from the concentration camps and are being re-employed because they will work cheaper than the Englishmen whose places they are taking.

It has been charged in many instances that the chief hotels and restaurants in most of the leading cities are still owned by Germans, who are operating through British agents.

"CASCARETS" ALWAYS STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

To-night! Clean Your Bowels and End Headaches, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right — who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

General French Reports a Gain And a Loss

THE RHEIMS CATHEDRAL IS AGAIN DAMAGED BY BOMBARDMENT

Germans Drop 1500 Shells into the Town and a Number of Civilians Lose Lives---Twenty Caught in the Street and Are Killed by Bursting Shells--Score of Houses Catch Fire.

FRENCH ARTILLERY DOING GOOD WORK

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Under a heavy bombardment by the German gunners the noted Cathedral at Rheims has again suffered severe damage, it was announced in the official despatches this afternoon. The renewal of the bombardment of Rheims was first reported to the war office in the official despatches received yesterday. To-day's despatches declared that after abandoning the attack on Sunday night, the German gunners again directed their shells into the historic town all day yesterday, hurling more than 1500 shells into the city itself. The first bombardment opened early in the morning. Most of the civilians fled to their cellars, but 20 persons were caught in the streets, and killed by bursting shells. A score of the houses caught fire; the flames were fanned by a strong wind and for a time threatened the destruction of a large part of the city. Elsewhere along the battle line there has been but little activity in the last 24 hours. Near the coast, west of Lombaertsyde, two German infantry attacks broke down under heavy gun fire. The French artillery silenced a German battery in the East Argonne region between Malancourt and the Meuse, blowing up several ammunition waggons.

LONDON, England, February 23.—The Germans are increasing their activities around Ypres, General French cabled in an official report to-day. By mining and destroying a British trench early on Sunday the Kaiser's troops have advanced their lines, the British commander admitted. This German gain near Ypres was offset by a British victory near Labassee. The British successfully mined a German trench in the rear of Givenachy. The enemy was forced to retire along the river bank. South of the river Lys artillery and rifle fire is daily increasing in violence, General French reported.

Mounted Rifles To Be Outfitted In Peterboro'

Uniforms Will Be Sent Up From Ottawa This Week

From present indications B Squadron of the 8th Mounted Rifles who have been expecting to get word at any time in regard to leaving for Ottawa, will be here for some time yet. A proof of this is the order received from Col. Hemming of Kingston, the Officer Commanding the 3rd Divisional area, that the local Squadron requisition Lt.-Col. Munro at Ottawa for uniforms for the men. This means that B Squadron will be outfitted with their service uniforms before leaving Peterborough. The outfits have been ready at Ottawa for some time and will likely be here in a day or two.

The bad weather to-day put an end to route marches and both 36th Battalion and Mounted Rifles drilled in the Armouries. With 200 men training the accommodation of the building is taxed to the utmost. The main hall, the rifle range, band room, recreation room and gun shed are all used for drill purposes.

Tea growing is a fine art. The quality of tea depends on the elevation of the land and the nature of the soil. Cheap teas are produced in vast quantities in the low lying valleys where the humidity encourages the growth of large coarse leaves. On the breezy hill-tops are found the most delicate and tender growths. Salada tea is grown entirely in hill-top gardens, hence its distinctive charm of flavour.

Public Reception To Commissioner

Will Address Meeting in Grand Opera House Next Sunday Afternoon

A great public reception on the part of local citizens will be tendered Commissioner W. J. Richards of the Salvation Army on Sunday afternoon next at the Grand Opera House. Commissioner Richards is the successor to the late Commissioner Rees, and has the reputation of being a very eloquent peaker, and no doubt large crowds will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him. His Worship Mayor Buller will preside, and the City Council and City officials have been invited to attend. The meeting is called for three o'clock in the afternoon.

BRUCE PATTERSON'S NEW "BON-TON" PARLOURS

The fine, large store premises, next E. F. Mason's grocery on George Street, formerly used by the Patriotic Association, has been converted into a handsome barber shop and billiard and pool parlour, for Mr. Bruce Patterson. These premises have been completely overhauled, refitted and refurnished in an up-to-date manner. Mr. Patterson's business, while on Charlotte Street, had grown so fast that he found the old premises inadequate for his expanding trade. He was fortunate in securing a lease of these premises on George Street from the Toronto Loan and Savings Company, where he has prepared for a larger trade. Mr. Patterson intends to conduct a "bon-ton" barber shop on the most modern scale; as well as a well-equipped billiard and pool room, which will be managed in connection, and for which he had installed several brand new expensive tables and modern accessories. He will also carry a select stock of cigarettes and tobaccos and run a shoe shine stand for the convenience of his patrons.

GARBAGE TAXATION

As Enforced by the Legislature May Result in a Direct Appeal to the Provincial Government

CONDITIONS ELSEWHERE

It is understood that further action will be undertaken in connection with the question of garbage taxation for the churches. The city having won its case against George Street Methodist church it remains for the other side to take the initiative. This may take the form of a direct appeal to the Ontario Legislature such as proposed by the Ministerial Alliance of London, Ontario. That the churches in the Western Ontario city are taking cognisance of the garbage taxation is indicated by the following reference as gleaned from a London exchange:

Protest From London.

The municipal committee of the Provincial House at Toronto have agreed to take up the question of garbage taxation for churches in this city as soon as the committee meets.

The Ministerial Alliance of London appointed a committee recently to appeal to the city council, or failing to receive a definite answer to the satisfaction of the churches, to make a direct appeal to the Provincial Government.

According to ministers who have investigated the matter, London churches are the only ones in the province which are taxed in what ministers call an unfair and exorbitant way.

It is likely that a deputation of London ministers will wait upon the provincial committee shortly.

THE SALE OF INFERIOR MEAT

May be Prohibited Within the City

Sanitary Inspector Spence is still on the trail of vendors of inferior meat. Yesterday, the Inspector made a trip of twenty miles to locate a man who, it is alleged, disposed of some "stag" pork in the city, with the result that a number of customers complained. In a letter addressed to Sanitary Inspector Spence, the Veterinary? General of Ottawa expresses the opinion that the class of pork referred to above, is unfit for food and in the writer's own words, "would not be used unless by a person with a very depraved appetite." He suggests that it would be possible for the municipality to pass a by-law prohibiting the sale of "stag" pork within the city limits; also to regulate the sale of meat of any kind.

PROGRAMME FOR TO-NIGHT'S BIG CONCERT

Patriotic Entertainment By Men of 8th C. M. R. and 39th Battalion Will be a Great Success

MANY TICKETS SOLD

The big military concert by the men of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion, in the Grand Opera House, to-night, promises to be the success of the year. The tickets issued yesterday have been going fast, and it is certain that a big crowd will be on hand to honour the soldier boys. The proceeds are to be divided between the Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Society, two worthy objects. The artists taking part had a splendid rehearsal this morning, going through the programme very smoothly, and there is no doubt of the success of the affair. Following is the programme:

1. Overture — Orchestra.
2. Grand Opening Chorus and March, "Soldiers of the King" — 8th C.M.R. chorus.
3. Solo—(a) Sing Me to Sleep; (b), Jack's the Boy, Corp. Geo. Harris, 8th C.M.R.

Drill Has Been Postponed

On Account of the Concert That is Being Held This Evening

The regular weekly drill of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, will not be held this evening on account of the concert that is being given in the Opera House by members of the third Canadian contingent.

Headquarters,
Peterborough, Feb. 23, 1915.

Orders by O. C. 57th Regt., P.R.—

1. The usual weekly regimental drill will not be held this (Tuesday) evening, Feb. 23rd.
2. The Regiment will parade on Tuesday evening, March 2nd, and each subsequent Tuesday as usual.

By Order,
K. G. LEACH, Capt.,
Act. Adjutant.

The Regin Sunk in the English Channel is Thought to Have Been Sent to Bottom by Submarine

CREW WAS SAVED

LONDON, Feb. 22—The Norwegian schooner Regin was sunk in the English Channel to-day. She is believed to have been torpedoed by a German submarine.

An explosion wrecked her while she was picking her way through the Channel, off Dover. Her crew of 22 men were taken off and landed at Dover, by nearby vessels.

Mayor Buller Has Returned

From Kingston Where he Witnessed the Presentation of the Colours

His Worship Mayor Buller has returned from Kingston, where he witnessed the presentation to the 21st Overseas Battalion by the Kingston Veterans' Association of the King's and regimental colours. At a drumhead altar erected in the centre of the Armouries the colours were consecrated by the Bishop of Kingston, assisted by the Dean of Ontario and Capt. Rev. W. E. Kidd, Chaplain of the 21st. The colours were presented by Mrs. Hughes, wife of the Minister of Militia, and received by Lieut.-Col. W. S. Hughes, commanding the 21st Battalion, which was drawn up in a square.

After this ceremonial, addresses were delivered by W. F. Nickle, M.P., Mayor Sutherland, Col. Hughes and Trooper Lorne W. Mulloy, who lost his sight in the Boer war, and who is now Professor of Military History in the Royal Military College. Mrs. Mulloy, who is a noted singer, rendered the English recruiting song, "Your King and Country Need You," and Lieut. Black sang "Johnny Canuth's the Boy," composed and dedicated to the 21st Battalion by Mrs. Mulloy.

The Governor-General was represented at the ceremony by Major Duff, A.D.C., who was wounded in the battle of Mons. The Minister of Militia was unable to attend owing to Parliamentary duties.

After the programme at the Armouries, the 21st Battalion and the veterans paraded to the Market Square, where a military tattoo was held, in which five bands, under Lieut. Light, Bandmaster of the R. C. H. A., participated.

Investigation Under Way

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 23 — Before the Special Parliamentary Committee appointed to probe the soldiers' boots question, this morning, Theodore Galipeau, of Montreal, the whole sale shoe jobber, who was a member of the Special Committee appointed by the Militia Department to examine the boots, was the first witness called. Hon. Charles Murphy questioned him closely in regard to the fact that one report of that committee said that the boots were generally defective, and next day the same committee reported the boots were surprisingly well made, considering the short time available. Galipeau said that in the second report due allowance had been made for the insufficient time given to the manufacture of the shoes Witness said that none of the soldiers to whom shoes were supplied had been called by the committee to give evidence.

ARE TRYING TO INVOLVE STATES

Admiral Sir Chas. Beresford Thinks That Germany Has Two Good Reasons for Seeking to Involve Uncle Sam into the World War--Would Help Him to Save His Fall.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, February 23.—In discussing Germany's submarine warfare, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford expressed the opinion to a correspondent of the United Press that Germany is endeavouring to drag the United States into the war.

"What possible motive could the Kaiser or his advisers have in seeking to involve America?" enquired the correspondent.

He replied: "I will venture two possible answers: First, with America in the war, Germany would be in a better position to quit. The Kaiser would be able to save his face with his people on the ground that the entire world was then against him, and Germany might hope to go down in history as having enacted the under-dog role. Sympathy for the under-dog is often given without analysing the dog's morals or considering the fact that he really deserves to be under.

"The second—and I believe the likelier reason—is the fact that if America should participate in the war she necessarily would participate in the peace negotiations. It is unlikely your country would be invaded or would suffer to the extent our allies have. Therefore America would enter the negotiations without the poignant hatred naturally affecting those countries whose homes have been invaded, cities and farms desolated and people massacred."

IS UNCLE SAM GETTING READY?

TORONTO, February 23.—Has Uncle Sam called in his naval reserves in anticipation of getting into the present big war? At a banquet here last night a man who has served in the United States navy in the Spanish-American war, and has recently returned, said he had been notified by the government at Washington to hold himself in readiness to return to the navy at any moment.

GERMANY'S BOAST

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Feb. 23.—"The English flag has disappeared from the North Sea. In five days Von Tirpitz's new submarine policy has achieved a wonderful victory. Britain's naval power has been humbled before the eyes of the entire world."

This declaration, voiced by a Berlin paper to-day, was typical of the attitude of the German press on the subject of Germany's new submarine warfare on British merchantmen.

FEBRUARY

The Buyer's Opportunity

IF December represents Yule-Tide and holiday time, and January is associated chiefly with bleak days and bleaker nights, February is historic in the merchandising world for value making.

This is the "between seasons" period. Winter shopping is almost done, and Easter buying has not yet commenced.

He is willing to sacrifice profits in order to do this.

And the customer's hour has struck!

Sales of white goods, silks, in afternoon and evening frocks, hats, furs, wraps, waists, in fact in everything, are being advertised.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, FEB. 23, 1915

CITY GARDENING.

The Government is conducting an energetic campaign to stimulate increased production, conjoining with the idea of patriotism—to have the home-stayers do their share as the soldiers who go to fight do theirs. These are two distinct classes; as expressed in the title of the front page carton of the Canadian Liberal Canadian Monthly for February—"The Canadian who enlists to fight, the foe and the one who remains to feed the friend." Britain and her allies expect Canada to do her share of feeding as well as fighting, one as important as the other.

But our present concern is not to suggest increased farm production, but to point out the numerous individual, and immense collective advantages that would result from careful and full cultivation of all the vacant land, attached to the thousands of residences of Peterborough.

Many of these vacant lots in the rear of residences are not now thus employed. A single instance, a typical instances, of the real value of a city garden, will illustrate what would be the result of general cultivation. A young married man in the west end; in a not very favourable season and with lack of experience, but plenty of good will, raised vegetables to the value of $28 off a plot of ground less than forty feet square. That is, he kept a strict tally, and discovered that he would have had to pay at current market prices $28 for the vegetables that went from his little garden plot to his table.

What one has done can be done as well, and, perhaps better, by thousands of others.

The sum of $25 to $30 represents a large hole in the tax bill, and is so much saved. And not only that, but the household gets the benefit of better vegetables, fresher, more tasteful, and more wholesome vegetables. A bundle of crisp radishes, or succulent lettuce, one minute in full growth in the garden, and the next on the table, is something far better than the same articles withered and toughened, used hours after they have been taken from the soil. So with all other products of a garden. Then there is the moral satisfaction of eating of the fruits of one's own labours, the sense of proprietorship, and the consciousness of having created something, and of making the world better and richer from our being in it.

Nothing is more delightful in the long evenings of spring and early summer than digging, planting and tending a little garden—to watch the seeds bursting through the warm soil, and thrusting their tiny lances upward to meet the sunlight and showers. There is pleasure in watching growth from day to day, noting the process of ripening for use ,and there is joy in eating the fresh crisp toothsome vegetables from our own soil, not to speak of the saving in money, or the lack of vegetables, when perhaps money might not be available. There is ample reward and compensation in the labour itself; in an added object in life and a pleasant and profitable employment of time, that might otherwise be spent in profitless idleness or expensive idleness, with its temptations to spend money foolishly.

It would be well, one would think, for all our householders, suitably situated, to make preparations for having a nice little garden the coming spring. It doesn't mean much hard work; and if the heart is in it it becomes pleasure: Shakspere tells us in Macbeth that "the labour we delight in physics pain" — that is dulls the edge of trouble, and especially when the labour of planting and tending a garden is sure to bring delightful and profitable reward.

Many may make the excuse that they do not understand gardening. There is nothing in such an excuse if we want to learn. The young man quoted above had had no experience; but he used his head and had his heart work with it. Any neighbour who knows would be glad to tell another neighbour; and if he wanted really to learn, he could learn.

As an economic factor, the city garden is an important matter. There are perhaps five thousand residences in Peterborough, and assuming that 4,000 of them have little garden plots, with a return, like that of the young man mentioned, of $28 in cash value, there would be an aggregate addition of $112,000 to the income, or money representing income, of householders. Supposing the average profit—the saving in cash to buy a similar amount of products—were only $15, that would represent an addition of $60,000 to the income of the householders of Peterborough.

It seems that the subject is worth thinking over by those concerned or who might profitably be concerned. It will bear further reference and with more practical suggestions. If any one wishes to discuss the subject, the columns of the Examiner will be freely opened to brief, pointed letters, whether seeking or giving information. The subject involves important consideration, touching the welfare of a very large number of our citizens.

WAKE UP THE HEN!

Someone should stir up the Canadian hen and make her realize that we are at war, and that every part of the country should do its best. During the last fiscal year Canada imported 11,260,000 dozen eggs. The eggs came from Great Britain, Hong Kong, Japan, New Zealand and the United States. It is only a few years ago that we were exporting eggs to Great Britain.

VOTES FOR SOLDIERS?

As recently intimated in several Conservative newspapers, the Government is considering an arrangement whereby Canadian soldiers on active service in Europe may be allowed to vote should an election occur while they are out of the country. Notice has been given of the introduction of a bill to this effect. On the face of it, the porposal seems almost unworkable. Conservative papers explain that the ballot would need to be a general one, allowing the soldier to vote for the government, the opposition or independent candidate, if any, and not necessarily bearing the names of the candidates.—Exchange.

AUSTRALIA'S HOME-BUILT NAVY.

The Common wealth of Australia is proceeding successfully and energetically with the building of her own navy, the existing units of which have done much signal service in the cause of the Empire since the war commenced. In the month of December a torpedo-boat destroyer was launched from the Government drydock at Sydney, being the first warship to be built entirely in Australia. This first destroyer is to be followed quickly by two other similar vessels, and by the cruiser Brisbane, the latter a sister ship to the cruiser Sydney which ran down and destroyed the German raider Emden. The Brisbane will be launched this year, and unless the war ends sooner than many experts think likely, may see active service in the present combat.—Exchange.

CANADIAN PENITENTIARIES.

That there has been no improvement in conditions in Canadian penitentiaries in spite of the investigation held a year ago, for which he was primarily responsible, is the charge of Dr. J. W. Edwards, Conservative member of parliament for Frontenac. In a recent letter to the Kingston Daily Standard (Conservative), he strongly condemned the delay and declared that "a long chain of facts forces him to the regrettable conclusion that the Minister of Justice has never been very keen to get at the facts and redress existing grievances and wrongs". In the House of Commons, in speaking to the Bickerdike bill for the abolition of capital punishment, he went even further when he declared that there was a worse thing than hanging, meaning incarceration in some Canadian penitentiaries, under existing conditions. PRAISE FOR THE BRITISH

The Die Zukunft, a political review edited and published in Berlin, by Herr Maxmilian Harden; prints the following:

"The English Army has dissipated many of the prejudices of the tacticians against mercenaries. In the British Isles there are plenty of professions bringing in good money. If a man voluntarily joins the Army instead of becoming a clerk, agent, games-professional, or jobber, then he has done so because he likes it; it is pleasure in his work that raises a man's achievements above the average. On German soil England is still grimly hated, but the German warrior spirit, just in its appreciation, has over and over again praised the courage, stamina and shooting skill of the English.

The beggars are artists. Show them two fingers above the edge of the trench and they hit the mark. Dumdum bullets? Certainly. Still, such things as bomb-splinters, arrows from the sky, bensol, "Minenwerfer" hardly appertain to the armoury of pious knights. Tommy has amazed us. We thought that something ridiculous was on its way to us from the other side of the water. Now, every one takes him seriously. Twice, three times wounded, he fights on. And when in a hand-to-hand struggle he has reached the end of his tether, he tears open his tunic and, with bared breast, flings himself on the glittering steel. Such fighting is worth the doing.

The Place of Fertilization In Increased Farm Production

To Be Read in Connection With the Government Advertisement Re "Patriotism and Production"

Farm manures constitute one of the most important sources of fertility, and no one who would build up his soil intelligently and economically can ignore the results of investigations which have had for their object the study of their nature and best methods of use. Information regarding manures must always be timely, if only for the reason that on all rationally conducted farms they are produced all the year round. In the following paragraphs we merely state in very concise form some of the more important facts respecting manures; the thoughtful farmer will work out from them the methods of handling and using manure best suited to his conditions and circumstances.

Speaking broadly the function of manure in the soil may be said to be twofold, the enrichment of the soil in the essential elements of fertility—nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and the furnishing of humus-forming material for the general improvement of tilth.

The plant food contained in manure is that taken from our fields by the growth of our crops, with probably an additional amount from purchased mill feeds; it stands to reason since the available plant food in soils is not inexhaustible, that if we are to maintain the soil's productiveness we must carefully save and put back into the soil all the manure produced on the farm. And the more we can produce the better, if we would have increased crop yields. The farm's store of manure in some cases might with profit be supplemented by the judicious application of commercial fertilizers, which are to be valued simply for their percentages of plant food, but from an economic standpoint as well as from the very nature of these materials, fertilizers can never be used as a substitute for manure.

Humus is one of the most important constituents of soils It mellows a soil, makes it warmer and more retentive of moisture, and thus renders it a more fitting and comfortable medium for seed germination and root extension; in a word, it pus a soil in good heart. Manure in furnishing humus-forming material (organic matter) supplies what no commercial fertilizer possesses, no matter how rich it may be in plant food. It is humus that gives "life" to the soil, for it is the material upon which the useful micro-organisms feed, organisms that prepare food for farm crops. It is not wise or right, therefore, to value manure simply and solely from its content of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash; it has an additional value for the general improvement of soils that cannot be reduced to dollars and cents—a value unequalled for this purpose by any other material.

Changes which mean decomposition and a certain loss in fertilizing value begin to take place as soon as manure is voided It is practically impossible to get manure into the soil, its best store-house, without some loss; this may be considered inevitable. But there is no necessity for the tremendous losses that undoubtedly occur to-day on many Canadian farms, losses which at a conservative estimate reduce the value of the manure thirty to fifty per cent. These losses are due to fermentation and leaching and take place in the barnyard and manure pile The losses from excessive fermentation are in nitrogen—the most costly of all the elements of plant food—and in organic matter; those from leaching are chiefly in the more soluble nitrogen and potash compounds.

It is evident, therefore, that the sooner the manure can be got into the soil the better, unless for some special purpose rooted manure is required. Rotting for several months in large heaps results in very large losses, and especially so when the manure is in loose unprotected piles. If it is impracticable, by reason of the depth of snow, or the condition of the land, to immediately spread the fresh manure, keep the pile compact and moist and do not turn it. These precautions will minimize the losses.

The liquid portion of the manure is by far the more valuable, for it is not only richer in nitrogen and potash than the solid, but these elements are present in a soluble and immediately available condition and can be at once utilized by crops. It is therefore, the part of wisdom to use sufficient litter in the barns and stables to absorb all the liquid. If the supply of straw is short, sawdust and air-dried peat or muck may be employed as supplemental litter.

The freshest and longest manure should be used on the heavy loams, the oldes ton the light and sandy lands. Do not bury the manure too deeply, when ploughing it under, 4 or 5 inches is sufficient. Apply it with a manure spreader if at all possible, for this implement saves labour and in spreading the manure uniformly does most efficient work. Use the manure for the hoed crop of the rotation corn or roots, and a top dressing early in the season on an impoverished meadow will not infrequently be found to give a good return.—Frank T. Shutt, DSc., Dominion Chemist.

THE MARKETS

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—Business over the cable in Manitoba spring wheat today was dull, owing to the fact that there was no demand whatever from foreign buyers, on account of the weakness in the markets on Saturday and the further decline in prices today. The feature of the spot market was the weaker feeling in oats and prices declined ½c to 1c per bushel. Demand for corn is fair. Flour unchanged with business quiet. Millfeed in good demand at firm prices. Butter strong.

Brig.-Gen. J. E. Gough Dead.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Brig.-Gen. John E. Gough, who took a prominent part in the retreat from Mons and who since then has several times been mentioned in official despatches, has died of wounds received last Saturday.

Brig.-Gen. Gough was born in 1871, the son of Gen. Sir Charles Gough. He had seen service in various campaigns and in 1903 was awarded the Victoria Cross while in command of the British force at Daratoleh, Africa. He was an aide-de-camp to King George.

Russia To Invade Turkey?

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23. — (Via London.)—The Deutsch Tags Zeitung publishes an official despatch from Sofia which says the Russians are concentrating large forces at Odessa in readiness to ship them to Midia, on the Black Sea, 60 miles northwest of Constantinople, for an attack on the Turkish capital.

Wheat opened firm on the Winnipeg market this morning with May 1½c higher than Saturday's close, and July ½c higher. Oats were ½c higher on May and ¼c lower on July. Flax opened 1¾c to 2c lower.

Liverpool cables were 6d to 9d per quarter lower, and the favorable progress made by the allied fleets in the task of opening the Dardanelles was the influencing factor. Washington's Birthday celebrations caused a right quieter market than usual.

In the future market there was heavy trading, May previous to noon being $1.54¾, and July $1.54¾. May oats were 66¾c bid, and July 67¾c bid, which showed steady on the former month and ¼c higher for July.

There was nothing doing in expert circles. While there was a firm enquiry for cash wheat, there were no offerings. Buyers of both cash wheat and oats were indifferent and hesitating, in view of the trend of events in the old world.

Inspections on Saturday totaled 230 cars, as compared with 141 cars last year, and in eight today were 500 cars.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $5.25 to $6; medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Prices were unchanged for milkers and springers, the values ranging from $60 to $85 each.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $10.50; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $5 to $6.50; eastern calves, $4 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

Choice light lambs sold at $8.75 to $9, and a few extra light weights, $9.25 to $9.50; heavy lambs and culls, $7.50 to $8.50; light sheep, $5.75 to $6.25; heavy sheep, $4.50 to $5.50.

Hogs.

Hogs were steady in value. Selects, weighed off cars, sold at $7.50, and $7.65 fed and watered, and $7.75 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, owing to the more seasonable weather, the lighter run of cattle and the improved quality, there was a firmer feeling in the market, but prices showed no actual change. Demand from packers was fair for carload lots, and choice steers sold at $7.40 to $7.50, but the bulk of the trading was done in steers, ranging from $6.50 to $7, while the butchers paid for small picked lots an advance of 25c per hundred pounds over the above figures. Canning stock was in demand, bulls bringing $4.25 to $4.50, and cows, $3.75 to $4 per cwt.

Sheep and lambs strong, owing to limited supplies coming forward. Ontario lambs sold at $8.75 to $9, and Quebec stock at $8.25 to $8.50, and ewes brought $6.25 to $6.50 per cwt.

Calves in good demand. Prices range from $5 to $15.

Hogs steadier, with a fair trade. Sows sold at $6.25, and stags at $4.25 per cwt., weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Cattle—Receipts, 2000; market steady. Beeves, $5.30 to $8.75; stockers and feeders, $5.30 to $6.75; cows and heifers, $2.80 to $7.65; calves, $7 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 26,000; market higher; light, $6.80 to $6.75; mixed, $6.50 to $6.75; heavy, $6.50 to $6.70; rough, $6.50 to $6.70; pigs, $6.10 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $6.55 to $6.65.

LINDSAY ONE GOAL UP ON COLLEGIANS

Margin is Not Big Enough to Carry Them Through the Return Game on the Arena—Midgets Win Lively Battle on Their Own Ice

Lindsay juniors nosed out 'Varsity in the first game of the junior O.H.A. semi-finals at Lindsay last night by 4 to 3, but 'Varsity should have little difficulty in winning the round, judging by last night's battle. The small rink and soft ice favoured Lindsay, but in spite of this big advantage, and the fact that 'Varsity played safe and were content to keep the home team's scoring down, it was an even up tussle. Lindsay played their heads off to win, and they deserved to win on the way they worked, but an impartial observer could not help feeling that the Collegians were the better team. The students have speed and cleverness and on fast ice and with more room they would undoubtedly show grand team work. They managed to get away several times together for goals and the way they passed the rubber was a sample of what they can do under favourable conditions. They have a grand defence in Ramsay and Sheldon and their forward line is fast and unselfish. They know what to do when they get in close, and altogether look like a grand junior team.

'Varsity used the right tactics to offset the advantages the rink and ice gave the homesters. Instead of trying to stick-handle away from their own nets they batted or slammed the rubber down the rink. Golf strokes, baseball drives, anything to get rid of the puck, by far the best policy under the circumstances and helped materially in keeping the score down.

Lindsay worked hard all the way. They realized that they needed a good lead to take to the Arena with them and they tried all they knew. It was a grand argument, with the checking and back-checking of both teams close and hard. There were few opportunities given to ramble in on the defence without some opposition from behind.

For 'Varsity, Sheldon on the defence was especially prominent, while all the forward line did fine work. Art Carew was most effective for Lindsay on the attack, and his brother did some grand back checking. The defence was good. Flavelle and Haugh are showing constant improvement, and the latter played a particularly good game last night. O'Loughlin was superb in the nets.

Lindsay had the edge in the first period. The small rink bothered 'Varsity and they could not get going. Lindsay buzzed around and gave Malone a lot of hard work to do. Three minutes after the face-off Art Carew scooped Goal No. 1 in from well outside. It was even up for the next ten minutes and then Art Carew found the nets once again on a long shot from the side. That left it 2—0 and the figures remained at that point until a minute before the end of the period. Saunders dodged inside on a nice rush and Stratton batted in the rebound for 'Varsity's first goal.

In the second period 'Varsity looked more at home and had the better of the going, outscoring Lindsay 2 to 1. Soon after the face-off, Smythe and Gouinlock combined beautifully for a goal by the latter, tying the score. Lindsay went out in front again 45 seconds later when Chick Carew beat Malone after a face-off near 'Varsity nets. 'Varsity evened up before the period ended, Smythe finding the nets from a scrimmage.

Lindsay showed more pep in the final session and had a little the better of the argument. McElroy scored the only goal following a rush by Chuck Carew. 'Varsity had several golden chances to tie it up, but O'Loughlin's cleverness beat them.

A number of Peterborough fans saw the battle, the party including Pete Spratt, Chas. Paton, A. H. Stratton, Harold Morrow, Peter Gettas, Harold Knapman, Roy Smyth, V. E. Craig, Harold McGill, Jack O'Brien, Gordon Long and Fred Moran.

The teams were:

'Varsity		Lindsay
	Goal
Malone		O'Loughlin
	Defence
Sheldon		Flavelle
Ramsay		Haugh
	Rover
Gouinlock		C. Carew
	Centre
Smythe		McElroy

SOME OF THE FACTS OF THE JOHNSON-WILLARD BOUT

Perhaps you're not a fight fan. Perhaps you are. Whether one or not, you certainly have heard about the Johnson-Willard bout they're to pull off some time next month. And hearing something, you have heard nothing good. Every sport writer in the country unites in denouncing the bout, says it's a farce, crooked, not on the square. But why stage it if the popular opinion is so unanimous against it, is your question. How will the promoters make money, how will they clear expenses? The promoters themselves explain the situation about as follows:

The bout is a poor attraction at best, Willard never having been "proved," while Johnson is 37 years of age.

The distance from the big fight centers and the alleged scarcity of money make it unlikely that the attendance from remote points will be worth mentioning.

Cost of Scrap $75,000.

Hints of a "frame up" in favour of Willard are already strong.

The cost of producing the show is terrific, including: A $50,000 guarantee to Johnson, $15,000 guarantee to Willard, $5,000 to build an arena and rent the Juarez track for two days, $10,000 promoting expenses, and the cost of $2,000 soldiery and Villa's "protection." A total outlay of not less than $75,000 would thus seem necessary.

Where is all this to come from and how can the syndicate escape with a profit?

The answer:

In the first place, we may begin by recalling that Curley has been identified with some failures; but not with a loser. Witness the Hackenschmidt-Gotch wrestling match, which yielded an awful odour—and $97,000 gate receipts.

Seats for 23,000 Persons.

Curley probably figures about as follows:

[illegible] will be worth several thousand dollars, especially if Willard wins.

El Paso and nearby Texas towns will be able to supply enough attendance, at from $5 to $25 per head, to fill partly the 23,000 capacity arena.

Every race track bookie, horseman, and turf follower now at Juarez will be at the fight—a clientele of over 1,000.

The fight was dated to suit a big convention which will be held at El Paso the week of the contest.

El Paso is a convenient stop over for passengers en route to the Panama and San Diego expositions.

It appears from this that the big arena ought to be filled or near it. If completely occupied, the syndicate would clean up, the capacity house being about $275,000.

In addition, Curley and his associates bank on Willard's winning. If he does, they will have a genuine gold mine for at least a year in managing the first white world's champion to hold the title in seven years.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

After the programme of games and music, the boys sat down to a fine supper which their good mothers had helped to provide. After supper the club held a short business meeting, at which they decided to increase the Bible Study attendance and try to get as many boys as possible to join the Pocket Testament League.

To-night at 7.30 sharp, Intermediate "Gymn" Class.

Wednesday evening, at 7.30 sharp, a boy's mid-week meeting will be held. The Boys' Secretary will have charge of the meeting, and every boy in the Association between the ages of 14 to 17 is invited to be present.

Saxons Asked Immunity.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—According to an officer who writes from a British trench in Flanders, this sign was posted by the Germans in a nearby trench:

"We are Saxons; you are Anglo-Saxons. Keep your bullets for the Prussians, who relieve us to-night."

He says that immediately after posting this notice the Saxons perched themselves on their trench tops, fit their pipes and enjoyed their ease until a volley over their heads sent them back to their trenches.

PASSES ARE FORBIDDEN.

Austrian Troops Have Mined Roads Along Italian Frontier.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Chronicle has the following from Geneva: All along the Swiss-Italian frontier, touching the Tyrol, and even as far as the Adriatic, German and Austrian troops have been concentrating for several days. They are chiefly engineers and artillery, who have placed guns in the best positions. Some of them on the Alpine passes dug miles of trenches and undermined the principal routes. Trieste and Fiume, for example, have become dangerous even for civilian inhabitants, many of whom have been killed by the sudden explosion of mines. Near a town on the lonely-three-cornered frontier in the Alps, where the three countries meet at a height of 5,000 to 8,000 feet, the Swiss, Italian and Austrian sentries now frequently fraternize in the deep snow. A Swiss sentry is generally the interpreter. The Austrian transported from the other end of his country does not know why he is fighting.

Concessions To Italy Urged.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Frankfurter Zeitung, in a leading article, suggests that Austria should make territorial concessions to Italy to insure the latter's neutrality, according to the Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. The paper is quoted as saying:

"It is not conceivable that the correction of the frontier should in any way be prejudicial to the position of Austria-Hungary as a great power seeing that she has recently so brilliantly displayed her strength against mighty Russia."

The article suggests the holding of a conference by Germany, Austria and Italy to discuss their grievances.

Observatory Erected By Swiss.

PARIS, Feb. 23. — A Belfort despatch to the Havas Agency says that an observatory has been erected on a height near Bonfol in Switzerland, where the movements of French and German troops can be watched. A Swiss military balloon has also appeared in the same neighborhood.

VANCEBORO, Me., Feb. 22.—The request of the Canadian Government for the extradition of Werner Horn, who tried to blow up the international bridge over the St. Croix river, on Feb. 2, asserting that he did it as an act of war, will be heard before a federal commissioner in Boston next Wednesday at 10 o'clock, it was learned yesterday. Fourteen witnesses from this town have been summoned in connection with the case.

Owners of Evelyn Waive Protest.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. — William L. Harriss, of the firm which owned the steamship Evelyn, sunk in the North Sea Saturday, announced yesterday that his firm would make no protest to the State Department as he considered the loss of the ship due to a war risk which he had taken. The Department, however, has ordered Naval Attache U. S. Gherhardi in Germany to make a full report.

MANY PROTESTS RECEIVED.

Patent Medicine Men Object To Proposed Stamp Tax.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23. — The Opposition had its thirst for information pretty well satisfied during question time in the House yesterday, some two score questions relating principally to the Government's conduct of the war, being answered.

The Minister of Finance informed Hon. Rodolph Lemieux that protests were being received from manufacturers and dealers in patent medicines against the new stamp taxes.

In reply to a series of questions by Hon. Frank Oliver, regarding the Stefansson expedition, Hon. Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine, informed the House that nothing as yet has been heard from the missing men of the Karluk since the wreck of the vessel in January, 1914. Search parties had been sent to Wrangell Island, where the missing men were heading when last seen, but no trace of them could be found, and they had been given up for lost.

Turks Massacred Armenians.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23.—Only now are details becoming available of the horrors perpetrated by the Turks during the occupation of Ardahan, near the trans-Caucasian frontier. The Tiflis correspondent of The Russkoe Slovo learns that at first the enemy confined themselves to pillage and slew only fifteen civilians, but after Dec. 30, when news of the Russian occupation of Ardahan was received, local Musaulmans threw off the mask, and the same evening organized a systematic massacre, and 150 Armenians were led out into the street and shot, or had their throats cut.

ST. ANDREWS-BY-THE-SEA. NEW CONCRETE FIRE-PROOF ALGONQUIN HOTEL.

The palatial Algonquin Hotel, newly constructed, absolutely fire-proof in every respect, overlooking the famous Passamaquoddy Bay, with its world-wide reputation, golf links, and salt sea bathing, makes this resort America.

The new, concrete, fire-proof hotel stands on a cite of 28,000 feet, has accommodation for 250 guests. The dining-room measures 41½ x 112 ft., the lounge room 26½ x 89½ ft., drawing room 27 x 38½ ft. There is also a children's dining-room and a very cosy smoking room. The hotel contains 97 bedrooms with private baths and 22 adjoining rooms with private lavatories. This hotel has all the accessories to afford every comfort to the most fastidious tourist.

This famous resort is frequented by the most prominent people in America on account of the wonderful opportunities which it affords them, such as salt sea bathing, canoeing, yachting, motor boating, fishing, also the celebrated 18-hole, 7,000-yard golf course, which is second to none in the world.

There is also the famous new Casino, providing all modern indoor games and a high-class ballroom with excellent music, affording the guests the opportunity to dance whenever they desire.

The Algonquin Hotel is open from about June 15th to September 15th, and any person contemplating spending the summer at this fashionable resort should make application at once for hotel accommodation to the Manager at St. Andrews, and any further information or booklets on this resort may be obtained by applying to Mr. M. G. Murphy, D.P.A., Canadian Pacific Railway, Toronto.

DOC REISLING ON THE CANADIAN LEAGUE OUTLOOK

"This will be a crucial season for the Canadian League," says "Doc" Reisling, manager of the London Canadian League team, "but with careful management I think the circuit will be able to weather it out. It is up to Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton clubs, though, whether the League pulls through or not. I know that London, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Brantford and Guelph (if that city is admitted) will live up to the rules as to the salary limit, but those other cities, which have the money and can get the crowds are the ones that have to be watched. In Toronto it is easy for the club there to get players from the International League, and pay them so much from the Canadian League side and so much from the International League. Ottawa, too, has a tendency to pay big prices in order to get players, especially toward the end of the season, when the team needs strengthening.

"The Canadian League will have a salary limit of $1600 this season and if every club keeps within this limit it will be lovely. It is when the clubs start to strengthen up by getting players who demand bigger prices that the trouble starts.

"The smaller towns cannot pay these prices and get these better players, and the result is they get behind and the fans lose interest in the race. The Canadian League can provide just as good baseball as last season, by adhering to this limit all over the circuit."

Manager Reisling states that he will have only fifteen players report in London, and will carry only about thirteen or fourteen during the season. He says good players are demanding high prices, but later on in the season will be secured for lower salaries "The players have been used to getting good salaries," he said, "and they won't come down a bit until the clubs show them that they cannot afford to pay them the money they ask."

THREE BIG GAMES IN THE "Y" LEAGUE

A trio of fast basketball games are scheduled on the "Y" floor for Wednesday night, Feb. 24, starting at 8 o'clock. The first game is between Crossmans vs. De Laval. Crossmans were the runners-up in the last league, and should make a good bid for first place in the present one. As they have strengthened their team, De Laval are at present an unknown quantity, as they have not been together before, but the team is made up of good men. At 8.40 the Excelsiors and Unknowns will take the floor. The Excelsiors demonstrated their ability in the last league. The name of their opponents is most significant as they have just organized. Two of the veterans are on the teams, and they have corralled a group of speedy youngsters to work with them. So the team loks like one, that it will take considerable brawn as well as basketball ability to beat. The 9.30 fixture will be well worth stopping for, as Richardson and Best, of veteran fame, are captaining these teams, and each will outdo himself to bring his team out on top. There is a rumour that Richardson slipped one over on Dobbin in last Saturday night's game. So Capt. Best, with his group of Boosters, will be out in full force to meet any kind of manoeuvers the Maple Leafs may have up their sleeve.

Come out boys and see the fun. Bring your girl.

CURLING ACTIVITIES HAVE BEEN SUSPENDED

The weather has lulled curling into a gentle sleep, from which it can be awakened only by a big zero boise. Temporarily the game is on the blind. Divers competitions are being suspended on account of the tendency to shiah, and there will have to be some real action if these contests are to be played. The scheduled games period is extended to March 6, by which date all postponed games must be completed.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald and R. G. Sturgeon are slated for Campbellford on Thursday to play for the Seymour Power Trophy. This is Bob Sturgeon's favourite stamping ground, and with a repetition of past performances should make a good showing with J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

Building Submarines In Belgium.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23—(Via London.) — The Nieuw Rotterdamsche Courant says it learns from Antwerp that German submarines are still being built in the docks at Hoboken, Belgium, and that when they are completed they will be sent to Zeebrugge or Ostend.

A Letter From The Front

Mrs. Brown Who Has Many Relatives Here Receives Word From Her Husband—Saw the Princess Pats Going Into Action

In a letter from the seat of war, to Mrs. Brown, formerly Miss Alice Sedgwick, of Gelert, Mr. Brown tells of life at the front, he having arrived at the firing line on October 15th, and was through the battle at the Ypres River. He has travelled all through the north of France and Belgium with an anti-aircraft detachment, which has been credited with having brought down seventeen German aeroplanes, which had been dropping bombs, some of which fell within a few yards of them. Mr. Brown has a piece of shell which exploded near him, killing and wounding ten of their horses. He says the soldiers are well looked after. He spent Christmas Day in the trenches and says they had a pretty good time, considering they were on active service. He says we have no idea of the terrible work the Germans have done, and the devastation caused by the destruction of the fine French and Belgian towns that have been shelled to the ground; but they are paying a heavy price by the loss of thousands of men. He was resting twenty miles from the ring line when he wrote, and says the British artillery is doing splendid work. He saw the Princess Patricia Regiment going to the firing line and recognized some of his old Toronto friends with them.

Mr. Brown sent to his wife the boxes in which they received Princess Mary's gift of pipe and tobacco, also the card from the King and Queen and a letter from Sir John French.

Mr. Brown is a veteran of the South African war, and, as a British reservist, left Toronto in August to rejoin his regiment.—Minden Echo.

Mrs. Brown, whose name appears in the above article, has many relatives in Peterborough.

STYLISH CORSETS FOR FASHIONABLE WOMEN

ALL the demands of modern fashion are met in every way by the "D & A" and "LA DIVA" Corsets.

They shape the figure without undue pressure, hold up the bust and eliminate the hips, giving to the form that supple grace and slimness which is the aim of every well dressed woman.

The "D & A" and "LA DIVA" Corsets are made in a variety of styles to suit every taste: they embody all the main features of the highest class corset, while their price will please those who value economy as well as elegance.

Commission Is Liable

To Pay Compensation As Provided For in the Act—Meeting of Utilities Commission

At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission, which was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, solicitor for the Commission, submitted a report on the Workmen's Compensation Act. Mr. Hall's report read as follows:

"The Workmen's Compensation Act does not apply to persons engaged in clerical work and not exposed to the hazards incident to the nature of the work carried on in the employment, but practically to everyone else in the employment of the Commission and when personal injury, by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, is caused to any such person, the Commission will be liable to pay the compensation provided for in the Act, unless the injury does not disable the employee for at least seven days or it is attributable solely to his serious and wilful misconduct, unless the injury results in death or serious disablement, and according to the letter from the Chief Auditor of the Workmen's Compensation Board of the 12th inst., the Commission is individually liable to pay this compensation and should be protected by an accident policy.

In connection with the above, a letter was read from the Davis-Thompson Company quoting rates for an indemnity policy, namely three per cent. on the pay roll for the Hydro-Electric department and three and a half per cent. for the Waterworks Department.

The matter was left over for discussion.

A GROWING ORGANIZATION

Mr. Joseph Wearing, M.A., was the speaker at last night's meeting of All Saints' Church Association. The subject of Mr. Wearing's address was "A Contrast between the two philosophies of life." A musical programme followed. The Association which had its inception in October last, has a membership of three hundred. Meetings are held semi-monthly.

Condition of Provincial Finances

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—A net deficit for 1914 of over $4,000,000 is the outstanding fact revealed by the presentation of the public accounts of the Province tabled in the Legislature on Monday. The Government does not admit that the deficit reaches such proportions, but an examination of the actual accounts shows this to be the case. Even on the Government's own statement the deficit is $698,000, apart from expenditures on Government House and other buildings. It might be claimed that war expenditures account for this, but, as a matter of fact, the expenditures on war, except for a few minor items, amount only to $15,000 to the Belgian Relief Fund and $279,806 as the gift of flour to Great Britain, leaving an admitted deficit apart from war expenditures of $403,000.

The amount of the deficit is not more disquieting than the actual aggregate of the expenditures which this year, deducting capital expenditures on Hydro-Electric and T.N.O., amount to 15,378,837, whereas in 1904 the total expenditures were $5,267,453, or a difference as follows:

Difference	$10,111,384

It may be asked why there is such a big difference between the Government's estimate of a deficit of $698,000 and the real deficit of over $4,000,000. One or two instances may help to clear up this point. In the first place—in the table of current receipts for the year is included the sum of $544,491, proceeds of Dominion Subsidy for the T.N.O. Railway. This is counted out on the expenditure side but it appears there under the heading of capital expenditures. There is thus the surprising fact that an item of half a million is credited on the receipt side to current accounts, but on expenditures to capital account, which thus makes the ordinary receipts obviously half a million more than they should be and makes the Government's admitted deficit on current account of $698,000 too small by this one item alone of over half a million dollars.

An even more essential point in regard to this half million item is that it should not appear in the accounts at all, and the Provincial auditor openly disowns it. With the item is an asterisk with a signed note from payments in connection with these items." As a matter of fact this amount was received the year previous and was credited under the head of capital receipts. It looks like a clear case of juggling with figures to mislead the public as to the real condition of the finances of the Province and it is safe to predict that the Opposition will make vehement protests against such a system of book-keeping.

The admitted deficit is also made to appear smaller than it should be by the inclusion, under the heading of capital expenditures, of a large number of accounts for buildings and other items which, under the system of book-keeping in force in 1904, were made to pay for themselves out of the current revenue.

The net results, therefore, are that the deficit of the Province of Ontario for the year 1914 stands at over $4,000,000, and that even the Government admits, for the first time, that there is a deficit at all.

SALVATION ARMY BRANCH SUNDAY SCHOOL PLANNED

Lot Has Been Purchased in Byersville to Meet the Growth of New Sunday School

The work of the Salvation Army's Sunday School in the Byersville suburb has progressed to the stage that a lot has been purchased on Chamberlain street, west, and a Sunday School will be erected this Spring. At least it is the intention of the officers to go ahead with the building as soon as possible. The branch Sunday School has been held in the Orange Hall, ear May's School House, where its success was pronounced from the beginning. Mr. R. C Braund, Superintendent of the Sunday School at the Simcoe Street Temple, has been giving the matter considerable attention. The Scholars' Corps purchased the lot on the north side of Chamberlain street, four lots west of Byer's store. With a very central location a Sunday School building, built with an eye to the future, should be forthcoming in a short of this branch. Further particulars should be forthcoming in a short time, especially in regard to the building plans.

BRIEF SESSION OF HIGH COURT ADJOURNED UNTIL TO-MORROW

His Honour Judge Huycke Opened Spring Assizes in Absence of Mr. Justice Britton—Principal Case is Charge of Murder Against Edgar Gross.

JUDGE'S ADDRESS TO JURY

His Honour Judge Huycke opened the annual spring Assizes of the High Court at the Court-House this afternoon in the absence of Mr. Justice Britton, of Toronto.

After the Grand Jurors were sworn, Judge Huycke addressed them upon their duties with particular attention to the charge against Edgar Gross, who is held for the death of William O'Brien.

The members of the bar present were: Messrs. E. A. Peck, F. D. Kerr, G. N. Gordon, Basil D. Hall, Jno. Green, Geo. Sherry and Howard Shaver, of Toronto, who is assisting the Crown.

The Grand Jury is composed of the following: R. J. G. Sutherland (foreman), Benjamin Caldwell, Hiram Fry, Patrick Farley, J. B. Moore, Ed. Martin, Robert Maniece, Charles McClellan, John McCann, W. B. Warne, Jas. A. Young, W. J. Byers and G. A. Brethen.

Mr. Byers and Mr. Brethen were selected from the Petit Jury to replace Milford Northey and Samuel Wilson. Judge Huycke explained that Mr. Northey is ill in the hospital, and Mr. Wilson has been away for some time and could not be summoned.

Only two cases are before the Court in this Assize. One is that of Benj. Clute vs. the G. T. R., in which the plaintiff claims damages for the loss of a foot while in their employ. The other is the charge of murder against Edgar Gross.

ADJOURNED UNTIL WEDNESDAD

The Court-room was almost crowded when Judge Huycke began his address, a splendid effort explanatory of the Grand Jury's duties, and of the degrees of murder, concluding with a thoughtful reference to a phase of the present world war. The gallery was slightly disappointed upon the brief session of the Court, which was adjourned until one o'clock to-morrow, when Mr. Justice Britton will commence the hearing of the several cases on the docket.

JUDGE HUYCKE'S ADDRESS.

His Honour, in addressing the Grand Jury, indicated their dual activities, the one to examine and report upon the administration of justice, the care of unfortunates, and the condition of public buildings in the City and county. The other was to hear the Crown's evidence against the prisoner in the single criminal case before the Court, and to decide upon the bill to be returned. Only eight inmates were reported on the jail register, and all of them are incarcerated for minor offences. Judge Huycke instructed the jury that it was their duty to investigate the treatment of these prisoners and the general conditions under which they are handled. His Honour also pointed out that the circumstances of the holding of a young girl in the jail might be enquired into the reported upon.

In referring to the criminal case, which he asked them to consider first, Judge Huycke reviewed concisely and briefly the various degrees of criminality in the taking of a human life: 1st, murder; 2nd, manslaughter; 3rd, justifiable homicide; 4th, excusable homicide; 5th, homicide by misadventure. The last mentioned would be the taking of life purely by accident; homicide is excusable, the fourth case, when it is a question of one man's life or another's, for example, killing in self-defence; an example of the third degree is the killing of soldiers in battle. The Grand Jury was not concerned with these, but with the first two degrees. His Honour continued his differentiation between these degrees, laying stress upon the elements of interest and premeditation.

In conclusion His Honour alluded to the war and to the enemy's violation of the International law regarding war. He did not believe all the stories of atrocities related of the Germans, but enough was actually known and proved that Germany and to an extent her allies had been guilty of a complete return to Bismark's idea of might preceding right. In the treatment of women and children, of clergy, in the destruction of art treasures and places of worship, the International law which guaranteed protection to all these, was set at naught. Britain and her allies were fighting for democracy and must win.

Mr. and Mrs. Nerlich.—Chief Justice Sir Wm. Mulock, in the Criminal Assizes of the Toronto Police Court, decided that "conspiracy to trade and give information to the enemy" did not come under the list of treasonable offences and te conspiracy charge against Mr. E. Nerlich and his wife was reduced to that of "conspiring to commit an indictable offence." This ruling does not affect the charge of treason against Mr. Nerlich, upon which he will be tried as soon as the conspiracy charge is finished. The indictment charges the Nerlichs with conspiracy to assist Arthur Zirsow, alleged ex-German officer, to leave the country, conspiracy to give information to the enemy and conspiracy to trade with said enemy.

RUDYARD KIPLING'S PLEA FOR BANDS

At a meeting held at the Mansion House, London, a few weeks back, for the purpose of raising funds to provide bands for the new units of the British Army, Mr. Rudyard Kipling delivered a speech on the influence of Regimental Bands on military efficiency, which has attracted much attention. Mr. Kipling, in the course of his speech, remarked that the new regiments "were quite rightly born in silence, but that is no reason why they should walk in silence for the rest of their lives. At present, unfortunately, most of them are obliged to walk in silence, or to no better accompaniment than whistles, concertinas, and other meritorious, but inadequate, instruments of music, which they provide for themselves In the beginning this did not matter so much. There were more urgent needs to be met; but now that the new armies are what they are, we, who cannot assist them by joining their ranks, owe it to them to provide them with more worthy music for their help, and comfort and honour."

Speaking of the relationship of the band to the regiment Mr. Kipling remarked: No one, not even the adjutant, can say for certain where the soul of a battalion lives; but the expression of that soul is often found in the band. It stands to reason that a body of 1,200 men whose lives are pledged to each other's keeping, must have some common means of expressing their thoughts and moods to themselves and to their world. The Band can feel the mood and interpret the thought. A wise and sympathetic bandmaster—and most of them I have known have been that—can lift a battalion out of depression, cheer its sickness, and steady and recall it to itself in times of almost unendurable strain. You will remember a beautiful poem by Sir Henry Newbolt, describing how a squadron of "weary big dragoons" were led on to renewed effort by the strains of a penny whistle and a child's drum, taken from a toyshop in a wrecked French town.

And I remember, in a cholera camp where the men were suffering very badly, the Band of the 10th Lincolns started a regimental sing-song one night with that queer defiant tune, "The Lincoln Poacher." You know the words. It was merely their regimental march, which the men had heard a thousand times. There was nothing in it except—except all England—all the East Coast—all the fun and daring and horseplay of young men bucketting about the big pastures by moonlight. But, as it was given, very softly, at that bad time, in that terrible camp of death, it was the one thing in the world which could have restored—as it did—shaken men to pride, humour and self-control. This is, perhaps, an extreme case, but by no means an exceptional one. A man who has had any experience of the service can testify that a Battalion is better for music at every turn, happied, easy to handle, and with greater zest for its deadly routine if that routine is sweetened by melody and rhythm—melody for the mind and rhythm for the body.

"Our new armies, as we know, have not been well served in this essential. Of all the admirable qualities they have shown none is more wonderful than the spirit which has carried them through the laborious and distasteful groundwork of their calling without a note of music except what that same indomitable spirit supplied—out of its own head. We have all seen them marching through the country or through London streets, in absolute silence, as the crowd through which they pass as silent as themselves for lack of the one medium that they could convey and glorify the thoughts which are in all men's minds to-day. We are a tongue-tied breed at the best. The Band can declare on our behalf, without shame or shyness, something of what we feel, and so help us to reach a hand towards the men who have risen up to save us."

Speaking of the financial issue involved Mr. Kipling remarked:

"The most useful thing that a civilian can do in these busy days is to speak as little as possible, and, if he feels moved to write, to confine his efforts to his cheque-book".

ECONOMICAL MACHINES

Has it impressed itself on your mind, as a practical man, selling farm crops in the form of milk through the medium of cows' manufacturing apparatus, that possibly some of this animated machinery needs overhauling and closely examining? A new machine, running more economically, may save a manufacturer its cost several times over in a very short while. So if your cows were regarded in this light, some might be found to be very economical producers, and possibly the less said about the capacity of others the better.

Some cow-testing figures given to the Dairy Division, Ottawa, by dairy farmers, prove that some herds of cows produce milk at a feed cost of $1.45 per 100 pounds, while close by are other herds, whose average cost of production is only eighty cents per hundred pounds of milk. Again, between two cows in the same herd the cost of feed per pound of butter-fat is frequently found to vary as much as from twenty-three to forty-nine cents.

What is of importance to the average dairyman is this fact, that cow-testing helps to put each cow in the herd on a good paying basis very quickly. A simple plan of weighing and testing each individual cow's milk soon discovers if any unit machines in the milk-making factory are not in good economical running order. Then plans are laid for keeping the type of cow that makes twenty or thirty dollars or more clear profit above the cost of feed. Does each one of your cows do that? It will pay you to find out.

If necessary, the nut trees of the world could supply nourishment to its entire population.

Province Has Exceeded Revenue For The Year By $627,928

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—The public accounts of Ontario were brought into the House yesterday by Hon. T. W. McGarry as the initial act of his new office as Provincial Treasurer. In summary, they show that the expenditure of the financial year which closed on Oct. 31 exceeded the receipts by $627,928, the deficit being due to the increased cost of public service, while the revenue showed little increase. In spite of the measures taken last year by new taxes, the spending of approximately one million dollars in branches of public service occasioned the shortage at the year's end.

The current account revenue for the year was $11,122,382, and a large receipt in this came from the consolidated revenue fund as an adjustment of the balance of the T. & N. O. Railway. The revenue coming through ordinary channels has both been increased by $400,000, the T. & N. O. contribution last year being $954,629, and supplementing other sources to roll up a total of $11,188,382.

The statement this year shows that succession duties and corporation taxes boosted the income, the latter bringing in $1,286,308, and the former $1,196,818. Hydro-Electric interest charges on loans account for $100,000 more, and, in spite of food and financial conditions, public institutions added $50,000 more to the treasury.

For an hour and a half the matter of Ontario nickel engaged the attention of the Legislature yesterday, and both Premier and leader of the Opposition went into minute analyses of the situation in its economical and imperial aspects. The subject was raised on a motion of N. W. Rowell, K.C., for a return showing copies of all communications on the manufacture or export of the mineral which had been passed between Ontario and the British Government.

The Premier stated that any correspondence they held was in a confidential capacity from Ottawa. He could give further assurance that since war broke out no nickel had reached the enemy. The Federal Government would have to assume responsibility for giving particular information to the public.

Allies May Unite Against Germany's Submarine Tactics

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The wasp of modern warfare, the submarine, by means of which Germany has declared she will blockade the British Isles, daily becomes a factor of more and more importance in the great war of Europe with respect to its influence on the policies of the nations engaged in connection with the contraband question, so vital to neutral states.

Almost coincident with the unofficial reports that Austria proposes to follow the example of her ally by making war on merchant ships in the Adriatic, came the announcement by Premier Asquith in the British House of Commons that the much-discussed retaliatory plan of Great Britain, though still tentative, was much broader in scope than had been previously suggested, in that it was a matter for the consideration of all the allies, concerning which a joint note from the allies might be expected.

The statement was likewise made in the House of Commons that the British Government might deem it necessary to alter its decision whereby cotton up to the present has not been classed as contraband.

Harold J. Tennant, Under Secretary for War, stated that when the decision was reached not to make cotton contraband, the Government believed that the requirements of Germany were already satisfied, but, he added, "this attitude must be revised from time to time."

The day passed without news of any additional merchant ships, belligerent or neutral, having fallen a victim to a German submarine, but three small British craft are missing and fears are expressed as to their fate.

Amsterdam reports that two German submarines are overdue at their base, Cuxhaven, but whether they have been sunk is not known.

NATIONAL GUARDSMAN WRITES OLD COMRADES FROM TRENCHES

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Feb. 23.—Corporal William Kysh, of Company C, Twenty-second Corps of Engineers of New York National Guard, who served in the regular army in the Philippines in 1900, where he was twice wounded, is fighting in Europe in the British army, where he has been promoted to corporal. Corporal Kysh, in the Twenty-second corps, was known as one of its best soldiers, and Captain C. L. Levien, of Company G, praises him highly. The corporal has been having a hard time in the trenches in front of the Germans, and in a letter to a friend in this city received last week tells of his experiences.

Kysh enlisted as a private in Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and was honourably discharged from the Twenty-second Corps of Engineers. He is in the Second company, Sixth platoon of the Canadian regiment which is attached to the Eightieth brigade, Twenty-seventh division of the British army. His letter, which was sent through the field post office of the army, is dated January 20, from a place unnamed, and says:

"If I am spared after this great war I shall be glad to rejoin the old twenty-second, N.G.N.Y., as I think a great deal of all the boys in Company G, who were kind to me. Things are pretty tough here on the firing line, especially sitting in the trenches full of water and getting shelled all day.

"The 'black Johnsons' which the Germans send us sing a mean song, but we are getting used to it now. We are gradually driving the Germans back, but thus far only by yards, and you may realize what work that is. It is bad weather to carry on extensive operations, the ground being in terrible condition.

"So far I am glad to say I have been lucky, though I have not missed anything the regiment has been in, but a soldier never knows what is in store for him. The British government is doing everything it can for us and the other troops, and no soldier has any reason to kick at conditions. The government is handling the situation wonderfully. We are all in good spirits, and I have been promoted to corporal. This is equivalent to the same rank as in the Twenty-second, except that we command a section of a platoon, which averages twelve men.

"I am writing this in an old barn which has been previously occupied in turn by both French and Germans. All the ground we are now on has been fought over. We get a certain number of days in the trenches and then a certain number of days out, different regiments relieving one another, and all getting a turn at the good and bad features of the campaign. In some places our trenches are only a matter of fifty yards from the Germans. There are all kinds of sniping going on both day and night, and occasionally a charge. I send my regards to Captain Levien, Lieutenant Ladew and all the boys. If you can manage to send me a few bags of tobacco they will be more valuable than diamonds."

ANNUAL MEETING OF FAIR SOCIETY

Annual Exhibition Will Be Held on Sept. 21st and 22nd

At the annual meeting of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, held in the Town Hall, the attendance of members was very good.

The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. Thompson Braden. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The treasurer's audited financial statement was presented as follows:

ARTILLERY ENGAGED?

Canadian Force is Reported to Have Been in Action

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—The Canadian artillery has been in action, according to information received from Boulogne. The infantry are in the reserve trenches.

A shell burst yesterday near a motor car occupied by officers who had taken up an observation post, and Capt. Greer of the Army Service Corps, Toronto, is reported slightly wounded in the arm.

The Princess Patricias, who have been in a rest camp for some time, returned to the trenches last week and repulsed a heavy attack by German Landsturmers. The Patricias suffered only slightly.

Capt. W. D. Greer went as the senior officer from Toronto of the Canadian Army Service Corps. He was in charge of No. 12 Company of the Divisional Train. He has been connected with the Army Service Corps for eight years, and was "always a very painstaking and efficient officer."

The following casualties among the Canadian Expeditionary Force were announced by the Militia Department last night:

Deaths—Feb. 16, Pte. George Henfrey, 2nd Battalion, at No. 5 Casualty Clearing Station, France. Cause not stated. Next of kin, Mrs. Rose Henfrey (wife), 170A Bleecker street, Toronto.

Feb. 20, Pte. George T. Bell, Royal Canadian Dragoons, at Bulford Hospital, from meningitis. Next of kin, Mrs. George T. Bell, postoffice box 42, Ruscan, Victoria, B.C.

Pte. Henfrey went with the first contingent in the 9th Mississauga Horse.

Didn't Tell The Truth

German Officer Felt It Wasn't Incumbent Upon Him to Do So

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—The charge against Emil and Mrs. Nerlich was reduced from that of "high treason" to "conspiracy to commit an indictable offence" when the trial opened before Chief Justice Sir William Mulock in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday. This change in the form of the indictment, as Mr. Du Vernet pointed out, while changing the penalty for the offence from that of death to imprisonment, did not change the character of the evidence.

The most startling development in yesterday's proceedings was when Arthur Zirsow, former lieutenant in the German army, called into the witness box, contradicted most of his testimony given in the preliminary investigation in the police court.

Zirsow "explained" that in the police court he did not think it incumbent on himself to tell the truth because he had not taken the German oath. He was brought into court by an armed guard of two men and an officer with drawn sword and bayonets fixed.

SOLDIERS SHOULD VOTE

A. E. Fripp Introduces Bill to Provide for Overseas Force

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—A. E. Fripp's bill to give the men of the overseas expeditionary forces and those who are mobilized in the Dominion the opportunity of recording their votes in the event of an election was referred last night on the motion of the Premier to the elections committee of the House.

The member for Ottawa in moving the second reading of his bill said that men who were fighting the battles of liberty and citizenship should not be deprived of their right to the franchise.

Hon. Mr. Rogers said the arrangements would receive reasonable and careful consideration.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham emphasized the tremendous difficulty of such an arrangement. He thought it undesirable to throw the apple of political discord amongst men who were fighting shoulder to shoulder.

COL. SEELY QUALIFIED

French Recommended Appointment to Canadian Cavalry Brigade

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Questions regarding Col. Seely's qualifications and general fitness to command the Canadian Cavalry Brigade were discussed in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Premier Asquith and Harold J. Tennant, Under Secretary for War. The questioners were Lord Charles Beresford, Sir Kinloch Cooke and Donald McNeill.

Answering them, Mr. Tennant said that Col. Seely had been appointed to command with the temporary rank of brigadier-general, the cavalry brigade consisting of the Second King Edward's Horse and two regiments of Canadian mounted troops, with a brigade of artillery.

COL. J. B. SEELY.

Col. Seely had served in command of mounted troops in South Africa and had commanded a yeomanry regiment, of which he had been an officer for 22 years. He had been for six months with Sr John French's staff, during which time he had acquired a unique knowledge of the conditions under which the present war was being fought.

His ppointment was recommanded by the field marshal commanding and was confirmed by the Secretary of War.

"THE DEEP PURPLE"

SYNOPSIS.

The World Film Corporation presents "The Deep Purple" in five reels, directed by James Young, in the Peerless Studio.

He has a good cast of players at his service. Clara Kimball who falls in love and elopes with Harry Leland, a "badger" salesman of a band of fraudulent "organ merchants." The girl's father is played by Edward M. Kimball. The chief crook. "Popp Clark," is Young has the part of Doris Moore, the country minister's daughter, played by W. J. Ferguson, who puts a touch of comic character drawing in his work that provides good relief. William Lake, the hero, and a mining engineer, who comes to New York, is taken by Milton Sills, who is excellent in the role, giving a vigorous and very likeable hero. The best acted emotional moment in the whole story comes in when "Fresno Kate," in whose house the crooks planned the blackmail game, has found that they have used the innocent girl, who thinks her Harry the epitome of all that's good and noble, to attract Lake to the apartment. "Fresno Kate" is played by Grace Aylesworth, and she has taken a strong fancy to the girl. She refuses to have her used for such a purpose, but the crooks sneaked her out, and now she pleads with Lake to let her help in the rescue. Mrs. Lake is played by Mrs. E. M. Kimball and Lake's sister by May Hopkins. De Will Jennings, Walter Craven and many others have good roles.

The play from which the picture was made was a Broadway success of a few seasons back, and was written by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Miner. The backgrounds represent a New Jersey country town and New York City. There are a few scenes of mining and Western atmosphere. The picture closes with a few very artistic glimpses of the heroine and the hero together at the new organ in the little church; two of these suggest famous paintings. The camera work and the staging are commendable. Grand Opera House, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 25, 26, 27. Matinees and Evenings, 5c, 10c and 15c.

German People Are Being Deceived

LONDON, Feb. 23.—A despatch to the Daily Express dated "On the Belgian Frontier, Sunday, says: "One of the marvels of the war is the manner in which the German government continues to hypnotize the German people. An American who came into Holland yesterday after several curious adventures in Germany and Belgium, said, with a synical smile:

"The most important cabinet position in Germany is that of minister of Magic. He is the person who controls the deception department and, whoever he is, he has the average company promoter beaten to death."

When the speaker left Bremen the day before Germany's blockade began, the [illegible] were ringing furiously in honour of the capture of the entire Russian general staff by Field Marshall von Hindenburg.

When he was in Hamburg the publication of an official bulletin announcing the surrender of three Russian army corps galvanised the despondent merchants of that idle city into something like enthusiasm.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The London correspondent of the New York Herald says: Further extraordinary efforts of the Wilhelmstrasse to inspire courage among the German people is admirably shown in one of the late issues of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger. This newspaper, which is, very close to the government publishes what purports to be a photograph of the sinking of the British battle cruiser "Lion in the recent naval engagement. Of course, every navy officer in Germany knows that the Lion never was sunk, and the photo is so obviously "faked" that to many it defeated its own purpose. Yet it is evidently calculated to carry enthusiasm and conviction to the great masses of unsuspecting Germans.

Just as the decisive victory of the allies at the battle of the Morne, which forced the Germans away from Paris, was described in Berlin as a "glorious retreat to catch the allies in a trap," so the disastrous German defeat at sea is officially dubbed a "victorious flight from the enemy".

HOW THEY EVADED IT.

There was more than a little interest among the neutral naval attaches here to see how German official decided to smother up what really happened or how they would endeavour to convince Germans that losing the Bluecher and bringing the damaged remnants of their battle cruiser squadron into port was really a great German naval victory. The answer came without delay when Berlin admitted the loss of the Bluecher, but featured prominently reports that the British fleet had suffered the loss of several of their best ships. The homeward flight of the German squadron was explained by the fact that the British "broke off the engagement" by trying to catch up to them.

MEETING OF THE HYDRO COMMISSION

Was Held Yesterday Afternoon —Accounts Passed

Mr. Ross Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks Department, has reported to the Utilities Commission, that a number of consumers' construction accounts are outstanding. Steps will be taken to have them collected.

At yesterday's meeting of the Commission Mr Dobbin submitted a comparative statement of maintenance accounts for the years 1913 and 1914.

Mr. N. Watson has asked for employment in the Hydro Eelectric department. He said that he had been hurt on May 15, 1914, while working for the City; subsequently he had been given work, but found it to be too strenuous owing to the injury which he sustained. He was under the impression that he would again be given work by the City. The matter will be given further consideration.

The Waterworks Superintendent will consider the request of R. Davis, asking for the remission of lawn rates at 150 and 152 George streets, south.

It was resolved that the following accounts be paid:

Peterborough Utilities Commission, $117.60; Peterborough Utilities Commission, $3; H. Edmundson, $1.50; Canadian Express Company, $3.30; Dominion Express Company, 60c.

ATTRACTIVE SALE OF CLASSY FURNITURE

The lovers of magnificent, unique and rare furniture will have an unusual opportunity of securing some interesting pieces which is seldom offered in Peterborough. The aristocratic character linked to every piece of this furniture is one of its distinguishing marks. Most of it is by Maples of London, and consists of mahogany suites, English oak and Teak decorative pieces, as well as some rich china and glassware. The artistic energy and skill of Indian handicraft is exemplified in a remarkable specimen of a wonderful hand-cut sideboard made o. Teak, a species of wood grown only in the forests of Burmah, India. There will also be sold a number of artistic pieces of Oriental nature, including a genuine brass Buddha, from one of the temples in Burmah; beautiful Oriental rugs, an hour glass over 500 years old, which stood in one church for 300 years, and other rich and rare articles, together with some beautiful samples of Wedgood ware. This sale will take place on Saturday, February 27th at one o'clock, in the store opposite the Grand Opera House. Now open for inspection.

MECHANICS WANTED

British Government Will Pay the Fares Both Ways

Mr. J. J. Hartley, President of the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council, has received the following wire from J. H. Burnham, M.P.:

"Government received cable from British Government asking for immediate information of the number of competent mechanics available to go to Britain. Standard British wages, fare paid both ways. Wire me at once from Peterborough."—J. H. Burnham.

Mr. Hartley, whose address is 234 Antrim Street, would like to get the names of mechanics who would be willing to go.

Oratory.

Speaking of Wendell Phillips' remarkable gifts as an orator, Horace Greeley said: him the highest compliment when he said that there wasn't a boy who heard Phillips speak but thought he could speak as well—to speak so naturally. Of the great actor Garrick it is related that he did not please country people or others unused to the stage because he was so natural that he did not seem to be acting at all.

Animal Scent.

A fox can scent a man half a mile away if the wind be blowing in the animal's direction. A mouse can smell cheese fifty feet away. A deer may be scared asleep, and yet be will catch the scent of a person passing 200 feet off. The rabbit depends more upon his ears than his nose.

French Drive Germans From Eparges

Enemy Has Lost Three Submarines Since the Blockade

Steamers of Moderate Speed Can Escape Submarines

There Need be no Longer Any Dread of Them—Enemy Sinks Eight Steamers and Loses Three Underwater Craft

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The German blockade of the British Isles has been in effect for a week, with the result that so far as is known two Norwegian, one French and five British steamers have been sunk or torpedoed by submarines, with the surprisingly small loss of four lives. Two of these steamers, the Bairdge and the Dinorah, succeeded in reaching port. On the other side of the account it is reported that two German submarines are missing, and that a third had been hit and probably sunk by a French destroyer.

Besides the vessels which fell victims to the submarines, two American and one Norwegian steamer have been sunk by mines in the North Sea, and the Swedish steamer Specia and one or two British steamers are overdue, and it is feared have been lost with their crews.

SMALL, SLOW VESSELS.

In almost every case the steamer sunk by the submarine was a small and slow vessel, and at least three of them were caught while at anchor or while they were barely under way. This, with the failure of a submarine to hit a fast cross-Channel steamer at which it fired a torpedo, apparently proves to the satisfaction of British naval writers that steamers with moderate speed, which observe obvious precautions, can invariably escape the under-water craft, and such vessels are continuing to cross the seas.

The blockade, however, has had the effect of increasing insurance rates, and some neutral owners are keeping their ships in neutral waters.

SMALL COASTED TORPEDOED.

A despatch to Lloyd's Agency from New Haven says the steamer Rio Parana, of London, laden with coal and bound from the Tyne to Portoferrajo, Island of Elba, struck a mine five miles south-east of Beachy Head at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The explosion tore a hole in the vessel's starboard side and she filled and sank. The crew of the Rio Parana were rescued by a torpedo boat and landed at New Haven.

The vessel which was lost off Lydd Tuesday night was the British steamer Oakby.

Her crew was rescued by a fishing smack and landed at Ramsgate today. The Oakby was bound in ballast from London for Cardiff, Wales. She was struck by a torepdo on the port side. Her main hatches were blown off, her decks were splintered and the binnacle hurled into the air. One lifeboat was swamped by the great volume of water thrown up by the explosion of the torpedo. The fishing smack Gratia, which was four miles off, felt the shock of the explosion, and hastened to the scene. The fishermen arrived in time to take off the crew of the Oakby, none of the members of which was injured. The periscope of a submarine was seen before the explosion by the chief engineer of the Oakby. An attempt was made to tow the Oakby to Dover, but she sank off Folkestone this morning.

Berlin officially announced Tuesday night that "British transport No. 192 was sunk by a German submarine off Beachy Head." This report is as untrue as the previous official story of another transport having been sunk. The Secretary of the Admiralty denies the report and states it was the Government collier Branksome China which was sunk off Beachy Head. The fact that the vessel had been torpedoed was reported yesterday, but it did not become known that she had been sunk until to-day.

GERMANS LOST MORE THAN 3000 MEN IN RECENT FLIGHT

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The French continue their advance. The official communiques issued by the War Office announce further material progress in Champagne, in the forest of Apremont and on the heights of the Meuse.

Further details of the French victory at Les Eparges, between the Argonne and the Meuse, show that the Germans, who have been driven entirely from the village and the neighbouring hills, suffered huge losses. The two regiments which were established in exceptionally strong positions at that point lost more than 3,000 men or more than one-half of their full complement. Hundreds of the enemy's dead were left on the field. The last announcement concerning the fighting at les Eparges was made by the French War Office on Monday, when it was stated that the Germans had been forced from almost all of their positions there. To-day's statement shows that the entire region is now in the hands of the French.

Paris, Feb. 24.—The military attaches of the neutral powers in France have just returned from an exciting trip to several points on the front, most interesting experience they had consisting of speeding into Arras in automobiles at 60 miles an hour with big German shells dropping on all sides, and then of seeding out even faster.

The attaches, in 12 automobiles, entered Arras in a long line with their machines strung out half a mile apart as a precaution against German gunfire, as the Germans have the exact distances measured out on their range-finders, and are able to hit any spot on the road almost to a foot.

The twelve machines tore into the town and were not molested, but no sooner had they arrived than German shelling began, lasting for 45 minutes. Two hundred and five shells, most of them 77-millimetre variety, fell in the place during that period. One of them struck within twenty yards of Major Spencer Cosby, the United States' military attache, and he, a French officer and their non-combatant driver had to throw themselves to the ground, face down, to avoid the flying steel.

On the return the party was shelled hotly, some of the missiles falling within one hundred yards of the cars, but not one of the machines was touched, although the one in which Captain Parker was riding was covered with dirt from a shell that burst a short distance away.

RUSSIANS HALT INVADING ARMY

German Plans Disturbed by Loss of Essential Points in Poland

FORTS BAR ADVANCE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 25.—The important change that has come over the campaign in Poland can best be gauged by the military estimates of the present disposition of the German forces.

They are believed to have barely 300,000 men stationed at selected points outside their old positions along the Bzura and Rawka, where the Russians are proceeding steadily with the destruction of the enemy's elaborate underground cover. General von Hindenburg has now in the north, from Wicolawek stretching eastward about on a parallel with his frontiers, nearly a million men, divided into four armies. These are spread along the 180-mile front to near the Niemen. He has completely reversed the plan which failed against the Bzura and Rawka positions. Ten [illegible] upon that narrow front convinced him that even by discounting the most appalling losses nothing was to be gained by throwing great masses of troops in frontal attacks against the Russians.

He therefore reconstituted his main eastern army, and is spreading it over a front where there is ample space to deploy, but he is handicapped by the extreme scarcity of railways and by the Russians who have already seized and held positions essential to his plan. One of those positions is Prasnysz, which obstructs the chief rendezvous for new arrivals across the border railway from Prussia. Another is Evdabno, which prevents the Germans from getting near the Bobr. Between the fortresses of Ossowetz and Lomza the Germans have to accept their present position largely against their will.

MONCTON, N.B., Feb. 25 — Reinhold Reidel, who says he is a German naval reservist, was arrested yesterday by I. C. R. Special Agent A J. Tingley of this City as an alien enemy. When arrested the German had on his person a package of letters and plans of highway bridges, railway tracks and bridges through the Matapedia Valley.

LAST NIGHT'S BULLETINS ON THE WAR

EASTBOURNE, Eng., Feb. 24.—An unidentified vessel of two thousand tons sank off the pier here this afternoon. It is believed the vessel was torpedoed by a German submarine.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The Commons passed on the second reading to-night a bill restoring to British subjects to whom the military law does not apply, the right to demand trial by civil court and jury when charged under the Defence Realms Act.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—A Geneva despatch states that a letter from a reliable Berlin sources says the Crown Prince died in December. The German court is in mourning. Exclusion of his name from statements seems to confirm this.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 24.—The position of the Russians is highly favourable on the East Prussian and Bukowina fronts. Near Gorpimow the German losses in vain attacks on Russian defences already equal the number of Russian prisoners taken in the recent coup.

ROME, Feb. 24.—Italy has spent four hundred million dollars in war preparation, and Germans here fear she will join the Allies immediately.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 24. — When one British airman manoeuvred above the German flotilla in a fight over Ostend, seven German aviators were killed and three machines destroyed.

Wm. O'Brien's Death Was Caused By a Hemorrhage In the Linings of Brain

And Doctors Said This Was Probably Caused By Undue External Force Exerted At That Point—Witnesses Tell of a Previous Scuffle Between Edgar Grose and O'Brien On Hunter Street East.

THE POST-MORTEM REPORT

The report on their post-mortem examination of the body of the late William O'Brien as presented by Dr. J. V. Gallivan and Dr. J. H. Eastwood at the trial of Edgar Grose yesterday afternoon, was probably the feature of yesterday's sitting of the High Court with Mr. Justice Britton presiding. With the main facts of the [illegible] hearing and with no new evidence of a startling nature expected, the trial settled down early to comparatively tame proceedings.

There was lacking the anticipation of any new phases which might considerably change the general aspect of the case, which was also devoid of the peculiar element of human interest which marks many trials of so serious a nature. No new light was thrown upon the commencement of the scuffle in the White House corridor. No one had seen any blow struck, and the affair had apparently been of short duration. There was substantiation of the rumour that the two men, Grose and O'Brien, had some previous differences, and that the relations between them had not been very amicable.

Then came the doctors' testimony and their statements that death had been caused by a hemmorhage in the linings at the base of the brain at its juncture with the spinal cord, and that the hemmorhage was the result of some external force applied at that point.

Dr. Gallivan.

Dr. James V. Gallivan stated that Dr. Eastwood and he had made a post-mortem examination of O'Brien's body on December 28th, about sixteen hours after death. They found an old scar about three inches long on the right side of the neck. There were no evidences of external violence. The covering of the heart adhered to the covering of the left lung. There were no signs of external violence on the scalp. The brain tissue was soft.

Mr. Shaver—Did you find that the deceased had been suffering from any disease?

Dr. Gallivan—No.

Continuing the witness said the thyroid glands on each side of the wind pipe were enlarged. The trachea or windpipe was quite collapsed. It was thin and easily collapsible. The enlargement of the thyroids and the thinness of the trachea at that point would result in it being much simpler or easier to shut off the breathing than in a normal case. The conditions observed would indicate a mechanical interference with the deceased's breathing.

Respiration Stopped First.

Continuing to Mr. Shaver Dr. Gallivan said that the right side of the heart and the lungs were filled with dark blood, indicating that the respiration had been stopped. This might have been caused by suffocation or strangulation.

Mr. Shaver—This was a case of the breathing stopping the heart, not the heart stopping the breathing?

Yes.

The breathing stopped before the circulation of the blood?

Yes.

Dr. Gallivan mentioned the hemmorhage at the juncture of the spinal cord and the brain.

Mr. Shaver—Was it between the covering of the brain?

Yes.

Not in the brain tissue?

No.

What is that usually considered to be an indication of?

An undue force at that particular point.

Extravasation of the blood in the brain, Dr. Gallivan stated, was usually caused by disease of the blood vessels. In the linings of the brain it might be from the same cause, or from force applied.

You found no disease of the blood vessels?

No.

When disease is eliminated then, there is only one possibility left, that is violence?

Yes.

Cross-Examination.

Mr. Gordon—You can't say he was totally free from disease?

No. Very few of us are.

A hemmorhage may be caused by interior or exterior violence?

Yes. Are you referring to this particular case?

Mr. Gordon—No.

Dr. Gallivan said considerable liquid had been found in the stomach but could not say what it was. The thyroid glands were enlarger about 75 percent. The brain was abnormally soft.

Dr. Eastwood.

Dr. Eastwood referred to the adherence of the pleura and to the pericardium. A man might be in good health and have this condition. Dr. Eastwood's evidence for the most part corroborated the preceding.

The heart was normal and the arteries healthy. The right side of the heart was almost distended with blood.

The softness of the tissue of the brain might not be a disease. There was none the witness could name.

Mr. Shaver—What led to this man's death?

He died from a hemmorhage in the brain.

Judge Britton—What caused that?

Dr. Eastwood—It was likely due to violence of some kind.

Witness explained to the judge that the enlargement of the thyroid glands was commonly known as goitre.

People have many times larger glands and yet breathe easily?

Oh, yes.

Victor Hamilton.

Mr. V. Hamilton, previously examined, said he first saw O'Brien in the White House sometime after 10 o'clock on Christmas eve. He was lying on his left side on the floor outside the bar-room door.

Mr. Shaver—Who were with him?

Chris Graham and Mike Neary were the only two I knew... Mr. Neary was the clerk. Mr. Graham was removing O'Brien's collar. I tried to help open his shirt. Mr. Graham called for water. He tried to put some of it in O'Brien's mouth, but it was impossible. He wouldn't take the water. He seemed to be in a faint. Mr. Graham said "we'd better get him out into the air," and O'Brien was carried out. His eyes were shut, his fists tightly closed, and his mouth was also firmly shut. He was a little pale, but otherwise there was no colouring noticeable.

John Patterson.

The next witness sworn was Jack Patterson. He was at the White House on Christmas eve.

I met O'Brien at the front entrance. He was going in, I was going out. I took no notice of his condition. I might have said good night or something like that. I remember speaking to him, and but I don't remember him replying. As far as I saw there was nothing peculiar about him. I had heard of him having some trouble with his throat or neck.

From what you saw he was in his normal condition?

I did not judge about his condition.

Witness said he did not notice anything about him.

Did you see the occurrence that took place?

No, sir.

Did you see Grose?

Yes. I was with him in a little room opposite the bar. John O'Brien and I went in together. We met Grose in there. Wally Kennedy, Bert Stuart, Grose, Jack O'Brien, Herb Gilgour were together. There might have been others, the witness said, who had a drink together.

To the judge, witness said he did not see Grose go out of the room, nor did he say anything about the deceased, O'Brien.

Maurice Crowley.

This witness presented new evidence regarding a prior affair between Grose and O'Brien. It occurred, he said, on Hunted street east, between Hogan's Hotel and Conroy's, between 10 and 11 p.m., about six weeks before Christmas. Witness was in company with two men named Halpin and Hickey. They were standing together. O'Brien was with them. The latter started to go away and then returned. Witness said Grose came back after him. That was the first time witness had known the prisoner. O'Brien and Grose got into a scuffle. They scuffled around wrestling and jostling. Then, witness said, they shook hands and went home.

To Mr. Gordon, Crowley said the two went away apparently on friendly terms. He did not think there was anything of consequence between them.

William Clancy.

William Clancy said he was standing in the entrance to Kingan's Hardware store on the evening following the fight near Hogan's.

Witness—There was Herb O'Heron, Grose and myself. Grose said, referring to O'Brien. "He put it over me last night when I was drunk.

I asked him what about.

He said — "Nothing. He thought he'd be smart."

I said—"Didn't you shake hands?"

Grose said—"If we did I don't remember it."

Continuing his story of the conversation witness said: "Grose wanted to bet $50 he could lick O'Brien if they were put in a room together."

I said—That's no way to talk. I don't think you can lick him. I think O'Brien could lick half a dozen like you.

Grose said—If I can't lick him, I've got friends who can. I'll get him and get him right. I'll get him coming from work.

Mr. Shaver—Tell us about his manner in making this statement.

He seemed angry about the night before. On leaving him I said: O'Brien wants to be friends with you.

Other Meetings.

Witness said Grose and O'Brien met in the Arcade lavatory sometime afterwards. Grose and another fellow entered. O'Brien said: How are you Fiddler (a nick name. Grose

ANOTHER LOCAL BOY FOR FRONT

TORONTO, Feb. 24—Seven out of the fifteen telegraphers whose names were sent to Ottawa, have been accepted for service with the 1st Divisional Signalling Company of the first contingent. They will be medically inspected to-morrow and leave for Ottawa this week. Their names follow: Walter Cresswell, 108 Harcourt avenue; James Strachan, 145 Richmond Street, West; J. H. Green, 248 Pacific Avenue; F. C. Canham, 167 Montrose; George Slade, 963 Dufferin Street; James Hawthorne, Peterborough, who will be transferred to the Divisional Cyclists.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hylrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, fumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jads Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

By Frank Frost

The room cleared. Harding lingered to exchange a few words with the superintendent.

"I can do nothing, Mr. Foyle," he said. "From a medical point of view it is all straightforward. There can be no question about the time and cause of death. Good night,—or rather, good morning."

"Thank you, Mr. Harding, good morning."

His eyes were roving restlessly about the room, and he dictated the work the photographer was to do with scrupulous care. Half a dozen times a dazzling flash of magnesium powder lit up the place. Photographs of the room in sections were being taken. Then with a curt order to the photographer to return immediately to Scotland Yard and develop his negatives, he drew up a chair to the couch and began to go methodically through the pockets of the dead man.

Green stood by, a note-book in hand. Now and again Foyle dictated swiftly. He was a man who knew the value of order and system. Every step in the investigation of a crime is reduced to writing, collected, indexed, and filed together, so that the whole history of a case is instantly available at any time. He was carrying out the regular routine.

Only two things of any consequence rewarded his search—one was a note from Sir Ralph Fairfield confirming an appointment with Grell to dine at the St. Jermyn's Club the previous evening; the other was a miniature set in diamonds of a girl, dark and black-haired, with an insolent piquant beauty.

"I've seen that face before somewhere," mused the superintendent. "Green, there's a 'Who's Who' on the desk behind you. I want Sir Ralph Fairfield."

Rapidly he scanned the score of lines of small type devoted to the baronet. They told him little that he had not known before. Fairfield was in his forty-third year, was the ninth baronet, and had great estates in Hampshire and Scotland. He was a traveller and a student. His town address was given as the Albany.

"You'd better go round to Fairfield's place, Green. Tell him what's happened and bring him here at once."

As the chief inspector, a grim, silent man, left, Foyle turned again to his work. He began a careful search of the room, even rummaging among the litter in the waste-paper basket. But there was nothing else that might help to throw the faintest light on the tragedy.

A discreet knock on the door preceded Waverley's entrance with a report of the examination of every one in the house. He had gathered little beyond the fact that Grell, when not concerned in social duties, was a man of irregular comings and goings, and that Ivan, his personal valet, was a man he had brought from St. Petersburg, who spoke French but little English, and had consequently associated little with the other servants.

Foyle subsided into his chair with his forehead puckered into a series of little wrinkles. He rested his chin on his hand and gazed into vacancy. There might be a hundred solutions to the riddle. Where was the motive? Was it jealousy? Was it robbery? Was it a political crime? Was it the work of a madman? Who was the mysterious veiled woman? Was she associated with the crime?

These and a hundred other questions beat insistently on his brain, and to none of them could he see the answer. He pictured the queer dagger, but flog his memory as he could he could not think where it might have been procured. In the morning he would set a score of men making inquiries at every place in London where such a thing was likely to have been obtained.

He was in the position of a man who might solve a puzzle by hard, painstaking experiment and inquiry, but rather hoped that some brilliant flash of inspiration or luck might give him the key that would fit it together at once. They rarely do come.

Once Lomont, Grell's secretary, knocked and entered with a question on his lips. Foyle waved him impatiently away.

"I will see you later on, Mr. Lomont. I am too busy to see you now. Mr. Waverley or Mr. Bolt will see to you."

The man vanished, and a moment or two later a discreet tap at the door heralded the return of Green, accompanied by Sir Ralph Fairfield.

The baronet's hand was cold as it met that of Foyle, and his haggard face was averted as though to avoid the searching gaze of the detective.

CHAPTER IV.

Fairfield, awakened from sleep by the news of the murder of his friend, had stared stupidly at the detective Foyle had sent to him.

"Grell killed!" he exclaimed. "Why, he was with me last night. It is incredible—awful. Of course, I'll come at once—though I don't see what use I can be. What time was he murdered?"

"About ten o'clock. So far as we know you were the last person to see him alive—except the murderer," said Green. "Believe me, we're sorry to have to trouble you."

The baronet's face had suddenly gone the colour of white paper. A sickening dread had suddenly swept over him. His hands trembled as he adjusted his overcoat. He remembered that he had assured Lady Eileen that Grell had been with him at the club from six till eleven. What complexion would that statement bear when it was exposed as a lie—in the light of the tragedy? His throat worked as he realised that he might even be suspected of the crime.

The ordinary person suddenly involved in the whirlpool of crime is always staggered. There is ever the feeling, conscious or unconscious: "Why out of so many millions of people should this happen to me?" So it was with Sir Ralph Fairfield. He pictured the agony in Eileen Meredith's eyes when she heard of the death of her lover, pictured her denunciation of his life. The truth would only sound lame if he were to tell it. Who would believe it? Like a man stricken dumb he descended in the lift with Green, out into the wild night in a taxicab, his thoughts a chaos.

He was neither a coward nor a fool. He had known close acquaintance with sudden death before. But that was different. It had not happened so. He was incapable of connected thought. One thing only he was clear upon—he must see Eileen, tell her the truth and throw himself on her mercy. Meanwhile he would answer no questions until he had considered the matter quietly.

This was his state of mind when he shook hands with Foyle. He had schooled his voice, and it was in a quiet tone that he spoke.

"It's a horrible thing, this," he said, twirling his hat between his long, nervous fingers.

Foyle was studying him closely. The movement of the hands was not lost upon him.

"Yes," he agreed, stroking his chin. "I asked you to come here because Mr. Grell dined with you last night. Do you know if he left you to keep an appointment?"

"No—that is, it might have been so. He left me, and I understood he would be back. He did not return."

"At what time?"

Fairfield hesitated a second before replying. Then, "I haven't the remotest idea."

The face of Foyle gave no indication of the surprise he felt. He did not press the question, but slid off to another.

"Do you know of any woman who was likely to visit him at that time of night?"

"Great heavens, no, man! Do you suspect a woman? He——" He checked himself, and looked curiously at the detective. "Mr. Grell was a friend of mine," he went on more quietly. "Things are bad enough as they are, but you know that he had influential friends both here and in America. They won't thank you, Mr. Foyle, for trying to go into such things."

Heldon Foyle's eyes lingered in quiet scrutiny on the other's face.

"I shall do what I consider to be my duty," he said, his voice a little hard. "Come, Sir Ralph, you will see I must do my best to bring the murderer of this man to justice. Had Mr. Grell any relations?"

"I don't believe there's one in the wide world."

"And you don't remember what time he left? Try, Sir Ralph. It is important. Before you came I sent a man to the club, and none of the servants recollects seeing either of you go. They say he was with you most of the evening. You can clear up this matter of time."

The baronet's voice was hoarse and strained. Foyle rose and stood towering over him.

"You are lying," he said deliberately.

Sir Ralph recoiled as though he had been struck in the face. A quick wave of crimson had mounted to his temples. Instinctively his hands clenched. Then regaining a little control of himself he wheeled about without a word. His hand was on the handle of the door when the superintendent's suave voice brought him to a halt.

"Oh, by the way, Sir Ralph, you might look at this before you go, and say whether you recognise it."

He held his clenched hand out, and suddenly unclasped it to disclose the miniature set in diamonds.

Sir Ralph gave a start. "By Jove, it's little Lola of Vienna!" he exclaimed. Then realised that he had been trapped. "But I shall tell you nothing about her," he snapped.

"Thank you, Sir Ralph," said the other quietly.

"But this I think it right you should know," went on Fairfield, standing with one hand still on the handle of the door: "When Grell was with me last night he showed me a pearl necklace, which he said he had bought as a wedding present for Lady Eileen Meredith. If you have not found it, it may give you some motive for the tragedy."

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—Miss AMELIA JAQUELLARD, 2031 Toupittoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—Miss ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Tiwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

VISCOUNT BRYCE BLAMES WAR ON THE VANITY OF THE NATIONS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Viscount Bryce, lecturing at London University on race sentiment as a factor in history, traced the origin of the present war to feelings of racial consciousness and national vanity devolped during the last century and a half by the American French revolutions.

"Racial war," said Viscount Bryce, "has now led to a war conflagration on a scale vaster than the world has ever seen. There is ground for hope that this tendency toward the development of racial feeling and the exaggeration of national entities may not increase. Years of exhaustion must follow the present measureless destruction of life and property and economic losses will leave little time for the development of racial vanities."

"Even though there has come this cataclysm of folly and suffering, we need not cease to hope for the future. The lesson to be learned is that doctrines and deep rooted passions whence these evils sprung can only be removed by the slow and steady working of spiritual forces. What most is needed is the elimination of those feelings, the teachings of which in most nations breed jealousy and hatred and prompt men to defiance and aggression.

"However must we condemn reckless leaders and ruthless castes who live for war, the real source of the mischief is the popular sentiment behind them. The real mischief has been done by the writers and the political leaders, who popularized the early achievements of their races and flattered their exaggerated national vanity. It is now the privilege of the thinkers and writers to enforce a broader and saner and more sympathetic view. Every race and nation must learn that it ought not even in its own interests to desire predominance or seek to enforce its own type on the world. It must recognize that it exists, not for its own good, but for the good of its neighbours.

General recognition of such truths may be a long way off, but is there anything for us to do but to work patiently toward such an end."

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex and make it into 16 ounces of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Pour the 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents, and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a severe cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this preparation or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MY UNCLE'S FORTUNE

It Stood Between Me and Happiness.

By EILEEN BRENNAN

While traveling on the continent I had met Winthrop Sayles, and we had been members of the same party traveling together in Italy, with a long stop at Lake Como, in Switzerland, and in France. Mr. Sayles singled me out among several other girls of our party, and so marked were his attentions that we were soon considered to belong to each other.

The party broke apart in Paris, I going to London. My admirer followed me. He had proposed to me while we were in Lucerne and had during our subsequent journeying together importuned me to marry him. It was not a case on my part wherein a girl feels that she has met her fate—that is, that the proposer is absolutely necessary to her happiness. Nevertheless I liked him well enough to consider his proposition, and I was sensible of the fact that girls are liable to let desirable parties slip away from them till they have become old maids, when they are left out in the cold.

Mr. Sayles was so persistent that I at last yielded, but so late that we had barely time to be married before we were obliged to endure a separation. I was about to sail for home, while he was obliged to remain temporarily in England. Yielding to his solicitations, I consented to do what I afterward considered an unwise thing. I agreed to marry him before going aboard the ship, reserving our honeymoon till his return to America.

Just before sailing I was handed a letter from an aunt of mine in America. Her husband was wealthy; they were getting old and had no children. If I would agree to abide with them so long as they lived my uncle would leave me all his property.

Had I been desperately in love with the man I had married I doubt if this offer would have had more than a passing effect on me. If my husband had accompanied me to America the inevitable, the association of marriage, would have brought the same result. But, receiving this offer immediately after parting with a man I had known but a few months, it caused regret.

We see marriage on the surface. There are the happy pair, the wedding gifts, the shower of rice and old shoes. The first month of wedlock is called the honeymoon and savors of sweetness. What we do not see are the failings that may take place or certain regrets that may thrust themselves in the face of one or both of the happy pair up to the point where the knot is tied. Yet it is possible such may occur in the case of those who are destined to become absolutely necessary to each other.

I confess I should have put the matter out of my head. I was married, and that was all there was about it. But I fancy, as I have already said, that I am not the only person who has just been married to wonder whether he or she has taken a wise or a foolish step.

However, by the time I had reached port I had made up my mind to cease to think about the proposition I had received, but to write my aunt, telling her why I could not accept it. I had promised to write something every day to my husband and mail what I had written on arrival. I wrote him of the offer I had received, and on reading over what I had written it occurred to me that possibly what I had said might be interpreted to express regret that I had lost the power to decide between him and a prospective fortune. I would have rewritten this part of my letter, but could not very well get it out from the rest. Besides, the letter was all ready to mail, and so I dropped it in the post.

As soon as I landed I wrote my aunt, who lived in the west, that I had been married abroad and, of course, could not accept her proposition. I received loving letters from my husband till about the time he should have received my epistle written on the steamer. After that I heard nothing for several days, when I received a brief note from him stating that he had been ill, but was now better. He would write again soon. A few days later I received a cablegram from a friend of his that my husband was dead.

I confess I was much shocked. Besides, the message brought a revelation to me. I learned that my affections had been more completely engaged than I had supposed. I blamed myself for my regrets. I felt that if I could only have my husband back again I would not exchange a prospective fortune for him nor even a fortune in hand.

The cablegram had advised me to remain where I was and await a letter. When the letter came I was informed that my husband had requested that I should not on any account return to England as a result of his death and that his body be buried abroad. He had very little property to leave and had—so I was informed—some time before his marriage left what there was to a sister. This was entirely satisfactory to me.

My aunt and uncle, being informed that I had become a widow, renewed their proposition to me, and I went to live with them. They were very kind to me, and I entered upon a style above what I had been accustomed to. My uncle made a will in my favor, and I had before me the anticipation of enjoying a fortune. Nevertheless my life was dull. They were old persons and had outlived most of their intimate friends. They were certainly not companionable for me.

As to enjoying the society of persons of my own age, I had very little opportunity to do so. My aunt soon after I went to live with her became an invalid and required my constant attention. Besides, my aunt had not for many years had anything to do with social affairs, and I was not thrown into the "swim." I had stepped into what from a distance I had considered an enviable position, but was not satisfied. I had become a nurse, my pay to consist of a living and a fortune after my patient's death, or, rather, after the death of two persons, either one or both of whom might outlive me.

And now that I had experience in this condition which had led me to regret my marriage I turned longingly to what would have been my lot if my husband had lived. I pictured a little house that I would have made cosy and an interest in husband and children—an interest which is paramount to all other interests. I do not except those cases where the husband and wife quarrel or separate. The interest is there, but it has become, so to speak, diseased. I had all the comforts wealth could bring, but there was no soul in them. I lived in a splendid house, but there was no home in it for me.

I did not meet my husband's sister, who inherited what little property he left. She wrote me offering, inasmuch as it was mine by right, to give it up to me, but I declined to accept it. She was very sympathetic, and somehow through her letters I conceived a decided liking for her. I would have liked to see her, but she lived at a distance, and neither could well go to the other. She and I became regular correspondents, and I confided in her my dissatisfaction at the life I led and my regrets that I could not have had a home of my own, "be it ever so humble."

To this she replied that the day would come when I would be wealthy, and I would then be satisfied that fate had kept me from marriage without adequate income and had given instead the power and comfort that money brings. But to this I replied that, having become familiar with wealth, it did not seem so much of a blessing as those who saw it from a distance supposed.

I had lived with my aunt three years when she died. Then my troubles began in earnest, for I had the whole responsibility of bolstering up my uncle in his old age. A woman left desolate can accommodate herself to the new situation better than a man. My uncle could not accommodate himself to get on without his life partner. I endured his misery with him for the greater part of a year, when I saw evidence that he was intending to marry again. A woman about half his age had set her cap for him and was not long in securing him.

My standing in dead men's shoes had been a failure. I knew well enough that this new wife would seriously object even to sharing her husband's inheritance with me, and I did not believe that, under the circumstances, we two women could get on together under the same roof. This turned out as I expected. The lady soon made it plain to me that I was not desirable and set my uncle against me. What should I do? I had no place to go, and the means at my command were limited. My uncle was soon got under the thumb of his wife, and she would not even permit him to give me an allowance. I knew nothing about his destroying the will made in my favor, but if his wife permitted it to remain she was not the woman I supposed she was.

In my distress I wrote to my sister-in-law, pouring my troubles out to her. She wrote me a sympathetic letter, reminding me that I was still young—I was twenty-four—and would likely marry. She suggested no plan for me, but said she would write again soon.

Later I received another letter from her, inviting me to make her a visit. We could then talk over what it was best for me to do and would doubtless hit upon some plan for my comfort. I determined to accept the invitation.

I found Miss Sayles living in modest comfort and took her into my heart on sight as I had through her letters. She made me feel at home from the moment I entered the house. She was older than my husband had been and seemed to have looked upon him more as a son than a brother.

"I have a surprise for you," she said, "of such importance that I fear to give it to you without preparing you for it. You remember that you wrote Winthrop while coming from England of the proposition of your aunt and uncle to live with them and inherit your uncle's wealth. In your letter you showed regret that you had been married and must consequently decline their proposition. Winthrop—a very sensitive man—was much hurt by your letter and determined that he would not stand between you and the life you preferred. He"—

"What did he do?" I gasped.

A door opened, and my husband entered.

It was some time before I could forgive him for having through a friend sent word to me that he was dead. He had often regretted having done so and had as often thought of reappearing to me in the flesh, but my uncle's fortune stood between us.

I was still young enough to build up a home with my beloved husband, and it is and has been more enjoyable, more sacred for my experience in waiting for dead men's shoes.

Describing the Grand Canyon.

As for the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it affects those who behold it with a kind of literary asthma. They desire to describe it; some try passionately, but they only wheeze and look as though they might explode. Since it is generally admitted that no one who has seen it can describe it the task would manifestly devolve upon some one who has not seen it and that requirement is filled by me. I have not seen it. I am not impressed by it at all. I am able to speak of it with coherence and restraint. But even that I shall not do.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

Fond Recollections.

"Speaking of old times," said a member of the Reminiscence club, "I can remember when a waiter 'would say 'Thank you' out loud for a twenty-five cent tip."

"That's nothing," replied his companion. "I can remember when I would look at the list of dishes on a menu to see what I wanted instead of looking first at the prices to see what I could afford."—Washington Star.

Sudden End.

A general laugh went up. Then Shotgun Simpson shook his head and said:

"Poor Red Face! He got loaded the other night, rode into Cemetery Gulch, stuck his head in the window of the Crimson Arms hotel and yelled, 'Fire!' 'Everybody did."—Exchange.

RECORD FOOTBALL RUSH.

It Came When a New and Ugly Tackle Broke Into the Game.

One day, while the whaleship Narwhal was tied to an ice floe in Bering sea and the lookouts were at the mastheads scanning the open water southward for the appearance of whales, a party of the forevantiemen made a football of rags and cord and went over the bow to kick the misshapen thing round on a smooth stretch of ice a short distance from the vessel.

The fun was at its height and the men were just getting the kinks out of their legs when the harpooner in the crow's nest called softly down to the deck that a polar bear had scented the men on the ice and was excitedly making his way toward them. No warning was given to the football players. Before long the bear appeared close to the edge of the floe, and he seemed to be in a great hurry. He shambled rapidly along in and out among the hummocks, and every few feet he would pull himself erect to sniff the air and crane his head anxiously. Closer and closer he came, and it was plain that he grew more and more excited. The men on board the ship got out their rifles to make sure that the bear did no harm to the men on the ice.

The gaunt ice bear came to the last hummock that separated him from the field of play. One of the men was in the act of "kicking the stuffing" out of the ball when the bear suddenly emerged into clear view. The ball fell on the ice, the man's leg came hurriedly down on the ice, and the man himself broke for the ship like a deer. There was a succession of frightened shouts, and the ice became alive with running men. Never was there a quicker change of scene. Men stumbled and fell and yelled and fought for a grasp of the rope ladder.

The men on deck were so convulsed with laughter that they made no effort to shoot the bear. And after the first whoop the bear became so thoroughly alarmed at the consternation he had caused that he turned tail and fled in a clumsy gallop down the ice floes.—Youth's Companion.

Had Heart Trouble FOR YEARS.

Now Weighs 138 Lbs.

Miss Beatrice Lougheed, Staples, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had heart trouble for quite a few years. I doctored for it, and altogether my bill amounted to $400, and still no cure. One day when very sick I was lying on a couch close to where some almanacs were hanging. I took one down, and was reading about what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured, and thought I would try them. I got six boxes to start with; have only taken three boxes and I never felt so well in my life as I do now. I only weighed 87 pounds when I started to take them, and now I weigh 138 pounds. I hope all poor sufferers will be benefitted by them as I have been."

Wherever there is any weakness of the heart, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will strengthen it and build up a strong healthy system.

Constipation, Indigestion and Horrible Backaches

Where there is poison there is pain. This is a provision of Nature to warn you against conditions that are likely to prove serious.

Constipation of the bowels is undoubtedly the greatest source of disease and suffering. By using one of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at bed-time as often as is necessary to keep the bowels regular you can cure constipation and the consequent indigestion, and remove the cause of backache, rheumatism and other painful diseases.

PROF. SMITH.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the greatest law of health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you to form this habit, add to your years, and bring comfort in old age.

Professor A. T. Smith, 1 McCharles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes:—"I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors, without any results. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear, and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth."

never answered. He turned around and went out.

To Mr. Gordon, Clancy said he and O'Brien had been close friends during the past eight or nine years. Referring to the meeting at Kingan's, witness said: After Grose said he could beat O'Brien, I said O'Brien could beat him for $50, and could lick six like him. Witness said he and O'Heron were friends, particularly since O'Brien's death.

One night in Yeates' shoe shine parlour, about two weeks before Christmas Grose was sitting in a chair. O'Brien and witness were going out.. O'Brien turned around and said: "Hello Fiddler," but he heard nothing more.

To Mr. Shaver, Clancy said that the fact of him being a chum of O'Brien's made no difference in his evidence.

Herbert O'Heron.

Herb. O'Heron said that after the scuffle on Conroy's lawn he heard O'Brien say: "If you're satisfied I am." Grose shook hands with the [illegible] Bill, [illegible] his shake and be friends."

Did you see a blow struck?

To Mr. Shaver—No sir.

The following night witness was with Clancy and O'Brien. They met Grose and spoke to him, but he did not speak. They walked down street and later O'Brien left. Returning on the other side of the street Clancy and witness saw Grose at Kingan's. Clancy said: "Let's go over and see what's the matter with Grose."

Grose said he was not satisfied with what had happened. He said he felt that if he were sober he could beat O'Brien and could get $50 to say he could beat him. Clancy said he could get $100 that Grose could not beat O'Brien. Grose said if he couldn't he could get friends who would.

I said if he did he would cause a lot of trouble. Grose said he would lay for O'Brien and get him right.

To Mr. Gordon.

Witness said he did not drink and could not say if the others had been drinking the night of the East City affair.

When did you and Clancy talk it over about the meeting at Kingan's?

Yesterday, I think.

Did you go over it all?

Not all. We went over the most. Clancy said what he remembered.

Did you know Grose was ill when he passed you? That he walked along the street with his head bent down?

No.

What did Clancy say to him?

He said: "What's the matter Fat, you and Bill are not speaking." Grose said: "Bill, I'm not satisfied with what went on over there," or something like that.

Clancy said: "You shook hands didn't you?"

Grose said he was not satisfied and could beat O'Brien.

The next thing Grose said he could get $50 to say that if he got O'Brien in a room he could beat him.

Witness repeated the conversation up to where he told Grose he would cause a lot of trouble.

Mr. Gordon—You meant you could get a bigger bunch?

Witness—Not bigger, but better.

Was there anyone else there?

No.

It would surprise you to know anyone else was there?

It may.

FIRST CASUALTY REPORTED IN A CANADIAN BRIGADE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 25—That the first contingent has already been in action is evidenced by the fact that Pte. Jack Davis, No. 8,428, second Battalion, first brigade, reached the Queen's Canadian Hospital at Shorncliffe last night. Davis, who belongs to Renfrew, Ont, is suffering from shrapnel wounds.

A system of regular visitation for wounded Canadians is being organized by the Canadian Red Cross in conjunction with the Record Office. Arrangements have been made with hospitals to supply the names of Canadian inmates and to recognize outherized visitors. An appeal is being made for lady volunteers for this visiting work, who will report regularly to the Red Cross, and the latter will keep relatives either here or across the ocean informed as to the condition of the patients. On behalf of the relatives of those reported missing, enquiries will be made through the Red Cross of France, a list of missing being published weekly in the Morning Post. This work, which will greatly relieve the anxiety of relatives overseas, is being arranged under the superintendence of Lady Drummond.

Canada Lodge of Freemasons has made a further contribution of £500 to the Canadian War Contingent Association.

The committee of members of Parliament recently appointed by the Right Hon. H. J. Tennant, Under-Secretary for War, to visit officially the interment camps, has already taken up its duties. Mr. Donald McMaster, who during a recent discussion on the question, drew attention to the fact that British prisoners receive worse treatment than French or Russian prisoners, is a member of the committee. His observations show that alien prisoners are exceptionally well provided for. Among the internment places visited was the Royal Edward, now in the Thames. Lord Charles Beresford is so indignant over the bad treatment of British prisoners, that he asked the Premier to-day whether Germany would be given to understand that reprisals would be made here if improvement were not made. Mr. Asquith replied that the matter was under consideration.

Kaiser Personally Urges Subject to Eat Sparingly

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 24. — A special despatch to the Zeitung am Mittag from Koenigsberg says that Emperor William during his trip to Loetzen, East Prussia, at the time of the recent operations, spoke of the necessity of dealing sparingly with food supplies. He said he expected every German to restrict the consumption of food as much as possible, particularly potatoes, which the Emperor said under no circumstances should be used as food for horses.

"Have you signed the pledge?" is the question that everybody in Germany, even to the school children, is asking everybody else. The pledge is not for the usual temperance cause. It refers to sausage and other delicacies that should not be indulged in until the food embargo is lifted.

According to the Lokal Anzeiger, the school children of the capital are asked to make the following resolution.

"If from to-day, so long as the war lasts, we renounce sausages and meat for dinner and bind ourselves to take to school not more than two slices of bread; when the class lasts until one o'clock, and not more than four slices when the class lasts beyond one o'clock, this will be quite sufficient to appease hunger, and meat and bread supplies will thereby be spared."

The Lokal Anzeiger adds that in one school the boys have been selected to see that the self-denial ordinance is carried out. Speaking of the circularizing of schools to induce the children to restrict their consumption of food, the paper declares:—"Dear Fatherland, now mayest thou be tranquil."

It is stated that the war committee for consumers has petitioned the Imperial Chancellor to accelerate the slaughter of pigs for fear the potato fodder given to the animals may shorten the national food supply.

7 GERMAN AIRMEN KILLED BY BRITON

One British Aviator Victorious in Air Fight on Belgian Coast

Special Morning Cable.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 25.—Seven German officers were killed, two aeroplanes shot down, and a third badly damaged by one British airman, according to a despatch to The Tyd here last night.

Pursued by German aviators between Thourout and Ostend, Belgium, the British birdman succeeded in getting above them, the despatch stated. He shot down two of the machines while flieing from them, and hit a

Frontiersmen Secret Orders

Will Leave England Shortly on Mysterious Expedition

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 25—A romantic and mysterious expedition will leave England in about three weeks' time. It will consist of a corps of frontiersmen raised by Lieut.-Colonel Driscoll who headed a body of scouts in the South African war, and, according to that officer, it will go "on a sort of special mission in a tropical country."

Driscoll says that men with the old British spirit of enterprise will get all the fun and fighting they want. Among the officers of the corps are such noted big game hunters and travellers as Frank Selous, Cherry Kearton and G. H. Outram.

REVIEW OF THE SEED CONTROL ACT

With the opening of the 1915 seed trade, seedsmen, farmers and gardeners may wish to review the conditions, under which sales may be made. The Seed Control Act provides that timothy, alsike, red clover and alfalfa seed must not be put on sale for the purpose of seeding without being plainly marked with the grade, namely: extra No. 1, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3. Farmers may sell seed below No. 3 in quality only to dealers to be cleaned and brought up to grade. All other grass, clover and forage plant seeds and those of cereals and flax must be marked in a plain and indelible manner with the common name or names of any noxious weed seeds present.

Seed of cereals, flax, grasses, clovers, forage plants, field roots and garden vegetables must have a germination of two-thirds of the percentage standard of vitality for good Samples under 8 ounces may be sent without postage and are tested free of charge up to 25 in number for each person or firm.

seed of the kind or be marked with the perecentage that are capable of germinating. "Papered seeds" must be marked with the year in which the packet was filled.

Representative samples of seeds for purity and germination tests may be sent to the Seed Branch, Ottawa. Two ounces of grass seed, white or alsike clover; four ounces of red clover, alfalfa or seed of like size, and one pound of cereals are desired.

COUNT TEN! BAD COLD RELIEVED FIGURE THREE HOURS—COLD CURED

Don't sniffle and sneeze with a nasty cold. Kill it at once by "Catarrhozone." It's the surest thing on colds ever known: simply knocks them out in no time. The medical vapour of CATARRHOZONE spreads through all parts of the breathing organs, and its beneficial action is felt instantly. Doesn't matter whether the cold is in the head, chest or lungs, Catarrhozone will reach it, and cure it quickly.

Easy to use—you bet it is—not a single drug to take because you simply breathe in the most healing and soothing of piney vapours that come from the wonderful Catarrhozone inhaler.

"I can cheerfully testify that Catarrhozone is simply a magical cure for colds," writes P. F. Clement of Augusta. "For days last winter my head was completely filled up with cold. My eyes ran water. I sneezed and coughed constantly. I took many medicines. I was sick of the sight of them. Finally, I tried Catarrhozone. Its effect was magical. It soothed the inflamed membranes, stopped the sneezing and cured in no time. I never met anything to kill a cold like Catarrhozone."

Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the work quick. Small size 50c; trial sample size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

THE GUINEA PIG PROVED IT

That dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, are mostly due to a contagious disease is now recognized by dermatologists everywhere.

A notable demonstration was made by Drs. Lassar and Bishop, who took dandruff scales from the head of a student who was loosing his hair and having made a pomade of them with vaseline, rubbed the same upon a guinea-pig, and the pig became bald. (See Geo. Thomas Jackson, M. D., on diseases of the skin, 4th edition).

The success of Newbro's Herpicide in the eradication of this contagion is quite extraordinary. Neglect and delay only add to the trouble. Begin to-day with Herpicide and watch the improvement.

Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Company, Dept. 100-B. Detroit, Mich., for sample and booklet.

THE AVIATORS HELPED TO REPULSE THE GERMANS

Dropped Sixty Bombs on the Railway Station Where the Kaiser's Forces Were Concentrating and Prevented a Successful Attack—Other Advances of the Enemy Were Checked.

BRITISH GUNNERS DEMOLISH BLOCKHOUSE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The allied aviators played an important part in the repulse of the German troops who attempted to retake the lost ground in the Champaigne region, it was announced in the official despatches to-day. The airmen rained down no less than 60 bombs upon the railway station where the Kaiser's troops were concentrating. They shelled the trains loaded with the troops and threw the Germans into confusion, preventing a successful attack.

In Argonne the enemy's attacks near Maria Theresa were checked before they were well under way. Between Argonne and the Meuse, a series of German attacks were likewise repulsed and the allies made slight gains in the counter attack.

Violent artillery fighting continues around Lombaertayde, near the seacoast. The British gunners demolished a German block house.

A GREAT BATTLE

PETROGRAD, February 25.—The first great battle since the Austrians began their northward drive to recapture Lemberg, is being waged east and south of Stanislaus, along the eastern Carpathians, according to advices received here to-day.

Only meagre despatches have arrived here from the new Galician battle ground. These indicate that for the present the conflict around Stanislaus overshadows the developments in Poland, where the Russians are driving the exhausted Germans in upon their own frontier. Elsewhere, both in the Carpathians and in Poland. the Russian offensives continue successful. The Germans have been out-manoeuvred in their attempts to concentrate around Przasnysz for a new advance upon Warsaw.

BERLIN'S CLAIMS

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—The East Prussian reserves stormed the Russian fortress of Przasnysz yesterday, and took the fortress with more than 10,000 pirsoners, it wa officially announced to-day. Przasnysz was strongly fortified, the official despatches add.

It was admitted at the war office to-day that the Russians have captured the town of Mogily, southeast of Bolimow. The official statement said that the Russians advanced upon the German positions with overwhelming forces.

A UNITED STATES THREAT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The United States may call hunger as her ally to bring Great Britain and Germany to their knees in their submarine warfare, now threatening United States commerce.

Such was the unconfirmed hint in official circles to-day. Sponsors for the suggestion said that President Wilson would lay a tight embargo on the exportation of foodstuffs to both the allies and Germany, unless all parties involved yield to America's latest suggestions. It is needed, so it is claimed, for domestic reasons: Hence it could be applied on that pretext without drawing the United States into the European conflict. At the same time its effect, it was believed, would be that both Britain and Germany would give absolutely immunity to American ships.

Moreover, peace advocates held that in addition Uncle Sam's hand in the hunger war would hasten the end of Europe's bitter struggle for they insist Europe cannot battle without American foodstuffs.

RECRUITING FOR INFANTRY IS STEADY

Local Company of the 39th Battalion, Third Contingent Has Reached the Century Mark

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Recruiting for the local company of the 39th Battalion is continuing steadily, and last evening the 100 mark was reached. The past three days have been the best from an enlisting standpoint for a long time, as the quality of the men presenting themselves was so high that there was only one rejection. The detachment is now bigger than the 57th's contribution to the second contingent in spite of the fact that in addition to the infantry a squadron of Mounted Rifles has been recruited here. Both units are composed for the great part of Peterborough men and in the case of the 39th there are very few recruits from outside the city, a contrast to the Lindsay contingent, which is composed largely of Toronto men. The local recruiting officers have confined their attention almost entirely to Peterborough and have not been scouring the country for men. The latter are still coming forward and the total strength of the two units at the local armouries is now over the 250 mark.

The percentage of married men in the 39th is unusually large, 35 of the 100 being benedicts. The second contingent detachment from Peterborough on the other hand was for the greater part composed of single men. English born recruits are in the large majority, the figures reading English 65, Canadians 26, Scotch 4, Irish 3 and Welsh 1.

Major Cameron, the medical officer in charge of the local units has established his quarters in the artillery orderly room. Sick parades are at 11 a.m. and 4.30 p.m. daily.

The members of the 39th are excited over the prospects of early orders to mobilize at Belleville. Meanwhile the daily routine is being carried on, the company drilling from 8.30 to 12 a.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m.

Pte. Smith of the 39th Battalion, who has been confined to Nicholls Hospital, with pneumonia, is making rapid progress and will be discharged from the Hospital in a few days.

Pte. Hillson of the 39th Battalion was removed to the Isolation Hospital to-day, suffering from an attack of "German" measels. There are four cases in the local garrison.

THREE BRITISH AERIAL RAIDERS ARE MISSING

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 25—The Admiralty announces that three flying officers who took part in recent air raids upon Ostend, Zeebrugge and Bruges, are reported missing. A fourth officer, Lieut. Murray, who was at first reported missing, has since been heard from at Flushing.

Berlin recently reported that a raid by allied aviators on points in Belgium had been repulsed. This was after two previous successful raids in which British aviators chiefly figured.

HOME GUARD

Every officer of the Home Guard is particularly requested to be present at parade this evening. Matters of importance will be discussed. By order,

F. D. KERR.
Captain and Adjutant.

British Vessel "Western Coast" Mined or Torpedoed Off Beachy Head Yesterday

PASSENGERS LANDED

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, FEB. 25.—THE BRITISH STEAMER WESTERN COAST WAS MINED OR TORPEDOED OFF BEACHY HEAD YESTERDAY. HER CREW AND PASSENGERS WERE LANDED AT PORTSMOUTH TO-DAY.

Mr. T. F. Matthews Was Elected President

Of the District at Yesterday's Convention of the Hydro-Radial Union —Mayor Buller on Executive

His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus and Edgar, Mr. B. D. Hall, President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. T. F. Matthews, comprised Peterborough's representation at the annual meeting of the Hydro Radial Union of Ontario, which was held in Toronto yesterday.

Representatives from municipalities from all parts of the province heartily endorsed the project for constructing a net work of public owned radials to serve the rural districts and bring them and the farmers into closer touch with the consuming centres.

Were Bound to Pay.

Sir Adam Beck said that radial railways were bound to pay from the start as all the money would be spent on the lines and equipment and not in promotion expenses. That was something different to the ordinary methods of railway construction, when lines frequently cost more to promote than to construct. Municipalities could do better than any private corporation and would have no difficulty in raising all the money required for the construction of its lines. He said the Dominion Government should grant the usual subsidies to the municipalities, as the proposed lines were for the general benefit of Canada. The time had arrived for stopping the payment of subsidies to the municipalities, as the proposed lines were for the general benefit of Canada. The time had arrived for stopping the payment of subsidies to private railway companies.

Subsidies Needed.

Resolutions were passed requesting the Dominion and Provincial Governments to grant subsidies towards the cost of constructing the proposed lines. It was also decided to request the several municipalities benefitted by the Hydro power system to co-operate with the union in the making of a presentation to Sir Adam Beck for the splendid services he had rendered in giving the people cheap light and power. A sub-committee was named to make arrangements, and it is suggested the presentation be made at the ceremonies to mark the opening of the London and Port Stanley Railway in May next.

The constitution and by-laws prepared by a sub-committee were presented and unanimously approved. All municialities are eligible for membership, and will be required to pay a fee of $2 per annum for every 1,000 of population.

It was decided to engage a paid secretary, as the work was becoming too onerous for voluntary effort. The executive was authorized to appoint a suitable man.

Officers Elected.

The proceedings closed with the election of officers, which were as follows: Honorary President, Sir Adam Beck; Honorary Vice-Presidents, Hon. I. B. Lucas and Mr. W. K. McNaught; President, Mr. J. W. Lyon, Guelph; Vice-Presidents, Mayor Church (Toronto), ex-Mayor Graham (London), Mr. A. F. Wilson (Markham), and Mayor Buller (Peterborough); District Presidents, ex-Mayor Evans (Prescott), T. F. Matthews (Peterborough), J. H. Downey (Whitby), Controller John O'Neill (Toronto), Peter Bate (East Flamboro), J. B. Ryan (Guelph), W. B. Johnston (St. Thomas), Mayor Clay (Windsor), R. Stigsett (Petrolea), D. M. McLaughlin (Stratford), W. C. Bush (St. Catharines), and R. Lush (Clarkson's.)

COMMISSION WILL DECIDE

As to What Action Will Be Taken in Connection With Request of Arbitration Board

MEETING THIS MORNING

To the Utilities Commission has been delegated the responsibility of determining what action shall be taken in respect to the request alleged to have been made by the Board of Arbitration. The latter, which is in session in Toronto, has asked the city to come to some understanding with the Board as to what disposition shall be made of that part of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's distribution system, now possessed by the city pending the result of the arbitration, and located outside of the city limits. At a combined meeting of the City Council and Utilities Commission held this morning, Mr. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission, pointed out that the light and power users outside of the city, were enjoying the same rate as those within the corporation, despite the fact that they have no interest in the debenture debt. The system outside of the city was appraised by the Hydro-Electric engineers at $4,450 and by the Peterborough Light and Power Company at $8,000. Mr. Fisk's "replacement" value represents the sum of $4,900. Some time ago the Commissioners made an offer to the company of $4,450. This was refused and later the company agreed to sell for $5,000. Nothing was done and the matter drifted along until the arbitration proceedings commenced.

A Warning Note.

It was then suggested that some understanding should be arrived at, but the Board decided to let the matter stand until the evidence was in. Nothing more was heard until City Solicitor Gordon was asked by Mr. Colville, solicitor for the Peterborough Light and Power Company to endeavour if possible, to have the city agree with the Board as to what action should be taken. Mr. Hicks was in favour of leaving the matter in the hands of the arbiters in which case it was suggested that a settlement could be effected on the same basis as that applied to the system within the corporation.

Ald. Green sounded a note of caution He thought that the meeting should have something more definite as to the origin of the request. Mr. Colville had apparently forwarded the request on behalf of the arbiters. It was pointed out that Mr. M. K. Cowan, K.C., of Toronto, solicitor for the city was confined to his bed which might afford an explanation of the request coming through the company's solicitor.

Some of the aldermen were inclined to renew the city's offer of $4,450 to the company, but not without the sanction of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario and the city's solicitor.

Of No Use to the Company.

It was felt that unless the matter was satisfactorily settled it would have a tendency to influence the award of the arbiters as they would possibly conclude that unless the city gave the company some assurance as to whether they would take over the outside system would only represent so much scrap to the company as it would be of no further use to them once the city had acquired complete possession of the distributing system within the city limits. Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, arbiter for the company, contended that the act compelled the city to acquire possession of the outside distributing system together with that within the limits and emphasised the fact that the city had operated the former since acquiring possession of the plant in October last. Both the Utilities Commission and the City Council agree that the outside distributing system should be taken in with the rest providing it can be acquired at a reasonable cost. Power consumers operating outside the city would probably be charged an additional ten per cent. to cover the extra cost of supplying the service, especially as they had no interest in the debenture debt or any form of taxes as might be levied by the city.

On motion of Aldermen Green and McIntyre, it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Commissioners. A meeting will be called later to decide as to what action will be taken.

The City Council was represented at the meeting by His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Dobbin, Edgar, Green, Evans, Weir and McIntyre. The Commissioners present were Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman, Mr. R. Hicks and Mr. W. H. Moore.

EDGAR GROSE TOLD STORY OF STRUGGLE WITH WM. O'BRIEN

The Only Evidence on the Escapade in the White House From Which O'Brien Emerged Unconscious —The Concluding Testimony Was Heard This Morning.

THE END IN SIGHT

The noon recess in the Grose trial found all the evidence before the Jury, and there remained for the afternoon the addresses of the lawyers and the Judge's summary.

To a certain extent the evidence brought out this morning [illegible] tition of that produced yesterday. There was the exception of the prisoner's statement in his own behalf, and the testimony of Chief Thompson, who was called by the Crown.

Mr. Gordon raised a strong objection to the latter, on the ground that it had not been brought out previously:

Dr. Gallivan.

Dr. Gallivan, re-called for cross-examination by Mr. Gordon, said that the increased thyroid glands was a disease belonging to the goitre family.

Does goitre have a tendency to weaken the walls of the windpipe?

Yes.

If the deceased had been pushed or thrown against a wall violently so that his head or shoulders would strike it, might that have caused a rupture of a blood vessel?

I couldn't say.

Dr. Gallivan said it was possible. He wouldn't say that that had not happened in this case.

Could an effusion of blood occur in the brain, as you found it, without a blow being struck?

Yes; in the case of convulsion.

Did you find evidence of convulsion?

No.

Would a strain or effort on the part of the deceased do it?

If there was disease of the blood vessels it might do it.

Were the blood vessels diseased, as far as you were able to ascertain?

No.

Would you say they were not diseased?

No.

Would intoxication increase blood pressure?

I think it would.

Did the abnormally soft brain tissue have anything to do with the hemorrhage?

I can't say. It might have.

What would be the effect of a man being forced violently against a wall so that he struck his head or shoulder?

Dr. Gallivan said that if a force had been applied to the head a wound would be expected on the scalp. Had the man's head struck the wall you would expect a wound to have resulted.

Do you know of cases of asphyxiation by reason of a weakened windpipe?

No, I can't recall one.

To Mr Shaver.

Dr. Gallivan said that in the case of O'Brien the goitre was large enough to interfere with respiration. The enlarged glands would not have shut off breathing without pressure being applied. Under exertion the enlarged thyroids would interfere with respiration.

Is there any co-relation between enlarged lobes of the thyroid glands and diseases of the arteries?

Not that I know of.

Dr. Eastwood.

Dr. Eastwood stated to Mr. Gordon that he agreed, generally speaking, with Dr. Gallivan's evidence.

Without the application of force it would be possible to cause a rupture of the blood vessels with all the conditions present as in this case?

I don't know that it might not. Dr. Eastwood admitted that it was barely possible.

Do you consider that the softness of the brain was a predisposing cause to the rupture?

It might be.

Dr. Jukes Johnson.

The next witness of the Crown was Dr. Jukes Johnson, Chief Coroner of Toronto, who was delegated by the Attorney-General's Department to investigate the present case.

Dr. Johnston said that the post-mortem report showed, on the whole, that death resulted from some condition which made it impossible for the deceased to breathe. He died because he was unable to fill the lungs

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

It is to be hoped that the administration of Canada's Patriotic Fund, which amounts to $2,700,000, less an expenditure to date of $900,000, does not deserve some of the parliamentary criticism made. The administration of the voluntary contributions of the people for patriotic purposes, apart from actual war operations, came up in Parliament yesterday. Mr. H. B. Ames, M.P., for St. Antoine Division, Montreal, is secretary of the organization of the fund, and had to submit to some criticism which was more valuable as being of a non-partisan character; for four of the five speakers on the occasion were fellow-Conservatives of Mr. Ames. Mr. W. H. Bennet, of Simcoe, asserted that there was discrimination in the administration of the fund to the advantage of dependents of officers, as against the dependents of "the man behind the gun," the private soldier. If there is anything in this statement there is something wrong that should at once be remedied. Wants of dependents should be supplied on their merits, and not according to military rank or social position; and not according to the contributions of the localities in which dependents reside. Mr. Ames rather caustically reminded Mr. Bennet that Simcoe had not hurt itself in contributing to the fund. This should make no difference. Givings merged into the Dominion Patriotic Fund, become a national fund and should be distributed in an equitable way. As to contributions, Mr. Ames stated that Quebec contributed $1,035,000, and Ontario $1,010,000. The province with the largest population — Ontario (2½ millions) gave less to the fund than Quebec (2 millions); a province whose loyalty to Britain institutions is sometimes put in doubt by some of our good Ontario citizens. Loyalty as a matter of mouth to justify itself as against loyalty as a matter of money—practical loyalty—must let the "money talk."

A $30,000 SPURT.

Peterborough's taxation has taken a thirty thousand dollar spurt this year. Ten thousand for the costs of the arbitration, if the amount is levied this year; $10,000, odd, for the Patriotic Fund, and $10,000, odd, for provincial taxation; and if we add the amount to be paid by the county — which is $9,065.05, we shall have the City and County of Peterborough contributing a total of $30,000 to the miscalled "war tax" of the Ontario Government. We don't mind so much the first two—they are our own affair to be devoted to our own purposes. The costs of the arbitration are an investment with a view of getting cheaper light and power—to secure control of the supply of a domestic utility. But it seems to be a far different matter wtih regard to the alleged "war tax" levied by the Ontario Government upon the ratepayers of every municipality. If it were indeed a war-tax; if it were unavoidably made necessary by the war we would gladly, as we now reluctantly, pay it.

It is only theoretically true to say that the war tax and war conditions have made direct taxation in order to provide revenue necessary; but it is practically true that extravagant and improvident expenditure has made conditions that, without the demands for expenditure for war purposes, would have made direct taxation necessary now or later. Within one year the administration of the Ontario Government has increased the direct liabilities of the province from 32 million dollars to 45 million dollars. Such results of expenditure, inconsiderate as to consequences, are not to be wondered at, with the spectacle of "Ontario's Folly" as a case in point. Before it is completed Ontario's palace for a governor's residence will have cost the province nearly a million dollars. The following figures will be instructive, if not cheering:

For site	$147,869
Laying out grounds	114,132
Buildings and furnishings	499,992
Cost of completing grounds	35,000
Cost of completing buildings	142,364
Cost of furnishings	36,000
	$975,448

No one need be taxed with communistic or advanced socialistic sentiments, who regards such an expenditure on a tenement for an ornamental tenant, or rather lieutenant, as extravagant and wasteful for a democratic province—a province of plain honest, hard-working people. Great Britain and the Empire, and half the world, are waging the greatest war of history, for the preservation and triumph of the democratic principle; yet we in Ontario are spending so much on "frills" that we have to tax every widow in the province—every man, woman and child in the province taxed an average of $5—to compensate for the folly of expending the price of a hundred ten-thousand dollar farms, or seven hundred workingman's homes, on a residence for a lieutenant-governor, who, in the way of salary, gets $10,000 a year; upon a palatial residence, dumped on a site in a hole at the back doors of a smoke-belching brick works. To pay $147,000 for a site that required, or will require, an expenditure of $151,000 to make it suitable for its purpose, taken in connection with the whole scheme and management, or mismanagement, of the construction of a gubernatorial residence, is one of the explanations, amongst many others, that the public accounts reveal, that furnishes the reason why we are compelled to pay in Peterborough city and county $20,000 as a "war tax" in name, but in fact as a penalty for wasteful extravagance of administration. We willingly pay a direct tax to the Patriotic Fund, because it is a contribution to helping on our share in a just war; but it is like pulling teeth to pay one's share of a ten thousand levy, not for war purposes, but as contribution to helping the reckless administrators of provincial affairs out of the hole in which their fast and loose play with the peoples' money has put them. Thousands for war tax and patriotic purposes, but not one penny as penalty for absolute waste of public funds, is the way most people feel about Ontario's first dose of direct taxation.

THE PSALMIST AND THE KAISER.

A correspondent has found this prophetic word-picture of the War Lord in the 55th Psalm: "He hath put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him, he hath broken is covenant The word of his mouth was smoother than butter; but war was in his heart; his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords . . . . But tou, O God, shall bring them down into the pit of destruction; bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days".—Scottish-American.

WHY WAS BECK SQUEEZED OUT OF THE CABINET?

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Ignorance still prevails as to why Sir Adam Beck left the Provincial Cabinet at the time of its reorganization, and why Hon. W. J. Hanna did not become Prime Minister when, as it was stated, the position was offered to him as well as to Hon. Dr. Pyne and Hon. J. J. Foy. According to constitutional precedent and on the request of Mr. Rowell, Mr. Hearst has made a statement to the House regarding these Cabinet changes, but the criticism leveled against the statement is that it failed to explain the points in which the public were most interested. These features, undoubtedly were — first, was there Ottawa dictation in the appointment of a Premier and, second, why did Beck leave the Cabinet and why did Hanna not become Prime Minister?

Mr. Hearst vehemently denied that he owed his position to Federal influence, but it was easy to see that Mr. Rowell's references to charges in Conservative papers, which, as he said, were in the confidence of the Government much more than he was, that the appointment was the work of the Hon. Frank Cochrane in Ottawa, disturbed the new Prime Minister who showed every sign of being annoyed and agitated.

MR. BURNHAM ON THE BUDGET

Mr. J. H. Burnham, West Peterborough, who preceded Mr. Turriff, resumed the debate for the Government. He claimed Liberal criticism was destructive rather than constructive. "You can find fault with the weather or with the universe," said he, "but if you can't do better the least you can do is to keep quiet." Mr. Maclean had not been firing at the enemy. He was "shooting up in the air."

Then Mr. Burnham gave the whole House a laugh. "In the thirteenth century, as you will recall, Mr. Speaker," he began — when his voice was drowned in laughter.

Attacked British Preference.

Mr. Burnham vigorously attacked the British preference It could not exist, he said, without a protective tariff. It possessed all the evils of protection and none of the good. It sent money out of the country. "I am willing to bet any money," said he, "that there is not a man in England who is not ashamed of the British preference." It was inconsistent and unreasonable. It was a two-faced affair. It was intended as a display of loyalty and at the same time as a sop to free trade.

And Naval Service Act.

Mr. Burnham also attacked the Canadian naval service act. He described it as "a practical declaration of independence." He added that he did not believe in Imperial Federation. He believed in Canada remaining as she was, with the naval service act repealed.

"How would you then administer the Niobe and the Rainbow at the present time?" inquired Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer.

"I would put them on the end of a toothpick and present them to the German Kaiser," declared Mr. Burnham amid howls of laughter from both sides.

WITHROW TOURS TO CALIFORNIA MAY 25TH, AND JULY 5TH, 1915.

The Withrow Tours to California for the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions should appeal strongly to those wishing to enjoy the advantage of a specially conducted tour; an additional attraction in this connection is the fact that each tour will be limited in number, thus giving the conductor an opportunity to give individual attention to each member of the party.

On return trip members of the party who so desire may travel via the incomparable Canadian Rockies and visit the Palatial Canadian Pacific Hotels, which have a world-wide reputation for their high standard of service.

For full particulars write Miss F. Withrow, B.A., 49 Hampton Court, Avenue Road, Toronto.

Germany's Justification of Her Partnership in The "Divine Plan"

The Berlin papers tell us that the Kaiser on his birthday watched a march-past of his troops and afterwards chatted with the newspaper correspondents, concluding with the words: "My principle in this war is old John Knox's words, 'A man with God is always in the majority'." We must leave to Scotsmen to characterise fitly this appropriation of the national prophet by the German Emperor; but, since the German nation formally annexed Shakespeare at the beginning of the war, is is not likely to boggle over the naturalisation of "old John Knox." Still less can we be surprised at the annexation of the Almighty, which is now a familiar incident of the Kaiser's orations. The classic comment on that was furnished by Abraham Lincoln, who, when asked whether he was sure that God was on "our side," made answer: "I do not know; but I am very anxious to know that we are on God's side."

Let us consider, for a moment, the position of this modern disciple of John Knox. He has come via Belgium to celebrate his birthday at La Bassee, and he has seen on the road, as he has seen a dozen times before, the work wrought by the "men with God" in that country. It is, in his view, the Lord's doing, and, we suppose, marvellous in His eyes. Let us turn to the further exposition of the Divine plan given, by a happy coincidence, by the German Chancellor in that excellent periodical the World's Work, which, appealing to American as well as to British readers, gives an impartial hearing to all sides:

"Everybody," says Herr Bethmann-Hollweg, "is full of pity for the civilian population of Belgium, which has suffered more than others under the inevitable hardships of war. England puts the blame for this state of affairs on us. No German will agree with the English contention. The cases of Belgium and Luxembourg are identical. The letter country was really neutral, did not fight, and has suffered no losses at all. Germany paid her ample indemnity for all damages. Belgium, however, did fight, because it followed England's advice."

So, according to the Divine plan, if a burglar enters your house, and you resist him, the righteousness is on his side and the responsibility for the consequences, if they entail suffering, entirely yours. The householder's real duty is, in such circumstances, to remain neutral. We have no criticism at all to make of the attitude of Luxembourg, which was powerless to resist the assertion of the German doctrine that might is right. But this comparison between the righteousness of Luxembourg and the error of Belgium is a little too much. The Scripture which tells us to turn the the other cheek does not go the length of saying that the smiter is justified or the smitten a sinner.

The German Chancellor may say that we beg the question when we speak of the invasion of Belgium as an evil thing. He is, as we know, extremely anxious to bury the phrase in which he spoke of it as a 'wrong'. Unfortunately for him, there is other testimony of an even more permanent kind, the testimony, for example, of the German War Book, which certainly does not err on the side of sentimentality. Let us give the instruction bearing on this subject as translated by Prof. Morgan in his edition of this manual:

"The territory of neutral States is available for none of the belligerents for the conduct of its military operations. The Government of the neutral State has, therefore, once war is declared, to "prevent the subjects of both belligerents from marching through it."

It is a legal maxim that no one is bound to the impossible, and on that ground we may hold Luxembourg absolved, but when comparison is made between Luxembourg and Belgium, and it is alleged that Luxembourg did right and Belgium did wrong, the whole code is falsified. The authors of the German War Book actually add a note to the passage quoted above which shows by examples what they thought of specific infractions (by other people) of the doctrine here laid down. "The passage of French troops through Prussian territory in October, 1806, was," they say, "a contempt of Prussian neutrality." "The moment the Swiss Government permitted the Allies to march through its territory in the year 1814, it hereby renounced the rights of a neutral." "In the Franco-Prussian war the Prussian Government complained of the behaviour of Luxembourg in not stopping a passage en masse of fugitive French soldiers after the fall of Metz through the territory of the Grand Duchy." Thus Switzerland is actually condemned for not doing what Belgium has just done, and Luxembourg for permitting what Belgium has tried to prevent. This is the law of nations as defined by the German general staff itself. And yet Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg has the hardihood to tell other neutral countries that Belgium is the author of her own misfortunes and that the humane German nation is filled with sorrowful pity at the sufferings which have fall en upon her civil population for having yielded to the pernicious counsels of Great Britain and has come to the rescue of her violated neutrality. We wonder what kind of echo these words will have in Holland, in Denmark, in Switzerland, or in any other of the neutral countries, who are thus given warning that the whole code of neutrality as guaranteed by the law and custom of nations is less than a scrap of paper when it comes into conflict with German necessity. We say "less than a scrap of paper" because, according to this reasoning, the victims of German necessity are apparently in future to be branded as the criminals of the transaction.

The Kaiser goes even a step farther than his Chancellor. Looking back on the smoking ruins of the country through which his army has hewed its way to steal a march on its regular opponents, he proclaims that he is "a man with God." It is not for us to predict the judgment of Providence on these proceedings, but if we did not believe that there is a nemesis waiting for those who do these things, we should despair of the world and of the future of the human race. It cannot be that this, in the phrase of Dante, is "dentro al cosiglio divino" (within the Divine plan). Westminster Gazette.

HARDWARE CONVENTION MEETS IN TORONTO

Gathering of Hardware Men From All Over the Province

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—"Build Now" is a slogan suggested in the address of Secretary Weston Wrigley at the annual convention of the Ontario Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association which opened at the King Edward Hotel yesterday.

"Labour is idle and building materials are lower in price than for several years," said Mr. Wrigley. Land is also obtainable at reasonable prices, while money to loan is accumulating in bankers' hands. Canadian farmers are obtaining very high prise for their products, and with an increase of 20 to 25 per cent. in acreage of Canadian land sown in grain this year. Canada's 1915 crop should be the greatest in history and again attract a flow of emigrants to Canada from battle-scarred Europe.

The Made-in-Canada Idea.

Mr. Wrigley also devoted some time to the Made-in-Canada campaign, stating that it was a time to give preference to articles made in Canada. He pointed out, however, that the article should compare favourably in price and quality with imported goods.

Plain Talk to Manufacturers.

President W. F. McPherson, Prescott, speaking on the same subject, had some plain truths to tell the manufacturers. He said that often in many lines of hardware if the dealers ordered a dozen articles he would find sometimes two that could not be sold. In his opinion the manufacturers did not submit their goods to a proper inspection before sending the goods out. In American goods this was not found, he declared.

Reply From Mr. Taylor.

President Taylor of the Taylor Forbes Company answered the charge by saying that a great deal of the trouble lay with the retailers who did not report these imperfections. This was also emphasized by Secretary Tobin of Woodstock, who said that foreign goods were often not as represented. He suggested that the retailer send his complaint in every case to the Secretary of his association.

The association will remain a separate organization from the Retail Merchants' Association. It voted to remain separate yesterday. However, all members were urged to join the Retail Merchants' Association as well.

A dinner was held at Dunning's in the evening.

Mr. H. P. Morgan, of the Morgan Hardware Co., is attending the convention.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Take Affadavits That They Were Asked To Throw Pro. Game

MONTREAL, Feb. 24.—President Emmett Quinn, of the N.H.A., now has the names of at least three conspirators in the hockey scandal. He has asked Lou Solman to communicate with the Crown Attorney in Toronto, and take action against these men. The affidavits signed by Beland and Mummery, the two Quebec players, are now in the hands of President Quinn. They read as follows:

1. I am one of the regular players of the Quebec Hockey Club for the season 1914-1916.

2. During my stay in Toronto, on February 20th instant, and previous to our scheduled hockey game with the Shamrocks, of Toronto, that evening, ———, contractor, at the Prince George Hotel, did attempt to bribe me into throwing that game, and did offer me up to one thousand dollars if I would bribe one or two other players of our team, in the same manner.

3. In fact, upon my refusal, he forced me to accept a ten-dollar note, to show "his good faith," promising to see me after the game. Thereupon I immediately reported the matter to the manager of our team, Mr. M. J. Quinn, so that he may act accordingly.

1. I am the trainer of the Quebec Hockey team for the season 1914-1915, and in such capacity accompanied the team to Toronto on February 20th inst.

2. During my stay in Toronto, on the above date, and previous to the Quebec game with the Shamrocks that evening, ———' contractor, in the Prince George Hotel, did attempt to bribe me with an offer of fifty dollars, stating that he had placed a sum of from five to six thousand dollars on Shamrocks to win that night, and that I should do the proper thing. He stated that more would be forthcoming if all was right.

3. Upon my flat refusal to entertain any such proposition, he persisted, and again spoke to me in the afternoon, and made the same offer, saying: "Dave, if Shamrocks win tonight, these fifty dollars are yours." I reported this incident to Manager M. J. Quinn at the same time as one of the players, Henry Mummery.

The Johnson-Willard Bout Is Declared Off

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 24—The Jack Johnson-Jess Willard fight scheduled for Juarez, Mexico, on March 6, has been officially declared off.

In an exclusive interview, Johnson declared he will not take a chance on landing on Mexican soil, fearing that Carranza will either hold him for ransom or turn him over to the American authorities in an effort to re-establish favourable diplomatic relations with Washington.

"If Jack Curley, who was to promote the championship fight at Juarez, transfers the battle to Havana, we can box here," declared Johnson.

Continuing, Johnson said: "I will do everything possible for Curley, whom I like very much, but I will not take a chance with the Mexican Government. Dick Klegin, the local promotor, went the absolute limit to deliver me to Curley, even against Klegin's own financial interests. Other friends of Klegin here have worked equally hard, but my mind is made up and I will not change it.

"I advised Klegin to open negotiations with Curley to transfer the fight to Havana. I am sure it will draw five times as much money here as it would have at Juarez.

"Meanwhile I will remain in Havana and am ready to take on Sam McVey and Colin Bell here for Klegin. We will first educate the Cuban public to real fighting and then pull my fight with Willard.

"Havana looks like the greatest sporting city in the world. I am sorry for Curley, but he is in an impossible position. I have just cabled him, declaring the fight off."

Johnson will give an exhibition here, and will start real fighting in hopes that Willard will come here to fight him for the title.

Wiarton Wins the Semi-Final From Sarnia

WIARTON, Feb. 24.—The intermediate O.H.A. semi-final game played here to-night between Wiarton and Sarnia resulted in a victory for Wiarton. The first period stood 3 to 0 in favour of Wiarton, and the second 3 to 0 in favour of the same team, while they again scored 2 to 0 in the third period. Full-time score was 6 to 0 in favour of Wiarton.

The line-up:

Old Country Football News

A large number of professional players of the "Footballers' Battalion" left their headquarters at the White City, Shepherd's Bush, London, on Friday last, to assist their clubs in the cup ties or league games played last Saturday. Many bore distinct traces of their first serious hard day's work in the shape of tired backs or blistered hands, as the result of a long day's trench digging they had been put to on Thursday. The keenness shown by the entire battalion has had its reward by the following: To full corporals: Mercer (Notts Forest) and Wilcox (Brighton and Hove); to lance corporals: Durston (Queen's Park Rangers), Gibson (Clapton Orient), Orme (Millwall), Parker (Clapton Orient), McFadden (Clapton Orient), McCormick (Plymouth Argyle), Dalrymple (Clapton Orient), Goodwin (Exeter City), Truett (Notts County) and Needham (Brighton and Hove.)

New Released.

The suspension of R. Whittingham, of South Shields, by the Football Association, on Jan. 30, for having failed to apologise to a referee, as ordered by the Football Association, has been removed, the player having made an unreserved apology, and also expressed his regret for not doing so earlier.

Miscellaneous.

Sheffield United and Chelsea have agreed to play their postponed league match at Bramall lane on Monday, March 8.

Trout With Maple Leafs

Former Peterborough Player Ready to Sign

TORONTO, Feb. 24. — The Toronto Baseball Club to-day sent out contracts for 22 players for the season of 1915. The team will report in Washington, D.C., Thursday, April 1, and will go south to training grounds. Two places are in contemplation, and a decision has not yet been reached as to which will be better for the team.

The Leafs will open the championship season of the International League at Richmond, Va. on Tuesday, April 27. The opening game at the Island Stadium will be on Monday, May 17. The season will include 140 games, instead of 154, as in previous years.

The name of the new manager will be announced next week. Hugh Duffy's name has been mentioned, but it is understood he is not available.

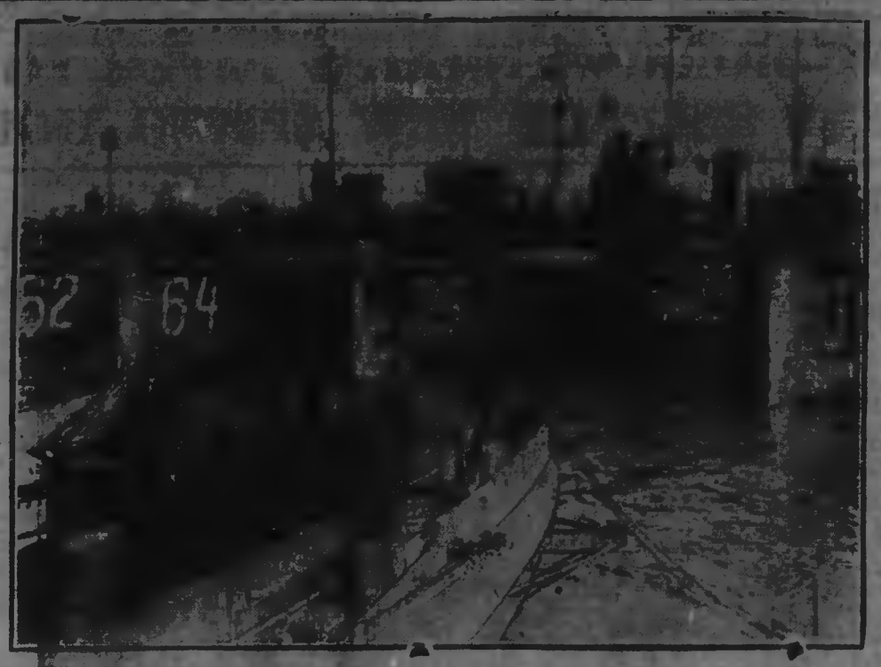
DENISON IS WITH HAILEYBURY

Former Peterborough, Hamilton Alert, Toronto Riverside Player Now Up North

Fred Denison, the former Peterborough player, who was with the Riversides of Toronto Senior O.H.A. team this season, is now playing for Haileybury in the Temiskaming Senior League, on which team is also Jerry Coughlin, of Peterborough. The Cobalt Nugget says that Denison was protested when he played for Haileybury against Cobalt. The Nugget says: "The game was officially protested by the home team at the first interval, this being duly announced by Referee Lynd from the ice. The cause of the objection was Denison who turned out for Haileybury, and who it is claimed did not comply with the residence rule."

Bishop Roper Elected.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—Rt. Rev. Dr. John C. Roper, Bishop of Columbia diocese, British Columbia, was unanimously chosen bishop of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa by the synod, in session here yesterday. A telegram was received from Bishop Roper last night accepting the office. He succeeds Archbishop Hamilton, who resigned some time ago.



A BUSY SCENE IN THE KIEL CANAL.—A flotilla of torpedo boats in the Kiel Canal. These swift vessels, together with the submarines, are the means by which Kaiser Wilhelm is attempting to enforce his blockade of England and prey on English shipping.

THREE GOOD GAMES IN THE "Y" LEAGUE

Last night's trio of games in the "Y" basket ball League gave both players and followers of the league food for thought and speculation. All six teams in last night's contest were out to win, so that every one had to extend himself to the full in order to down opponents.

In the first game between Cressman's and De Laval the individual players seemed very evenly matched and no player on either team scored more than one basket more than his opponent. Where the Cressman team had the edge was in the fact that they have been togeter and had more practice, which tells in team work and wins games. By the time the De Laval reach the second round they will be hard to beat. The first half ended with the score 16—11 in favour of Cressmans. In the second half each team scored six baskets, making the final score 28—23 in favour of Cressmans.

In the second fixture between the Excelsiors and Unknowns the 'Lofty' boys held up their name, although it must be said that the misses were certainly with them in their shooting. Long seemed to have a strangle hold on luck, scoring no less than seven of the Excelsiors' 34 goals. Some of these were shot from beyond centre floor. Knapman showed up well, scoring six of the baskets. For the Unknowns, Robertson, who is a veteran, was the fastest man, encouraging his team to pass the ball and work in some combination. His deadly shooting was responsible for most of the baskets.

The third clash of the night occurred between the Maple Leafs and the Boosters, the former coming out second best in a score of 23—14.

This was a rattling fast game every minute of the way. By appearances, veteran Ray Best's team had the edge all the way on Richardson's septette. Best was responsible for sixteen of the twenty-two points netted by the Boosters.

Referee Ross Dobbin wondered if he should preserve neutrality upon seeing two of his brother veterans trying to bring home the bacon. Richardson's adipose issue did not retard his speed, in fact speed is Bill's middle name. It looked, however, as if Best had his number all the way.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Feb. 22.—Markets these days seem to set on the hair-wire, spring-trigger principle. Prices in some lines have gotten up so high that the least change in conditions has a tremendous influence on quotations. In other lines prices are almost down to rock bottom and consumption has been curtailed so severely that the least over-supply in the wholesalers' hands breaks the market still further. In the first-class comes wheat, which is so high that every adverse report may cause a decline of several cents. Cattle on the other hand are at the bottom of the price list, with apparently no one well informed as to what decreasing consumption may do to the market. On the whole it may be said that staple grains are strong and almost all meat products low in price.

In the general trade of the country there has been somewhat of a decline in the last week or two, due to mild weather and bad roads.

WHEAT

The week has been marked by unusual fluctuations at all wheat centres. On several occasions wheat has declined several cents in an hour or two, and then gradually regained its old level. No. 1 Northern is now quoted $1.65½; No. 2, $1.62; No. 3, $1.64½. Ontario wheat is being delivered at mills in small lots at $1.59 to $1.60.

COARSE GRAINS

Feeders consider corn a better buy than oats at present quotations; hence the trade in the latter has been slow. Peas are scarce and wanted. Rye, too, appears to be wanted. Quote: C.W., No. 2, 72½c; No. 3, 69½c; No. 1 feed, 69c; Ontario oats, 41c to 42c; corn, 87½c to 88½c; peas, $2 to $2.05; buckwheat, 85c to 86c; rye, $1.25 to $1.30; malting barley, 56c to 58c. On the Montreal market No. 2 C.W. oats are quoted 72½c; No. 3 C.W., 70½c; extra No. 1 feed, 70½c to 71c; local oats, 69½c to 69c; corn, 85c to 87c; barley, feed, 58c; malting, 90c to $1; buckwheat, 90c to $1.

MILL FEEDS

Bran is quoted steadily as $25; shorts, $28; middlings, $30; feed flour, $40 to $44. The Montreal quotation is: Bran, $27; shorts, $29; middlings, $32; moullie, $35 to $39.

EGGS AND POULTRY

There is a slight but appreciable scaling down in the prices of eggs, due to increased receipts and a rather dull market. New laids in cartons are quoted 35c to 36c; selects, 32c and storage, 26c to 28c. Montreal quotes fresh eggs, 35c to 36c; selected, 29c; storage, 24c to 27c.

Poultry is quoted as follows: Chickens, live, 11c to 13c; dressed, 14c to 16c; fowl, live, 12c to 14c; dressed, 13c to 14c; ducks (a.), 16c; (d.), 14c to 17c; turkeys (a.), 12c to 15c; (d.), 16c to 20c.

SEEDS

Seeds are quoted in wholesale quantities a cwt. as follows: Red clover, No. 1, $21 to $23; No. 2, $19 to $19.50; No. 3, $12; alsike, No. 1, $19.50 to $20.50; No. 2, $17.50 to $18.50; No. 3, $16; timothy, No. 1, $11 to $11.50; No. 2, $9.50 to $9.75; No. 3, $8.75.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The butter market here is strong, with fresh made creamery prints at 33c to 34c; solids, 30c to 31c; dairy prints 26c to 28c and inferior butter, 25c to 25c. At Montreal a stronger demand is reported both from the city and outside points. At least one car load has been shipped West. The ruling price on September and October creamery is 31½c to 32c; finest Western dairy is quoted 27c. It is anticipated that the Lenten demand should stimulate the market.

LIVE STOCK

The past has been a bad week for the drovers. Prices started to tumble from the first and for three days there was no stopping the slump. Packers, who, early in the week, professed to be filled up, found it to their advantage to buy and the market was steadied. Another feature that contributed to calling a halt on declines, was the caution shown by shippers the last couple of days. On the closing day of the week only 38 fresh cattle arrived and the pens were finally cleaned up. Unsettled conditions in the business world seems to be the only feasible explanation for this unlooked for decline. Quotations: average short as follows:

Shipping steers, $7.25 to $7.60; handy choice steers, $7 to $7.25; butcher steers, com. to good, $5 to $7; heifers, $5.50 to $7.25; choice cows, $5.75 to $6; com. to good, $4.50 to $5.75; butcher bulls, $4.50 to $6.25; feeders, $6 to $6.25; stockers, $4.75 to $6.25; canners and cutters, $3.90 to $5.

There has been a good steady demand for milch cows, choice ones bringing $75 to $100; com. and med., $40 to $60 and springers, $60 to $100. Calves range from $4.25 to $11.

Packers' demand for hogs has declined somewhat and the ruling price is now $7.25 to $7.40 f.o.b. country points.

DISSATISFIED PEOPLE

"And they shall see His face; and His name shall be in their foreheads."—Rev. 22:4.

A young girl said rebelliously. "I don't see why God made Alice so much prettier than me." It seemed right to tell her that no matter how God made her, her face was really more beautiful than her sister's as her's had moral and spiritual beauty from her life of unselfishness and service for others.

In a tiny, few-dollars-a-month house, a Deaconess was trying to bring comfort and hope. The wife and little ones were sick, the man out of work and utterly disheartened. In answer to a question, the husband looked at the wife. The visitor just caught that look, so tender, so loving and so radiant. It seemed as if one of heaven's own sunbeams had entered that poor dark room.

That couple had no realization that for many a long day the thought of that look brought strength to the heart of that worker, who often became very much discouraged. Where a look like that was, love was, and there God was. It is only by seeing a vision of God's love, by keeping very close to him, by striving to live a Christ-like life that we can carry His name in our foreheads.

A friend who had spent many years of his life in the land of the midnight sun once said it was impossible to describe the effect of the glowing light and vivid coloring, which transformed all upon which it shone. At one time he turned to a friend whose to his surprise he found very beautiful in that radiance, though usually she was very plain.

As the outer features, the external, were thus transformed, so the inner, the spiritual life, can be, but only by and through God's power and might. When the soul longs for and the will strives for the noble, the pure, the right, there cannot be the ignoble, the impure, the wrong. What we are shows in our looks, our expressions, our bearing. Far more than we can ever know we are helping others for the worse or for the better.—I. H. N.

The German patent office rejects about two-thirds of the 45,000 applications it receives annually.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Feb 24.—Wheat readily advanced today in response to foreign buying that was associated with much reduced estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus. Although some of the gain was not held, the market closed firm 2 2-4c to 3c above last night. Other net improvements were: Corn 2-4c to 1c, oats 1¼c, and packing house products 10c to 22½c.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.66¾, lake ports; No. 2, $1.64¾; No. 3, $1.61; ¼c per bushel more on track, Goderich.

Ontario oats—Outside, 43c to 46c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2, per car lot, $1.60 to $1.65, outside, according to freight.

American corn—No. 3 yellow, all-rail shipments, Toronto freights, 82c.

Rolled oats—Car lots, per bag of 90 lbs., $3.55; in smaller lots, $3.75, Windsor to Montreal.

Buckwheat—85c to 88c, car lots, outside.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $6 in jute bags; second patents, $7.50 in jute bags; strong bakers', $7.30; in cotton bags, 10c more.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb. sacks, in car lots, $3.20; in small lots, $3.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 24.—Wheat opened under some little excitement this morning at $1.53, ranging to $1.54¾, and July at $1.54¾. A sharp upturn occurred, and May was sold previous to noon as high as $1.56 and July at $1.52¾. Trading was not heavy in futures, and opinions expressed were in effect that yesterday's had been oversold. Oats opened ¼c to ⅝c higher and advanced fractionally later, with a strong undertone.

Cash demand while not so good as yesterday was fair. Oats were fair, while offerings of all grades lessened perceptibly.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat was better today, and cables were stronger at an advance in prices, sales of several loads were made, but owing to the scarcity of ovean grain room for March and April shipments from Canadian winter ports the volume of business was checked to some extent. There was no further change in the condition of the local market for coarse grains, except that the feeling is firmer. The demand for all lines was quiet.

Selects weighed off cars sold at $8, and those fed and watered at $7.75.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 20 were 1035 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1690 hogs and 200 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 900 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 450 hogs and 250 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, owing to the fact that supplies were very small, but they were ample to fill all immediate requirements, as the demand was light, and only for small lots, on account of the continued unfavorable weather for the season of the year. The trade on the whole was quiet, with sales of a few choice steers at $7.50 to $7.75; good at $7 to $7.25; fair at $6 to $6.50, and lower grades at $5 to $5.50, while butchers' cows brought from $4.85 to $6.50, and bulls at from $5 to $6.75 per hundred pounds. The trade in canning stock was quiet, at $3.75 to $4.70 per hundred pounds.

The tone of the market for small meats is firm, on account of the very limited supplies coming forward for which there is a good demand, and sales of lambs were made at $8.75 to $9, and sheep at $6.75 to $5.50 per hundred pounds. There is also a good demand for calves at prices ranging from $5 to $15 each, as to size and quality. A weaker feeling developed in the market for hogs, and prices scored a further decline of 25c per hundred pounds, with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.25 per hundred pounds, weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Cattle—Receipts 9000; market strong; beeves, $5 60 to $9 50; cows and heifers, $3.60 to $7.75; calves, $7 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market strong; light, $6.50 to $6.75; mixed, $6.40 to $6.70; heavy, $6.15 to $6.65; rough, $6.15 to $6.30; pigs, $5.75 to $6.80; bulk of sales, $6.50 to $6.65.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000; market, strong; native, $6.20 to $7.75; yearlings, $7.65 to $8.50; lambs, native, $8 to $9.60.

Congress Off For Year.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—It is learned officially that the congress of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, which was to have been held in Toronto next September, will not now be held at that time, but probably arrangements will hold good for a meeting there the following September.

This gathering brings about five hundred commercial men from all parts of the Empire. It is held once every three years, London always being the meeting place for alternate gatherings.

Nice To Be War Prisoners.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Nearly $100,000 has been expended by the British Government in fitting up Donington Hall in Leicestershire for the use of German officers in England as prisoners of war. Twenty thousand dollars were expended for furniture alone.

Nineteen Newfoundlanders Lost.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Nineteen men of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve were among the crew of the Clan MacNaughton, an armed merchant cruiser, which has been missing since Feb. 3, and practically given up as lost.

Deadly "Decoy Submarines.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—On their dash away from Cuxhaven, after the recent aerial raid, the British saw a German decoy submarine for the first time. They observed what appeared to be a periscope. The first impulse was to attack it, but time was precious, so its position was signalled to the next vessel in the fleeing line.

This ship was almost upon the "periscope" when the officers saw a pole standing out of the water from the centre of a submerged raft, to the sides of which were attached fifteen mines.

FIRST NURSE TO ARRIVE IN CANADA FROM SCENE OF WAR

Had Been Nursing Wounded Soldiers at the Hospital at Neuilly, North of Paris—A Graphic Description of Her Experiences

TORONTO, Feb. 24—Miss M. Lindsay, the first nurse to arrive in Canada since the outbreak of the war, and a graduate of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, who for the past five months has been nursing wounded soldiers at the hospital at Neuilly, north of Paris, has arrived in the City and paid a visit to the head office of the Canadian Red Cross Society yesterday afternoon, when she gave a graphic description of her experiences.

Miss Lindsay was nursing in Paris at the outbreak of war when she at once offered her services to the French Government and was sent to Neuilly, where she has nursed British, French, German, Moroccan and Algerian wounded. At one time when the German forces arrived almost before the gates of Paris in their mad dash for that city before they were thrown back by the Allied forces at the battle of the Marne, Miss Lindsay was only nine miles from the firing line and she could distinctly hear the firing of the big guns.

Asked to give a description of the wounds that the allied soldiers received and whether the report that the Germans were using Dum-Dum bullets were true, Miss Lindsay said that while she had never actually seen a Dum-Dum bullet, she saw a great many explosive bullets from the shrapnel shells. These bullets, she explained, exploded as soon as they penetrated the body, and in many cases left terrible wounds. She mentioned, however, that the percentage of deaths from wounds was very low, owing mainly to the improvement in modern surgery and the splendid condition of the men before they left for the front.

"The French soldiers," said Miss Lindsay, "were a revelation to us. They are a very fine type of men and all appeared very cheerful. Even when suffering from bad wounds, they seemed satisfied with everything that was given them and never complained or grumbled. They seemed imbued with the spirit of victory and even in the darkest days of the war when the Germans were so near Paris, there was not the slightest panic among the French."

Asked as to how long she thought the war would last, Miss Lindsay said she did not think it could last beyond next autumn, and she did not see how there could possibly be another winter campaign. The general feeling in France appeared to be that the war would be over by the autumn of this year.

Miss Lindsay spoke in high terms of the condition of the hospitals, but remarked that at times a heavy responsibility rested upon those in charge of the institutions. For instance, sometimes word would be received that 1,000 patients would arrive in about a quarter of an hour, and everything had to be got ready for their reception in that time. She said that everything that human agency could do for the men was being done. Trains loaded with provisions go as near to the firing line as possible, and those trains take on them one nurse, one doctor and two auxiliaries. They bring the wounded back from the trenches and leave the worst cases at the nearest hospital. The slightly wounded men are taken to the south of France.

"All through France," said Miss Lindsay, "little stations have been erected where there are Red Cross trains, and the wounded and sick are given stimulants and warm clothing at the depots and the worst cases are kept there for a few days until they are fit to travel."

Miss Lindsay said the motor ambulances have done a magnificent work. They go close to the firing line and bring back the wounded as quickly as possible, so that they are attended to with all possible speed. We had 160 motor ambulances in our hospital and they were sent to the firing line in units of twenty. When they reached the zone of operations warm clothing was distributed to the men and also food, and the wounded were brought back. Our hospitals generally went to the battle zone round Soissons.

"The motor ambulances," continued Miss Lindsay, "are practically the most useful thing that can be sent to the front, and it is impossible to send too many. Anti-tetanus serum is also being used in large quantities as many of the soldiers have suffered from that disease Flannel shirts, socks and money for cholera belts are badly needed. It is hard for those who have not been to the front to fully realize how badly these things are needed".

Miss Lindsay said that the soldiers greatly appreciated hard candies of all kinds and tobacco in all forms, especially cigarettes. The first thing the soldiers ask for when convalescent is a cigarette or a pipe. One item that should not be overlooked is money for the purchase of artificial limbs for the men who have had an arm or a leg amputated. Money is badly needed for these.

Miss Lindsay spoke in high terms of the Canadian hospital at Le Touquet, near Boulogne, and also of the hospital in the Latin quarter in Paris, which is provided for by the La Presse of Montreal. Both these institutions are doing an excellent work.

In regard to the attitude of the German wounded Miss Lindsay said the majority of them seemed very surly and seldom spoke even to each other though they were not disagreeable and seemed to be well provided for.

Miss Lindsay said she saw a number of aeroplanes flying over the hospital and she also saw an iron dart which the Germans had thrown from one of their airships. She was shown a piece of iron from one of these darts, about an inch long, which had been taken from a little girl's leg. This little child had to have her limb amputated. The missle struck her while she was playing in the streets of Paris during one of the air raids of the Germans.

Miss Lindsay was shown the Surgical Supply booklet, compiled by Mrs. Plumptre, Superintendent of Supplies for the Canadian Red Cross Society, and she thoroughly endorsed it and made a few suggestions which will be added to the next edition, and which will be published shortly. Miss Lindsay has applied to the Government for a position as a nurse in the next contingent of Canadian nurses which will leave Canada for the front in the near future.

Miss Lindsay is the first nurse to reach Canada from the front since the outbreak of the war and her vivid description of conditions existing near the firing line cannot but impress all Canadans, especially so many of our brave soldiers who are probably now, if not in the actual firing line, very near it. She has come right from the scene and tells how badly warm clothing and little luxuries, such as candies and tobacco, are needed by the men. We feel sure that the people of Canada will rise to the occasion as they have done so often before, and take the words of Miss Lindsay to heart.

All warm clothing, surgical supplies, candies, tobacco, socks, shirts, etc., may be sent to the different provincial headquarters, or to the head office, at 77 King Street, East, Toronto.

INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO

What Has Been Accomplished in This Employment Agency Up-to-date

Continued good work is being done by the Peterborough branch of the Industrial Association of Ontario, situated at 351 1-2 Water Street. It is estimated that the City has been saved from $4,000 to $5,000 through the instrumentality of this employment agency. The local Secretary, Mr. Edward Langley, is deserving of credit for his painstaking efforts, and the City Council should manifest a greater degree of appreciation of his services than they have done in the past. The following official statement speaks for itself:

Statement Up to Date.

605 applicants for employment have filled cards and registered from Oct. ober 14th, 1914, to date:

Hydro-Electric Commission Submit Figures

To the Havelock Council—Norwood May Join in the Proposal

The following letter to the Havelock Council from the Hydro-Electric Commission was received a few days ago. The Council meets on 1st of March to decide upon some course of action. The letter, apparently entails the sister village of Norwood going in with Havelock on the project and whether they are considering the matter or not is not known.

The letter reads as follows: We have estimated on various quantities of power for Havelock and Norwood, transmitted from Campbellford. The price of power at Campbellford is taken as $10.00 per h.p. per year at the busbars. It is proposed to step this up to 6,900 volts for transmission to Havelock and Norwood and the following loads have been assumed, from which we secure the following costs of power:

Municipality	H.P.	Del'd Volts	Cost Per H.P. Year
Porposition No 1
Norwood	150	6600	$54.06
Havelock	900	6600	32.85
Havelock	100	2200	37.12
Proposition 2
Norwood	50	6600	54.63
Havelock	150	6600	27.87
Havelock	150	2200	32.20
Proposition 3
Norwood	150	6600	36.86
Havelock	150	6600	26.22
Havelock	1150	2200	29.55

You will note that we have estimated on supplying Havelock at either 2200 or 6600 volts for distribution purposes.

We have also estimated on the cost of purchasing and re-modelling the present distribution system, and also the cost of building an entirely new distribution system. These work out as follows:

We estimate that the total replacement cost of the Havelock Electric Light & Power Co.'s generating, transmission and distribution system at $24,558, with a depreciated or present value of $13,510. This is physical value only.

We estimate that an entirely new distribution system in the village, satisfactory to take care of your needs, could be installed for from $10,000 to $12,000, depending upon the extent of the system desired.

To overhaul the present distribution system and put it into safe working condition would cost from $7,000 to $8,000. The amount to be spent on rebuilding depends upon the refinements desired.

We have estimated the present physical value of the distribution system now in use in the village at $2,446. We have received from the Electric Light Co. an asking price of $6,721 for their distribution system.

With these figures before you we trust that you can arrive at an early decision as to your future course of proceedure.

We shall be very glad to co-operate with you further on these matters.

RECRUITING IS RAPID AT BELLEVILLE

Numerous Italians and Indians Joining the Ranks

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 24—Recruiting is progressing rapidly with the 49th and 15th Regiments here. The former regiment, known as the Hastings Rifles, has 155 volunteers for the third contingent, about twenty having been added to-day. Quite a few Italians are enlisting, and Indians from Tyendinaga Reserve are not backward The 15th Regiment has one hundred recruits. The training class for officers and N.C.O's is well patronized.

The work of arranging accommodation at the canning factory for the 93th Battalion is progressing. Uniforms and equipment for this unit arrived in Belleville to-day.

Up to the present there has been no Italian recruits in this city, but with Italy's declaration in favour of the Allies expected shortly, it is possible that some of the Italian young men of this city will offer themselves for service.

There is a number of well set up, healthy young Italians, who should make excellent fighters on the side of the Allies.

Quite a number of Hiawatha Indians have already enlisted, but it is not known what there is left to draw from.

French Soldiers Have Vacated Belgian Territory

LONDON, Feb. 24 — Within the present week the last French soldier will leave Belgian soil and the defence of this part of the extended western battle line will be left in the hands of the Belgians and the British. This is regarded here as an indication that the Allies do not intend to make any forward movement in the region of the flooded Yser.

Recently the French took the largest part of their African army to Nieuport, where it reinforced the French marines and Alpine chasseurs holding this gateway to Calais. With the assistance of the Belgians, St. Georges was captured and some advance made in the sand dunes along the Belgian coast, but it is evident that no further advance is likely at this time in that region.

While it seems to be the commanders of the allied forces that the sadly depleted Belgian army, with the assistance of that section of the British army occupying Belgian soil, can keep the Germans at bay, the action of the French in withdrawing their troops has met with some criticism from Belgian officers, who feel that they are again being left to bear the brunt of the most disagreeable fighting on the western line. They lack enough men to give their soldiers frequent relief from the trenches, where, on account of the nearness of the water to the surface, conditions are worse than anywhere else on the battle line. Strategic necessity was the reason given for the withdrawal.

It Was Two Aeroplane Scouts That Turned Von Kluck Back

BERLIN, Feb. 10.— An aeroplane scouting flight which made history has just come to light almost six months after it took place. The report of the two aviators making the flight turned General von Kluck's column toward the south from its dash on Paris in August and changed the whole line of battle in the west. A striking feature of the flight, moreover, was that its course did not follow orders, but was determined upon by the iniative of the flyers.

The story of the flight, taken from a German magazine devoted to aeronautics, follows: "It happened on the occasion of our dash on Paris. The inhabitants of the 'City of Light' received a daily visit from German aviators. The latter were accustomed to drop a couple of bombs every day, but their visit here was not the object of their programme. The chief thing was to keep watch of the movements of the Paris reserve army. This army had marched up with its front toward the east and one day an aeroplane went up to observe it again.

"The aviators were struck with the uncertain movements of the opponents of a German corps, who appeared to be having a trifling conflict with troops further north. Upon their own responsibility the aviators changed their course and flew off to the north. They flew and flew, for what they saw was well worth closer observation. Then they speeded back to headquarters and announced that a hostile army was marching upon Von Kluck's flank. Nobody would believe it at first. Cavalry patrols had brought no news to indicate such a movement. But nevertheless it was true.

"The report resulted in the known new disposition of the German position in the west, and in the conferring of the Iron Cross of the first class upon the pilot and the officer-observer."

The two men referred to are both first lieutenants. They but recently carried out an important flight over Warsaw.

Tax Is For Railways

Dominion Budget a Device to Make Up C. N. R. Vote

OTTAWA, Feb. 25. — The House spent the greater part of the day upon the budget debate. The opening speech was made by Mr. Burnham (Con., W. Peterboro), who was followed by J. G. Turriff (Lib., Assiniboia). Mr. Wright (Con., Muskoka) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Burnham said that the Opposition speakers had criticised the budget without suggesting any plan in lieu of it. He denounced free trade as the yellow peril and declared himself a thorough-going protectionist. The British preference, he thought, might be well decreased if thereby additional protection was given to Canadian industries.

J. G. Turriff said that when the people of this country came to understand that no part of the revenue from increased taxation would go for military purposes they would overthrow the Government. The revenue to be raised from the war stamp tax would be needed to make up the $10,000,0000 which the Finance Minister had illegally paid to the Canadian Northern Railway. Mr. Turriff then took up a number of items upon which taxation is increased, declaring that the new tariff duties would greatly burden the farmer. He was especially severe upon the increase in British duties, and dramatically warned the Government not to lay disloyal hands upon the British preference.

Mr. Wright said it was absurd to charge the Government with disloyalty, because it saw fit to raise the duty on British imports. Great Britain made her tariff to suit herself, giving no preference to the colonies, and she left Canada entirely free to make her own tariff. The preference was really not impaired, because while the general tariff was advanced 7 1-2 per cent., the preferential tariff was only advanced 5 per cent.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

TORONTO, Feb. 25. — Guilty of conspiracy in aiding and assisting Zirzow to leave Canada was the verdict rendered against Emil Nerlich in the Criminal Assizes yesterday. Nerlich was allowed his liberty on bail of $100,000 pending the hearing of a reserve case granted by Chief Justice Mulock, at the request of I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., on the ground that the discharge of Mrs. Nerlich on Tuesday left no co-conspirator, and therefore Emil Nerlich, being the only one charged, an indictment for conspiracy could not stand. The second indictment carrying the direct charge of treason against Nerlich was traversed until the spring assizes.

Nerlich listened to the verdict with composure, although his face wore a worried expression. The bail on which he is now at large was furnished by his brother and himself. The entire sitting of yesterday was taken up with addresses of counsel and his lordship's summing up.

Attack Cost Germans 50,000 Men.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—At least 50,000 men were lost by the Germans in their attack on the Russian positions on the Rawka river and in the region of Borjimow and Gumbinnen, according to Ludovic Naudeau, The Journal's correspondent, who witnessed the operations. He considers the general situation highly favorable to the Russians, and says:

The Germans are being gradually but implacably worn down. Whether they attack or merely defend themselves their armies melt away from day to day. Their feverish activity and their frightful sacrifice of lives show they realize they are fighting against time."

Serbians Invading Austria.

GENEVA, Feb. 25—Serbian troops invaded Austrian territory on the night of Feb. 20 and 21, near Bjelina, opposite Ratcha and at Mitrovitza, penetrating from one to four miles across the frontier, according to a despatch received here. The object of the Serbian offensive, it is believed, probably is to force the Austrians to send back to the west part of the troops operating against the Russians.

MAYOR WANTS SALARY REDUCED

To be in Line With Economy to be Practiced at the City Hall

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—The mayor's salary from the city is $6,500.

"But we haven't gone into the question of economy in salaries yet," said his Worship Mayor Porter. He added, however, that some of the officials suggested to him that the statutory increases be kept off this year.

It is quite likely that the board of control will recommend that the increases be not made this year.

It was rather a coincidence that while he was speaking about the necessity of economizing this year and about having his own grant cut, Mayor Porter received the news from Toronto that the provincial government was going to make the city place an increase on the tax rate for its benefit.

So insistent upon economy is the board of control going to be this year in order to avoid raising the tax rate more than is absolutely necessary that it may even suggest to the city council that the aldermen forego their annual grant of $500, which last year's aldermen voted to themselves.

Besides this, even the grant of Mayor Porter may be cut.

The suggestion for cutting the mayor's grant comes from his worship himself, however. He has already proposed it to the board of control.

"It seems to me only right that if we are to keep down the officials' salaries, the mayor should be treated the same as the rest," declared Mayor Porter.

To Probe Everything

Boot Commission's Scope is Greatly Enlarged

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—It was made evident at the resumption of the inquiry into the boots furnished to the Canadian expeditionary forces that the scope of the investigation would be enlarged and that its functions would be judicial, as well as inquisitorial.

E. M. MacDonald said that the scope of the inquiry extended to the boots furnished the second contingent as well as the first, and to boots now furnished.

Lt.-Col. Halleck, chairman of the departmental commission, said that most of the complaints of the boots had come from England. In many cases the boots had been found to be burned.

Lt.-Col. Halleck said that it would have taken the manufacturers a month to change their last for the manufacture of militia boots. Thus, if the Militia Department had changed the shape of the shoe he did not think the boots could have been secured in time.

Mr. MacDonald objected that many of the manufacturers had never before manufactured military shoes. Col. Halleck replied that some of them had used their own last, which were in certain cases better than the militia last.

"English Scoundrelism."

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(By wireless.)—Berlin newspapers yesterday charge that Capt. Smith of the American steamer Evelyn was purposely given wrong direction by British warships in order that the vessel might be sunk by German mines, with the hope that friction would result between the United States and Germany.

Diemorgen Post refers to this act as "an English scoundrelism" and asserts an English officer directed the American captain into a field where he knew German mines lay.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

A statue of Florence Nightingale was unveiled in London yesterday. It is the first instance in which a statue of a woman aside from royalty, has been erected publicly in London.

Monsignor Edward Patrick Roche, aged 40, rector of the Roman Catholic Cathedral at St. Johns', Nfld., was notified yesterday of his election to the church bishopric by Pope Benedict.

The bulletin issued yesterday on the condition of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, whose leg was amputated a few days ago, says that the general state of her health continues satisfactory.

The smallpox situation in Woodstock is becoming quite serious. Several new cases have been discovered during the past few days. One of the patients is a teacher at the Collegiate Institute.

A stick of dynamite was found in the Japanese exhibit in the Palace of Manufactures at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. The Japanese commissioner thinks it was done as a joke.

Edgar Grose Told Story of Struggle

with air and hereby aireate the blood that was in them. The whole of the blood vessel system that returns the blood to the heart was gorged with blood. When this condition occurs death is caused by asphyxiation or suffocation.

Judge Britton—Or as we used to say when boys, for want of breath.

Dr. Johnson went over the case relating to the enlargement of the thyroid glands. Pressure at that part of the throat and under the conditions found, would have a greater effect than on the throat of a person whose glands were not enlarged.

It is possible for a blood vessel to give way in the brain if the injury was applied externally.

In a prize fight, for example, where a man is struck on the chin a hemmorhage was found at the back of the the head as a result of the force applied and the consequent jar at the back of the head.

If the brain were materially soft, deceased could not have walked or talked, or done anything of that kind.

Windpipe Choked.

To Mr. Shaver, Dr. Johnston said deceased died from choking applied in some way to the wind-pipe. With the thyroid gland developed on each side of the wind-pipe there are hard points on either side of it. The wind-pipe being softened it would be a very easy matter to shut off breathing. The wind-pipe is like a solid bit of rubber hose. In this case it was more like a hose that had lost its solidness and was easily compressed.

To Mr. Gordon.

If the deceased had been forced or fell with violence against a wall, striking his head, what would you expect? Mr. Gordon asked.

You would expect that he would suffer concussion of the brain or hemmorhage.

Might there be rupture of the blood vessels?

Yes, if the force were heavy enough.

Mr. Gordon questioned at length as to the possibility of such an injury causing loss of volition in an effort to show that O'Brien's collar might have had some effect on the neck.

Would it be in the range of possibility that a blow might have been struck on the head and not followed by contusion.

A slight mark might be overloked as a post-mortem stain.

The last witness for the Crown was Knut Belting of Yeates' pool room, and last year a Blount "phenom."

He stated that on December 24 he saw Wm. O'Brien from 7 to 8 p.m. and from about 8.30 to 9.30 p.m. in Yeates' pool parlour. O'Brien was not drunk He might have had something to drink.

Was drink noticeable on him?

You could tell he had a drink or two.

Mr. Gordon—How could you tell. He wasn't talking very much.

Witness could tell by O'Brien's eyes that he had been drinking.

In further support of his statement Belting said a man who had been drinking always kept his eyes down.

The Defence.

Thos. McWilliams was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon. Witness recalled having seen O'Brien and Grose in the shoe shine parlour one night about the last week in November.

Grose was sitting on the seat. I sat up alongside him. O'Brien, Wm. Clancy and another young man came out from the pool room. They passed on to the door. O'Brien saw us and came back.

He said—"You're telling around you can put it over me. You also called me a ——"

Grose said he did not.

O'Brien said—"You can't call me it. If you come out with me I'll put it over you in two minutes."

Grose told him to go on, he did not want to have anything more to do with him.

Clancy called from the street to O'Brien and he went out.

To Mr. Shaver.

Did O'Brien use abusive language?

No more than that. He said, "You called me a ——"

The Prisoner Called

Edgar Grose said he was 28 years of age and had lived here since he was a child. He lived with his mother. He was laid up last winter with jaundice and it came back on him last fall. Grose gave his employment as a hack driver. Referring to the episode in Kingan's doorway, Grose told of meeting Clancy.

He said, What happened last night?

I said—I can't tell you.

What was the fight about? Clancy asked.

I said—I can't tell you. All I know is I got an awful beating that I didn't deserve.

He said—I didn't see it all, but you must have deserved it.

I said—I didn't deserve it.

Clancy said—What came across the two of you.

I said—O'Brien was urged on me.

I said I shouldn't have taken it: I felt pretty sore. He ought to suffer the same as I did last night, I said.

Clancy said—No one will suffer only you.

Grose's reply to this was that he would not suffer, and O'Brien ought to get a beating and he would bet $50 O'Brien couldn't beat him.

You get all the money you want and he'll fight, Clancy said.

Grose said the conversation changed then. He remarked that O'Brien would not fight him and he (Grose) would forgive him.

O'Heron said —This fighting's no good.

Grose—I said it wasn't, too. That was all that was said.

In Yeates' shoe shine parlour, Grose said he told O'Brien to go on he did not want to have anything to do with him.

White House Affair.

Proceeding to the Christmas eve fatality, Grose said he was going from the room where he had been having a drink, to the lavatory. In the hall he met O'Brien.

O'Brien said—You got arrested the other night.

I said I hadn't.

O'Brien said—You did. I saw you going over with Doc McGee.

I said I never.

He put up his foot or knee toward me and grabbed me by the arms.

I shoved him off with the heels of my hands, striking him on the chest. He went back against the wall and pulled me with him.

I shoved him because I thought he was going to hurt me with his knee.

He hit his head against the wall. It was a hard blow. His cap was knocked off. When I pushed him he was trying to throw my feet from under me.

Grose said O'Brien struck him in the groin with his knee or something after he gave him a second shove.

Mr. Graham then appeared and separated them. Grose was put in a room nearby and did not know what happened after.

Grose said he had had two or three drinks of lager beer and a cigar.

"What did Mr. Graham say," Mr. Gordon asked.

I heard him say, "You fellows have got to get out; this is no dive."

Went With Farmer.

Continuing, Grose said: "I went out to George Street and went down to the barber shop. I got a shave and went to the Grand Hotel. I walked back to the lavatory. I came out and met a man.

Mr. Gordon—When did you first hear O'Brien had died?

On Christmas morning at 7 o'clock. Billy Leith of Millbrook told me.

The prisoner told of his return to Peterborough, where he gave himself up to the police.

To Mr .Gordon—O'Brien took hold of me first. I shoved him back because I thought he was going to kick me.

Cross-Examination.

To Mr. Shaver Grose said he had heard nothing at the barber shop.

Subsequently you saw fit to leave Peterborough?

Why did you go to Millbrook?

I didn't know where I was going when I got into the man's sleigh.

You wanted to get away from the trouble?

The man said they would want to fight with me again.

Your whole idea was to get away, was it not?

No, it was not.

Do you remember a statement you made to the Chief of Police about what took place in the barber shop?

He asked me where I went after leaving the White House. I told him to the barber shop.

Prisoner denied having made a statement to the Chief about having heard anything of the O'Brien case in the barber ship.

So you went to Nixon's?

Yes.

Did you meet Gilgour?

Yes.

Did you hear at Nixon's that O'Brien was dead?

No.

Grose said he met Gilgour in the barber shop and they went to Nixon's.

Why did you go there and didn't see fit to stay?

Can't I go where I like.

Grose said he could not tell why he went. The sleigh was in the hotel shed. The farmer asked him to go out.

Continuing, he said he drove 8 miles before he found out where he was. He got out and began to walk across country toward Millbrook.

You could have walked back to Peterborough just as easily?

I thought Millbrook was closer.

Questioned as to how many times he had been on the gravel road. Grose said 3 or 4 times.

You are sure it was not 30 or 40 times?

His Story to Police.

You did not tell to P. C. Kidd all you told here to-day?

No. I wasn't supposed to tell him all.

Grose said O'Brien had not tried to strike him, but had tried to throw him off his feet.

Why did you not tell Kidd O'Brien grabbed you?

When he was raising his foot I hit him once on the chest with both hands.

He tried to throw me off my feet and pulled me up against the wall with him. He gave me a quick jerk and pulled me and went back against the wall. He didn't go against the wall when I struck him.

To the Judge—When I struck O'Brien he was trying to throw me off my feet. I shoved him and he pulled me.

Mr. Shaver—You struck O'Brien twice?

Yes.

Did he go back against the wall the second time?

No. He didn't try to pull me.

O'Brien was not sober, the way he went after me.

Do you remember telling the Chief you and O'Brien were sober?

I was sober. I say O'Brien had liquor in him, and when a man has liquor in him he is on the way to getting drunk.

Prisoner did not see O'Brien drinking. The way he went after me was as if he were drunk.

When he was sober, he was always good to me, and when he had liquor in him he wanted to go after me.

Denied Their Stories.

Grose emphatically denied the statements that he said he would get O'Brien, get him right, and lay for him.

The stories of Clancy and O'Heron, he said, were substantially false.

Do you deny having said you would get him?

I do.

And that you would get him good?

I deny it.

Chief Thompson.

Chief Thompson said that on the morning of the 26th he was passing through the corridor at the police court. Grose called him and said he wanted to tell him how it happened.

The Chief warned him in the usual way. Grose's story was the same as related by P. C. Kidd.

I asked him why he was so foolish as to leave the city.

He said he was so excited.

Mr. Gordon objected but was overruled.

After the occurrence in the White House Grose said he went to the barber ship. A man who appeared to be a farmer came in and said "that man was dead" and told Grose he had better go out with him. Grose said he went to the Grand and went away with the farmer, the Chief concluded.

To Mr. Gorden the Chief said he was the prosecutor and had helped the counsel get out the facts.

Did you help me? Mr. Gordon asked.

I would have, if you had asked me.

Did he ask you?

Yes. The first day he (Mr. Shaver) came here he said the Crown Attorney would be away and asked me to assist him.

Mayor Buller, License Inspector Jos. Stewart, Samuel English, Jos. Batten, Dr. Thos. Johnston, all gave character evidence in the prisoner's behalf and were unanimous in saying that Edgar Grose's reputation had been a good one.

Address to the Jury.

Mr. G. N. Gordon in his address to the jury, reviewed the circumstances leading up to the death of William O'Brien. He pointed out that deceased was a man of larger physique than the prisoner. The altercation originated some time previous to O'Brien's death. He charged William Clancy with having sought to stir up strife between William O'Brien and the prisoner. Leading up to the night of the culminating fracas, Mr. Gordon interpreted O'Brien's alleged assault as "a dangerous one" and that Grose instinctively acted in self defence when he pushed O'Brien away. He contended that Grose did what any man was entitled to do, namely, "defend himself" from O'Brien's attack. Counsel for the defence advanced the theory that the exertion of O'Brien's own act might have been responsible for the hemorrhage which resulted in his death. In conclusion Mr. Gordon submitted that a verdict of guilty "beyond reasonable doubt" could not be adduced. There was the doubt involved in the medical testimony. He contended that Grose was not guilty of homicide or grievous bodily harm, but that it was a misadventure for which the prisoner was not responsible.

Crown Prosecutor's Address.

The Crown's side of the case was presented by Mr. G. N. Shaver, crown prosecutor. He asked the jury not to be influenced by the possible or probable outcome of their verdict, but to confine themselves absolutely to the evidence adduced. The Crown Prosecutor expressed the opinion that he would have felt safe in going to the jury on the evidence of Grose alone. When the fight occurred in the hotel only two men were present. One of them was alive and well and in the court room. The other man had crossed the great divide. The prisoner pushed O'Brien to the wall and O'Brien's head struck the wall "with a good resounding smack." Mr. Shaver reviewed the three counts upon which Grose was indicted, namely, manslaughter, intent to maim, and inflicting grievous bodily harm. He said that on the first named count it was not necessary to prove "intent." The difference between murder and manslaughter was intention. The counsel for defence had made an eloquent plea on behalf of the prisoner. It was not the desire of the Crown Prosecutor to convict the prisoner, but to present cold-blooded facts relating to the case. The jury would not have to consider the circumstances leading up to the tragic affair. It was quite clear that the deceased was in good health prior to the scuffle and that Grose, who participated was alive and well.

The Judges Address.

The law is so jealous of human life said His Lordship that the persons who takes it is brought to trial. It makes no difference whether it is a child of one day or a person of mature years. In emphasizing the jury's responsibility in the matter His Lordship said that in his experience he had proved that there were not so many innocent men convicted as there are guilty men allowed to go free.

The jury retired at 3.40 p.m.

ELEVEN STEAMERS SUNK

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Eleven steamers are known to have suffered disaster in British waters since Germany's new war zone decree went into effect, one week ago to-day. At least three others are missing, possibly victims of German torpedoes or mines.

SUBMARINE SUNK

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The French marine insurance companies have turned over to Minister of Marine Augagneur 5000 francs ($1,000) to be given to the crew of the ship of the second light squadron which sank the German submarine near Boulogne on Tuesday.

This is the first definite word that the rumours of the submarine being sunk were true.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A demand that the government declare an immediate blockade of the German coast was voiced by several of the London papers to-day. They pointed out that the British public is daily becoming more exasperated over the repeated attacks by German submarines in English coast waters, and urged that there be no more delay in directing reprisals against Germany. Comment on America's note was very guarded. The London papers did not generally receive the suggestion of possible American supervision of Germany's imported foodstuffs with favour. The Government was urged to establish a blockade at once, regardless of any pending negotiations with America regarding the food situation. The newspapers pointed out that 9 steamers, 6 of them British, have been torpedoed since Germany established her 'war zone' one week ago and that the Kaiser was showing no disposition to remain inactive while the diplomatic exchanges were in progress. "We prefer Germany to do her worst, knowing the worst to be quite bearable," said the Daily Mail urging that the Government "politely refuse" the American suggestion. "The Government should issue its long overdue proclamation of a real blockade of the German coast."

$102.65 WAS REALIZED BY THE CONCERT

Lieut. Harry Rogers of the 8th C. M. R., who was the business manager at the Patriotic Military Concert in the Opera House Tuesday night, announced to-day that the cash balance on hand was $102.65, which sums will be divided between the Patriotic Fund and the Kitchener Red Cross Club.

Information To Be Laid Against Moines

The following appears in the Ottawa Free Press:

Toronto, Feb. 24 — Secretary W. A. Hewitt, on behalf of the Ontario Hockey Association, has written to the Peterborough Hockey Club, asking for the explanation for playing Joe Tetrault, the professional hockey player, under the name of Joseph Moines.

Tetrault was identified when he turned out with Shamrocks after the Peterborough team were beaten in their O. H. A. group series.

The matter has also been placed in the hands of Co[illegible]own Attorney G. W. Hatton of Peterborough, who has advised the O.H.A. that he will locate Tetrault, alias Moines, and immediately lay information against the player on a charge of fraud. Tet-

Italy Must Take Part

Heavy Expenditures on War Demand Prompt Action

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Advices from Rome are to the effect that close observers in Rome of the political situation declare that since the readiness of Italy to join in the war has become apparent, the insistence of Germany upon her continued neutrality has grown stronger.

It is declared in a reliable quarter that Prince von Buelow, the German Ambassador to Italy, has summarized the Italian situation to his Government substantially as follows:

Italy has spent near 2,000,000,000 lire ($200,000,000) in war preparations since the outbreak of hostilities, consequently action on her part is daily becoming more imperative. Furthermore, for internal reasons, all political parties are asking the Government to obtain as a result of diplomatic negotiation or through the use of the Italian army and navy, the fulfillment of the aspirations of the nation, particularly in return for the heavy sacrifices already made.

Germany urged Austria-Hungary strongly to cede to Italy her Italian province of Trent and a portion of the Istria peninsula, with the idea of keeping Italy neutral at the present time, and enlisting her favor for the future.

It has been asserted in Rome that Prince von Buelow has said Austria must be induced to accede to his views concerning territorial concessions to Italy, else he would resign his post.

A despatch from Berlin says:

"A sudden change of feeling concerning the attitude of Italy has been noticeable in diplomatic quarters here during the last few days. The position of Italy appears to have become a matter of much greater concern.

"The reasons for this change are not clear at this time."

Jury Were Under Guard

Not Allowed to Discuss the Grose Case

The twelve jurors in the Grose case will probably be glad if their duties end this evening. While not hearing evidence of arguments at the Court House they are under the espionage of Constable Archie Moore and Mr. Frank Pratt, whose duty it is to see that none discuss the case with one of the jurymen and that the jurymen do not discuss it amongst themselves.

When the Court adjourned for supper yesterday evening Messrs. Moore and Pratt escorted the men to the Munro House, where supper was served to the fourteen. Upon the hearing being resumed, after refreshments, or rather, supper, the gentlemen were in their places once more.

Last evening they were not allowed to go home. Neither were they entirely locked in. Instead, they were divided into two parties of six each and taken to separate rooms at the Munro House, where they were folded under the wings of Messrs. Moore and Pratt, one gentleman in charge of each squad.

Makeshift beds were prepared in the rooms and the constables were on hand to see that the case was not discussed. Judging by the appearance of some of the Jurors this morning they did not enjoy much sleep on their make-shift beds.

This morning, after breakfast had been served, Messrs. Moore and Pratt each took their squad of six, and, starting in different directions, walked about the City, meeting again at the Munro House before going back to the opening of the session of the Court.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pettit, 531 Aylmer Street, Miss Myrtle Taylor of Chatsworth, and Mr. Sexton Moulton were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. J. R. Webb officiated. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. Wm. Taylor of Chatsworth.

After luncheon had [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Moulton left on the evening train for points West, after which they will reside in Toronto.

ALEXANDER—JARY.

At 7 o'clock this morning, in Murray Street Baptist Church, Miss Villette Sone, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Alexander, 204 Wescott Street, and Mr. John H. Jary, of the Matthews-Blackwell Co., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. J. R. Webb officiating. They were unattended.

As the young couple arose after the Benediction, the little daughter of Mr. E. M. Wall stepped forward and handed the bride a sheaf of roses on behalf of the Young People of Murray Street Baptist Church, among whom the bride was most popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Jary left on the morning train for points West, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

MRS. GEO. EDMISON.

In the death last evening of Mrs. Geo. Edmison, wife of ex-Police Magistrate Edmison, the city loses one of its oldest continuous residents. The late Mrs. Edmison was a member of St. Andrew's congregation for many years, and in her church as well as social relations, enjoyed the highest respect and esteem of the whole community.

The funeral which will be private, will be held on Friday afternoon.

MISS HELEN BROWN.

Miss Helen Brown, aged 18 years, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown, passed away suddenly this morning. She was born at Farmington, New Hampshire, U.S.A.

The time of the funeral which will take place from the residence of deceased's uncle, Mr. Andrew Patterson, Cameron street, North Monaghan, to Little Lake cemetery, for interment, has not been decided upon as yet. Rev. Jas. Rollins will conduct the service.

EXTRA FOOTWEAR BOUGHT.

Canvas Shoes and Slippers for Troops Numbered 47,350 Pairs.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—The question of slippers and shoes for the Canadian soldiers came up in the House yesterday.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux was informed that the Government had purchased 2,350 pairs of slippers for the Canadian contingents at $1.50 a pair. Forty-five thousand pairs of canvas shoes were ordered from seven firms at $2 per pair.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier enquired when the Government intended to appoint a successor to Lord Strathcona. The Premier replied that Sir George Perley had been acting since early last summer under order-in-council, and had been commissioned to make some inquiries as to certain changes in the status of the office. Until the Premier and his colleagues were able to confer with him upon this subject the present arrangement would continue.

The Premier also stated in reply to Mr. Lemieux that the Government did not intend to introduce legislation this session to reimburse the depositors of the Farmers' Bank.

Cathedral Is a Wreck.

PARIS, Feb. 25. — The glorious cathedral of Notre Dame at Rheims is a wreck, according to a refugee who arrived here yesterday and told of the eleven-hour bombardment of Rheims on Monday by the Germans.

In an interview with a member of The Petit Parisien staff, the refugee said:

"The cathedral has suffered fearfully. One tower is wholly destroyed, having been shot to pieces. One shell which fell on the roof caught between two rafters and was removed [illegible] by firemen, it having failed to explode."

"THE CIRCUS MAN"

Have you seen "The Circus Man" at the Empire Theatre? The story of this play bristles with stirring scenes and sensational tableaux. The romance of the saw-dust ring is well worth seeing. It will occupy the curtains for the rest of this week, with Theodore Roberts as "The Circus Man."

CHAIRS AND SOFAS.

Have your chairs and sofas repaired, refinished and recovered now. The sale offers tempting price inducements, and to keep the workmen busy special prices prevail. If you have work of this order to be done, a man will be sent to your house upon your request to submit estimates of cost. Refinishing pianos and repairing and refinishing furniture carefully done. E. B. Clegg & Co., 337 George St.

THE WAY OF HAPPINESS.

Make up your mind to be as cheerful and as hopeful as possible, and do not allow yourself to get into the habit of thinking the worst rather than the best of people.

Make up your mind to bury all mean feelings, to forget all the injuries, and to forgive all the unkind words written or spoken to you.

Make up your mind that you are going to try to speak only golden words, for then you may be sure the echo will be golden deeds.

Make up your mind to think of what you have in life that is good, and of what the future may hold for you, and then you will forget petty worries and your heart will grow light, and the world will be full of sunshine.

Many Young Men Are Not Doing Duty

Lt.-Col. Ponton of Belleville, Says It is a Question of Why They Are Not Serving

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 25.—"It is not the question of why should I serve, but why I am not serving," said Lieut.-Col. Ponton here to-day in discussing the slowness of recruiting in many parts of Ontario. Col. Ponton said that the Canadian-born young unmarried men in many municipalities of Ontario are not doing their duty to the Empire. Col. Ponton has two sons with the contingents, and would go himself if acceptable to the government.

TRIPLE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED AT NORTH BAY

His Lordship Bishop Scollard Honoured by the Roman Catholic Clergy and Laity

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 24.—This was observed as a thanksgiving day with the clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. The occasion was the thirtieth anniversary of the opening of a Catholic church at North Bay, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination to the holy priesthood of D. J. Scollard, and the tenth anniversary of the consecration of the Right Rev. D. J. Scollard, D.D., Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie.

At St. Mary's Church, at 8 o'clock, Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by the Bishop, being assisted by the priests who have laboured in North Bay since the early days. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. O'Brien of Peterborough. In the afternoon presentations were made by the school children, ladies of the League of the Sacred Heart, and Children of Mary.

In the evening the large cathedral was crowded to the doors to witness the presentation on behalf of the men of the North Bay parish of the sum of $6,500 to their Bishop for the installation of a new pipe organ. To all the presentations the Bishop replied in a courteous and warm manner.

Have You That TICKLING IN THE THROAT SENSATION?

This trouble is most distressing, and caused from a cold which has settled in the throat. How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation in the throat? The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

What you want to cure the cold is Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This valuable preparation is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks with which is combined the virtues of the world famous Norway pine tree.

Thousands of testimonials prove that what we claim is true. All we ask you is that when you ask for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup see that you get "Dr. Wood's," and not some no-account substitute.

Mr. Charles S. Chase, Shelburne, N.S., writes: "Coming to Nova Scotia from the State of Maine, I caught a severe cold which persisted for many weeks, and was accompanied by a bad cough and a constant throat irritation. After trying many remedies, a friend handed me part of a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It helped me so much I bought another bottle which completely cured the cough and allayed the irritation. It is certainly the best cough medicine I have ever tried."

The price of "Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c.

HOLLAND UNDER STRAIN.

Nineteen-Fifteen Class Is Likely To Be Called To 4th Colors.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 25.—The British and French Ministers held a long conference with the Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs yesterday. Both are reported to have transmitted messages from their respective Governments to Holland.

Queen Wilhelmina has cancelled plans for a visit of inspection to the troops on the eastern and southern frontiers, and a feeling of tension is apparent in official circles.

The failure of Germany to reply to the Dutch note in reference to the German submarine blockade is causing much unfavorable comment in Dutch newspapers, though they have been warned to avoid any expressions that might strain the relations of Holland and Germany.

The Dutch Government is considering calling to the colors the men of the 1915 class.

Allied Fleet To Drive Turkey From War

THE CANADIANS ARE 48 HOURS IN THE FIGHTING LINE

FORTS TO DARDANELLES HAVE BEEN DESTROYED

Allied Fleet Under Vice-Admiral Carden Has Now Moved Past Destroyed Turkish Fortresses--Official Announcement of the British Admiralty.

Special Morning Cable.

London, Eng., Feb. 25th—The British Admiralty announced to-night that all the forts at the entrance to Dardanelles have been destroyed by the British-French fleets and the combined squadrons are pursuing up towards Constantinople.

LONDON, February 26.—Preceded by mine sweepers, the allied fleet under Vice-Admiral Carden, has moved past the destroyed Turkish fortresses at the entrance to the Dardanelles and has begun shelling the land fortifications on both sides of the Straits, according to Athens despatches received here to-day.

Twenty-five miles away, the Turkish fleet is lying in Niagara Roads, the narrowest part of the waterway. If the French and English warships batter their way through the great chain of forts leading to the Niagara Roads, one of the most decisive naval battles of the war may be fought in the narrow, river-like channel.

Official announcement that the outer forts of the Dardanelles have been forced, aroused great enthusiasm here. Military experts, however, made no efforts to minimize the great obstacles still facing Carden's fleet, before the warships can emerge in the Sea of Marmora and begin the bombardment of Constantinople. They must pass through a channel thickly strewn with mines and fight their way past an endless series of forts. Fifteen miles inside the straits suddenly narrow to a width of 1 1-5 miles. A small island further obstructs the channel at this point, and twelve fortifications, nine on European and three on Asiatic side, command the waterway. These forts are equipped with heavy Krupps.

Reports from various sources, however, confirm yesterday's Athens despatches that the Turkish Government has made preparations to abondon Constantinople.

This is taken as an official admission that eventually the allied fleets must force their way through the Dardanelles, bottle up and destroy the Turkish navy and drive one of Germany's allies from the war.

IN THE CARPATHIANS

PETROGRAD, Feb. 25.—The Russians now have opened an attack on the main foundations of the Austro-German campaign in the Carpathians. This key position, stretching south from Stanislau, has only a shallow strip of ground in the rear to the Roumania frontier. It took the Austrians 18 days to bring forces from Bukowina, with large floating reserves, into the Stanislau position for the attack on the Russian left flank.

IN EASTERN GALIACIA

In Eastern Galacia the Russian rear columns that are withdrawing from Bukowina, have halted the enemy often enough to give time for the main Russian army to range itself north of the Wyszkow Pass. The opening movements of the battle succeeded in separating this numerically stronger Austrian army from the mountain defences and from the Austro-German columns further west. Early in the first day the Austrian battalion south of Stanislau during the general deployment began doubling towards the Russian lines, waving several white flags. The Austrian commander turned his machine guns on these men, killing most of them.

TURNED OVER TO SUBJECTS OF THE KAISER

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 26.—A despatch from Berne, Switzerland, reports an announcement by the Wolff Agency (an official German news agency) that Germany is to turn all business enterprises in Belgium over to her own subjects and those of her ally, Austria.

The announcement is that at Brussels, Gen. von Bissing, the military governor, has directed the sequestrating of business enterprises in the sens of nations with which Germany is at war. The effect of this will be to close all banks, shops, factories and other business enterprises conducted by Belgians even in Brussels itself, where the Germans have never been opposed. It will affect the business of Antwerp and other cities in a similar way. It will serve shortly to increase vastly the number of persons dependent upon the outside world for subsistence.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; that is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

1,000,000 ITALIANS ARE NOW UNDER ARMS

War Debate Avoided by Premier Salandra—Not Opportune, He Tells Chamber

ROME, Feb. 20.—First line of Italian soldiers, now under the colours, total about 1,000,000 and thus mobilization has virtually been accomplished. Should it be necessary Italy can speedily call to arms the territorial troops for the local garrisons.

The extreme parties in the Chamber of Deputies vainly tried at last night's sitting to force the Government to discuss the foreign policy of Italy. The Socialists presented a proposal to discuss the budget of foreign affairs, but the measure was immediately defeated by a vote of 254 to 27.

Deputy Eugeno Chiesa, in the name of the Depublicans, presented a motion in which he said that, as the Italian army and navy were now ready, that diplomatic preparation had been completed, and that all the appropriations asked had been granted, the Government should make an explicit declaration whether it was for war or for a continuance of neutrality.

Premier Salandra, speaking for himself and also for Foreign Minister Sonnino, answered Deputy Chiesa. The Preimer said he did not consider that a discussion of the foreign policy of the Government was opportune at the present moment, and that he could add nothing to the declarations made by him on Dec. 3, when he advised that the country maintain an attitude of loyal, but watchful and armed neutrality.

70 Jap Soldiers Are Executed

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—Seventy Japanese soldiers were shot by their own officers for looting after the capitulation of the German fortress at Tsing Tau, according to Fraulein Rosa Garth, a Red Cross nurse, who arrived to-day on the steamer Comus as with 67 women and children refugees from China.

CANADIAN CONTINGENT'S FIRST BAPTISM OF FIRE

Whole Brigade Took Part in Fighting--Casualties Not Heavy--Conducted Themselves With Utmost Gallantry and Bravery.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

NORTHERN FRANCE, Tuesday, via London, Feb. 25.—It is definitely stated that the Canadian troops have been in action. They conducted themselves with the utmost gallantry and steadiness, and were under heavy shell and rifle fire for hours.

The —— infantry brigade was first in action. Its casualties were not heavy. The —— regiment repulsed a determined attack. The machine gun section is doing good work, but has had a number wounded.

The —— Rifles distinguished themselves, but are reported to have lost a number of men. They captured a German trench. Only 25 men are reported unhurt out of a full company.

The Canadians entered the trenches under cover of darkness, marching in single file over a road shattered by bursting shells. Their behaviour was a credit to Canada, and the British soldiers are proud to fight beside them. From now on the Canadians will regularly take their share of the fighting.

The Ontario Infantry Brigade, the Toronto Regiment and machine gun section and the Queen's Own Rifles apparently are the units referred to in the foregoing despatch.

TWO DAYS IN TRENCHES

Definite information of the exploit of the first Canadian expeditionary force since its entry into the war zone in France, confirming the despatch in yesterday's Examiner, has been received.

According to the despatch the Canadians have held with great valor and success the first line of trenches within a hundred yards of the Germans, and after a continual vigil lasting over two days are now billeted in the rear, where they will enjoy a few days' rest before returning into the arena again. It was stated that the Canadians covered themselves with glory under the baptism of fire, and that there were few casualities. The excellent marksmanship of the gunners also brought credit upon the Canadian artillery corps.

A message has been received by Lieut.-Col. Ponton from Mr. McLaren Brown, European manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who quoted from a letter sent to him from Lieut.-Col. D. D. Ponton, a son of Lieut.-Col. Ponton, and as he is a member of the Ontario brigade, under the command of Col. M. S. Mercer, it indicates that the Toronto units were the occupants of the most advanced trenches and under the constant fire of the Germans.

The cablegram, which was dated Thursday morning, read as follows:

"I have just received a cheerful letter from Richard (Lieut. R. D. Ponton) from France, dated Feb. 21st. He is quite well and occupied the first line of trenches with the Canadians, which were within one hundred yards of the Germans, during the past 48 hours. The behaviour of the Canadians was splendid and they returned O.K. to their billets for a few days' rest after the baptism of fire. All are very fit, and only slight casualties occurred in the Canadian infantry. These were principally caused by the German snipers. The Canadian artillery proved quite equal to the occasion."

FOURTEEN SHIPS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED SINCE BLOCKADE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The seventh day of the German "blockade" of the British Isles brought news of the destruction of one more mercantile vessel, making a total of fourteen ships of British and neutral nationality sunk or damaged by mines or torpedoed in the first week of the submarine warfare, which began on February 18. The latest victim of a submarine was a small British coasting steamer, the Western Coast, which went down in the dangerous zone off Beachy Head in the English Channel. All of her crew were saved and landed at Plymouth. Fifteen members of the crew of the Deptford, sunk off Scarborough in the North Sea yesterday, were landed yesterday at South Shields. The engineer says he was at his post when an explosion broke the ship in half. He was thrown down and stunned, but managed to reach the deck and get into a lifeboat. Some of the crew say they saw the wake of a submarine afterwards. They spent some hours in a small boat during a violent snowstorm and were nearly frozen when they reached land. On the way they passed a steamship, which paid no attention to their signals. Later the steamer Fulgens picked them up.

The Western Coast was sunk yesterday afternoon much in the same manner as the Deptford. All of her crew were saved and were landed in Plymouth this morning. The vessel was a small coasting steamer.

While eight British ships have been destroyed in the week that the blockade has been in force, it is pointed out that they are for the most part small vessels and that the majority of them, instead of having food for this country, were either ballast or carrying coal or other freight for neutral countries.

It is believed here, also, that the destruction of neutral ships and cargoes will embroil Germany with neutral countries, and that in the long run the losses which the allies will suffer will be more than offset by the anger aroused on the part of neutrals and the possible refusal of countries, such as Norway to allow goods to be shipped from their ports to Germany.

PERMITS ARE NECESSARY

LONDON, Feb. 26—The Official Press Bureau announced that after March 8th no person will be allowed to embark for Holland at Folkestone or Tilbury without a permit. The order does not apply to persons in Government or foreign mission services.

ALLIES' AEROPLANES FLY OVER CONSTANCE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

GENEVA, Feb. 26.—A despatch received here from Constance says that as the result of two allied aeroplanes having been seen Tuesday night from Constance flying southward there was great excitement in Friedrichshafen. The Zeppelins there, it is said, were covered with metal netting, the lights in the town were extinguished and the people took to the cellars. The aeroplanes flew over Meersburg and later reached Belfort safely.

Britain Would Continue War

Even If France and Russia Were to Drop Out But Such a Situation is Inconceivable

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON Eng., Feb. 25.—Premier Asquith to-day endorsed Churchill's statement that Britain would continue war against Germany even should France and Russia withdraw, but such a situation he said was inconceivable.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 25. — The Russians are pressing the Germans back towards the frontier at all points.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

CHAPTER V.

Day had long dawned ere Foyle and his staff had finished their work at the great house in Grosvenor Gardens. There had been much to do, for every person who might possibly throw a light on the tragedy had to be questioned and requisitioned. The place had been thoroughly searched from attic to cellar, for letters or for the jewels that, if Sir Ralph Fairfield were right, were missing.

Much more there would be to do, but for the moment they could go no further. Foyle returned wearily to Scotland Yard to learn that of the finger-prints on the dagger too were too blurred to serve for purposes of identification. He ordered the miniature to be photographed, and held a short consultation with the assistant commissioner. The watch kept for Ivan had so far been without avail. In the corridor, early as it was, a dozen journalists were waiting. Foyle submitted good-humouredly to their questions as they grouped themselves about his room.

"Yes. Of course, I'll let you know all about it," he protested. "I'll have the facts typed out for you, and you can embroider them yourselves. There's a description of a man we'd like to get hold of — not necessarily the murderer, but he might be an important witness. Be sure and put that in."

He always had an air of engaging candour when dealing with newspaper men. Sometimes they were useful, and he never failed to supply them with just as much information about a case as would in any event leak out. That saved them trouble and made them grateful. He went away now to have the bare details of the murder put into shape. When he returned he held the diamond-set miniature in his hand.

"This has been left at the Lost Property Office," he declared unblushingly. "Its pretty valuable, so they've put it into our hands to find the owner. Any of you boys know the lady?"

Some of them examined it with polite interest. They were more concerned with the murder of a famous man. Lost trinkets were small beer at such time. Only Jerrold of The Wire made any suggestion.

"Reminds me of that Russian princess woman who's been staying at the Palatial, only it's too young for her. What's her name?— Petrovska, I think."

"Thanks," said Foyle; "it doesn't matter much. Ah, here's your stuff. Good-bye, boys, and don't worry me more than you can help. This thing is going to keep us pretty busy."

He saw them out of the room and carefully closed the door. Sitting at his desk he lifted the receiver from the

"Get the Palatial Hotel," he ordered. "Hello! That the Palatial? Is the Princess Petrovska there? What? Left last night at ten o'clock? Did she say where she was going? No, I see. Good-bye."

He scribbled a few words on a slip of paper, and touching the bell gave it to the man who answered. "Send that to St. Petersburg at once."

It was a communication to the Chief of the Russian police, asking that inquiries should be made as to the antecedents of the Princess.

For the next three hours men were coming rapidly in and out of the superintendent's office, receiving instructions and making reports. Practically the whole of the six hundred men of the C.I.D. were engaged on the case, for there was no avenue of investigation so slender but that there might be something at the end of it. Neither Foyle nor his lieutenants were men to leave anything to chance. Green was seated opposite to him, discussing the progress they had made.

The superintendent leaned back wearily in his chair. Some one handed him a slim envelope. He tore it open and slowly studied the cipher in which the message was written. I read:

"Silinsky, Chief of Police, St. Petersburg. To Foyle, Superintendent C.I.D., London.

"Woman you mention formerly Lola Rachael, believed born Paris; formerly on stage, Vienna; married Prince Petrovska, 1898. Husband died suddenly 1900. Travels much. No further particulars known."

Foyle stroked his chin gravely. "Formerly Lola Rachael," he murmured. "And Sir Ralph recognized the miniature as little Lola of Vienna. She's worth looking after. We must find her, Green. What about this man, Ivan?"

"No trace of him, yet, but I don't think he can give us the slip. He hadn't much time to get away. By the way, sir, what do you think of Sir Ralph?"

"I don't know. He's been keeping something back for some reason. You'd better have him shadowed, Green. Go yourself, and take a good man with you. He mustn't be let out of sight night or day. I may tackle him again later on."

"Very good, sir. Waverley's still at Grosvenor Gardens. Will you be going back there?"

"I don't know. I want to look through the records of the Convict Supervision Office for the last ten years. I have an idea that I may strike something."

Green was too wise a man to ask questions of his chief. He slipped from the room. Half an hour later Foyle dashed out of the room hatless, and, picking up a taxicab, drove at top speed to Grosvenor Gardens. He was greeted at the door by Lomont.

"What is it?" he demanded, the excitement of the detective communicating itself to him. "Have you carried the case any further?"

"I don't know," replied the detective. "I must see the body again. Come up with me."

In the death-chamber he carefully locked the door. A heavy inkwell stood on the desk. He twisted up a piece of paper and dipped it in. Then, approaching the murdered man, he smeared the fingers of his right hand with the blackened paper and pressed them lightly on a piece of blotting paper. The secretary, in utter bewilderment, watched him compare the prints with a piece of paper he took from his pocket.

"What is it" he repeated again.

"Mr. Lomont," replied the detective gravely, "I wish I knew. Unless our whole system of identification is wrong—and that is incredible—that man who lies dead there is not Robert Grell."

CHAPTER VI.

Lomont reeled dizzily, and his hand sought the support of the wall. To him Foyle's voice sounded unreal. He stared at the detective as though doubtful of his sanity. His life had been hitherto ordered, placid. That there were such things as crimes, murders, detectives, he knew. He had read of them in the newspapers. But hitherto they had only been names to him—something to make the paper more readable.

He was a thin-faced man of about thirty, with somewhat sallow cheeks on which there was now a hectic flush, a high-pitched forehead that seemed to have contracted into a perpetual frown, and colourless eyes. The son of a well-known barrister, he had tried his luck in the city after leaving Cambridge. In a few years the respectable income he had started with had dwindled under the drain of his speculations, and it was then that a friend had recommended him to Robert Grell, who was about to take up his residence in England. James Lomont had jumped at the chance, for the salary was respectable and would enable him to maintain a certain footing in society.

"Not Robert Grell!" he echoed incredulously.

Foyle fancied that there was some quality other than incredulity in the tone, but decided that he was mistaken. The young man's nerves were shaken up. So far as time would allow he had gathered all there was to know about him. Lomont had not escaped the network of inquiry that was being woven about all who had associated with Robert Grell.

No fewer than three chapters in a book the Criminal Investigation Department had commenced compiling were devoted to him. They lay with others neatly typed and indexed in Heldon Foyle's office.

One was his signed statement of events on the night of the tragedy. The last time he had seen Grell alive was at half-past six, when his employer had left for the St. Jermyn's Club. He himself had gone to the Savoy Theatre, and, returning some time after eleven, had let himself in with his own key and gone straight to bed. He had only been aroused when the police took possession of the house. The third was headed: "Inquiries as to master of, and corroboration of statements made by, James Lomont."

The curtains had remained drawn, and only a dim light filtered through into the room. Foyle lifted a little green-shaded electric lamp from the table, and switched on the light so that it fell on the face of the dead man.

"Look," he said, in a quiet voice, "do you recognize your chief?"

The young man flung back his shoulders with a jerk, as though overcoming his own feelings, and approached the body with evident distaste. His hands, slender as a woman's, were tight-clenched, and his breath came and went in nervous spasms. For a moment he gazed, and then shook his head weakly.

"It is not," he whispered with dry lips. "There is an old scar across the temple. Mr. Grell's face was not disfigured." He stretched out a hand and clutched the superintendent nervously by the shoulder. "Who is this man, Mr. Foyle? What does it all mean Where is Mr. Grell?"

Foyle's hand had stolen to his chin and he rubbed it vigorously.

"I don't know what it means," he confessed irritably. "You know as much as I do now. This man is not Robert Grell, though he is astonishingly like him. Now, Mr. Lomont, I rely on you not to breathe a word of this to a living soul until I give you permission. This secret must remain between our two selves for the time being."

"Certainly."

In spite of his air of candour, Heldon Foyle had not revealed all he knew. He left the house pondering deeply.

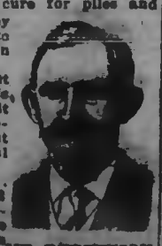
Cured Fifteen Years Ago of Piles and Eczema
By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment—Certifies That the Cure Was Permanent.

Some people have tried so many doctors and so many treatments in their search for cure for piles and eczema that they find it difficult to believe there is an actual cure.



MR. KETCHESON

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that it not only brings relief promptly, but brings about actual and lasting cure.

In 1897 Mr. Ketcheson, 33 Douro street, Peterboro', Ont., wrote as follows:—"I was troubled for thirty years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees, perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and this Ointment effected a complete cure."

On Sept. 28, 1912, Mr. Ketcheson wrote as follows:—"I received a letter from you to-day, saying that you found on file a statement made by me 15 years ago. I have always given Dr. Chase's Ointment a good name since it cured me, and shall tell you how I came to use it.

"I had suffered for many years from eczema and piles, and had tried doctors and everything I could hear of in vain. Reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I purchased it at once, and was soon completely cured. That was fifteen years ago, so there can be no doubt of the cure being a permanent one. I have met a great many people who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS
We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

A suit case has been patented with a handle on one end as well as on top.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WHEN ELIZABETH SCORED

Or a Case of Too Many Lovers.

By AGNES G. REGAN

In all his trying experiences as an editor Richard West had never faced so peculiar a situation. The two young men had burst in upon his privacy, scowling and gesticulating in an incoherent manner. After much questioning their cause of complaint was found to be the recent publication of the following astonishing announcement:

Mr. Robert Wells and Mr. John Clegg of Woodborough announce their engagement to Miss Elizabeth Thornton of this city.

Twice the perplexed editor read the paragraph, then rubbed his eyes.

"This is out of my province," he remarked at last, "but I'll see the society editor about it."

"No use," snapped Robert Wells. "We went to her first, and she says the clipping was inadvertently copied from the Woodborough Suburban. Any joke goes in that home town paper, but how a thing like that could 'get by' in a responsible daily"—

"Such blamed carelessness might bring a pretty suit against your paper," hotly interrupted John Clegg; "made things hot enough for us in Woodborough, but it was [illegible] much to have it repeated when we came to the city."

Suiting the action to the word, the editor lifted the receiver from the hook and called up the office of the Daily News. "Miss Thornton, please," he requested, when the connection was made.

A spirit of relief the managing editor rushed to answer his telephone. "Editor Daily News?" questioned an aggrieved feminine voice. "Well, this is Mrs. William Thornton. I called up to ask explanation of that vulgar notice regarding my daughter which appeared in last night's paper. Your unfortunate mistake no doubt, but I will call to see you personally this afternoon—at 4 o'clock."

Viciously Richard West banged the receiver into its hook. "So there is a Miss Thornton!" he exclaimed.

"There is indeed," Mr. Clegg remarked feelingly.

"And you have both, perhaps, been paying her attention."

"Well, rather," this from Mr. Wells.

"I can only express, then, my regret for the occurrence and suggest a public contradiction."

"Contradiction," groaned the blond one of the two. "Good heavens, it's been rubbed in enough now!"

"If anything of the kind happens again"— vaguely threatened his companion, and the door closed with an eloquent slam.

Suddenly the editor's annoyed expression changed to one of irrepressible amusement. The smile still lingered as he returned to his work. But as the hour of 4 drew near and his clerk announced a visitor he glanced apprehensively toward the door and arose stiffly. It was only a girl who confronted him, however, not the dreaded Mrs. Thornton, whose important name figured so largely in social circles—just a slip of a girl with appealing blue eyes and a sensitive mouth.

"Are you the editor?" she asked naively and, uninvited, settled herself in the editor's chair. "I came about that engagement notice. Had to get here before mother, who will probably make a fuss. I am Elizabeth Thornton."

Bowing, the editor waited. "It was I who wrote the announcement," she calmly stated.

"You!" He swung about in unbelief. The girl nodded.

"It was one of my jokes," she said ruefully. "They always turn out the wrong way." She leaned forward confidentially. "Do you know what it means to have reckless impulses, Mr. West—doing or saying a thing you are bound to be desperately sorry for next day? Well, that's me. Let me explain about that foolish announcement." Miss Thornton's suddenly embarrassed gaze sought the toe of her foot.

"You see, I have known those two boys, Bobbie and Jack, for some time, and we've gone around a lot together, more or less. One afternoon unexpectedly and 'right out of a clear sky'—Bobbie asked me when—we were—going to be—married. Why, I'd never even thought of such a thing. When I tried to tell him so he insisted quite stubbornly that the marriage question had always been understood between us, and when he talked about it I had never contradicted him. Miss Thornton raised aggrieved eyes to the editor. "Now, wasn't that unreasonable," she demanded, "to be expected to marry a man just because one had not gone round denying being engaged to him? And that very evening"—she paused impressively — "Jack Clegg dropped in; declared I knew all along that the house he was building was for me.

"I had encouraged Jack in the building," Miss Thornton admitted, "because he's naturally idle, and I like to see him busy. But it seems Jack had told me the roof would never go on his house until he had the promise of a wife to occupy it, and, of course, any one would have advised him to put on the roof. So," she sighed, "it ended by both boys accusing me of falsely leading them on while being engaged to the other, and when I emphatically denied this to each they settled back comfortably, believing me to be still their 'own betrothed.'" Miss Elizabeth Thornton laughed.

"It was all so perfectly ridiculous," she continued, "that I decided to give them enough of the subject and wrote that silly notice, hurrying it off to their home town paper to greet them when they arrived. Woodborough enjoys publishing amusing [illegible] and I expected the affair to end in a laugh." She regarded the editor soberingly. "But, oh, when the awful thing came out in your paper!" Miss Thornton threw out her hands. "Now I'm afraid—for you," she said.

Richard West followed the girl to the door and then surprised himself by continuing to follow into the elevator and on down to the street, where he stood an unnecessary length of time assuring her of his regret and of his ability to soothe the ruffled feelings of her mother. Again, in his office he stooped to pick up a bunch of faded violets which had fallen from the girl's belt and to place them carefully in his desk. Then he leaned back in his chair, falling into a pleasant reverie. Each fragrant breath from the violets seemed to bring back in an indefinable way the piquant charm of the girl's presence—that one laughing gleam from her bluebell eyes. And so for days the winsome face haunted his memory.

Richard West formed a habit of gazing eagerly down at the passersby or of falling into brown studies before his desk. Then, one day, the girl's well remembered name caught his eye, seeming to stand out in glowing letters upon the social column of his own paper. When he had read the passage a second time he summoned the social editor.

"Let me know," he requested, "if this announcement has been duly authorized." The social editor peered through her glasses.

"The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Thornton to Mr. Robert Wells," she quoted. "Oh, yes, that is correct! The notice was copied by request from a Beechwood paper. Miss Thornton has been a guest at the Belmont, returning this week, as the notice says, to be married in the city. I will send you the original copy."

Swiftly the editor's practiced eye scanned the bold signature, "Authorized for publication by Robert Wells." Undecidedly his hand went out toward the telephone. Then, as if in answer to his thought, the office door was opened to admit a small figure.

"May I come in?" asked a diffident voice. Richard West's heretofore well behaved heart beat a rapid tattoo as the vision in blue advanced to his side.

"I did not think you would do it again," she reproached him. In silent exoneration he handed to her the original signed slip of the disturbing announcement, watching in vast relief as rebellious color flooded the girl's indignant face.

"It is just as I thought," she cried. "Robert Wells wrote the wretched thing for revenge.

"And the fact stated is not true?"

Miss Thornton scorned the eager question. "I was having such a lovely time," she said—"dancing, driving, tennis! Now he has spoiled it all. If I had leprosy I could not be more avoided. 'Returning to be married in the city,'" she mocked. "I'll never be married as long as I live. This time you are not to blame, and I came down to avoid you."

"One might be driven to second offense," he told her, "for the pleasure of seeing you once more."

"You may see me again sooner than you expect," she laughed, and her prophecy came true.

It was a flushed and beautiful young woman of flashing eye who burst in upon him one gloriously memorable morning.

"I hope I'm in time," she began breathlessly and waving aloft a paper. Grandmother read it last night in the Farm Gazette."

With that glowing face so near his own, it was rather difficult at first to grasp the significance of this latest message, but presently Richard West realized that "Miss Elizabeth Thornton was again reported engaged, Mr. John Clegg this time figuring as the fortunate bridegroom elect."

"Isn't it contemptible?" Miss Thornton glanced distractingly through a floating strand of hair. "You see, they have agreed together to get—even. Oh, I wish"— The resonant voice broke tremulously, as the girl turned to the window.

Richard West followed, shaken, between a desire for deep sympathy and a desire for helpless laughter, wondering at the mighty emotion which surged within him at the sight of two very genuine tears creeping down the girl's averted cheek. Tightly his hand closed over hers.

"It has all been so childishly foolish," she murmured.

"Perhaps it has," the man answered gently, "but I'm afraid that I cannot be sorry, Elizabeth"—he paused, and the name was allowed to pass.

"I can't be sorry because the 'foolishness' brought you to me, and I can't be quite sorry for your tears. Tears prove the existence of a heart, and if you have one—if—I—have—I want it—to keep forever, Elizabeth."

Silence in the office while the telephone bell rang unheard; then Richard West rushed over to his desk to pen a hasty line.

"There," he cried triumphantly; "that goes into the paper tonight, and I think, dear, you've scored the boys there."

Glancing over her lover's shoulder the girl read aloud: "The engagement is announced of Miss Elizabeth Thornton to Mr. Richard West. Wedding to take place next month."

Tenderly her eyes sought those of the editor. "Authorized for publication by Elizabeth Thornton," she said.

Cham, the French caricaturist, was talking one day with a Genoese, who bragged that his father's ancient baronial dining hall was the wonder of the world. It was so high you could hardly see the roof.

"My father had a dining room," said Cham, "which was just as remarkable the other way. It was so low that the only fish we could serve at table was flounder!"

LIVING LIKE A KING" IN WAR TIMES MEANS SHORT RATIONS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Feb. 25—"To live like a king" is a phrase that no longer signifies in Prussia an enviable height of luxury, with plenty of good things to eat and drink. Indeed, the Emperor and Empress always have eaten simply, in comparison with many wealthy Germans, but the war has made the bill of fare at court still simpler.

As early as November the so-called "K. bread," rye bread with an admixture of potatoes, was introduced at court, and since then has been used daily. When the commander in chief of the Mark Brandenburg issued a prohibition of night baking fresh rolls immediately were banished from the imperial breakfast table, both at the royal palace and at Monbijou Palace, where the Empress is living at present. An egg, some warmed-up rolls and tea or coffee form the breakfast of the Empress. At one o'clock in the afternoon there is soup and a fish or vegetable course. The evening meal contains one meat, generally one vegetable and potatoes, usually served in their jackets. Often, however, only cold meat and potato salad are served.

This menu is only slightly altered when the Emperor returns from head quarters, where his fare is of Spartan simplicity. The chief change consists in a thick soup, of which the Kaiser is very fond. Frequently the midday meal is composed of such a soup alone.

There are no pastries or whipped cream, except when the children of the Crown Prince come to see their grandmother. Then there are cakes. If only the Crown Princess or the Duchess of Brunswick, formerly Princess Victoria of Prussia, is present, no change is made in the menu.

Commoners are being urged to follow the imperial example in moderation and to eat during the war "not more than three meals a day" This number, said Professor Karl Oppenheimer, in a lecture delivered in one of the official courses on economy in diet during the war, is amply sufficient as a war diet and further meals are a sin against the fatherland.

Overeating, said Professor Oppenheimer, has become, as it were, a sport in wide classes of the German people, including the better situated workmen and the middle classes; unnecessary meals have been included in the day's programme and the people have become accustomed to this overeating, so that hunger is no longer a measure of the amount it is necessary to eat.

The cry for three meals a day instead of five and the saving of forty per cent. in food consumption will not be popular, however, with a certain lass of gourmands who are dissatisfied with the allowance of four and a half pounds of bread a week.

ONE DIVORCE SUIT TO 6 CHICAGO WEDDINGS

Record Almost as Bad as Japan's, According to Report of County Clerk

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—One divorce or separate maintenance suit was filed in the Circuit or Superior Court for every six marriage licenses issued in Chicago in 1914. County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer made public some of the figures which will be included in the first annual report of the Bureau of Marriage and Divorce Statistics.

Mr. Sweitzer has prepared a table showing the number of marriage licenses issued by months. The heaviest number of suits came in March, when 532 suits were filed. A total of 5,356 suits were filed during the year as compared with 35,897 marriage licenses issued.

Statistics on the number of divorces granted are not yet available, but will be in the printed report to be submitted to the Judges of the Circuit and Superior Courts within a short time. The divorces are about one to every eight marriages.

"Chicago's record is almost as bad as Japan's," said Mr. Sweitzer. "It is said that in Japan one couple out of every five go into the divorce court. We must have in mind, however, that Chicago is the 'dumping ground' for the marital troubles of many persons who are not Chicagoans." .. ..

Four Hundred Mutineers Killed.

MANILA, Feb. 25.—Four hundred members of the mutinous Indian regiment, which revolted at Singapore on Feb. 15, have been killed, as well as seven German prisoners from the detention camp, who joined the natives when offered their freedom, according to reports of the uprising brought here by passengers from Singapore. The mutineers are said to have killed all their officers save the colonel, and then attacked civilians, several of whom were killed, including one woman.

AN EASY WAY TO INCREASE WEIGHT

Good Advice for Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dragging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creators," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes unattended. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to the remarkable new assimilin discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh - builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of Peterborough and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution:—While Sargol has given gratifying results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia, and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

GERMAN CHARGES ARE PROVEN ABSURD

Prisoners of War in England Treated Like Honored Guests—Lieutenant Von Tirpitz Admits Courtesy

Writing in The London Daily Mail, Mr. Frederick William Wile, described the conditions of life of German officers in a British detention camp.

Through the courtesy of the War Office, he said, I had the opportunity of studying what the Germans call "English barbarism" with my own eyes and ears. Permission was given me to penetrate these remote but picturesque wilds of Derbyshire and pay a visit to "Dyffryn Aled," the Welsh estate of Lady Dundonald, which is doing duty as "detention barracks" for enemy officers who fall into British hands as prisoners of war.

"Dyffryn Aled" is a glorious country seat nine or ten miles distant from Denbigh, so secluded amid wooded hills, some 600 feet above the level of the sea, that it is accessible only by vehicle from the world without. Lady Dundonald's rambling old sandstone mansion of some twenty-five or thirty rooms shelters 98 German officers and 37 soldiers and civilians, also held as prisoners of war.

Later on I shall quote the evidence of "Dyffryn Aled's" most distinguished inmate, Oberleutnant Wolf von Tirpitz, son of Grand-Admiral von Tirpitz, Secretary of the Imperial German Navy, in confirmation of my own impressions that the prisoners who have the good fortune to be interned there are the recipients of treatment which is the last word in comfort, courtesy, and consideration.

Not Very Barbarous

Lodged in a typical manor house whose spacious rooms are embellished with exquisite wood carvings and Adams ceilings, at liberty to roam through an exercise field three acres in extent running down to the edge of the most delightful of Welsh rivulets, in receipt of half the pay of their rank; permitted to conduct a mess on the identical lines of a British infantry battalion, with the privilege of electing a mess president, mess secretary, and mess committee; at liberty to drink lager beer, light wine, cognac and mineral waters at the discretion of the commandant—practically never exercised—and to smoke cigars, pipes, and cigarettes at will; supplied with a piano and other facilities for music; allowed to maintain their own library and to embellish their quarters with pictures of the Kaiser, drawn on the spot by one of their number who is a gifted crayon artist; enjoying the alternative of wearing their German uniforms or civilian attire as they please, and allowed to employ the services of English tailors, haberdashes, or bootmakers, their fellow-prisoner servants also in receipt of British pay; and possessing the right of presenting to the commandant every morning a list of their wishes or requirements, which are freely granted almost without exception, these are the damning evidences of "English barbarism" which I found at "Dyffryn Aled." It was astonishing enough to me.

The Bill of Fare

I arrived at the barracks just before luncheon time, and as the fumes of appetising food were wafted my way, I asked Colonel Drury to conduct me to the kitchen, presided over by no less a distinguished a person than the late chef of the Imperial Hotel at Torquay, a detained German Alsatian. He sketched for me on a slip of paper the following memorandum of the daily fare:—

BREAKFAST

Coffee, bacon, sausages, jam, bread, butter and porridge.

LUNCH

Soup, joint (beef, mutton or veal), vegetables fruit.

DINNER

Joint, cold meats, fried potatoes or soup, warm vegetables and cheese

Tea or coffee is served at 4.30 in the afternoon, and at any time of the day selections may be made in the mess from an extensive wine list.

A trestle-work balcony, leading directly out of the mess on to the exercise field, consisting of a spacious area sloping down somewhat steeply from the house to the river's edge, is thrown open for the use of the prisoners immediately after breakfast. They are thenceforward at liberty to remain in the open, within the compound roped off by barbed-wire, until dusk.

Sentries are on duty at strategic points around the enclosure during daylight. The windows of the manor house have been fitted with iron bars since it was converted into detention barracks.

Von Tirpitz' Statement

My visit to "Dyffryn Aled" happened to synchronize with a call paid to the camp by a member of the American committee interested in the welfare of prisoners of war in the various warring countries. As this visitor had a special permit to converse with Oberleutenant von Tirpitz, it was my pleasure to be present during an extended conversation with him.

Von Tirpitz is a handsome young German of twenty-seven, with conspicuously clean-cut features, grey-lish-blue eyes, wavy blonde hair, tall, trim and erect.

"My part in the Heligoland fight wasn't very important, I fear," he said. "It is only a miracle that I was spared. The officer on duty alongside me in the crow's-nest was torn clean through the waist-line by shell fire, while I remained untouched. British hospitality, which began that misty August afternoon has been continued, so far as my comrades and I at 'Dyffryn Aled' are concerned, to this very hour. I cannot say I am exactly happy. I am a prisoner in the enemy's country. But I am quite as comfortable and well cared for as any man in my position has reason to expect—in fact, far more so.

You have been round the camp and know for yourself that everything is done for our comfort, convenience and happiness which is compatible with our surroundings."

SISTER JULIE

Sister Julie is one of the fifty thousand nuns France exiled during the church troubles. "It appears that the good Lord would have us know more of His world, my sisters," said Sister Julie, and packed a prayer book, her Sunday habit and some linen into a shabby Gladstone bag.

War found France unprepared, without nurses or Red Cross equipment. Shamefacedly the minister of war invited the nun-nurses to return. Six hours later the first contingent stood in the war office, calm, smiling—ready for instant duty. "It appears that we may serve God and our country in this crisis," said Sister Julie. "On the Marne? certainly, Monsieur, we thank you and go at once."

They went—and stayed, organizing their one-nurse hospitals just back of the battle front. For days the battle raged round the ruined, blameless villages. For days Sister Julie, alone and unprotected in an ambulance station in a deserted hamlet, attended her helpless, shot-torn patients as the maelstrom of war stormed about them.

Once Sister Julie found it necessary to don her fresh blue apron, lock the door and go out and warn the German general to turn his guns away from her hospital!

But the tide of war rolled back. The Germans were driven pellmell from the Marne. The French soldiers came dashing through. Sister Julie had time merely to nod cheerfully at them through the window.

One day a glittering squadron of French cavalry clattered through the shell-swept street and stopped in front of Sister Julie's ambulance station.

"Sister," announced the captain, "we are going to ask a favor. Will you permit that we parade past you?"

Her quiet smile gave consent. The captain turned in the saddle to address his troop of horse.

"My friends," he said, "when we were here last we saw flames leap to the sky. You can see now what they did. But in this deserted village, in the midst of the flames, under the hail of shells, one woman remained at her post of mercy. That was Sister Julie. The President of the Republic is about to pin the Cross of Courage on her veil. Salute her! We are to have the honor of parading before her. Young men, look at her well. Soon you will again be under fire. When that time comes, think of her, that like her you may stick to your post."

He paused. They waited for the heroic nurse to speak.

"Why, bless you all, what else was I to do?" asked Sister Julie.

Sixty Million Pairs of Boots

A rough calculation of the real necessities for the soldier of all nations would indicate that the men cannot go through the next twelve months soundly shod unless 60,000,000 pairs can be turned out. Germany and Austria, of course, may be able to look after their own, but it is doubtful whether either of these industrial countries have considered the all-important question of a reserve of boots.

SAGE TEA TURNS GREY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Torture of Sciatica Cured Quick! "Nerviline" a Success Every Time

Stops the Pain Quick — Acts Like Magic—Is Harmless and Pleasant.

Sciatica is the most severe pain man can suffer. The great sciatic nerve is deeply placed, and you can reach it only by a pain remedy, as penetrating and powerful as NERVILINE.

The glory of NERVILINE is in its strength—in its marvellous power of penetrating deeply. In severe pains, such as sciatica and neuralgia, NERVILINE demonstrates its superiority over every other remedy.

Extraordinary pains, such as rheumatic or sciatica, can be overcome only by a remedy as extraordinary as Nerviline. In many lands it has shown itself to be the best for little pains, best for big pains, and best for all pains.

When one has acute rheumatic pains, stiff joints or a stiff neck, do not experiment—seek a remedy that cures. Like lightning in rapidity, as sure as fate in its certainty of relief, Nerviline can never be surpassed for the removal of pain, no matter what advance science may make. It is perfection in its line. Do not trifle with ordinary or oily liniments, use Nerviline. Prove its efficacy—it's the one liniment that rubs right into the core of the pain.

A large 50 cent bottle will cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Trial size, 25 cents. Sold by all dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

TRICKING GERMAN GUNNERS

British Artillery Sometimes Pretend That Guns Have Been Silenced

The British gunners play many a trick on the Germans that they learned during the Boer War. Here is one a wounded soldier tells.

During one of the many little battles the British artillery fire began to cease. One by one the guns stopped firing, until all were silenced.

Shortly afterwards the German infantry came marching along in their usual formation, cheering because they thought their guns had put those of the British out of action. Gradually they drew nearer, undeterred by the heavy rifle fire of our troops, which thinned their ranks with terrible effect.

Then suddenly the whole of the British artillery roared out. The stopping of the guns had been only a trick to draw the enemy on, and it had been artfully carried out, guns stopping one after the other instead of all together, so as to give the impression that they had been put out of action by the shells.

The slaughter among the massed troops of the Germans was terrible, whole ranks being literally blown away, for they formed a target on the open ground which could hardly be missed by the poorest gunner.

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The Simplest and Quickest Way is To Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, to, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly.. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

ALLIES GAIN ALL ALONG THE LINE — BRITISH THROW FOE BACK IN CONFUSION

SUCCESSES FOR ALLIES EVERYWHERE REPORTED

French Make Steady Progress in the Champaign Region and Around Apremont While the British Have Been Doing Splendid Work in the Fighting West of LaBassee

GERMAN TRENCHES WRECKED BY SHELLS

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Feb. 26.—French official.—Further gains for the allies all along the battle front, particularly in the fighting west of Labassee, and in the Apremont Forest, were reported in the official despatches to the war office to-day. The British repulsed another series of German charges along the Labassee-Bethune Road. They counter attacked and threw the Germans back in confusion, gaining 100 yards of trenches.

In the Apremont region, French infantry attacks caused some severe losses to the Germans. At the point of the bayonet the French forced the enemy to evacuate several trenches. Fighting in the Champaign region continues with the French making steady progress around Perthes. The Belgians are stubbornly resisting the German drives against their positions in the flooded area in Flanders. They made a successful attack yesterday, recapturing a trench that had previously been taken by the Germans.

German artillery bombarded the French positions along the Aisne for several hours yesterday. The French replied effectively, silencing several German batteries along the Meuse. The French gun fire wrecked a number of German trenches and forced the withdrawal of a German battery.

RUSSIANS CLAIM VICTORIES

PETROGRAD, Feb. 26.—Rusian victories at both ends of the long battle lines, particularly in the east around Stanislau, were claimed in despatches from the front to-day. It was admitted however, that the Germans have made slight progress in their drive southward and eastward from Warsaw. North and northeast of the Polish capital the Czar's armies are on the offensive and are continuing the advance begun earlier in the week.

Austria's advance upon Lemberg from points south of Stanislau has been checked.

The Germans in the Poland fighting have failed in their retreat against the Russian lines of communication between Warsaw and Petrograd. Heavy guns at the fortress of Ossowetz have blocked the Kaiser's troops in their march against Bjelostok on the Warsaw-Petrograd railway. North of Warsaw the Germans continue violent assaults around Przasnysz.

GENERAL FRENCH'S REPORT

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Rainy weather in Belgium and northern France is hindering operations, General French reports to-day. The canals are out of their banks in many places and both the allies and the enemy have been forced to evacuate the flooded trenches at several points. Near Ypres the British troops are engaging in intermittent engagements with the Germans. Elsewhere only long distance artillery duels are in progress.

NOT WITHHOLDING LIST

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The report that the Militia Department is withholding a heavy Canadian casualty list pending the notification of relatives is emphatically denied by the Government.

STILL LYING ABOUT TRANSPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Although denied several times by the British admiralty, Berlin wireless despatches again, to-day declare that 1800 British troops were drowned in the English channel when a German submarine sent an English transport to the bottom.

HAVOC IN THE WHEAT PIT

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—The news of the destruction of the Dardanelles outer forts played havoc in the wheat pit. The market opened at $1.51 per bush. for May and $1.21 per bush. for July wheat. These prices represented over night losses of from 2 to 5c per bush. At 10 a.m. May wheat had declined to $1.48, while July had fallen to $1.20 and still weak.

AMERICAN SHIP LOST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The loss of the American ship, Theodore Palmer of New London, with all hands, was indicated by a despatch received here to-day from the Consul-General at Copenhagen, reporting the arrival of the Swedish steamer Vala, with pieces of wreckage of this ship found in mid-ocean.

UNITED STATES CRITICIZED

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Still another article denunciatory of America's alleged breach of neutrality, appears in the Taglishche Rundschau of Berlin. The old story of thirty British officers who arrived at the Schwabs steel works to superintend the manufacture of guns, is warmed up, and Schwab is told that he disgraces the German name. Bryan is alluded to as "this Bryan, the colleague of male and female ballet singers, who has learned nothing from history." We are then told of "vultures in frock coats," "criminals holding office and dignities."

The article concludes: "Our heartiest congratulations to your profitable policy of neutrality, and on your blessed day of prayer. Hallelujah."

City Solicitor Reports on Liability of Corporation With Respect to its Own Employees

TO COLLECT DATA

A communication was read at the meeting of the Board of Works last night from City Solicitor Gordon re Workmen's Compensation Act of the City of Peterborough, showing in general the liability of the Corporation to participate under it. He enclosed a report which covered the liability of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough with respect to its own employees, engaged by the Corporation.

One clause of the report says: "The exercise and performance of the powers of a Municipal Corporation shall for the purposes of this Act, be deemed as the trade or business of the Corporation."

The Municipal Corporation is individually liable to pay compensation but does not require to participate in the insurance fund, that is, liable when an accident takes place to pay the amount fixed under the new Workmen's Compensation Act.

The Act and the schedules would appear to be wide enough, to cover all employees working on sewer construction, excavation, road repairing, road construction, etc.

The matter of Insurance for the different Departments of the City is causing the Aldermen a lot of deep thought. It is a subject which cannot be dealt with in a hurry.

It has been suggested that the City carry its own insurance risk, but as it was pointed out by Alderman Green at the session of the Board of Works last night, the City is now in a different position to that in which it was up to Dec. 31, 1914.

The City has usually been fairly lucky as regards accident among employees, but may not always be that lucky.

Alderman McIntyre thought it would be a good idea to consult with the Utilities Commission and other Departments, with a view to securing protection together.

It was decided that the chairman of the Board of Works, Fire, Water and Light, and Property Committees, be a committee to get information and data. The Mayor intimated that of necessary a special meeting of the Council would be called to consider their report.

VOTE FOR THE YEAR

Ald. Green, Chairman of the Board of Works, Brings Down a Statement of His Committee's Requirements

CUTS ARE MADE

The Board of Works' appropriation for the year will be $28,710.00, for snow cleaning, $2,500.00 and for street sprinkling $5,000.00. This was the result of the deliberations of the Board at the meeting last evening at which were present Chairman Ald. Green, His Worship Mayor Buller, Alds. McIntyre, Evans, Johnston, Saunders, Weir, Edgar and City Engineer Parsons.

Until this year the snow cleaning and street sprinkling, for which $7,500 is provided for 1915, were never considered as Board of Works' items, but, coming under the supervision of the Engineering Department as they do, Ald. Green thought the appropriation to take care of that work should be made a part of the Board of Works' estimates and accordingly included them in an appendix to his regular list for approval.

The $28,710.00, therefore is to take care of the general work for which $29,250.00 was appropriated last year, a difference of $2,540.00. Ald. Green had only two items in his estimates which did not get by the Board without a cut and they were cut out altogether. The first was an item of $1200.00 for damages. It was the feeling of the Board that this should not appear against the Board of Works but against the Legal committee. It was accordingly decided that the meeting should recommend that the Legal committee provide for a sum for damages in their estimates. The other amount turned down was that of $3,000 for surface drainage which is dealt with in another article in this issue.

The list of estimates for 1915 as prepared by Chairman Ald. Green and City Engineer Parsons, was as follows:

Estimates.

Approaches	$ 50.00
Board of Works, miscellaneous	2000.00
Board of Works, horses	525.00

MINE FIELDS AT DOVER

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The Daily Chronicle says:

"The sea gates have been closed, and though the Admiralty has not disclosed the nature of preparations, we may be sure that they are such as will be a serious danger for submarines attempting to pass that way.

"There is also a mine field outside the Straits of Dover, and there are other means which will not make the work of the German submarines easy."

NINE MONTHS IN COMMON GAOL FOR EDGAR GROSE

Jury Brought in a Verdict of Guilty With a Recommendation to Mercy —Mr. Justice Britton Approved of the Jury's Decision—Prisoner Thanked the Court After Sentence Was Passed.

JURY OUT TWO HOURS

Nine months in the common goal was the sentence meted out to Edgar Grose, who was found guilty of manslaughter. The jury returned their verdict late yesterday afternoon after being out nearly two hours. Mr. Bert Tully, foreman, presented the jury's finding to which was added a recommendation to mercy. His Lordship Mr. Justice Britton expressed his approval of the jury's decision and promised to consider the attached recommendation. He fixed the hour for sentence at seven o'clock in the evening at which time the court room was crowded almost to capacity. There was an expectant hush when His Lordship asked Grose if he had anything to say before sentence was passed. The prisoner's reply, which was in the affirmative, apparently did not come within the hearing of the Court as His Lordship immediately proceeded to address himself to Grose in the following terms:

"I approve of the verdict of the jury. I don't see, how on the evidence submitted, they could have arrived at any other conclusion. It was unfortunate for you that you went out of the room into the hall where, according to the evidence you met O'Brien. You had your friends ready at your back. The police were near at hand also the proprietor of the hotel but you needed their assistance. You had no reason to believe that you were in danger of attack."

"One of the most difficult things for a judge to do is to pass sentence on a prisoner. I am human like the rest. It is often the innocent ones that suffer the most. Many a respectable family has been disrupted and ostracized because of the waywardness of a member. In passing sentence upon you I am taking into consideration the recommendation to mercy, and have also made some enquiries concerning you. The sentence of this Court is that you be imprisoned in the common goal for a period of nine months."

With Grose's fervent "Thank you," a host of the prisoner's friends swept towards the prisoner's dock and shook hands with Grose. He seemed to appreciate the leniency of the Court and assured his friends that he would not have to leave Peterborough. A few minutes later he left the court room in charge of Turnkey Ray.

DEATH OF LOCAL HOTEL PROPIETOR

Occured This Morning—Arthur Mulhall Sustained a Factured Skull

FELL DOWN STAIRS

Arthur Mulhall, owner and proprietor of the American House, Hunter Street, passed away this morning as a result of an accident which he sustained last evening. It appears that shortly after 10 o'clock deceased was making his way upstairs when he slipped and fell to the bottom. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and removed to a room of the hotel where death occurred some hours later. An examination made by the doctors who were summoned, is said to have revealed a fractured skull. When picked up at the foot of the stairway it was thought that Mulhall was dead. Medical attention was secured but the efforts of the doctors were of no avail. Mulhall passed away this morning without making any statement as to the cause of the accident. Those who were near at hand at the time are of the opinion that Mulhall's foot slipped on the top step, causing him to lose his balance, with the above result.

Born in Cobourg.

Deceased leaves a wife and one child. He was about fifty-five years of age and since May last has been owner of the American House. He was born in Cobourg and was well known throughout the district, especially among the sporting fraternity. For some years Mulhall was a member of the Cobourg Baseball Club. He was with the club when Cobourg won the Canadian League Championship, in 1903.

The remains of the late Mr. Mulhall will be taken to Cobourg to-morrow morning for interment. Coroner Greer has decided that an inquest will not be necessary.

PASSES AWAY IN BATTLE CREEK

An old resident of Peterborough has passed away at Battle Creek, Mich., in the person of Mr. F. Heubeck. The funeral will take place here on Monday. Further particulars will be given to-morrow.

SECURED AN ORONO CONTRACT

Ald. A. A. McIntyre and his brother, Mr. M. McIntyre, and Mr. J. J. Hartley, have secured the contract for the erection of a school in Orono at a figure of about $15,000.00. They were successful in their tender against Toronto, Newcastle, Orono, Port Hope, Ottawa and Peterborough figures, and are to be congratulated on their success.

Patriotic Meeting In Collegiate Hall on Friday, March 5

Mr. D. O'Connell, chairman of the Patriotic Fund committee of collection, has addresse a letter to the gentlemen who participated in the recent Patriotic Fund campaign. As the invitation contained in the letter should appeal to the general public and enlist their interest in the meeting mentioned, a copy of the letter is given below:

Dear Sir,—A patriotic meeting will be held in the Collegiate Institute Hall on the evening of March the 5th, under the auspices of the Dominion and Ontario Departments of Agriculture. Mr. Justice Riddell and other speakers will be present and address the meeting.

This meeting is called for the purpose of dealing with some of the important phases of the war, and the duty of the Canadian people in dealing with the great crisis with which the Empire is at present confronted. It is desirable that there should be a large attendance, and I am taking the liberty of writing to the gentlemen who participated in the recent Patriotic Fund Campaign, requesting them to be present at this meeting. I feel confident that you will not only attend yourself, if it is at all possible, but that you will also induce your friends to do so. I am,

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) D. O'CONNELL.

HOW FALSEHOOD IS FOSTERED.

The Toronto News furnishes a striking example of the way a little grain of truth is perverted and a fairly robust lie is placed on its feet. The News has a despatch from Ottawa stating that there is talk of a spring election at the capital. A certain wing of the Liberal party seems to be counting on an election, it says, and adds as proof that "Mr. J. G. Turriff," a Liberal members from the West, "last night asked for a contest with the tariff as an issue." This is one of those worst of lies—with a little truth for a foundation. Mr. Turriff, in discussing the budget said that there was opposition to the tariff measure of Mr. White in the West; and that "when the time came the people would pass upon him in respect of it." A Conservative member, Mr. Bradbury, of Selkirk, interrupting said: "Let us go and find out." Mr. Turriff replied: "You cannot go too quickly." Here is the sole foundation for the assertion of the News that Opposition members are asking for an election—"asking for an appeal upon the budget." This is a small matter and would not be worth reference if it were not to show upon what merits the News and other journals of its kidney feed their readers and create false impressions with the barefacedness of a German press bureau—an innocent little jocular interruption, and a similarly jocular reply, tortured into a declaration of the policy of part of the Liberal Opposition. When the News meets with an accident, and tells the truth about some matter affecting its political opponents, it will find that belief in its statements will argue a generous credulity.

A DIFFICULT MATTER SIMPLIFIED.

It is apparently a difficult matter to make taxation, whether by tariff or direct impost, a pleasant thing. The subject bristles with difficulties. Getting it evidently right in our direction or interest, it bulges out all wrong in another direction, or in respect of another interest. Hon. Mr. White, Dominion Finance Minister, has made a tariff that, according to natural expectation, does not please anybody particularly well, and displeases others very much. He has increased the tariff, he says, in order to raise increased revenue for public purposes; and if that object is not reached he will have failed in his aim. To help the attainment of his object, loyal Canadians will confine their purchases to imported goods, the only purchases that will yield a revenue. Unless the public come to the rescue of the minister and purchase imported goods at the advanced prices caused by additional taxation, the needed additional revenue will not be raised. The public will even have to purchase British goods, which have had the tariff increased against them by the reduction of the preferential rate. There may be some little question of the loyalty of making such purchases; of indirectly making the British exporter and manufacturer contribute to our deficit in revenue. But bless you! That doesn't matter so long as the disloyalty is in the interests of the right party. Then if we have to buy more largely of imported goods to raise money, what becomes of the made-in-Canada spend? If we confine our purchases exclusively as possible, to goods of Canadian manufacture or other origin, we certainly shall not thereby add a cent to the desired increase of revenue. If we don't, in everything and in all ways possible, confine our purchases to Canadian goods, we shall be disloyal to Canada and Canada's industrial interests. It is very evident that we can't keep our cake and eat it at the same time. If we help raise revenue by buying imported goods, we shall have to practice disloyalty by refraining from purchasing Canadian-made goods and keeping the dollar at home. Mr. White has a difficult role to play. It seems that he would be justified in taking lessons from the Finance Minister of Ontario. His is the only logical way of raising moneys—impose direct taxation that will insure everybody being hit, and hit hard; where there will be no choice, but to pay. There's no dodging Ontario's direct tax. There's no chance for a divided allegiance; no chance of compromising our duty; no chance of being loyal to Canada by buying Canadian goods, and disloyal to Canada by buying imported goods, to raise revenue. Another advantage of Ontario's direct taxation way, is that the revenue from direct taxation is all clear gain. The Dominion revenue must be lessened by cost of collection; but Ontario's tax is collected without cost—to the government. The government considers that the municipalities in their eagerness to pay a mill on the dollar of assessment, in compensation for the government waste of our money, will also be delighted to do the thing handsomely—not only pay the tax, but pay the cost of collecting. The Ontario way is the better way—for the government—no matter what it may be for the people who pay it.

HOME BREW ENTERPRISE.

At the meeting of the Ontario Boards of Trade in Toronto yesterday, the following resolution relating to nickel was adopted:

"Whereas; We believe the people of Ontario as a whole desire the assurance that, should any future occasion arise, the nickel produced in the Dominion of Canada, in so far as the refined product goes, should be under the control of the Government; and where the Hon. Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines has announced that it is the intention of the Government to appoint a Royal Commission; resolved, that these Associated Boards of Trade assembled highly commend their action, and as a body sincerely trust the men appointed will be non-political, practical and thoroughly impartial; and be it further resolved, that ti is in the interest of the Dominion of Canada and the British Empire that the refining of all nickel and coper matte be under Government control and be refined in Canada."

If "Canada for Canadians" and "Made-in-Canada" as national slogans are to be anything more than scrape of paper, there must be a policy adopted by our governments to provide that our convertible raw resources should be conserved for Canadian purposes first, and that every product or raw material of Canada should be manufactured within the country to the ultimate form through the employment of Canadian labour, Canadian capital and Canadian skill. This applies to almost everything, but especially to nickel; and if there is no other way the government should take the lead. Why is the government urging the farmers to larger production but in the interests of the farming industry and the country at large? Of course there are difficulties in the way; some decks to be cleared before we can begin the battle of home refinement and all-Canadian exploitation of nickel. It is a government's business to overcome difficulties and remove obstacles. There may be objections to the government undertaking refinement of nickel in Canada, with the immense attendant advantages; but why should there be objections of a vital kind? We have in Ontario, the Hydro-Electric system as a form of government enterprise, that is amply justifying itself. We have the government by its manipulation of the tariff influencing the industries of Canada. The government need not wait for any excuse for doing its duty. Now is the time when the importance and value of Canada's nickel deposits are emphasised; and the government will be approved and upheld in taking on a truly Canadian policy in regard to nickel as a beginning of a campaign of intensive cultivation of the industrial resources of the country.

PREACHING AND PRACTICING LOYALTY.

We are prepared to spend hundreds of millions mainly in defence of Motherland. This is noble work. We are her sons and daughters. But in times of peace we treat Britain practically as we treat Germany. We treat the United States, when our tariff schedules and imports are carefully considered, with greater consideration than our own Motherland. Do our young men see the glaring inconsistency of preaching so much loyalty and practicing it so poorly? What is the effect of such empty profession upon the young men of the East? Who is to blame?—Winnipeg Tribune.

BENEFITS OF AMALGAMATION OF SUN LIFE AND FEDERAL COMPANIES

The event of the week is the approaching absorption of the Federal Life into the Sun. It was not merely an event. It was a sensation. Although the negotiations must have been proceeding for some time, nobody outside the Sun Life had the least idea of what was taking place.

Who it Benefits.

A few things are absolutely clear in the deal. It is a profitable arrangement for

(1) Federal Life policyholders.
(2) Federal Life shareholders.
(3) The Sun Life policyholders and shareholders.

The Saving in Expenses

The details are not disclosed exactly so far. But approximately the result of the amalgamation will be as follows: Last year the Federal Life premiums were $1,007,545. Of this the expenses were 23.44 per cent. Under the arrangement with the Sun Life the Federal business will be temporarily kept in a seperate class, and administered at an expense of 10 per cent. This means to say the expense of these premiums will be 13.44 per cent. less, or a saving to Federal Life policyholders of $135,208 per annum. The increase in the Federal surplus last year was $111,600 against this figure. Federal Life policyholders will therefore probably receive very much bigger dividends immediately and when their business is finally merged into the Sun in the near future will get the Sun Life dividends.

The Different Dividends.

How much bigger the Sun Life policyholders' dividends are can be seen from the cash dividends declared last year on whole life policies. These particular dividends I give were first dividends paid at the end of a period of twenty years on life policies with premiums payable for the whole of life. The figures are as follows for $1,000 policy, the premiums being much the same in both companies.

	Federal.	Sun.
Age, 25	$66.00	$126.60
Age, 35	83.00	191.00
Age, 45	156.00	339.00

Federal Life Shares.

As regards Federal Life shareholders the information as to the purchase price paid per share has not yet been made public.

Hamilton papers stated it at $650,000 for the $130,000 paid up capital, and later denied the statement. The exact figure has not yet been given to the shareholders, and it has not yet transpired whether the price is to be cash or partly cash, and partly in anunal profits from the Federal Life business. As the Federal surplus at the end of 1914 was $88,357, I am not disinclined to think that the shareholders will receive cash within that amount of surplus, and the balance out of the earnings of the Federal business. But if the purchase price is anything approaching five years' purchase it is clear that the Federal shareholders must approve the purchase, as they now only receive ten per cent. in dividends per annum.

Where the Sun Gains.

As regards the Sun Life, too, I should imagine both shareholders and policyholders will approve of the absorption. The Sun Life will, so far as I can see, get the business eventually without any cost to its own policyholders or shareholders. The mere fact that it can administer the business immediately at 10 per cent. and save $135,208 per annum in Federal expenses will not only enable it to pay the Federal Life policyholders much bigger dividends, but will make it possible for the Sun to partly recoup itself for the purchase price payable for the Federal stock. The Sun will probably also save considerably in its own expenses. By the mere growth in size of its business it should be able to administer its affairs relatively more economically. At the present moment the Sun has approximately $220,000,000 business in force and the Federal not far short of $30,000,000. The premiums of the Sun are approximately $9,000,000 and the Federal are over $1,000,000, so that the combined premiums will be over $10,000,000 altogether.

Sun's Reducing Expenses.

Now the Federal Life business is very well concentrated. If I mistake not, its Ontario business comprises the best part and it is in the most concentrated territory in the Dominion and fits in extremely well for the purposes of the Sun Life agency organization. The Sun Life's record in expenses for the past ten years has been that with its growth in size it has reduced its expenses proportionate to its premiums. Since 1905 the Sun Life expenses have decreased over 4 per cent. of the annual premiums and the immediate addition of 11 per cent. income should enable it to make a further reduction.

Big Business from Federal Connection.

Apart from that the connection brought by the Federal business will be an excellent additional field for new business. It is a well known fact that, of all the new business obtained by any life company, anything from 33 to 75 per cent. of it comes from existing policyholders. The Sun Life, therefore, should be able to obtain a considerable portion of the $5,000,000 new business per annum, which the Federal has done every year. That is the chief way in which Sun Life shareholders or policyholders will benfit by the deal.

The Size of the Sun.

Sentimentally they will have the proud record of having $250,000,000 business in force, of doing by far the bigger business than any other life company in the British Empire, of being the largest Canadian Company with the enormous surplus of $6,503,794 plus what no other Company possesses, viz., a super-surplus of $11,000,000 investments in the shape of its contingent assets.

The Common Sense.

That is the common sense aspect of the deal. The other aspect is a sentimental one only.—Canadian Insurance, Feb. 24, 1915.

A MEMBER MAULS THE MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 26—An attack on the Ministers of the Gospel of the Province, a defence of the liquor license system and utter opposition to the closing of the bars were the features of a rather sensational speech in the Legislature by J. W. Johnston, M.P.P., for West Hastings. It was a much franker statement on the liquor question than usually is heard from the Government side of the House. The fact that Mr Johnston, at the conclusion of his speech, was surrounded by his colleagues on the Government side and warmly congratulated, showed that he had expressed views with which many of them heartily agreed.

Mr. Johnston made a violent attack on the ministers of the Province for the work they had done in support of the abolition of the bar and defended the license system out and out, saying that he did not think they should be interfered with. "I am a temperance man," said Mr. Johnston, "but everybody knows I am not a teetotaller. I take a drink when I feel like it and I shall continue to take a drink until the very end."

Mr. Johnston attacked the idea of closing every bar in the Province, and said that if this was done "we would be swimming in a sea of liquor." He thought it would have been a great curse to close the bars.

Mr. Johnston asked what right Mr. Rowell had to continue talking temperance after the people of the Province, last June, had, he claimed, declared their disapproval of the proposal to close the bars. "What right," repeated Mr. Johnston, "has the Leader of the Opposition to continue his agitation?"

The member for West Hastings, in the course of his attack on the ministers of the Province, referred especially to clergymen in his own Riding, and said he had been opposed by every Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist minister in his Riding, with one exception. He mentioned also particularly the Pastor of his own Church, whom he had heard from the pulpit urging temperance and the abolition of the bar. Mr. Johnston said he felt like getting up in his place in the Church and protesting then and there against a minister dealing with such a subject from the pulpit, but had refrained and met the Minister later on the hustings.

Mr. Johnston drew quite a dark picture of Church conditions in Belleville since the last election. He said that the Ministers of the Gospel were supposed to look after sinners, and not drive them out of Church, but that since the elections last June some of the prominent men in Belleville, including himself, had never put their foot in a Church.

Though there were numerous questions to be asked and answered which took up the time, the aldermen seemed to think the different items were pared down about as fine as possible and they were passed in a remarkably short time.

The $825.00 under the heading "Board of Works Horses" is to provide for the purchase of a horse cart and harness for repairing on the streets filling up holes etc., and the keep of the horse at the Fire Hall, also the keep of the other team belonging to the Board of Works. The City Engineer has been after this for some time.

Even the salary item passed without much comment. Ald. Edgar did not have any remarks to make, though Engineer Parsons explained how the amount was made up.

SOLDIERS ARE EXEMPT

Men at Front and Their Dependents Free From Ontario War Tax.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The new war tax bill was brought into the House by Hon. T. W. McGarry yesterday and explained as applying to every income source now subject to assessment, the rate will be one mill on the dollar for business, income and property and the local corporation will make the collections.

In counties collections are made as usual, and the return goes to the provincial treasurer. Mr. McGarry expects that the collection this year will be much larger than $1,500,000 counted upon.

A feature will require amendments to the Municipal Act to give municipalities the right to exclude from the new tax cases of immediate relatives of soldiers at the front. Their sacrifice was great enough already.

The bill was explained as designed to offset the patriotic contributions made already and to assist others to Britain and her allies. First reading was granted at once.

CONTINGENT'S OFFICERS.

Staff of Second Expeditionary Force Is Announced at Capital.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The names of the officers commanding the different branches of the services which will compose the second contingent are announced.

Col. Sissons of Medicine Hat, will go as brigadier in command of three regiments of cavalry from the west. Col. Thacker of Halifax, will command the artillery. The medical service will be under the command of Col. Fotheringham, of Toronto, and the engineers will be commanded by Col. Houliston, of Halifax, formerly of Quebec.

The infantry will be divided into three brigades, the eastern brigade to be commanded by Col. Landry, of Quebec, with Major T. M. McVicty, of St. John, as brigade major; the Ontario brigade will be commanded by Col. Septimus Denison, of Toronto, with Col. Stewart, of Ottawa, as brigade major; the western brigade will be commanded by Col. Ketchan, of Winnipeg.

Montreal Mayor Charged.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26. — A summons was yesterday issued for Mayor Médéric Martin, K.C., at the request of Samuel Thompson, president of the Hackmen's Protective Association, on a charge that his worship violated a city bylaw by driving in an automobile on Mount Royal. No automobiles are allowed by law on this section of the city.

Mayor Martin has stated as an explanation of his action that as he had given permission to the chauffeur of the Duke of Connaught to drive on the mountain he did not see why he could not grant the same permission to his own driver.

Germany's Levy of $8,000,000 Monthly on Belgium, Halts Britains Charitable Aid

LONDON, Feb 25 — Because Germany has refused to end its cash requisitions on Belgium and is now collecting a war levy of $8,000,000 a month from the whole country, the British Foreign Office declines to give a direct subsidy to the Commission for Relief in Belgium. This information is conveyed in a letter from Sir Edward Grey to Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the American Belgium Relief Committee, dated February 22, and which is as follows:

"Dear Mr. Hoover:—

"Your return from Germany and the information you have given me as to the result of your journey afford me the opportunity to sum up the negotiations which passed between the Commission for Relief in Belgium and His Majesty's Government in reply to the various letters you have written me.

When the work of the commission was originally set on foot through the United States and Spanish Ambassadors in London in behalf of the Belgian government His Majesty's government agreed that all food supplies from neutral countries through the commission should pass into Belgium without interruption for distribution among the Belgian people under guarantees given by the German government to the commission.

"His Majesty's government also contributed £100,000 ($500,000) to the funds of the commission. This sum has been supplemented by grants of money from Canada, Australia and New Zealand. We also were able to extend facilities which insured your shipping reaching Rotterdam and in certain instances to relax in your favour our prohibitions affecting the export of food and the transfer of money.

Deemed Situation Urgent.

"Military considerations might be held to render such action on our part inadvisable, but it appeared to disregard such considerations. You represented to us, however, that such grants were quite inadequate to your needs, since your expenditure for foodstuffs distributed in pure charity amounted to between £400,000 (2,000,000) and £500,000 (2,500,000) monthly. You, therefore, asked for a monthly subvention from our government to supplement the very generous private contributions which you are receiving from the American public.

"We did not see our way to accede to your request. Indeed, for some time we have regarded the whole project of the distribution of food in Belgium with some doubt, in view of the action of the German authorities.

"While respecting the food actually imported by you they did not until December accede to your representations regarding the cessation of requisitions for the use of the German army of supplies of native food remaining available for the civil population of Belgium. They even carried away cattle and cereals from Belgium into Germany.

"They also levied large monetary contributions upon the cities and communes in Belgium. These exactions have now culminated in a levy of the sum of 40,000,000 francs ($8,000,000) per month from the whole country.

Sees Indirect Aid to Foe.

"It was evident that if under such conditions the British government undertook through your commission to supply money and food to the Belgian population the only result would be an equivalent diminution of the food and supplies already there. The British overnment in fact, would be facilitating the feeding and paying for the maintenance of the German army.

"Under these conditions it was impossible for our government to make a direct grant to the commission. Eventually, however, His Majesty's government recognised that the work of the Commission was directed on sound lines to supply the urgent needs of the Belgian people and had the less doubt on this point in view of the additional guarantee obtained by you in December from the German government that at least all kinds of foodstuffs which would need to be replaced by the commission should be free from all requisition, and in view of the assurances you were able to give His Majesty's government that foodstuffs imported by you had not been interfered with by German troops.

Further, I was able to inform you last month that His Majesty's government would grant the commission a monthly subvention to enable it to carry on its work on condition that the German government would undertake to cease all requisitions for food of any kind and all levies and contributions of any kind whatever in Belgium with the exception of course, of such taxation of the people as is admitted under The Hague convention.

Barred by Requisitions.

"At your request this offer was not made public at the time, but you were authorized to inform the German government of it. I now understand that during your recent trip to Berlin you informed the German government of the exact position of affairs, but that, while they consented to stop all requisitions for food in the zone of occupation east of Ghent, they refused to consider the cessation of their pecuniary exactions, and especially the levy of 40,000,000 francs a month, which they apparently intend to continue.

"Solely on account of this attitude on the part of the German government the proposed arrangement between His Majesty's government and the commission must be regarded as having broken down. We shall, of course, mainain our general favourable attitude toward your work and our offer of financial support will remain open in the event of the German government receding from their present position with regard to their levies in Belgium.

"But for the moment the idea of a direct subvention out of the government funds toward the charitable work of the commission must remain in abeyance.

"I cannot close this letter without expressing our appreciation of the generosity of the American people, and of the admirable organisation established by the commission, which have alone made this work impossible. The people of this country will I am sure, recognize in your work a prominent example of the qualities of efficiency and public spirit which disinguish the many neutral services being rendered by Americans in Europe at the present time.

"E GREY".

Mr Hoover's Reply.

Mr. Hoover, in reply to the letter of Sir Edward Grey, made the following statement to-night:

"The commission deeply regrets that its hopes again have been disappointed in finding some lack of accommodation between the belligerents by which the financing of its most difficult section, that is the benevolent side of the commission's work, would have been in a great measure assured. The failure of this particular negotiation does not alter the fact that 7,000,000 pepole in Belgium must still be fed, nor that there are 1,500,000 absolutely destitute people in the country, nor that the number of destitute people will increase by 200,000 before the next harvest.

A REMEDY FOR BRONCHIAL COLDS

Philadelphia Man Tells How He Treated a Severe Case With Vinol and the Successful Result.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Last Fall I was troubled with a very severe bronchial cold with very bad effects from it, headaches, backaches, and sick to my stomach. I was so bad I became alarmed and tried several medicines, also a doctor, but did not get any relief. One of the men where I am employed asked me to try Vinol, saying it cured his worst colds. I did so, and in a very short time received the relief which I craved. Now I am enjoying perfect health, and recommend Vinol to be all that is claimed for it." —JACK C. SINGLETON, Philadelphia, Pa.

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in all our large stock for chronic colds, coughs and bronchitis there is no excuse for letting a cough or cold hang on for months and even years.

It is the curative medicinal elements of the cod's livers, combined with blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in removing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis, after other medicines fail.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding your money will be returned if it fails to help you.

Benj. J. Throop, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. at Hamilton from 1891 until two years ago, died Wednesday.

It is reported that the Turkish crown jewels have been removed from Constantinople into the interior of Asia Minor.

Flight Lieut. D. C. Downing, of the Royal Navy Flying Corps, was killed yesterday in a fall from a biplane during a flight at the Central Flying School in England.

A Reuter despatch from Melbourne says the Australian Commonwealth will permit the export of merino wool to the United States provided it is consigned to the chairman of the textile alliance.

The London Chronicle says the steamer Jerveaux Abbey reached Hull Wednesday, and the captain and crew totally deny the statement in German wireless that they saw floating wreckage in the channel from a British troopship.

Prof. Benzinger, a former member of Toronto University staff, has received word that his brother has been killed and one of his sons seriously wounded while fighting in the German army. Dr. Benzinger is at present in Princeton, N.J.

So excessive are the prices asked by the owners of the property required for the right of way for approaches for the new high level bridge across the old Welland Canal that the St. Catharines council is considering the changing of the route.

PURE BLOOD

The Greatest Blessing Mankind Can Have

Millions of people need this powerful vegetable remedy that puts the digestive organs in fine condition; that clears the skin of pimples, rash, blemishes and eczema; that dissolves boils and carbuncles; that makes nerves stronger and steadier and gives to pale, weak, rundown people the fullest measure of health and happiness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, free from alcohol or narcotics and extracted from roots and barks with pure glycerine, does just what is stated above, simply because it banishes from the blood all poison and impure matter. It dissolves the impure deposits and carries them out, as it does all impurities, through the Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

If you have indigestion, sluggish liver, backache over the kidneys, nasal or other catarrh, unsteady nerves or unsightly skin, get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day and start at once to replace your impure blood with the kind that puts energy and ambition into you and brings back youth and vigorous action.

All medicine dealers can supply you in either liquid or tablet form or send fifty cents for box of Tablets to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y. Write for free booklet on blood.—Adv.

A GREAT OFFER.

If you will cut this out and send 3 dimes to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., you will receive a 1,000-page book, bound in handsome cloth, fully illustrated, all charges prepaid.

STOMACHS OF RICH BETRAY GERMANY IN HER FOOD CRISIS

Orders to Economize Unheeded by Wealthy, But Fall on Poor, Say Papers in Fatherland

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Newspapers here are quoting editorials from German journals on the food situation. One London paper has the following:

"The true character of the German people would appear to be betraying itself among the civil population in almost as flagrant a fashion as it has already done among her soldiery.

"Faced with a food crisis of exceptional gravity, the Kaiser's Government framed numerous regulations with the object of arsbanding supplies, and appealed to the patriotism of the nation to co-operate in this work.

"The appeal has been a vain one; the German stomach has triumphed over German patriotism. The only people to obey the behest of the authorities have been the poor, and they have only obeyed, according to the German newspapers, because they could not help themselves. Now they threaten to help themselves in another sense."

Prussian System on Trial.

The Welt says:

"In our kitchens there is as much at stake as on the battlefield. Of what use is the victory of six millions if sixty millions have nothing more to eat?

"What has been doing so far to ward off our greatest danger has been unavailing. It has been limited to half measures, serious exhortations, small and unimportant steps. Advice has been showered upon the public—'Eat no cake; eat war bread; economize in foodstuffs!' It falls on unheeding ears.

"This is the crisis of the Prussian-German system.

"The Government has done its duty. People, do yours! The period [illegible] discomfort. Let us not squirm, but try hand in hand to help the Government."

The Deutsche Montagszeitung also dwells on this text as follows:

"The Government's food monopoly system leaves a good deal to be desired. The food is fairly distributed, it is true, but, unfortunately, only to those who can afford to pay. The wealthy applicant obtains what he requires, but the poor, unhappily, cannot be equally sure of not getting too little.

"Thousands on thousands of German workers are out of employment, merchants without number have had to close their shops, turning their employees, men as well as women, breadless and penniless, into the streets.

"All articles of food, without exception, have risen enormously in price, while the purchasing power of wages has declined out of all proportion to the price of commodities."

Less Beer and Butter.

The self-indulgence of the well-to-do is denounced by the Vossische Zeitung.

"Notwithstanding the repeated and urgent official instructions recommending economy, there is still far too much waste going on in German households, with a correspondingly great self-indulgence in superfluous luxuries, which is nothing less than criminal in these days of stress and trouble.

"One of these superfluous articles is butter. Apples, when boiled down into a jelly, provide an excellent substitute for butter, and when spread on the 'K' bread will be found to remove its objectionable flavour.

"[illegible] further restricted, and the price of the liquor increased by another 10 per cent.

"The supply of animal food is still too lavish, and calls for the active intervention of the authorities.

"Let it be thoroughly understood that economically we shall only be able to exist when all sections of the people conscientiously fulfil their duty and unquestionably obey the Government's behests to exercise home discipline and self-denial in the use of food, and think less of their stomachs and more of their country."

IN TROPICAL COUNTRIES LIVER CHILL VERY COMMON

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very unruly organ and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. box all dealers.

Every Sip of INSTANT POSTUM Is Satisfaction

because the roasted "berry" of wheat, from which it is made, gives Postum a snappy, delightful flavour—rich and nourishing.

Unlike tea and coffee, Postum never imposes upon its users a tribute of headache, nervousness, biliousness, sleeplessness, heart flutter and other ills, because Postum contains not a particle of the drugs, caffeine and tannin, present in tea and coffee, or any other harmful ingredient.

INSTANT POSTUM

is the concentrated form of this pure cereal food-drink. No boiling required—made in the cup with hot water—instantly! Wonderfully convenient for the home, for travel, for the picnic—handy anywhere. Delicious! 30c and 50c tins.

If tea or coffee is interfering with your comfort and success, as it does for most users, suppose you shift to POSTUM.

"There's a Reason"

Postum may also be had in the original form—which must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

Both forms of Postum are equally wholesome and delicious, and cost per cup about the same.

Suffering of Soldiers in the Trenches at Soissons

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Passengers who arrived yesterday morning at New York on board the Touraine, of the French line, from Havre reported that throughout the voyage there was hardly an hour when the sea might have been said to be calm. The time set for the vessel to steam from Havre had to be postponed for twenty-four hours because of rough weather. Even after Captain Caussin had waited twenty-four hours the French pilot would not take the Touraine to sea, so the captain did himself.

As for war vessels, submarines or floating seas, the passengers saw never a one, the time of the Tourain's passing Fire Island—[illegible] precluding the possibility of her sighting the British patrol vessels there. She brought nineteen cabin, thirty-one second class and fifty-one steerage passengers.

"For every man who comes into the hospital suffering from either bullet, shrapnel or bayonet wounds there are two who come in with frozen feet," declared a passenger. Dr. W. B. Power of Monclair, N.J., and Redlands, Cal., who told of the suffering endured by soldiers in the trenches around Soissons. Dr. Power is convalescent from an attack of spotted fever, which came while driving a small ambulance for the American Ambulance Hospital.

Physician Drives Ambulance.

Dr. Power said he was in Paris when the war broke out and immediately volunteered his services as a physician. When he saw a waiting list with at least twenty names on it he said he could drive an automobile and his services were accepted. The automobile he drove was a Ford.

"These little automobiles," he said, "are being used more and more. The American Ambulance Hospital has about twenty of them, and the conditions of the roads and adjacent ground make their lightness more valuable. The roads in France that lead up to the firing line are paved only to a width that will allow one heavy lorry to travel. With the mud a foot deep on each side the French have found it necessary to use one road to bring supplies up to the line and another to return the empty trucks. The little Ford ambulances, carrying five men, or two stretchers, can jump off the paved part and into the mud with little concern and no fear of sinking in up to the hubs."

Dr. Power brought back with him a steel arrow from a German aeroplane. He declared he had seen instances of the larger sizes penetrating a man on horseback, through the saddle and the horse as well. Dropped from a height of 7000 feet these shafts attain a speed of 700 feet a second by the time they hit the ground.

When he has recovered from the effects of his fever, Dr. Power said, he contemplated joining the American surgeons' corps in Servia.

FRENCH OFFENSIVE BECOMES MORE AND MORE IRRESISTABLE

PARIS, Feb. 26—In comparison with the violent fighting of the past few days the operations reported in the official communiques of the French War Office are of moderate intensity, but in one part of the front they have been important, and that is in the Champagne, where the French offensive seems to be becoming more and more irresistible.

There has been no let-up in the battle at Soissin, Perthes and Beausejour, which continues to be favourable to the allies. Both War Office statements show that the French advance continues despite the increasing strength of the German resistance. During the past 24 hours a German defensive work north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus, near Perthes, has been captured and the enemy's positions have been successfully bombarded.

Heavy cannonading has been going on for two days without intermission at Lombaertyde, where the big guns of the allies have demonstrated their superiority. In the Argonne German efforts to assume the offensive have been defeated.

The events set forth in the afternoon communique, aside from the engagement in Champagne, where aviators are now taking part in the conflict, are the beginning of the bombardment at Lombaertyde, the defeat of a German attack in the Argonne, French progress in Chappy wood on the heights of the Meuse, and the failure of a German assault in Lorraine.

OPENING WAY FOR RUSSIA

Possession of the Bosphorus Would Permit Supplies of Guns and Ammunition Reaching the Czar's Forces

BRITISH OPINION

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles have been reduced after an all-day bombardment by the Franco-British fleet, according to the following announcement made by the Admiralty shortly after midnight:

"The weather moderating, the bombardment of the outer forts of the Dardanelles was renewed at 8 o'clock yesterday morning (Feb. 25). After a period of long-range fire, the squadron of battleships attacked at close range. All the forts at the entrance to the straits were successfully reduced, and the operations are continuing."

The successful forcing of the Dardanelles by the allied fleet would, in the opinion of many military experts, be the most decisive and important event of the war up to the present. Once the Franco-British fleet makes its entrance into the Sea of Marmora the city of Constantinople will be at its mercy, and Turkey will be virtually eliminated from the military situation.

With the opening of the Bosphorus, which would be a simple matter after Constantinople had been taken, Russia could be easily supplied with the guns and munitions which she sorely needs, and the enormous stores of wheat which have been collected on the shores of the Black Sea would be released for the benefit of the western allies.

The political effects would be even more important. Turkey's power has consisted in the supposedly impregnable position of Constantinople, which has held Russia in check by preventing her egress to the open sea. The announcement of the destruction of the Dardanelles forts is peculiarly significant from the fact that it is made on the day when Sir Edward Grey stated in the House of Commons that Great Britain would not oppose Russia's aspirations for access to the sea.

That announcement marks a reversal of the policy which Britain has maintained for generations. Hitherto Britain has exerted every effort to prevent Russia from obtaining that access. New British guns are battering down the forts so that Russian ships may go through.

The forts are not all yet destroyed, however. The Dardanelles are 33 miles long, and from 1,300 yards to four miles wide. Impotrant fortifications which have recently been supplied with German guns manned by German officers are built upon the shores. Some twelve years ago Lord Charles Beresford estimated the cost of forcing the Dardanelles at "50 per cent. of the ships making the attempt," and the defences at that time were not what they are now.

A Constantinople despatch to The Morning Post states that the Sultan has everything packed up ready for an immediate departure into his Asiatic dominions. Troops have been drawn from Adrianople and Kadikeny, and the Princess Islands have been fortified and trenches dug by the forts at Carak, on the European side.

Canadians In The Trenches

Men Behaved Splendidly Under Fierce Shelling Says Private Advice—Casualties From Snipers

WINNIPEG RIFLES IN IT

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—According to private advices received here by relatives of men with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in France, the Canadian troops were in action as early as last Friday.

The Globe prints the following despatch from its staff correspondent in London:

"According to a report here the 'Little Black Devils'" (presumably the 90th Regiment, Winnipeg) in a brilliant charge won some German trenches, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. It is said that one company of the Canadians had several men killed.

"The infantrymen of the Canadian Expeditionary Force have had their baptism of fire. They were sent forward to relieve Imperial troops in the trenches.

"Letters from Toronto officers state that the men behaved splendidly under a fierce shelling. Lt.-Col. Rennie of the Queen's Own Rifles reports that several men have been wounded by shrapnel and snipers. The casualties all around have been unusually light. The censor prohibits the sending of unofficial casualty lists."

Sergt. Harry S. Hamilton, who was a member of the 51st Sault Rifles, with the Canadian force, has been wounded. The message came in a cablegram to his father, Mr. H. C. Hamilton, 170 Albany avenue, last night, from a friend in London. The message said: "Harry wounded right leg, shrapnel, nineteenth instant. Flesh wound only. Now in hospital; doing well."

Another message said that Private Davis of the Second Battalion has also been wounded. He is a Renfrew man.

Another message of much interest which reached the city yesterday was addressed to Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, who is a delegate to the Associated Boards of Trade Convention. Col. Ponton's message concerned his son, Lieut. Richard Ponton, who is with the Ontario Brigade. The cablegram came from Mr. G. McL. Brown, European manager for the C.P.R. at London, son of Mr. Adam Brown, the veteran postmaster at Hamilton. The message, which was read at the convention, was as follows:

"Cheerful letter from Richard, France, Feb. 21. Is quite well.

"First time in line of trenches; within 100 yards of Germans past 48 hours.

"Canadian behavior splendid. Returned O.K. to billet for day's rest, after baptism of fire. All fit. Slight casualties in Canadian infantry from snipers. Artillery quite equal to the occasion."

Mrs. J. A. Currie, wife of Lt.-Col. Currie, of the 48th Highlanders, received a cable from her husband yesterday, stating merely: "All well."

Nothing Official Says C. A. P.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The Canadian Associated Press have official authority for stating that no message has been received at Salisbury base of two Canadian brigades having been in action on Sunday.

If it was permitted to make known the real disposition of the Canadian forces at the present time the inaccuracy of any such intimation as the foregoing would be apparent.

It may be stated, though, that a few days ago a certain portion of the Canadian infantry were expecting to move into the trenches within a short time.

Any statements that Canadian artillery have been engaged are pure imagination.

3 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cannanoue, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Grand Jury Urges Fire Protection For Buildings

...entioned House of Refuge, Protestant Home and House of Providence—Recommendations Regarding the House of Refuge—Satisfactory in All Other Respects.

The Grand Jury presented their report to Mr. Justice Britton in the High Court last night after inspecting the various public institutions in the county. It read as follows:

"Your Jurors of the Grand Jury respectfully report as follows:

"An inspection of the fire protection and fire escapes of all public buildings should be made at once. Attention is particularly directed to the House of Refuge, Protestant Home and House of Providence. The Children's Shelter is without any protection whatever.

"A girl named Duncan, aged about 16 years, who was sentenced to one year in the Mercer Reformatory, is at present in the gaol and has been there over a half months. She is pregnant and about to be confined. She should be removed to where she could have proper care.

"The old men apparently insane and confined in rooms on the third floor of the House of Refuge. One of these men is totally blind. They should be removed to the ground floor.

"In the House of Refuge on the third floor there is an uncovered tank about 8 x 10 ft. x 5 ft. This tank should be covered.

"Mr. and Mrs. Beavis the caretakers of the House of Refuge deserve great credit for the manner in which the house has been kept.

"We found all other public institutions as mentioned above, well kept and in good condition.

Dated at the City of Peterborough this twenty-fifth day of February, A.D. 1915.

R. J. G. Sutherland,
Foreman.

Judge's Remarks.

His Lordship in reply said a copy of the report would be forwarded to the Warden of the County and to the Provincial Secretary. Cases of insanity, he said, seemed to be on the increase and have been for some time. The government is hard pressed to provide for these unfortunates. Asylums are overflowing and some are confined in the gaols. The girl mentioned in the local gaol would be removed. Judge Britton thanked the jury for their careful inspection.

DON'T USE SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

How The Small Property Owner Will Be Affected By The Provincial War Tax

Peterborough City and County Will Contribute Approximately $20,000—The Small Property Owner Will Feel the Pinch—A Comparison With Other Cities in the Province.

The new provincial land tax of one mill on the dollar will mean about $20,000 to Peterborough county on an assessment of approximately $20,000,000. The city has about $11,000,000 worth of assessable property and the county about $9,000,000 or to be exact, $9,009,005.

Following are the sums which the larger cities and towns throughout the Province will have to pay.

Cities and Towns.

	Assessment.	Taxes
Sault Ste. Marie	$13,319,365	$13,319
Brantford	5,207,042	5,207
St. Thomas	8,324,013	8,324
Windsor	14,763,000	14,763
Kingston	10,408,097	10,408
Owen Sound	6,487,700	6,487
Belleville	5,800,097	5,800
Chatham	7,264,564	7,264
Sarnia	5,271,600	5,271
Smith's Falls	3,686,079	3,686
Brockville	4,204,265	4,204
St. Catharines	10,218,485	10,218
Stratford	8,057,505	8,057
London	31,482,465	31,482
North Bay	5,574,539	5,574

Welland	4,033,975	4,033
Niagara Falls	6,747,975	6,747

Hamilton	67,215,370	67,215
Ottawa	36,729,676	36,729

The Modest Home.

It may be contended that the new Provincial tax is small, but every added burden looks big to families which are nowadays making one dollar do the work of two. There are a large number of homes assessed at under $3,000, where the owner-occupants will resent the new tax as being not a war tax, but a device for making up a Provincial deficit which as been looming up for years.

The Provincial tax will amount to ten cents on every $100 of assessment, so that modest properties will pay as follows:

Assessment.	Tax
$1,500	$1.50
2,000	2.00
2,500	2.50
3,000	3.00
3,500	3.50

This is the yearly payment. Nominally it is to remain in force during the duration of the war, but the conditions which prompted it antedate the war, and, it is feared by small owners, may continue long after the war is over.

LETTER FROM MAYOR MAX.

Says His German Jailers Won't Let Him Write About His Arrest.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—Mayor Max of Brussels, now a prisoner in Germany, says in a letter to an old friend, the singer Marguerite Sylva, that he has been confined in the inner fortress of Glatz since Oct. 12.

"I can say nothing about the causes of my arrest," the Mayor writes "or my letter is likely to be stopped. I was warned to-day that the tone of my correspondence was too free and had given offence, with the statement that henceforth nothing would be passed."

UNIFORMS TO BE ISSUED TO 39TH HERE

Word has been received that all units of the third contingent are to be outfitted at the organization centres which means that the local company of the 39th Battalion, as well as B Squadron, of the 8th Mounted Rifles will receive their service uniforms here. Major Medd, officer commanding B. Squadron, has been notified that the outfits for his men have been shipped, so that the squadron will soon be uniformed. The news of the coming of the uniforms will be welcome intelligence to the men.

In spite of the Arctic breezes the 39th Battalion men with the exception of the recruits' squad, had a route march this morning, south to the Exhibition Grounds, along Lansdowne street to the river and then back to the Armouries via Crescent, Lock and George streets.

The Mounted Rifles drilled in the Armouries. Troops 3 and 4 being initiated in the intricacies of guard mounting.

BANK OF OTTAWA VS. FERGUSON

This action which was brought in October of 1913 by the Bank of Ottawa against the defendants, W. G. Ferguson, Felix Brownscombe, G. L. Hay and Dr. Herbert Ball, to recover the sum of $6,000, under a certain bond, came on for hearing at the Assizes yesterday before the Hon. Mr. Justice Britton. The action was dismissed with costs and an order made that the bond in question be delivered up to be cancelled.

Mr. G. W. Hatton appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. R. R. Hall for the defendants, Ferguson, Hay and Ball, and Mr. C. M. Gordon for the defendant, Brownscombe.

EXTREME RIGHT WING OF AUSTRIAN ARMY CUT OFF BY THE RUSSIANS

Germans Have Withdrawn Men From Hungary and Enemy's Wing May Be Destroyed—Great Battle is Forming in Northern Poland.

RUSSIAN ATTACK BEGINS

PETROGRAD, Feb. 25.—The Russians have now opened an attack on the main foundation of the Austro-German campaign for the Carpathians. This key position, stretching south from Stanislau, has only a shallow strip in the rear to the Roumanian frontier. It took the Austrians 18 days to bring their forces from Bukowina, with large floating reserves which were outside Roumania and Serbia, into the Stanislau position for the attack on the Russian left flank in eastern Galicia. The Russian rear columns withdrawing from Bukowina, halted the enemy often enough to give time for the main Russian army to range itself north of the Wyzkow Pass. The opening movements of Batele succeeded in separating this numerically strongest Austrian army from the mountain defences and from Austro-German columns further west.

Early on the first day the Austrian battalion south of Stanislau, during a general development, began doubling towards the Russian lines, waving several white flags. The Austrian commander turned his machine guns on these men, killing most of them. Russian tactics in southeastern Galicia have been rewarded by an Austrian concentration in this exposed field, whither supplies can be brought only from Hungary across the trackless Southern Carpathians. This line is now threatened by the Russian advance southward along the Munkacs road.

Russians bayoneted the last remnants of the Germans and now have thrown the eastern Austrian army on its own resources. It is believed the German staff sent most of the Bavarian and Saxon troops who were recently in Hungary into the lines of the Dunajetz river for the reinforcement of the approaches to Cracow. Probably less than 400,000 Germans remain in western Poland.

Developments for a gigantic trial of strength in the north produce incessant changes. Enormous numbers are engaged now from the northwest of Neve Georgievsk to the centre of the German position above Prasnysz. This has weakened the enemy's eastern army, which still is unable to overpower the small Russian force that has been fighting for a fortnight on all sides for an outlet from the Augustowo forest. The Russian Grodno column, advancing westward through Lipskow, forced an opening, and two more regiments came through, Gen. Bulgakoff, with five regiments, still valiantly holds his ground inside the forest. A German cavalry outpost crossed the Niemen on Monday but was pursued and captured by the Russians, who found prisoners supplied with explosives.

Forward Movement Continues.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—The French forward movement in the Champagne district is slowly forging its way northward in the teeth of serious German opposition. Further success was recorded yesterday in two spheres—the region of Souchain and Beausejour, and north of Mesnil. North of the last-named post, a German field work was captured and a German column which was on the march to the southeast of Tahure was surprised and scattered by artillery volleys. A hostile battery was put out of action, and several caissons of ammunition for the guns were blown up by some well-directed shots.

The little stream of Meurissons near Four-de-Paris, in the Argonne, was the scene of some heavy fighting. Here the French destroyed a German blockhouse. The French artillery dispersed a German attack on Marie Therese, when the column was attempting to debouch for a charge.

A German battery was destroyed in the region of Lombaertzyde, in Belgium, by the French heavy guns.

TWO FAMOUS ACTRESSES IN SURGEON'S HANDS.—Following the amputation of Sarah Bernhardt's leg, Miss Ellen Terry has been obliged to submit to an operation for the removal of a cataract. The condition of both is said to be satisfactory.

Can Live on Potatoes.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—The Prussian Minister of Agriculture, Baron von Schorlemer, discussing the food question in the Diet yesterday, said that quantities of potatoes would be brought in from Poland, and that large supplies were left in East Prussia, where the Russians had been.

"I believe I can express the hope," he added, "that the potato supply for human food will suffice."

PETERBOROUGH SINGER MADE A BIG HIT

Miss Ada Richardson Appears at Concert in Toronto

The Toronto Mail and Empire says: A large audience attended a concert of unusual merit held under the auspices of the Young People's Society of St. John's Presbyterian Church in the Oddfellows' Hall, Broadview avenue, last night. The proceeds will be used for charitable purposes. The programme consisted of a number of vocal and instrumental selections, and many of the city's most prominent artists took part. An outstanding feature of the programme was the rendering of three solos by Miss Ada Richrdson, soloist, of Charlotte St., Methodist Church, Peterborough. It was Miss Richardson's first apearance on a concert platform in Toronto, but the reception given her efforts last night assures her of a welcome in any future visits to the city. Miss Richardson is possessed of a beautiful lyric soprano voice of great possibilities, to which is added a pleasing personality. Her first number, "Piano, Piano, Canto, Pio," was sung with a great deal of dramatic force and earned her much applause, while her second number, "Thou Art Too Sweet," and the "Valley of Laughter," demonstrated the lighter qualities and flexibilities of her voice. Her accompanist was D. D. Slater, R.C.M. Others who took part in the programme were: Miss Gertrude Finlayson, Miss Vida Coatsworth, Miss Maud Relyea, Miss Jean Hunter, Mr. George Counter, and Mr. Albert E. David.

RECRUIT RECEIVED CHEQUE FROM HIS FELLOW WORKMEN

. Hamilton of the 39th Battalion was recently presented with a substantial cheque by the employees of Barrie's, Ltd., where he was employed before enlisting. The presentation was made at the Murray Street factory by Mr. Edward Hyland, who made a neat speech on behalf of Mr. Hamilton's former co-workers.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Aransas, B. C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was for many years completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

What's Doing in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

The Finance Committee of the City Council will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This Evening.

There will be a meeting of the Property Committee, followed by a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

These Culverts.

The Edinburgh Street culverts were under fire at the Board of Works meeting last night. Ald. Johnston took occasion to draw attention to the condition of the streets in that vicinity during the recent thaw.

If the suggestion of the Mayor is acted upon the people of Peterborough will have the opportunity of voting on a money by-law in the near future. He believes there should be a special money by-law submitted to provide money for carrying on some public work this summer to assist the City's unemployed.

LITTLE DAUGHTER OF THE EMPIRE RECEIVES LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

Duaghter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Roberts Bethune St. Hears From Little Girl in Liverpool Through Daughters' of the Empire—An Interesting Letter

Miss Dohma Roberts, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Roberts, 552 Bethune Street, has received a very interesting letter from Miss Marion Tuck, a girl of her own age in Liverpool, England. At the time of the organization of the local chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, it was decided to encourage the children of members here to correspond with boys and grils of their own age, children of Daughters of the Empire overseas. Through the secretary, Miss Cross of Toronto, Mrs. Roberts of the Peterborough Chapter secured the name of little Miss Tuck, who for some time has been a regular correspondent of her daughter. In this way Canadian children are indirectly advertising their cities and towns, by keeping in touch with boys and girls who afterwards may become citizens of the Dominion.

The letter, very cleverly written for a child of 12 years, is as follows:

41, The Elms,
Princess Park,
Liverpool,
Feb. 7th, 1915.

Dear Dohma,—Thank you so much for your letter. I was very pleased to get it.

We go to the Belvedere school and I am in the upper fourth form. We are also learn music, but this term our teacher has so many pupils that she could not teach us any more, so we are not going to learn, but we have to practise every day. Just before the beginning of this term, our cousin's ship, "H. M. S. Cochrane" had to come into dock for repairs, so he wrote and asked us to go down to the dock and said he would show us over the ship. When we got to the ship, Cecil (our cousin) was getting his free ticket for leave to go home the next day, so while we were waiting, one of the marines showed us a gun. He showed us the shells and how they were put in the gun and how they opened the gun; where they looked through to get the range. When Cecil came he showed us over the rest of the ship and told us what everything was for and it was very interesting.

At school we are going to do a lot for the soldiers and sailors. Every week we take something. Last week we took candles. This week, it is smoking things and next week it is sweets. In sewing we are going to make things for them. We three have been making woolley balls and little neck bows and selling them for a fund for providing wool for people to knit up. We have made over £1. Don't you think it is good. In Science on Friday I broke a flask and cut my thumb. It is very sore, but not bad. Kathleen and I have made a "War Alphabet," and have sent it to one of the papers to get some more money for our fund. I will write it out so that you can see it.

On Tuesday week, we are going to have a Victoria League meeting. Mr. Goddar is going to give a lantern lecture.

I don't think there is any more news now, except that the Victoria League people are going to provide wool for us to knit up for the Canadian troops. With much love, from—

MARION.

Comrade Was Shot Down A Few Yards Away

Interesting Letter of Sgt.-Major Brittain to Mr. Geo. Haley—Written From the Trenches—Is With the Princess "Pats"

Mr. George Haley has received a letter from Sergt.-Major Brittain, formerly of this city, who is now fighting in the trenches with the Princess Patricias. Sergt.-Major Brittain at the time of enlisting was in the stationary business in Toronto, but heeding the call of his country gave up his store and joined the Princess "Pats." He and Mr. Haley spent their boyhood together in the town of Sheffield, England. Sergt.-Major Brittain's wife and four children are living in Toronto.

The letter is as follows:

British Expeditionary Force, France.

Dear George,—Just a few lines to say I am, after about six months of active service, still quite well, and doing duty, without a single report to the Medical Officer, so I have done well.

We have had about a month's duty in the trenches and our casualties are about an average, and that's bad enough.

Believing the Regiments and being relieved in the trenches is a very hard, risky and tiring job, as one marches many a mile, after wading through mud, tramping into stones, wire, and so on, in the dark, occasionally just missing a bullet or shell. I assure you one comes to get into a kind of Fatalism or Nietzsche, like philosophy, and plods along, only thinking how a pipe and a biscuit and cheese will be when one gets safely under the parapet.

I cannot explain what horrible trenches some are, and so far ours have been all bad ones; those nice, dry ones, I have not yet seen them.

A lot of newspaper yarns about how well we get fed in the firing line, etc., is all wrong, but I must say we don't starve, but so far I have not had the full ration that I am supposed to get, once. Since I came to France, there has always been something or another short; still, it's wonderful how we get as much as we do; we have never really been without something, though in the trenches once or twice we had very short rations. Still, take it all around, it is good. Tobacco and cigarettes, more than I can smoke; I give them away nearly every week.

I came out of the trench day before yesterday, and marched about seven and a half miles to rest in a miserable old barn, after doing double duty in the trenches, owing to a big fight delaying relief until too late, owing to moonlight.

A Sergeant of my platoon was instantly killed during our tour, a few yards from me and it was a shock to me, as we were good friends. He was joking and singing and reciting poetry all the day. It was his own fault—too eager to shoot; (he was a good one), only 23 years old.

This is a strenuous life, and consists of trenches, marches and a well-earned rest; then the same all over again. Give my regards to my old friends in Peterborough.

A. E. BRITTAIN.

Over Million Prisoners Latest German Claim

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, via London, Feb. 24.—The Frankfurter Zeitung estimated that the prisoners of war in Germany and Austria now number 1,211,000. This number, it says, is divided as follows: Russians, 600,000; French, 337,000; Servians, 60,000; Belgians, 8,000; British, 76,000. About seventy-five per cent. of the total is held by Germany.

THE VISIT OF THE NEW HEAD OF THE SALVATION ARMY

Some Interesting Information About Commissioner Richards Wh Will Spend the Week-end in Peterborough, Arriving Here at Noon To-morrow

Commissioner W. J. Richards, the newly appointed leader of the Salvation Army in Canada, and successor of the late Commissioner David M. Rees, who perished in the S.S. Empress of Ireland disaster, will visit Peterborough and will speak at the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday morning and the Opera House on Sunday afternoon and night.

Commissioner Richards, accompanied by Colonel Gorkin, Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada and Newfoundland; Brigadier Rawley, of Montreal; Major Arnold and Captain Baker, will arrive at noon on Saturday, and will be met by Mayor Buller and other officials.

The Temple Band will meet their leader at the C.P.R. Station, and march him up to the Temple.

The new Commissioner is one of the few remaining officers who was personally called by the late General Wm. Booth, and, therefore, is one of the pioneers of the organization. The story goes, when the General visited the town in which the then Mr. Richards resided, to conduct a series of revival services, and heard the young man speak. He was so favourably impressed that Mr. Richards was asked if he would not go into the Training College, which he did. This was 35 years ago, and the Commissioner has rendered so many years of unbroken service.

He has been closely identified with the Salvation Army in "Darkest England Schemes," having done much to establish what is known as the Men's Social Work.

His usefulness was not confined to this branch of Army service, but having earned for himself the reputation of being a clever and capable administrator, and a brilliant platform speaker, Commissioner Richards has had full command of the Army work in Denmark, South Africa and New Zealand. The latter country was his charge when appointed by the General Bramwell Booth, to Canada. It is interesting to know that three of the sons of the Commissioner have followed in their father's footsteps, and are now officers in the Salvation Army, holding important positions in Japan, South America, the Continent and London, England.

The members of the Salvation Army in Canada are delighted with the choice of the General for their new leader, and it is confidently expected that the work of the Army will receive a mighty impetus and that great progress will be made during their stay.

Since arriving in Canada, Commissioner Richards has visited the principal cities of the West and in Toronto, where the headquarters of the Salvation Army is located, his public reception in the Massey Hall was without precedent.

"Canada's new Salvation Army leader (Commissioner Richards) is of medium height, slight build, dark complexion and has the thin, pale, clean-shaven face of an ascetic. He is Cornish born and Welsh bred, and the Celtic fire gleams from his dark eyes, and glows red-hot through his torrential platform eloquence.

"The Commissioner's platform style is animated to a degree. His voice is absolutely under control, and his gestures free and graceful. Humorous phrases and whimsical stories abound, tender allusions and touches of pathos are frequent, while topical information and local happenings are adroitly adapted to elucidate a point."

C. L. A. THANKED BY RED CROSS

The C. L. A of the Charlotte St. Methodist Church, who some time ago packed and shipped a bale of hospital supplies to the Red Cross Society, have received the following letter from A. E. Harcourt-Vernon, the General Secretary:

"The Red Cross wishes to convey its thanks to the C. L. A. Society of Peterborough for their excellent work in hospital supplies and assure them that they will be most useful to the sick and wounded."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Lindsay Gave The Students Hard Battle But Lost The Round

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—'Varsity earned the right to go into the junior O. H.A. finals and meet the winner of the Collingwood-Berlin game by beating Lindsay last night in the last of the home-and-home games by the score of 12 to 7, thus giving them the round by four goals, as Lindsay defeated the Collegians at Lindsay by the score of 6 to 3.

The visitors gave 'Varsity a stiffer argument than was expected, and the game was not decided until the last period. 'Varsity led at the end of the first period by the score of 3 to 2, thus making it a tie on the round, while at the end of the 40 minutes' play the locals were in front by the score of 6 to 4, although they should have been further ahead with the opportunities they were having.

It was practically a six-man game, as after the first four minutes there were only twelve men on the ice. Haugh, the Lindsay defence player, received a slight cut on the forehead, taking Gouinlock off with him. He was out watching the game shortly after, but at the end of the first period refused to go on as he claimed his stomach was upset. The referee was helpless under the conditions, and the teams remained six men a side.

The visitors presented a pretty heavy junior aggregation, who displayed good combination, although painfully slow in their efforts at times. They had plenty of speed, but failed to utilize it, owing to their slow breaking. Their strongest forte was their shooting, A. Carew wat left wing havin gone of the [illegible] any junior in a long time. McElroy at centre and Sandercock were the pick of the others, while O'Loughlin in goal did some great blocking. Flavelle on the defence is a tall, rangy player and a hard man to get by.

Lindsay played a peculiar game. In the second and third periods they played only one man back on the defence. The result was that when 'Varsity broke away together they had only one man and the goalkeeper to beat. Many times they were right in on O'Loughlin and then failed to bulge the net by their inaccurate shooting. Had they scored every time they got right in on O'Loughlin the score would have been more than tripled.

It was an interesting and clean exhibition outside of a few minor trips. Both teams played the puck, with the 'Varsity defence being especially strong in their poke checking. Saunders and Stratton did good work on the offensive for the Collegians, this pair getting eight of the goals between them. The teams:

'Varsity		Lindsay
	Goal
Malone		O'Loughlin
	Defence
Sheldon		Flavelle

Public Improvement to Assist the Unemployed

That the City undertake some public improvements this summer, possibly surface drainage, for the purpose of assisting citizens who may not be able to get work, is a plan that will receive the endorsement of the Board of Works. At least that seemed to be the general feeling at the meeting last evening.

"Surface draining, $3,000.00" as an appendix to the estimates of the Chairman of the Board of Works, started the talking along these lines. Mayor Buller was not in favour of starting this work with the small sum of $3,000, as it would only be a very small start, and might be wasted when a general system of drainage was installed He further went on to state that when the season opened out for work something must be started to employ the people out of work. The Patriotic Fund had been the means of doing good work, but this would not last always. If it was the means of relief during the balance of the winter it would have done good work.

"There are many men in the City who have not asked for any assistance yet, who had enough saved to keep their families during the winter, but will have to be given work this summer," said His Worship. These men could be taken care of by permanent City work and some big proposition would have to be started and a by-law put before the people for money to do it. He was sure the people would support it as they would see the necessity for making work of some kind. Now was the time the working man wanted support.

Ald. Green explained that he had inserted the $3,000.00 item believing that at least a little surface drainage was almost imperative this year. He was not sure whether the people would support a money by-law at this time, but should one be presented which would enable the Council to provide work he would give it his heartiest support.

A couple of other Aldermen were heard along the same lines. In the meantime the $3,000.00 item was cut out without any recommendations. It would be gathered from the tone o fthe meeting that the matter would not drop there, however, and undoubtedly it will receive the consideration of the Council at some not far distant date.

At the Theatres

AT THE GRAND.

Clara Kimball Young has the leading role in "The Deep Purple," a five-reel film at the Opera House. It is an interesting story running up and down the scales of emotion with a touch of humour added here and there. A country minister's daughter elopes with a badger salesman who is allied with a band of crooks. They attempt to blackmail a mining engineer, the hero by the way using the innocent girl. The unfolding of the plot and final dramatic episodes are well done.

AT THE EMPIRE.

A Glimpse of informal circus life is an incident of "The Circus Man," showing at the Empire. It is an adaptation of George Barr McCutcheon's novel "The Rose in the Ring," and is a thoroughly pleasing picture. David Jemison, accused of killing his father, escapes and joins a circus, narrowly escapes detectives and falls in love with the owner's daughter. There are numerous difficulties surmounted, twists and turns in the lane before it straightens out to the long unbroken path of unending bliss. Theodore Roberts has the big role in "The Circus Man."

THE TIZ-IT.

The Lash of Fate" is the big film in the programme running at the Tiz-It. With many dramatic incidents and stirring action a pretty love story is presented, making quite an entertaining film. A reel of war pictures and several other films complete a good bill.

RECEIVE DEGREES

At a special convocation ceremony held yesterday at the University of Toronto, forty-four soldier students received degrees preparatory to their leaving to serve their country at the front. Among them was Mr. Stanley Young Walsh, Margaret Avenue, who received his degree of Bachelor of dicine, and who has joined the Army Medical Corps for immediate service. These young men, with the privilege just before them of profiting by the years of study and hard work to fit themselves in the professional world, are to be complimented for the sacrifice for service to their country. MASKED FLEET OUT TO SINK SUBMARINES

Hundreds of Armed Merchantmen Sour for Raiders —Six Already Reported Destroyed

The statement of M. Augagneur, the French Minister of Marine, recently reported by cable that the Allies would undertake measures for protection against submarines, the nature of which he was not at liberty to disclose, but which would result in the sinking of German submarines sooner than the Germans expected, drew an interesting commentary from an American business man who returned on the Lusitania [illegible] business in London as well as here, and is in a position to be well informed as to what is going on in British naval and maritime circles.

"What the French Minister probably refers to is a plan that has recently been put into execution, but about which nothing has appeared in the press in England," said this American. "It has already resulted in the destruction of six German submarines, and its success, as much as anything, has probably led to the German declaration that submarines would proceed to torpedo merchant ships without taking steps to question who was on board of them.

"Hundreds of steamers, small and large—I have heard the number put as high as 1,500—have been fitted out with a pretty good equipment of guns and serve as naval auxiliaries. These look like ordinary peaceable commercial vessels, and ostensibly they are plying on the routes across the North Sea, in the Channel, and in the Irish Sea. But their whole business is to look for submarines, and on them are volunteer or reserve officers who number some of the keenest young sportsmen in London. I understand they are very thick in all the waters about England. That six German submarines have been 'accounted for' by this scouting fleet I am informed is absolutely true, but no mention has been made officially of these 'incidents' for fear that it would reveal England's hand too much.

"'Potting submarines' is considered exciting sport among some of the sportsmen I have talked with, who don't mind the danger so long as there is a chance of getting a crack at a periscope. Of course a well-aimed shot from a three-inch rifle will put a submarine out of business just as effectively as a ton of metal from a sixteen-inch gun."

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Daughters of the Empire, held yesterday afternoon, the following officers were duly elected for the ensuing year:

Regent—Mrs. E. B. Clegg.
1st Vice—Mrs. J. Mills.
2nd Vice—Mrs. D. Walker.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. Hounsell.
Cor.-Sec.—Mrs. T. C. Neal.
Rec.-Sec.—Mrs. J. E. Sharpe.
Treas.—Mrs. J. M. Gemmel.
Echo Sec.—Miss F. Burnham.

Special Course in Army Medical Work

Drs. Kelly and Frederick, who have been at Kingston taking a special course in the work of the Army Medical Corps, have returned to the city. Both local physicians offered their services some time ago to go to the front, but it is not expected that they will be called upon for the present as a much larger number of doctors than is required have volunteered and there will be many disappointed ones.

BOWLING

In one of the worst exhibitions of bowling that has been given in the Y.M.C.A. Bowling League, this year, the Gladiators, who were giving a Brighten Ups, was successful in winning two out of three games. They were featured by the low rolling of the men of each team and when the smoke had all cleared away, it was easily to be seen that the Brighten Ups could not be beaten for low score. Following is the score which some of the men did not want published:

Gladiators	1	2	3	Total

BIG BASEBALL MEETING ON SATURDAY EVENING

An important meeting of all baseball fans, shareholders and contributors is called for to-morrow night in the Bank of Montreal Chambers at 8 o'clock. The future of baseball in Peterborough depends upon to-morrow night's meeting, so be there. An announcement will be made which will be very important.

DAD STEWART MAY MANAGE SAINTS' TEAM

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 25—Who is to manage the St. Thomas Baseball Club this coming season? This is now the main topic of discussion among the baseball fans of the City. Many and varied are the opinions expressed, but the management is narrowing the choice down, and within a few days the name will probably be announced. Among those who applied were Grant (Midge) Craven, who last year managed the club; George Ort, H. McNeilis, and Carl (Dad) Stewart. All these have had considerable experience in managing clubs and have had varied success.

"Dad Stewart is the likeliest proposition for the managership. "Dad" is a home boy and has considerable experience as a manager, and with some excellent results. The first season Stewart was in this league he piloted St. Thomas through part of the season and made a good showing. Last year he was with Ottawa as outfielder and had a good record.

EDDIE PLANK WAS MARRIED IN JANUARY

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 25.—Edward S. Plank, former star left handed pitcher of the Philadelphia Americans, and world's series hero, last night announced his marriage to Miss Anna C. Myers, of New Oxford, Pa. The ceremony took place at Ridgwood, N.J., January 30. Mr. and Mrs. Plank left on a honeymoon trip to Florida. After waivers had been asked on Plank by the Athletics at the close of last season he signed a Federal league contract.

LOCAL BONSPIEL BEGINS MONDAY

The draw for the local bonspiel on March 1st, 2nd and 3rd has been posted at the curling rink. Twenty-eight rinks are entered, four of which get a bye in the preliminary. The first games will begin at 7 p.m. Monday, with fourteen rinks engaged for ten ends. At nine o'clock the other fourteen go into action and on the remaining nights the other rounds will be played and the consolation series begun. This bonspiel usually produces a lot of good curling and if the weather continues at its present mark, the ice should be in good condition.

Old Country Football News

W. S. Maxwell, the ex-Bristol City forward, who coached the Belgian players last season, escaped from Brussels, and is now at Bristol. Maxwell played for Scotland against England in 1898, and keeps his end up in the cricket field when the days are long and sunny.

A "Scot of the Scots" is the Chelsea F. C. manager, Mr. David Calderhead. He is well read in his country's history and literature If you did not know of his connection with football you would be excused for identifying him with the stage. As a youth Mr. Calderhead distinguished himself as a centre halfback for Notts County.

Albert Shepherd, the bury Newcastle centre forward, who joined Bradford City this season, is extremely witty. His afternoon speeches at club gatherings overflow with subtle humour.

Fred Pagnain, who scored four goals in his first match for Liverpool, has more than maintained the early promise he showed as a centre forward. When with Blackpool last season, Pagnain was regarded as a promising outside right It was left to Tom Watson to discover his real position.

J. Wilcock, the Brighton goalkeeper, was in the Royal Artillery at one time. He is now in the Football Battalion of the "Die Hards," where his special knowledge of the Swedish drill has been invaluable.

The E. E. Y. have lost a good man in W. Swinton, their centre forward. He is fast and a good shot. All he needs is good control of the ball.

Capt. Wright has left the Churchmen to assist the Guardians, and the Royals have made a good capture in Bobby.

BASEBALL.

The Ottawa club has received offers for Lage, Bullock, Rogers, and several others. Nothing, however, will be done pending the next meeting of the Canadian League, when the situation will be cleared.

The handle of a new saw is adjustable to enable horizontal cuts to be easily made.

TORPEDO BOAT LOST

PARIS, Feb. 26.—The French torpedo boat Dague struck an Austrian mine in the harbour of Antivari, on the Montenegro coast, and was sunk, it was officially announced to-day. The crew of 38 men are lost. The torpedo boat was escorting food ships bound for Montenegro yesterday. The explosion wrecked her at the entrance to the Antivari harbour.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 26.—The Swedish steamer Svarton arrived at Ymuiden to-day with a big hole in the starboard bow, the victim either of a mine or a submarine attack. She reported no casualties among her crew.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—An officer returning from the front to-day states that the casualties among the first Canadian contingent in the recent fighting in the trenches were three killed and fourteen wounded.

WEDDING BELLS

LASURE—HYNES.

A very prety wedding was solemnized on Feb. 15, 1915, at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Catherine Loretta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hynes, of Smith, became the bride of Francis Joseph Lasure, of Niagara Falls. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Father Phelan in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride was attired in a blue suit and white hat, with a blue plume, and was assisted by a cousin of the groom who was dressed in a steel gray velvet suit. The groom was ably supported by a brother of the bride. The guests from a distance were from Brockport, N.Y., Lakefield Clydesdale, and other places. The young couple received many beautiful and costly presents showing the high esteem in which they were held, including an organ from the groom's aunt and uncle.

The bride's going away suit was a brown velvet. The young couple left on a short trip to Buffalo and points west, and on their return, will reside at Niagara Falls, where the groom holds a good position. Their many friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Lasure a long and happy life.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY MIGHT.

A life-long resident of Cavan Township, in the person of Mrs. Mary Might, relict of the late Samuel Might, passed away at her home, East of Millbrook, at about 5 o'clock this morning.

The late Mrs. Might was born in Cavan Township, sixty-five years ago. Her maiden name was Mary Collins. She was a staunch Methodist in religion and a member of Fraserville Methodist Church.

Three sons, Messrs. James, at home; Hector, Moose Jaw; Charles, Calgary, and five daughters, Mrs. Hutchinson, Cavan; Misses Sadie, Toronto; Nettie and Hattie, at home; and Tessie, Moose Jaw, survive. Mr. F. J. Might, proprietor of the Turnbull Co. Departmental Store, is a nephew.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed as yet, and will not be until word is received from the members of the family who are in the West.

A machine for stringing beads by centrifugal force has been invented in France.

THE MORNING MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The programme at the meeting of the Morning Musical Society on Thursday, February 25th, was of special interest.

The Society is greatly indebted to the President, Mrs. Allan, for very instructive fortnightly papers on the "History of Music." These papers are followed with much interest by the members.

In continuing the study of the "Italian School" short sketches of the lives of the most prominent composers were given by Mrs. Allan, followed by examples from the works of Tosti, Rossini, Verdi and Clementi. The members taking part were Miss Jean Hill, Miss May Laing, Mrs. G. A. Smith, Miss Hurley and Mrs. Porter.

A vocal solo by Mrs. Grundy, of Toronto, was very much appreciated.

Two local firms were successful in their tenders to the Board of Works last night to supply sewer pipe and cement.

In the matter of sewer pipe the local tender was a trifle higher than those from outside, but in view of the fact that Messrs. H. B. Taylor & Son are heavy taxpayers in the city, they were awarded the contract.

Sewer Pipe Tenders.

The following tenders were received for the supply of sewer pipe, to be in accordance with specifications prepared by City Engineer Parsons. The list price mentioned is the standard list price for sewer pipe and fittings:

Dominion Sewer Pipe Co., 76 p.c. off list price.

H. B. Taylor & Son, 73 p.c. and 5 p.c. off list price for straight pipe, 70 p.c. and 5 p.c. off fittings.

Toronto Sewer Pipe Co. (no cheque), 75 p.c. and 2 p.c. off list.

Cement Tenders.

There were two tenders for the supply of cement, both local firms, as follows:

Peterborough Hardware Co., $1.46 per bbl. and 2c. per bbl. for storage.

H. B. Taylor & Son, $1.47 per bbl.

The Peterborough Hardware Co.'s tender was accepted, including storage when required. This firm supplied the cement last year and it was very satisfactory.

Mr. Boyd of the Canada Creosoting Co. was heard regarding wood block paving. He estimated the cost of a pavement complete at $3.25 per sq. yard.

These Poles.

A letter was read from Mr. G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor, regarding the efforts to have the Bell Telephone Co.'s poles removed from Charlotte Street. It was necessary to place poles for distributing wires at some places on private property and so far consent had not been obtained from two owners.

The matter was referred to the Mayor and chairman.

Osteopathic Convention

Osteopathic Physicians of Central Ontario Organize—Dr. Walmsley is President

A meeting of the osteopathic physicians of Central Ontario was held in Kingston on Wednesday of this week, at which an association to be known as The Central Ontario Osteopathic Association was formed. The meeting was well attended, and an excellent programme was provided. The programme consisted of papers, case reports, demonstrations of technique, clinics, etc.

The purpose of the association is to bring the osteopathic physicians of this part of Ontario into closer touch with one another and to study and discuss things pertaining to the welfare of the science and practice of osteopathy. Meetings will be held from time to time in the various towns in the district embraced by the association.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following being chosen: President, Dr. A. G. Walmsley, Peterborough; Vice-President, Dr. Janet M. Armstrong, Cobourg; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. Robert G. Ashcroft, Kingston.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Lillian E. Garbutt of Norham, is visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. J. Wilson of 372 George Street, has returned to the city after spending considerable time selecting styles in millinery.

Mrs. John D. O'Brien, 209 Reid street, with Baby Florence, left yesterday for Pembroke, where she will be the guests of her mother, Mrs. Shea, previous to taking up house in Toronto.

As a preventive of writer's cramp there has been invented a padded elbow rest.

A Frenchman has invented a machine for dealing cards that is said to make mistakes impossible.

MEN MAY BE COMPELLED TO ASSIGN ALLOWANCE

To Their Dependents While on Active Service

The Finance Committee of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund Association and Peterborough Relief Association has received the following report of the Committee Privy Council:

"The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report dated 18th January, 1915, from the Acting Minister of Militia and Defence, stating that many of the soldiers of the First Overseas' Contingent, whose dependents are in receipt of separation allowance, have not assigned any pay to these latter, and that the Committee of the Patriotic Fund complain that this drain will be heavier when the additional troop now being raised, are sent away.

That at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Patriotic Fund, held in Ottawa on the 13th November 1914, a resolution was passed recommending the Government to issue an order requiring all non-commissioned officers and men, whose dependents are in receipt of a separation allowance to contribute one-half of their pay to these dependents, such an order has been issued by the British Government in respect of Army troops.

That this matter, having been referred to the Department of Justice, the Honourable the Minister of that Department has caused to be drafted the following:

"That one-half of the pay earned by noncommissioned officers and men who are members of the Overseas Expeditionary Forces of Canada, and whose dependents are in receipt of separation allowances, shall be paid to such dependents, respectively, unless upon the objection of any such non-commissioned officer or man the Government sees fit, in view of the special facts or circumstances of any case, to pay the full amount to the non-commissioned officer or man by whom the pay is earned."

The Minister, having regard to the foregoing, recommends that one-half of the pay earned by non-commissioned Forces of Canada, be paid to dependents under conditions as set forth in the preceding paragraph, the same to have effect from 1st April, 1915."

WHEN THE TIRED MOTHER GIVES OUT

What Then?—The Family Suffers, the Poor Mother Suffer—Mrs. Becker Meets This Distressing Situation.

Collinsville, Ill.—"I suffered from a nervous break-down and terrible headaches, and was tired all over, totally worn out and too discouraged to enjoy life, but as I had four in family and sometimes eight or nine boarders, I kept on working despite my suffering.

"I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and within two weeks I noticed a decided improvement in my condition and now I am a well woman."—Mrs. ANA BECKER, Collinsville, Ill.

There are hundreds of nervous, run-down, overworked women in this vicinity who are hardly able to drag around and who we are sure would be wonderfully benefited by Vinol as Mrs. Becker was.

The reason Vinol is so successful in building up health and strength in such cases is because it combines the medicinal tissue building and curative elements of cod's livers together with the blood making, strengthening properties of tonic iron. We ask every weak, nervous, run-down man or woman in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

SMASHING DEFENCES OF CONSTANTINOPLE TO RUINS

Greatest Fleet Ever Assembled For Bombardment---Mammoth Dreadnought "Queen Elizabeth" is Hurling 1,950 Pound Projectiles.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 1.—(Special Cable.)—Sixteen miles inside the Dardanelles, the greatest fleet ever assembled for bombardment, is smashing the defences of Constantinople into ruins to-day.

A lighthouse south of the Fort Kilid Bahr on the European side, has been demolished. Hurling 1,950 pound projectiles, the Mammoth dreadnought Queen Elizabeth already has inflicted severe damage on the fort itself. It is one of the strongest in Eastern Europe.

Mahomet's centuries long held upon the Dardanelles is being slowly loosened. French monoplanes are darting over the plains of ancient Troyon in reconnoitring expeditions. Fighting between landing parties and Turkish infantry is occurring with in a mile of Achilles' tomb. Unconfirmed reports were published here to-day that the allies will seize the Isthmus at its narrowest part near Bulair and cut European forts off from communication with Constantinople.

From Athens and Cairo to-day came despatches indicating that the Ottoman capital is in a state of terror. The Turkish general staff has summarily halted Turkish campaigns in the Caucasus and along the Suez Canal.

A despatch to a London newspaper to-day from Cairo said that the Turks are evacuating the Sinai Peninsula, abandoning some of the guns they dragged across the desert for an assault upon the canal. The Anglo-French fleet has suffered insignificant damage thus far. Superior in gun range the larger fighting units are hammering at the Turkish forts from a distance. Turkish shells fired in reply are falling short of their mark.

As at Sedd-el-bahr and Cape Helles, the Queen Elizabeth is leading the attack, the battleships closing in and finishing he work after the great dreadnought has partially dismantled a fort. Artillery detachments which landed on the European side of the entrance and fan up British and French flags over captured Turkish positions are moving northward to attack Kilid Bahr from the rear.

TWENTY SHIPS TAKING PART.

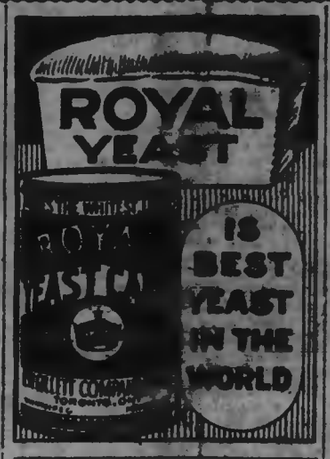
The bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was continued on Saturday, twenty ships participating in the attack and pouring a storm of heavy shells into the Turkish defences for several hours. The success of the allied squadron and the fall of the entrance forts have caused the greatest consternation in Constantinople. Despatches from Greek and Italian sources, as well as from Egyptian points, tell of a panic in the Ottoman capital, which still continued on attempts [illegible] has already decided to transfer the Government to Brousa, in Asia Minor, the ancient capital, to which Abdul Hamid and part of the Government fled in the first Balkan war, when the Bulgarian and Servian armies got within a short distance of Constantinople. Many of the inhabitants are already in flight, and are removing their belongings to the interior.

At five o'clock Saturday afternoon the attacking ships had reached Carophoni lighthouse, near Forts Kilid Bahr and Tsanakale. All the forts on the European side of the straight have been silenced. British and French flags are flying over the entrance forts, which are occupied by detachments from the fleet. This is the first time in history that a hostile flag has flown on the Dardanelles.

It is understood that the Turks have stationed 50,000 men along the European side of passage, and that 15,000 are gathered on the Asiatic side.

TURKISH LOSSES ARE HEAVY.

ATHENS, March 1.—Turkish losses in the Dardanelles bombardment thus far total 5,000 dead and wounded, according to a cablegram from Salonika to-day. Troops trains from Constantinople are clogging the railways on the European side and the Turkish wounded lie behind the forts without medical attention.



RUSSIAN VICTORY

Won Furious Battle Lasting All Day Saturday—Enemy Retreats in Disorder

IMPORTANT PROGRESS

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 1.— Word has come from Petrograd that the Grand Duke Nicholas, having re-established his lines on the rivers and fortified towns of Poland, has turned and struck, and now [illegible] the Vistula the Germans are reported retreating in the face of the reinvigorated armies of the Czar. The retreat, which began two days ago, as was indicated, is extending now, and in some places it is a flight in disorder.

It appears that the capture of the town of Przasnysz, 50 miles north of Warsaw, represented the high water mark of the German invasion. According to the Russian official statements of to-day and yesterday, Przasnysz was wrested from the Germans on Friday, who came back with reinforcements during the night and again entered the town, only to be driven out for a second time after a furious battle lasting all day Saturday. Great quantities of war materia' were secured by the Russians on the occasion of their first occupation the place, while at their second e the official report says "the Ge defenders in large numbers laid their arms."

Important progress by the Russian forces is announced in other sections of the front. Wounded and convoys were abandoned by the Germans in their retreat from several places and the Russian troops, the official statement says, "are gallantly endeavouring to develop their success; they pay no attention to the enemy's fierce resistance and forget their own fatigue."

Meanwhile, a battle of tremendous proportions is developing further north in the Grodno region, where the fighting is reported to be swaying back and fo [illegible] village to village far beyond [illegible] sian fortified works.

TELLS OF CANADIANS FIRST BAPTISM OF FIRE

Were Six Days in the Trenches Before Being Relieved--Were Attached to an English Regiment--Hardly Saw Enemy But Were Under Constant Rain of Shrapnel.

Special Morning Cable.

LONDON, March 1.—Major George M. Higginbotham, of Toronto, who arrived at the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe from the front, is suffering from gastric ulcers, necessitating surgical treatment. He was second in command of the 3rd battalion, first brigade, a Toronto regiment largely composed of members of the Queen's Own Rifles. He was sick before leaving Salisbury, but refused to fall out, and when the battalion entered the trenches ten days ago, still refused to be left behind. It was only when the command was relieved from the trenches at the end of six days that Major Higginbotham was obliged to surrender to the physical suffering. Mrs. Higginbotham is with him at Shorncliffe.

In discussing his experiences in the trenches, Major Higginbotham said they were relieved, and all the time [illegible] hardly and a look at the enemy during the six days before seemed as though neither side made any preceptible headway. It was one constant rain of bullets and shrapnel, endangering the life of any man leaving cover. The contingent had braziers with them in the trenches. During the time he was under fire no attempts were made at charges.

While the contingent has been brigaded with Imperial troops, it is believed that this is only a temporary arrangement for instruction purposes, and it is expected that later it will go forward as a division. The health of the contingent has been generally good in France, although influenza has been prevalent.

Other recent entrants at the Shorncliffe Hospital are Corporal John Jacques, Ptes. Bristowe, Rooks, Jordan, all sick, and Pte. Snider, wounded, of the Patricias, and Corporal Deeves, of the Canadian engineers, sick. The hospital authorities also expected five more last night.

FIRST SURGICAL OPERATION.

The first surgical operation on a wounded member of the Canadian contingent at the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe was performed yesterday. When a correspondent visited the hospital Colonel Armour was just starting to remove several pieces of shrapnel from the foot of Pte. John Davis, of Renfrew, Ontario, who was wounded while serving with the 2nd battalion, first brigade. The surgeon-in-chief was assisted by Dr. Wallace, of Toronto, the resident surgeon, and Dr. Chas. J Stewart, of Calgary, administered the anaesthetic. With the aid of an X-ray photograph taken by Dr. Wallace, the shrapnel was located and removed within a quarter of an hour. The ambulance on which the patient was wheeled [illegible]ard to the operating room was the gift of the Girls' Friendly Soc[illegible] Peter's Church, Cobourg, Ontario, the birthplace of Dr. Arm[illegible]

Germ[illegible]re Totally Unable To Stem The Offensive

SP[illegible]ING CABLE:

March 1.—To-day's details of French advances in Champagne, [illegible] been the feature of War Office communiques for more than a [illegible] even more gratifying than those previously presented. Apparently Germans are totally unable to stem the offensive in that region, [illegible]h they have brought up heavy reinforcements and are losing very [illegible]y in their efforts to check it.

The afternoon communique, in addition to telling of the encouraging [illegible]elopments in Champagne, announced that the Germans had again [illegible]mbarded Rheims, throwing sixty shells into the city, half of which were directed against the cathedral. This action was followed to-day by a heavy bombardment of Soissons. The Belgian troops have also been successful in their attacks recently, having occupied a farm on the right bank of the Yser yesterday, according to the afternoon statement, which said:

The French are now masters of about 1000 feet of trenches taken on Friday night with 100 prisoners and machine guns. In Belgium French patrols occupied a German trench, after killing all the German soldiers holding it.

A squadron of German aeroplanes has bombarded the district behind Nieuport. An official note given out here to-day says that only two casualities were reported, a woman and an old man having being either injured or killed. The note also states that a French aviator dropped three bombs on the German barracks at Metz, Lorraine.

Military critics here were much interested in that part of the German official statement issued to-day which claims an advance of four miles in the neighbourhood of Barinvillier, in the Vosges.

British critics say that if the Germans had made such an advance the facts would have been published by the French War Office, which has invariably recorded the actual condition of operations no matter whether they were favourable or not.

REGIMENTS FOR 3RD CONTINGENT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 1.— The Minister of Militia has authorized the formation of two additional infantry regiments for the third contingent. One of these regiments will be raised in northern Ontario, in the Fort William and Kenora districts. The second will be recruited in the Maritime Provinces. The War Office has cabled acceptance of the offer of field hospital units from the Universities of McGill, Toronto and Queen's.

SATURDAY NIGHT AND SUNDAY WAR BULLETINS

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

THE HAGUE, Feb. 27.—Berlin papers report that whole battalions of English suffragettes have landed in France to do supply and transport work.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.— Admiral Von Pohl, Chief of the Admiralty staff, was selected to succeed Admiral Von Ingenohl, whose removal from command of German fleet was announced yesterday. No reason for change given.

ATHENS, Feb. 28.—Internal trouble is imminent in Constantinople. The seat of the government is to be transferred to Brousa, Asia Minor. Many inhabitants are leaving in panic.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Great Britain, France and Allies, notified neutral countries that they hold themselves at liberty to stop all shipping to and from Germany and her Allies, necessary, because of German submarine attacks, but the lives of crews and passengers will be respected.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 28 (Official)—We recaptured the Town of Przasnysz, the German retreat at some points assuming the character of a disorderly flight. Prisoners taken to date number 3,600 soldiers and forty officers. No change on the left bank of the Vistula. In Eastern Galicia Austrian attacks were repulsed. 1,592 soldiers and 19 officers. Also five machine guns were taken.

PARIS, 3 p.m. (Official) Feb. 28.—Belgian aviators bombed Ostend harbour station. Germans again bombarded Rheims cathedral. Important progress is being made in the Champagne district. More than a thousand Germans have surrendered in the last ten days. Some progress in the Vosges is also reported.

OUR SERIAL STORY PAGE

By Frank Frecst

Haltingly he gave such details as he knew. Her eyes were fixed on his face as he narrated his story. He hesitated as he referred to his telephone conversation with her. In her eyes he saw challenging scorn and stopped abruptly.

"You say that Bob asked you to lie to me?" she demanded.

"Not to you in particular. To any one who rang up. I couldn't know whether he wished his instructions to apply to you."

"No, no, of course not," she interposed quickly, but with a tightening of the heart he recognised the bitterness of her tone. For all her soft daintiness, there was something of the tigress in Eileen Meredith.

The man she loved was dead. Well, she would have her vengeance—somehow, on some one. She was ready to suspect without thinking. And Sir Ralph Fairfield had laid himself open to suspicion.

"He was killed before eleven," she went on remorsely, "and you told me that he was in the club with you at that time."

"You don't believe me." He held out his arms to her imploringly, and then dropped them to his side. "I give you my word that everything I have told you is true. Why should I lie now?"

She wrestled on [illegible] desperately.

"You ask me that?" she said tensely. "You who thought he was in your way—that what you could not gain while he was living you might take when he was dead. Do you think your smooth-faced hypocrisy deceives me now? You pretended to accept your dismissal, pretended to be still my friend—and his."

Her anger disconcerted the man more than her anguish had done. Her breath caught sharply.

"You don't realize what you are saying," he said, speaking calmly with an effort. "Because I once loved you—love you still if you will—before ever Robert Grell came into your life, you hint an unthinkable thing."

She crossed the room in a graceful swirl of draperies, and laid a finger on the bell. Her features were set. She was in no state to weigh the justice or injustice of the implied accusation she had made. And the man, for his part, felt his oppression brushed away by anger at her readiness to judge him.

"We shall see whether the police believe it unthinkable," she said coldly.

A servant tapped discreetly and opened the door.

"Show this person out," she said.

Sir Ralph bowed mechanically. There was nothing more to be said. He knew that in her present condition an appeal to her to suppress the story of the telephone message would be worse than useless. As he passed down the steps and into the street, a man sauntered idly a dozen yards behind him. And thirty yards behind that man was another whom the barcnet might have recognised as Chief Detective-Inspector Green — had he seen him.

(Within the house a girl, no longer upheld by the strength of passionate denunciation, had collapsed on a ccouch, a huddled heap of draperies, sobbing as thought her heart would break.

CHAPTER VIII.

It was an hour after Fairfield had left her before Eileen Meredith's sobs died away in the deserted room. There was none to hear or see, and she gave way to her grief uncontrolled. Gradually the first shock passed. Her calmness came back to her, but she was a different woman to the vivacious, sunny girl who had looked forward to her wedding-day. Her face was [illegible] steadily, and in the depths of her eyes there lurked in place of laughter an implacable determination.

She had loved Robert Grell with the fierce, passionate devotion of a strong nature. The sudden news of his death had brought out the primitive woman bent on vengeance. It was no impulse of suddenly shattered nerves that had made her turn on Fairfield. To coldly analyze the facts for and against him was beyond her. She only thought of the man who had a possible motive for slaying her lover and had a possible opportunity.

Yet none would have guessed the burning emotion that thrilled in her veins as she submitted to the ministrations of her maid. She had not even troubled to tell her father, although the elderly peer was her only near relative. Not until he was seated at breakfast did she inform him in level, passionless tones of what had happened. Even then she said nothing of her suspicions of Ralph Fairfield. But for her pale face she might have been speaking of something in which she was but slightly interested.

The Duke of Burghley dropped his knife and fork at her first words. As she finished, he stood over her and passed a hand tenderly around her.

"My poor, poor little girl," he said. "This is terrible. Fairfield ought to have seen me first. I must telephone for your aunt to come and stay here until we can get away."

She shook her head a trifle impatiently.

"I don't want her, father. She cannot help me. I would rather be here alone with you. It would drive me mad to have sympathy showered on me. I want to see no one. I want to be left to myself."

"But—my dear. I know it is a shock, but you cannot be allowed to brood——"

She rose abruptly from the table and put him from her.

"I shall not brood," he said. "I shall work. I am going to Scotland Yard to learn what they know."

"Yes, yes, if you wish it," he said soothingly. "We will go at once. I will order the car, now."

"I would rather go alone, if you don't mind," she said decisively, and the door closed behind her.

"She always was headstrong," remarked the Duke of Burghley to the devilled kidneys, and stared moodily into the fire.

Since his wife had died he had always been governed by his impetuous, strong-willed daughter, and accepted the situation philosophically so long as he had his books and his club. He led a complacent life from which he was rarely stirred. But he was hit harder than he cared to admit by the way in which she accepted the tragedy. He wondered vaguely what he ought to do, and decided to consult Brown— Brown being the senior member of his firm of family solicitors.

In his room at Scotland Yard Superintendent Heldon Foyle, a cigar between his teeth, was studying the book which his staff was compiling. Already it formed a bulk volume of many hundred typewritten pages. Here were reports, signed statements, photographs, personal descriptions, facsimiles of finger-prints, telegrams, letters, surveyors' plans, notes — everything, important and unimportant, that might have a possible bearing on the case. The superintendent turned over the pages with a moistened forefinger, and made a note now and again on a writing-pad by his side.

"Puzzling cases are like a jig-saw puzzle," he had once said. "You juggle about with the facts until you find two or three that fit together. They give you the key, and you build up the rest round 'em. But it's no good trying to do it unless you've got your box of pieces complete."

His box of pieces was not complete, and he knew it. Nevertheless, he could not resist trying to fit them together. But the announcement made by his clerk of the arrival of Lady Eileen Meredith came while he was still puzzling. She stood in the doorway, a dainty figure in furs, a heavy veil drawn over her face.

"Mr. Foyle?" she asked hesitatingly.

He bowed and wheeled a big armchair near his desk.

"Yes. Won't you sit down, Lady Eileen? You have just missed one of our men. I sent him round to break the news to you. I need not tell you that we recognise how you feel in these terrible circumstances. We shall trouble you as little as possible after you have answered a few questions."

He was studying her shrewdly while he spoke, and her strange composure struck him at once. Even to her he had decided to say nothing of the identity of the murdered man. That could wait until he had had a better opportunity to judge her.

She sat down and rested her chin on one slim, gloved hand, her elbow on the desk.

"That's very good of you," he said formally. And then broke direct into his question. "Have you found out anything, Mr. Foyle?"

"It's rather early to say anything yet," he hedged. "Our inquiries are not complete."

"There is no need for further inquiry. I can tell you who the murderer is."

Superintendent Foyle controlled [illegible] idly sketched a [illegible] of pencil [illegible] notes on his blotting-pad. His face was inscrutable. She could not tell whether her statement had startled him or not. For all the change in his expression she might have merely remarked that the weather was fine. Had it been any one else he would have said that before the day was out he expected a dozen or more people to tell him that they knew the murderer—and that in each case the selection would be different. As it was he merely said with polite interest—

'Ah, that will save us a great deal of trouble. Who is it?"

"He is—I believe him to be Sir Ralph Fairfield."

The superintendent's eyelids flickered curiously; otherwise he gave no sign of the quickening of his interest. He was a judge of men, and although Fairfield had rebuffed him he did not believe him to be a murdered. Still, one never knew. These who kill are not cast in one mould. If Sir Ralph had slain Goldenberg in mistake for Grell, and Lady Eileen knew there must be a motive—for that motive he had to look no further than the beautiful, smiling face before him.

"You realize that you are making a very grave accusation, Lady Eileen?" he said. "What reason should there be?"

She spoke rapidly, steadily, and he did not interrupt her. His pen pushed swiftly across the paper, taking down her words. They would presently be neatly typed and added to the book. When she paused, he replaced the pen tidily in its rack.

"This is what it comes to—that at eleven o'clock Sir Ralph said Mr. Grell was with him. You say that you had refused an offer of marriage from Sir Ralph, and think that he murdered Mr. Grell from jealousy. I may say that, though we know Sir Ralph was at his club for dinner and at eleven o'clock we can find neither servants nor members who can say for certain that he was there at the time the murder was committed."

She caught her breath. "Then it was he!" she exclaimed eagerly. "Bob had not another enemy in the world. You will arrest him."

"Not yet," Foyle retorted, and noted that her face fell. "All this is only suspicion. We must have proof to satisfy a jury before we can do anything with a man in Sir Ralph's position. And now, if you don't mind, I should like to put a few other questions to you."

When she left after half an hour, Foyle threw back his head with a jerk.

"A pleasant girl," he commented. "Seems wonderfully anxious to have Fairfield hanged. I suppose she was really infatuated with Grell. You never know how women are going to take things. I wonder if I can get a set of finger-prints. That ought to settle the matter one way or the other, so far as he is concerned. But it won't clear up what Goldenburg was doing in Grell's place. I'll have to fix that somehow."

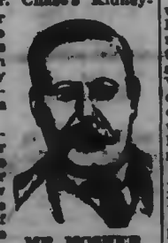
Was Troubled for Years With Kidney Disease

And This Treatment Cured Me—This Statement Endorsed By a Baptist Minister.

The great majority of people are familiar with the extraordinary curative powers of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. But for the benefit of those who are not we continue to publish from day to day reports from persons who have been actually cured.



MR. MOSHER.

The case described in this letter was an extreme one, and the writer was in a very low condition when he began the use of these pills. The cure was so marked that Mr. Mosher's pastor did not hesitate to vouch for his statement.

By their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure in complicated cases which defy the action of ordinary kidney medicines.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, Brockville, Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease, and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any other man. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are an excellent medicine."

This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister of Brockville, Ont.

By awakening the action of liver, kidneys and bowels Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure Constipation, Headaches, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney Disease, Liver Complaint and Backache. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Was Troubled With Eczema.

Would Nearly Yell With Pain.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS CURED HIM.

Mr. R. J. Soules, Harriston, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer with eczema. I tried all kinds of salves, but they did me no good. Sometimes I would nearly yell with the pain, and would pass little white worms. I was told to get at the blood, so I used four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it has made a complete cure."

All skin diseases such as eczema, or salt rheum, boils, or breaking rashes, pimples, eruptions, ulcers, etc., are all caused by the blood becoming impoverished, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may cause suffering during long years unless blood troubles and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all its impurities and by this means cure all skin and blood troubles.

This valuable preparation has been on the market for the last forty years, so you do not make any experiment when you give it a trial.

THE UNSIGHTLY ROOM

What are we to do with that unsightly room where the plaster has become cracked on either walls or ceiling? In almost every home there is at least one room where the plaster has become cracked. How can it be made to look attractive?

Prepared wall board as a substitute for plaster is growing in popularity. It can be applied to the studding and joists direct or over old plaster. There are three regular styles in which wallboard is prepared: plain oak, cream white and burnt leather finish. Recently, however, another finish, that of quartered oak has been gotten out. Authorities tell us that this is the best wood imitation that has yet been put out and is almost an exact imitation of actual quartered oak. This finish and the plain oak are usually used as a wainscoting and above that the cream white finish is placed.

As wall board is a decoration in itself [illegible] extra as a finish. It especially adapts itself to rooms that are finished with panelled walls and ceilings, such as a dining room or den. An important feature to be taken into consideration is that this wall board can be applied in winter or summer without any of the muss, litter, delay and inconvenience of plastering, and is considered to be less expensive than laths and plaster. The surface of wallboard is water-proofed to prevent absorption of moisture and consequent warping. An additional advantage is in the fact that anyone can apply it, the tools required being a hammer and saw or knife.

Those who are planning the renovation of some of their rooms next spring, may find these suggestions valuable. Why not act upon the suggestions now, when work is rather slack, instead of waiting until the rush of spring work sets in.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Five or six doses of Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loosen the cough, allay the inflammation and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B. COAL PASSERS STRIKE.

Labor Trouble In Liverpool Delays Transatlantic Sailings.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Representatives of steamship companies said yesterday that sailings from Liverpool were being somewhat delayed by a strike of coal passers. It is expected that the steamships which have been held up on their account will sail not later than Monday.

The steamship representatives said that there was no foundation for a report that sailings had been suspended on the order of the British Admiralty.

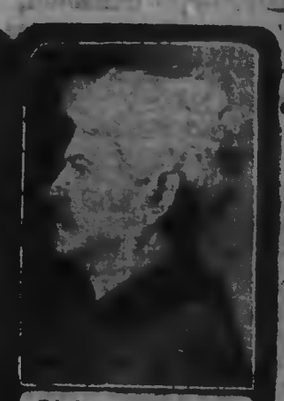
The steamship Philadelphia of the American Line, which was to have sailed from Liverpool for New York to-day will be delayed at least until Monday on account of the strike. Representatives of the company say they were hopeful that she would be able to sail on Monday, but that they could give no assurance.

JOSEPH H FAUROT

ROUND TABLE DETECTIVE TALES

MAN WITH LONGEST CRIMINAL RECORD

BY INSPECTOR JOSEPH H. FAUROT, HEAD OF THE DETECTIVE BUREAU OF THE NEW YORK CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT



JACK SHEPPARD

To the police the principal figure in this tale is best known as Jack Sheppard. In reviewing his criminal career we have to go back to the year 1860. He wasn't always known as Jack Sheppard, for shortly after his advent into this world, in New York city, he was christened Charles Harrington, and no doubt his fond and doting parents had great expectations of their first born, who, however, plunged early in life into a career of crime which earned for him the sobriquet Jack Sheppard, because of the daring of his exploits, which in many ways were like those of the old-time road agent who bore that name.

He has so many aliases that it is almost impossible to remember all of them, although in our records he is listed as Charles Harrington, John Mahoney, Jack Mahaney, Jack Sheppard, John Wood, John H. Mathews, George Wilson, Charles Jones and James Robinson.

His record, as I said before, dates back to 1860, and it might be well to set it forth before entering into a detailed account of his crimes and his punishment. May 30, 1860, burglary, two years, Sing Sing; March 22, 1866, larceny, five years, Massachusetts State's Prison; September 15, 1875, burglary, three years, Eastern (Pa.) Penitentiary; April 25, 1879, grand larceny, five years, Massachusetts Prison; August 11, 1884, larceny, three years, Eastern (Pa.) Penitentiary; April 25, 1887, larceny, two years, House of Correction, Boston, Mass.; February 4, 1890, burglary, five years, Sing Sing; April 16, 1896, carrying concealed weapons and burglars' tools, one year, Blackwell's Island; December 14, 1898, vagrancy, one year, Blackwell's Island; January 18, 1900, burglary, seven years, Trenton, N. J.; November 30, 1910, receiving stolen goods, two years, Sing Sing; short sentences in various places such as Ohio, Illinois and the Middle West, three years—making in all a total of thirty-nine years.

With such a man at liberty and eluding surveillance it is little wonder that we are uneasy and ever apprehensive until we can get a line on him. But the life of a detective is a series of surprises, and I must admit none was more surprised than I when we invaded that little stronghold in Westchester county and came face to face with Old Jack Sheppard.

Through underground channels we learned a few weeks ago that a "bad mob," supposedly automobile thieves, were quartered in a well hidden old farmhouse not far from Harrison, N. Y. We had no idea as to the identity of the "mob," but as we had been pretty successful in rounding up automobile thieves of late we determined to swoop down on the house and gather in all we found thereabouts. With Detectives Meyers and Wagner and State Automobile Inspectors Rotheim and Brindell we drove in an automobile to the farmhouse.

As we approached the house two men darted out and rushed at us, ready for a fight, but we had them covered and they threw up their hands and were shackled. We entered the queer old house, the basement of which was fitted up for a fine kennel of dogs which the owner had kept there prior to subletting to the yeggman. While inspecting the premises Jack Sheppard strolled in and we promptly took him into custody. Two others arrived a moment later and they, too, were arrested. Our catch consisted of James Wilson or Jack Sheppard, Richard Martin, Henry James, Peterson and James Casey.

At the line-up at Police Headquarters the next morning our detectives and Post Office Inspectors Jacobs and James identified the mob as a notorious band of yeggmen, some of whom were wanted for post office jobs in this State. Martin is better known as "Big Dick," and did twelve years for the Brooklyn Post Office robbery. He is thought to have been with "Joe" Cohen when he was killed after robbing the Post Office at Nyack two years ago. James is well known in the under world as Monk Wallace. He is a great dog fancier and has shown some of the finest dogs in the country. It is believed he, through his affiliation with dog fanciers, was the man who leased the house. Wallace has a long criminal record and has been arrested seven times in New York city. Not long ago he completed his third stay in Sing Sing.

Paterson is known among his yegg friends as Hungarian Joe and is an expert safe man. He, too, has done time, having served terms in the federal prisons at Atlanta and at Leavenworth. Casey we know little about, the only mark against him here being the theft of an overcoat, for which he was sentenced. In the automobile we found on the premises were several kits of the finest burglars' tools I ever saw. There was every indication that the "mob" was just about to start out on some big job.

I know of no more interesting subject for students of criminology than Jack Sheppard. He is so well known to the police of this country that his name is a byword. In fact he has often been designated as "the man with the worst criminal record in the United States." While he has never faced a homicide charge there are so many other marks against him that in reviewing his career I cannot find room for one thought of compassion or one extenuating circumstance.

His wits are as keen as a brier, and when it is necessary to think quickly and act on impulse Jack can always be depended on to come through. Since the first time he was arrested he has complained to all who would listen to him that he was the victim of police persecution, and he has succeeded from time to time in interesting some very influential persons in his behalf.

Despite his seventy odd years Jack Sheppard is what one might call well preserved. His shock of snow white hair has tended to soften the lines of his face, and at first glance one wouldn't take him for "the man with the worst record." It is only when one stares him full in face that the shifty, restless eye of the criminal is discovered. His features are not regular, neither are they rugged, for an exquisitely chiselled nose, almost Grecian in its modelling, is in strong contrast to the broad, flat and blunt proboscis so frequently found adorning the faces of habitual criminals.

Jack's nose indicates a refinement and delicacy of breeding inherited from his mother, a woman I am told who was gentle, refined and highly cultured. His broad, square chin and jaw denote a decision of character which brooks no interference, and a stubbornness of purpose by which he would carry through to success any scheme he undertook, even were it necessary to resort to brute force.

Charles Harrington, as he was christened, was but sixteen years old when he faced his first conviction. He had participated in a burglary and went away for two years. While in prison he came in contact with many of the more hardened offenders of that day and, in consequence, when this youngster was liberated he was fired by an ambition to outdo the deeds of daring of which he had been told while touching elbows with his fellow convicts.

After drifting about the country the few months following his liberation the youth returned to New York and launched upon a scheme in which, he convinced those interested, there was little risk and big profits. Harrington, after sauntering around through the wholesale district, conceived the idea of stealing trucks laden with valuable merchandise and driving off to some point previously arranged, where he could dispose of his easily acquired loot to advantage.

He handled several of these jobs so successfully that for some years he was the foremost truck thief in New York city.

He was locked up in Old Police Headquarters, New York city, in April, 1870, for stealing a truck loaded with merchandise valued at $10,000. There was a clear case against him and conviction seemed a certainty.

When one of the attendants at Headquarters took him his breakfast the morning following his arrest Sheppard felled him with a smashing blow on the head just as he entered his cell.

Dashing through the long corridor where many policemen and detectives had congregated, he made his way through a rear hall to Mott street and thence through an alley to Bleecker street. By this time there was a regular procession of pursuers, but Sheppard cleverly eluded them and got away. We afterward learned that he made his way to the West and there remained for some time. We didn't hear of him again until we learned of a big truck robbery in Boston and at once surmised that Jack was up to his old tricks and not far away from there.

Sheppard and one of his pals were in Boston when they saw a truck start slowly from in front of a big wholesale cloth house. The two men were carrying a box under the weight of which they seemed to stagger. When about a block from the point where the truck started they hailed the driver and asked him to which part of the city he was going. The reply seemingly satisfied them, for they informed him they would give him a dollar to take the box part of the way, and leave it at the address they gave him. The driver readily consented and the two men climbed on the truck with the driver, after depositing the box on the tailboard.

Stopping at the house indicated, they offered the driver an additional twenty-five cents if he would help one of the men to a room on the third floor of the building with the box. The big husky driver again agreed, and he and Sheppard struggled up the steps with the box, which was fastened with a padlock and securely bound around with rope. Arriving in the room, Jack found that he had left the key to the box with his companion and requested the driver to untie the rope while he hurried down to get the key.

He Requested the Driver to Untie the Rope.

The driver was easily taken in and it is needless to say Jack didn't return, nor did the driver find his truck and his two new acquaintances waiting for him at the curb when he descended to the street ten or fifteen minutes later. There was between $10,000 and $15,000 worth of broadcloth on the truck, and the firm that lost it was lucky to get its horse and wagon back. The goods were easily disposed of to fences and Jack and his comrade speedily decamped. We picked him up in Yonkers a few weeks later and upon his return to Boston he was given a five year term.

Sheppard rarely engaged upon any job unless big money was in sight. His thoughts all turned to thousands, and seemingly $5,000 was the minimum. In Philadelphia he stole the entire contents of a clothing store. That piece of work netted him about $40,000. He rounded up several truck loads of fine merchandise in the same city during a single visit and each load was worth upward of $5,000. He always played for high stakes and, as with all of his kind, women and lawyers got it all.

It was in 1880 that Detective O'Connell was walking through Washington street, New York city, when he saw a well dressed and dapper looking man carrying a satchel. It was apparent that the satchel was well filled, for it was obviously heavy. There was little or nothing in the man's appearance to arouse suspicion, yet instinctively the detective's curiosity was aroused, and he "tailed" his man for a few blocks until he disappeared in Smith & McNeil's hotel. The detective waited for him to come out, thinking perhaps he had only gone to the restaurant for luncheon.

When his vigil stretched into an hour O'Connell went into the hotel to investigate. He met his quarry just coming down the steps from the room he had engaged. O'Connell interrogated the ministerial looking gentleman, and as his replies were not quite to his liking he cut the interview short by saying:—

"I think Captain O'Brien at Headquarters would like to talk to you. Come along with me."

The usual protest followed, the stranger insisting that he was a reputable business man and that he was the victim of a "terrible mistake." But O'Connell was firm and the result was the stranger arrived at Police Headquarters, where he was instantly recognized as "Jack Sheppard, the man with a fast growing record."

O'Connell went back to the hotel to look through Jack's baggage. In the satchel, which was securely locked, were found two large sticks of dynamite, weighing several pounds and of sufficient power to blow up Police Headquarters. Primers, cartridges and the customary fuses were there in abundance, together with knives and drills such as safe blowers use and a bundle of waste such as is used for cleaning tools. Evidently there was a big bank or post office job in sight and Jack was in the city to either direct the work of the cracksmen or to do the job himself. The drills were all hand made and the work of an expert. Captain O'Brien was elated over the capture and was confident a big job had been nipped in the bud. So you can see from this that Jack was not being "tailed" or hounded, but was picked up by a man who had never seen him before and one, fortunately, who was possessed of a sixth sense, which all good detectives must have in order to make good.

Sheppard was such a notorious offender that the warden of the Eastern Penitentiary, in Pennsylvania, made a close study of the man during his several stops in that prison, and a report he made is on file there.

In part the warden's report follows:—

"Arrested in Boston shortly after one of his sojourns in the Eastern Penitentiary, he was sentenced to the new prison at Concord, Mass., which was looked upon as a model of its kind. He hadn't been in that prison a week before he was up to his old tricks, causing dissension and unrest among his fellow prisoners, and this he kept at until he had the whole institution in a turmoil. But he was clever and resourceful, and before long articles began to appear in the newspapers dealing with the reformation and reconstruction of the discipline in that institution. He was the author of these articles, and in them he openly charged that outrageous methods were employed to oppress and persecute the prisoners. So much credence was given to these articles that a commission was appointed to investigate the charges, and as politics crept into the probe conditions within the prison became almost unbearable. There were frequent uprisings and other acts of insubordination, and in every case Jack Sheppard was the ringleader.

"The New England press made a great to-do over the 'revelations' of Jack Sheppard; yet, strange to say, a very few months after his term expired there he was back in my prison, having been caught redhanded in a big burglary in Philadelphia. Of course his old cry of a 'police frame-up' was raised, but, nevertheless, he was put away, and, much to my disgust, it fell to my lot to have to look after him.

"Many convicts leave the places of their incarceration with a new suit of clothes and a few dollars in cash—all that stands between them and starvation. Many of them, either through riotous living or hard luck, soon find themselves stranded and it is a case of beg or steal for them. The great majority choose the latter course. But with Sheppard, who so blatantly protests that the police never gave him a chance, it was different. Upon concluding his last term in the Eastern Penitentiary he came in possession of several thousand dollars from an estate left by one of his relatives. There was his chance had he elected to live honestly. He had ample capital to start in any business he might select. What he did with this money I don't know, but in a very few months after getting possession of this windfall he was arrested in Boston and given two years in the South Boston House of Correction."

One of my men met Jack in a New York saloon a few years ago. The detective was there looking for another criminal. The barkeeper in this place knows every crook of any note in this country, and when in New York they all drift into his place, if only for one drink. There seems to be an unwritten law that compels them to show up there and "look the mob over." Jack was the picture of dejection. He was seated at a table, but there was no drink before him. Possibly he was out of funds, having failed to wipe out a previously contracted score when flush times came to him. Otherwise he could have had anything in the house.

The detective posed as a fellow crook and engaged old Jack in conversation. A heavy cold had settled on the old criminal and he apparently was in mortal dread of shuffling off for good. "I am just out of 'stir' again," Jack said, "and I hope the bulls will let me alone long enough to die in peace. I was told in Dannemora when they turned me out that if I ever came back again I would die at once. Couldn't stand the confinement, they said. I want to die on the outside and I hope it will come soon, for I am down and out and I have neither the desire nor energy to turn another trick."

But I am afraid Jack's wish will not be granted. It looks very much like a long stretch for him, and after looking him over I don't think he can survive prison life very long. He was hooked up with a pretty bad "mob" up there in Westchester, and no doubt he was used as the "locater" for the bunch. But he is an expert on safes and it would not have surprised me in the least, despite his age, if he had intended to do the "snuffing," once the safe was located and ready for the blast. But the "man with the longest record" still insists that we are "framing" him and that the police are hounding him to a prison grave.

Next week:—"Blackmailing as a Fine Art," by William J. Burns.

USE OF TELEPHONES IN THE PRESENT WAR

If the telephone were not a part of the army equipment to-day the war simply could not be conducted at all along the present lines. The war thus far has been an artillery duel. Without the telephone the big guns would be useless, for the objective is rarely, if ever, in sight of the battery.

The gunners train their guns on the target by laying them at a fixed angle with some definite visible point. The captain goes to a place from which he can see the enemy, and has a telephone line run out to him from his battery. Watching the fall of the shells, he telephones in the necessary corrections.

In the German artillery trenches orders and instructions are sent almost exclusively by telephone, the soldier attending it lying face downward and calling out instructions for firing, giving the range and the distance.

The perfection which has been attained in means of communication is a factor of incalculable value.

For instance, the possibility of such a departure from the front as that of General Sir John French recently would have been unthinkable in other days.

To-day, however, General French can return to England, confer with Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith, attend councils before the King and in the meantime hold hourly conference over the telephone with Sir Archibald Murray at the front in France or Belgium.

A direct telephone line to the base headquarters at St. Omer, France, from the home of General French, near Hyde Park, at London, insured General French being in as close touch with conditions at the front during his three days' visit in England as if he were present at headquarters.

Not the least valuable phase of telephone usefulness, though seemingly a very minor one, is its ability to supply entertainment to the entrenched armies.

A really grave hardship of war is the entire lack of diversion suffered by the men at the front, and the strain of remaining long in the trenches without any amusement has frequently proved extremely serious.

By means of the telephone, however, a way has been opened to overcome this condition, for it has been found that soldiers in the front trenches can listen to gramophone concerts being enjoyed by men in camp eight miles in the rear.

The report does not specify how widely this means of diversion has been employed so far, but limited as its application must of necessity be at present, it is undoubtedly of very definite value.

In obtaining information regarding the movements of the enemy the telephone is of the greatest significance, and the multitude of ambitious and skilful manœuvres to transmit information by telephone unknown to the enemy are practically unlimited.

Examples of these various devices are manifold, but one instance warrants especial mention.

One day during a change in position the Russian troops in hurriedly passed by a man in a soldier's uniform lying in a ditch, where he complained of pain sustain, but refused aid.

Finally a Cossack patrol came along and one of the Cossacks, suspecting that the man might be a spy, ran him with a whip.

At this he leaped to his feet, revealing a telephone, over which he had been telling the Germans of the troops that had passed along the road.

SICK, SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes Upset Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty-cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic" is a favourite expression where Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, milk rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

7035

The underblouse is cut with front, back and sleeves in one piece, very easy to make in consequence, and fastens at the back. The sleeves may be made full length or shorter, and the neck can be left round or finished with the standing collar. The skirt is attached to the underblouse. In one piece also is the overblouse, there being no shoulder seam. The edges could be underfaced and stitched or they might be bound with silk braid, which is just now a very stylish method of finishing. The pattern No. 7,035, comes in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Mr. Robt. Quinlan spent Wednesday last in Peterborough.

Mrs. Mike Clark has returned from visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Melloy, of Peterborough, is the guest of Mrs. Wm.: Dineen.

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., spent the week-end in town.

Mr. Given, editor and proprietor of the Millbrook Reporter, was in town over Sunday, the guest of his son, Mr. R. F. Given.

Mrs. Moffatt, of Marmora, was the guest of Mrs. Ben Chambers last week.

Miss Rose Hutchinson left last week to attend the millinery openings in Toronto prior to taking charge of a millinery store at Roseneath.

Mrs. Theo Crawford, of Lakefield, was the guest of Mrs. Robt. Flynn last week.

Mrs. Jas. Campbell visited with friends in Toronto last week.

Prof. A. Fennell, of Toronto University, was the week-end guest of his brother, Mr. Ed. Fennell.

Mr. R. G. Graham, of Toronto, spent last week in town.

Mr. Claude Watson, of Trent River, passed away on Monday night last, after a lingering illness, the funeral taking place Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the local Masonic Lodge, to the Centre cemetery, in Seymour. The deceased was a most estimable young man, having been cheese-maker at Trent River Factory since boyhood. The sincere reaved family in their sorrow.

Rev. Chas. Carpenter, of Campbellford, conducted the Lenten services in St. John's Church on Wednesday night last.

The Laymen's Missionary banquet, which was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday night last proved a huge success. About one hundred and twenty-five were present to eat the good things provided by Caterer Squire, and to listen to the special speakers, many of them coming from Cordova, Blanton and Trent River. Mr. C. A. Ghent was the chairman of the evening. Dr. H. C. Kindred sung a most acceptable patriotic solo, and the only other music was the singing of those two old Missionary hymns, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The annual "At Home" of the Masonic Lodge in the Town Hall on Monday night last, was a big success. Progressive euchre was the main amusement of the evening, the winners being Mrs. F. C. Butters and Mr. L. Cuthbertson, while Mrs. Ray Phillips and Mr. Robt. Chambers, were awarded the Consolation trophies. A good programme was rendered and afterwards refreshments served.

Dog of the Trenches Saves His Master, Buried by Bursting Shell

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 — Split the Wind is a "poilu"—a four-legged "poilu," says the Paris Figaro. He was born in Algeria of unidentified parents, a child of the street, who while still young learned to take care of himself in all circumstances.

Intelligent and affectionate, he loved the master that fate had given to him and who rewarded his devotion by good care and by caresses. Then came the war, and his master was called to the colours. Separation was impossible. Split the Wind managed to smuggle himself on board the transport taking his master to France.

He crossed the sea, he crossed France; he was in Belgium and participated in the retreat; then he was in the battle of the Marne, intrepid and joyous companion of the regiment, participating in the dangers of life in the trenches.

One evening during an assault a shell burst, tearing up the earth, covering the body of his wounded master. Split the Wind, rolled over and over by the shock, picked himself up and ran to the spot where he had seen disappear the one who was all to him. Resolutely he put himself to the task, his nose guiding him. Feverishly, indefatigably, he scratched and dug. Night had fallen; the battle line had moved onward. Still Split the Wind kept at his work. At last he reached his master.

Carefully he scratched the earth away from his master's head. Then he crawled out of the hole, his tired paws had dug and sitting on top began to bark.

Far away the twinkling lanterns of the sanitary troops showed where they were at work on the wounded. Split the Wind's mournful howls kept up ceaselessly. At last he was heard, and the hospital corps men arrived. The wounded man, rescued by the animal's devotion from a horrible death, was dug out and carried to the field hospital. Two days afterward he was sent to the American hospital at Neuilly. Split the Wind accompanying him, for no one had the heart to separate the little animal from his Master. To-day, while his master, thoroughly cured, is getting ready to go back to the front Split the Wind is the pet of the entire hospital. He is getting fat with the dainties that are showered upon him.

Potato Famine in Four Months, Germany is Warned

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 26.—Dr. Kuczknski, director of the Schoenberg Statistical Bureau, in an article in the Tageblatt to-day adds his voice to those who previously have emanded that the government take over the supply of potatoes in Germany, as it has done in the case of flour and grain.

Dr. Kuczynski refers to the advice given to Germans that each person, in order to take out the supply of grain, should increase his potato consumption by 400 grams daily, and says that if this advice is followed the present potato supply would not last more than four months. Assuming that the present ratio of potatoes devoted to the feeding of swine be maintained, Dr. Kuczynski believed that expropriation is the only way to maintain equable consumption.

Berlin socialists at a number of recent meetings also have demanded the expropriation of potatoes as well as of meat. The vice-president of the Prussian State Ministry declared in the Diet last week that the expropriation of potatoes had been considered, but found impossible of fulfilment.

Aching Back Gets Relief Quick! One Rub With "Nerviline" Cures

Every Bit of Stiffness and Soreness Goes When "Nerveline" Is Used.

Pain in back or side is awful hard to reach. Deep in the tissue is a congested or strained muscle. Liniments you have used have not reached it, and the pain bothers you, whether moving or lying down.

What a pity you haven't tried Nerviline! Penetrating, you ask? Yes, and powerful, too. Nerviline strikes in far deeper than any application you have ever used. You might pay a dollar, ten dollars, a hundred, for that matter, but you could not equal Nerviline, either in strength, quickness of action, or permanency of relief.

If you think this too much to say for Nerviline, try it, and be convinced.

If you receive from Nerviline even a little less relief from pain than this advertisement induces you to expect, you can get your money back.

The only pain remedy in the world sold under a guarantee is Nerviline—surely it is safe to try it.

Nerviline is sold by druggists everywhere, 25 cents or 50 cents a bottle, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

JONES OFF TO FRANCE.

Surgeon General Will Establish Canadian Clearing Hospital.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—Advices from London say that Surgeon General Jones, director of the medical services from Canada, has left for France to establish a clearing hospital so that all Canadian wounded may be sent to the Duchess of Connaught Hospital at Cliveden, in Buckinghamshire, as quickly as possible.

Canadian ladies, headed by Lady Drummond, are arranging for a distribution of comforts among the wounded Canadians.

One hundred and fifty out of the five hundred soldiers who recently arrived from Canada have gone to reinforce the Princess Patricias.

A Canadian Associated Press despatch received yesterday says: An officer who has just returned from the front states that the Canadians were in the trenches in the middle of this week, relieving English troops.

The Canadians suffered a loss of three killed and fourteen wounded. There is no confirmation of this in official quarters.

The following casualties among members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force were announced by the Militia Department last night:

Seriously ill—Admitted to No. 14 stationary hospital, Pte. J. T. Leatherby, P.P.C.L.I., with cerebro spinal meningitis; next of kin, J. T. Leatherby, Lyra Cottage, Townley, Middlesex, Eng.

Price of Beer Up.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Chronicle says the first rise in the price of beer in Berlin has taken place. It is only a little rise, but the burghers are indignant. The prices of beer in Berlin, according to quality, were 10, 15 and 20 pfennigs for a small glass. They are now 11, 16 and 21 pfennigs. The great difficulty is the odd copper prinaig, as Berliners are not accustomed to pay out a smaller sum than 5 pfennig nickel. Notwithstanding the scarcity of copper the mint has had to supply large quantities of single pfennigs. The Berliner vents his indignation on the unfortunate waiter, who, instead of the usual 5 pfennig tip, is now put off with a paltry 4 pfennig.

Germany Expels Chinese.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Evening News publishes a despatch from Rotterdam saying that, owing to the shortage of food in Germany, the German authorities have ordered the expulsion of 500 Chinese.

A strong Netherlands police force has been sent to the frontier to prevent these men from entering Dutch territory, and emigrations are expected.

GO N FIGHT UNTIL 1916.

Germany Will Prolong War Unless Britain Increases Men.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A communication from a British office describing conditions in France issued by the official press bureau, says:

"The war will last until the German armies are beaten or the German nation is starved. Germany is now short of wheat. The drastic food measures taken by the country will enable it to continue the war until the middle of 1916.

"The allies can defeat Germany while the population is still hungering if the allies had enough men to close in.

"Unless we stretch our British imagination sufficiently to identify ourselves with the allies, we will be unable at the end of the war to say as a nation we are profitable servants."

Rioting in Italy.

GENOA, Feb. 27.—One person was killed and many were wounded during riots at Ventimiglia, which resulted from a demonstration in favor of the maintenance of neutrality by Italy. A counter-demonstration by persons desiring the intervention of Italy in the war led to a serious fight.

Police and carbineers interfered, but were unable to restore order for some time. During the fighting several of the police and a major of the carbineers were injured.

Strikers Must Go Back.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Through Sir George Askwith, chief industrial commissioner, the Government sent a peremptory order yesterday to the 10,000 shipyard engineers on strike at the Clyde that they must resume work on Monday, as "important munitions of war urgently required by the army and navy are being held up."

The strikers demand an increase in wages of four cents an hour.

German Rations Decreased.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—According to a despatch from Berlin, the German authorities have decided upon a considerable decrease in the bread ration for the army.

ALLIES DRAG DARDANELLES

Taking Out Mines For the Purpose of Clearing a Passage For Vessels to Constantinople

PARIS, Feb. 27.—An official communication issued by the French Minister of Marine yesterday confirms the demolition of the forts guarding the entrance to the Dardanelles, and says that mine-dragging operations are now proceeding in the straits. The communication follows:

"The bombardment of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles was resumed from a great distance on Thursday at eight o'clock in the morning. This was followed by a bombardment at shorter range. Four forts were completely destroyed, one of them was entirely fortified by the Germans. Mine-dragging in the straits is being affected under the protection of the armored and other cruisers of the combined fleet."

The Athens' correspondent of the Havas Agency sends the following despatch regarding the bombardment of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles by the French and British fleets:

"News received from the Island of Tenedos Thursday night says that the bombardment of the Dardanelles continued with violence from nine o'clock in the morning until six in the evening. The fire from the forts was intense during part of the day, but diminished and ceased before nightfall.

"Forts Erthogrell, Sedd-el-Bahr and Orhanie suffered a great deal, especially Sedd-el-Bahr, which was on fire, the flames being seen from Tenedos. One of the allies' cruisers entered the strait during the evening and bombarded the forts for an hour. It then withdrew safely.

"The result of the fire of the Turkish forts is not definitely known, but it appears to be established that none of the allies' vessels has been seriously damaged."

An official announcement regarding French naval operations follows:

"The French torpedo-boat destroyer with provisions for Montenegro, struck an Austrian mine off the port of Antivari (Montenegro) on Feb. 24, and sank.

"Thirty-eight of the crew disappeared. The accident did not hinder finishing the work of provisioning and the return of the convoy.

"The French cruiser Desaix made a demonstration against Akabah (Arabia) on Feb. 23. A landing party aided by the ship's cannon, dispersed and put to flight a small band of Turks occupying the village."

The Dague was laid down in 1911. She was a vessel of 720 tons, 256 feet in length.

CALOMEL SALIVATES

Calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work. Calomel is a nasty, dangerous chemical. To liven your sluggish liver and bowels when constipated, headachy, bilious, just get a ten-cent box of harmless Cascarets. They work while you sleep, don't gripe, sicken or salivate.

MAKE IT SO

If it is to be the best yet, you will have to make it so. You can do it. How? By holding an executive session with the wife and the boys and girls in the morning before you start out. It will do you all good. The day can be made better:

By bringing into play all the experience, all the carefulness and all the good judgment the years have given. Cold storage is not a good place to keep the things you have been so long in learning.

By taking advantage of every bit of advice and of every good suggestion men about you may have to give. It takes a wise man to give advice, and a smart man to take it.

By keeping a brave heart. The old sow may dig under the fence and come wandering into the back kitchen. Don't get excited. Take her back patiently and be good to your wife while you are doing it.

By making the home cheery. The day which begins with a spat between man and wife is sure to turn out badly. The old dog takes to the hole under the wood shed; the hired man has a job in the back lot; everything and everybody is the worse for it when a grouch breaks its chain and runs around loose. Love makes the home life beautiful. Be a man to-day and that will make it easier for you to-morrow.—Farm Journal.

THIS SKIN PEELER ALL THE RAGE IN SOCIETY

There is a growing tendency among women of culture and fashion to pay more attention to hygienic means of preserving their charms. The advent of "mercolized" wax doubtless has been largely responsible for this. This remarkable substance produces complexions as natural in appearance, so magnetically beautiful, artificial complexions are no longer desired. Instead of "doctoring" an offensive skin, the skin is peeled off. The wax peels the skin so gradually, in such fine particles, no discomfort is experienced. The fresher, younger skin beneath, wholly in evidence within a week or two, is lily white, satiny soft and smooth. It's not a patched-over complexion, but a brand new one. That's why mercolized wax has become such a rage among society folk. The wax is put on nights like cold cream and washed off morning. All druggists have it; one ounce will do.

Another hygienic treatment now much in favour is one to remove wrinkles, made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. Used as a wash lotion it "acts like magic."

FRENCH CONTINUE TO GAIN GROUND

"Not Since The War Started Have Allies Been So Confident"

FRENCH MAKE BIG GAINS IN CHAMPAIGNE REGION

Have Advanced Their Lines Over a Width of a Mile and One Half and Have Gained New Trenches Adjacent to Those Captured in Last Week's Fighting---Also Making Advances in the Vosges.

SUCCESSFUL CHARGES AT VAQUOIS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 1. (French Official)—The French troops on the offensive in the Champagne region have now advanced their lines over a width of nearly a mile and a half, according to despatches from the front to-day, northwest of Perthes. The Germans have made several unsuccesful counter-attacks, but have been beaten off. The French yesterday gained new trenches, adjacent to those captured in last week's fighting. In the Vosges the French continued to gain ground near Chapelotte, and the Germans have abandoned their attempts to take the offensive at this point. The French infantry regiments have made a series of successful charges against the Germans on the heights of Vaquois near Varennes. Fighting in this region is most violent with the enemy being slowly driven from the town. From Arras to the sea coast and elsewhere along the battle line no important developments were reported to-day.

NO DANGER OF FAMINE.

LIVERPOOL, March 1.—Never in the history of this port has the congestion of shipping been so great nor have the Liverpool warehouses ever been so crammed with foodstuffs as at present. It is the consensus of opinion of the importers here that ever should the German submarine blockade prove effective, there is enough food now stored here to feed the country for a year.

HEAVY CASUALTY LISTS.

LONDON, March 1.—Correspondent of the Daily Mail at Copenhagen wires: Seven more lists of Prussian casualties are published, they contain the names of 11,418 officers and men killed, wounded, or missing and bring the total of the Prussian casualties up to 1,102,212. The Bavarian, Saxon, Wurtemburg and naval lists total to date about four hundred thousand. The Austrian and Turkish armies have lost 1,650,000. The total losses to Germany, Austria and Turkey are over 3,100,000.

LIVERPOOL, March 1.—The American liner St. Louis arrived here to-day with 200 passengers. She reported her trip from New York was without incident.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—It is recalled that the United States has not recognized the German "Death Zone," around England as an actual blockade. This lent to the belief that there may be no official recognition of the English reprisal plans, although the authorities admit that the Allies are in a position to make the blockade airtight as required under International regulations. There is some talk that the latest moves in the international situation are the beginning of the end of the war. The English reprisals and prospective forcing of the Dardanelles are considered in some circles as foreshadowing the early close of hostilities. This gave rise to the consideration of the American prospects as mediator. There were predictions that America will be on shaky ground in this respect because of the recent difficulties with both sides.

CHIEF OF POLICE THOMPSON, Who Has Entered Upon His Sixth Year as Chief of the Peterborough Police Department. His Fifth Annual Report Appears in This Issue.

NEW CONSTABLE IS APPOINTED

This Will Bring the Police Force Up to Full Strength —Annual Supply of Uniforms

The Police Commissioners have endorsed Chief Thompson's recommendation respecting the appointment of Clarence F. Dickkson, 586 Harvey Street, to the position of police constable at an initial salary of $650 a year Dickson will commence his duties this week. Six applicants applied for the position. They are as follows:

Walter Miller, 319 Water Street.
Clarence Dickson, Harvey Street.
C. Arnold Everett, McDonnel Street.
J. A. McColl, Hart Avenue.
T. A. Chapman, Smith Township.
O. G. Knight, Brownton.

Physically speaking, Chapman is probably superior to the other five. It was pointed out, however, that he had a tendency to limp a little, as a result of a slight injury which he suffered to his foot some time ago. It was feared that he might not be able to withstand the amount of walking that a police constable is expected to undergo in connection with his duties.

Increased Armament.

Chief Thompson is averse to employing mechanics, as they show an inclination to return to their respective trades whenever a favourable opportunity presents itself. In fact, one of the present members of the force, in the person of P. C. Cookman, has signified his intention of returning to England as a mechanic if conditions are favourable.

Chief Thompson has been authorised to procure the annual supply of clothing, also one new revolver. The latter are very effective as a means of disposing of stray dogs and cats, together with such horses as have outlived their usefulness.

The Care of The Teeth

Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School Hear Interesting Address

The Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School have decided at the regular monthly meeting to have addresses delivered on subjects in which the mothers are vitally interested, such as care of teeth, hygiene, etc. The club in January was addressed by Inspector Mowat. The information and inspiration gained from the wide range of subjects of which he spoke showed that the work was still in its infancy, and a great many subjects could be taken up gradually to attain the aim in view, namely, the welfare of the child. The assertions of his sympathy with the movement and his kind offer to do anything in his power at any time were greatly appreciated by the Circle. The February meeting was held on Friday, Feb. 26, and after a short musical programme, consisting of talent from the school, Dr. Middle addressed the meeting on the care of children's teeth, dividing the subject under two heads: "What a Mother Should Know" and "What a Mother Should Do." His remarks, placed so clearly and thoroughly before the meeting, have indeed left lasting impressions, and will certainly bring forth good results. We again urge all mothers having children attending school, or any one else interested, to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these splendid lectures each month.

GERMAN BOAT BLOWN UP

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

GALVESTON, Texas, March 1. — Thirty persons, including five women, were killed when the gunboat Progresso was blown up by a bomb in Progresso harbour. It is stated by the Carranzista Consul here to-day, the bomb was smuggled aboard in a shipment of ice. No further details are available and the date of the accident is not given.

ARBITRATION AWARD HAS BEEN MADE

But Council Must Pay $3,500 Before They Receive the Report

Mr. G. N. Gordon told the Examiner that he had received a notification from Judge Huycke, chairman of the recent Board of Arbitration, that upon the payment of $3,500.00 by the city the Board's award would be forwarded. This amount is understood to cover the city's share in the cost of fees in connection with the arbitration. His Honour Judge Huycke stated this morning that he had nothing to make public and that any information would have to come from the City Solicitor. Mr. Gordon remarked that the above letter from Judge Huycke had been sent on to the Council and would likely be taken up to-night.

Judge Huycke Was Re-elected

Chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners—Police Constable's Resignation Accepted

At a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners which was held on Saturday afternoon, His Honour Judge Huycke was re-elected Chairman for the current year. The estimates for the year, as prepared by Chief Thompson, were adopted. They are somewhat lower than last year. The figures for this year are $12,-991.50, while for last year they were $13,095.50. Over ten thousand dollars of this amount is expended for salaries. Clothing and equipment amount to a thousand dollars, and numerous other items make up the difference.

Police Constable Savante's resignation was accepted. He returned to England some weeks ago, after being suspended while on sick leave, for being absent from his boarding house without a doctor's certificate.

Annual Convention

Chief of Police Thompson will attend the annual convention of Police Constables in event of one being held. Owing to the war it may be deemed advisable to dispense with the Convetnion until conditions become normal. It was originally intended to hold this year's convention in Vancouver, but arrangements are being made to hold it in some Ontario city.

Chief Thompson's annual report for last year was received and approved of. It will be found in another column. Chief Thompson pointed out the necessity of appointing another police constable in order to bring the force to full strength. Asked if he would care to defer the appointment for some time, the Chief replied in the negative. He said that if the present staff was up to the standard it might be different.

RECRUITING FOR INFANTRY IS NOW CLOSED

The 39th Battalion is Over Strength —Two New Batteries of Artillery to be Enlisted in This Division

RECRUITS MAY APPLY

Recruiting for the local company of the 39th Battalion has been closed, a complement of 126 men having been secured, while the Battalion itself is now over strength. No more recruits for the 39th Battalion will be taken on, while the enlistment for the Mounted Rifles stopped several weeks ago.

Those desiring to go to the front, however, still have a chance, as word has been received here that two batteries of artillery and an ammunition column are to be raised in this division for the third contingent. Recruits may apply to Major Cameron, medical officer at the armouries. Only good riders are wanted, so that men not used to horses need not apply. It is understood that one battery will be mobilized at Kingston and the other at Ottawa.

No entertainment is complete these days without some of the talent from the third contingent, and the services of the artists are constantly in demand. The quartette from B. squadron will sing at the Peterborough Choral Society's concert to-morrow night.

Lieut. Rogers of B. squadron has been on sick leave for the past few days. Lieut. Johnston has also been ill.

Both 39th and 8th C. M. R. units drilled inside this morning and every part of the armouries was in use.

Owing to the serious illness of Sergt. Geo. Grange, caretaker of the armouries, the tug-of-war contest between Troops 1 and 4, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, had to be postponed.

Lt.-Col. Johnston, recruiting officer for the 3rd Dragoons, is taking the names of telegraphers who desire to enlist. Four or five have been taken on here.

The Ottawa Free Press says: According to report, 39 men of the 8th C.M.R., now in training at Lansdowne Park for the third contingent, are to leave for England shortly.

Officers of the regiment to-day professed ignorance of the report, which says that the men are to make the trip in charge of a large shipment of horses, consigned either to the first Canadian contingent or the War Office. No information as to when the men leave or whether they will return to the ranks of the 8th C.M.R. is obtainable.

So far only the headquarters and A squadron of the Mounted Rifles are in barracks at Howick Hall, but B squadron and C. squadron from Toronto and Peterborough are expected to arrive here almost any day.

It is officially announced that Sergeant C. E. Bleakney, of the 5th P. L.D.G. has been appointed regimental quartermaster sergeant.

Sergeant Bleakney has been associated with the 5th P.L.D.G. for many years and has considerable actual war experience. He was with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police for five years, and served in the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles in the South African war.

INJUSTICE TO DOCTORS

Drs. Brown and Morgan Were Only Called in When Brown Girl Was Dying

The article in connection with the death of Helen Brown, published in The Examiner on Saturday, unintentionally, did an injustice to Drs Brown and Morgan, whose names appeared in the report. These two Doctors are in no way implicated in the sad affair. They were merely called in when the unfortunate young girl was dying, in fact only a half hour or less before she passed away, and had, of course, nothing to do in any way with any operation that may have been performed. Their names had been signed to the certificate by the undertaker.

The inquest into the cause of the death of Miss Brown will be resumed in the Police Court Chambers this evening, at 8 o'clock. The finding at the inquest will be principally based upon the result of the post mortem examination of the body, which was performed by Drs. Eastwood and McPherson, on Saturday. The report of the two physicians will not be made known until this evening at the inquest.

FORTHER VOTE OF $185,000,000 FOR WAR EXPENSES

War Has Cost Great Britain $7,-500,000 a Day, Premier Asquith Announces in House

GOVERNMENT CONFIDENT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 1.—Premier Asquith this afternoon asked the House of Commons to vote a credit of $185,-000,000 for war expenses for the remainder of the period ending March 31, making a total appropriation for the war thus far of $1,810,000,000.

The war has cost Britain alone about $7,500,000 a day, the Premier declared in Parliament, but the Prime Minister assured members that England was so situated financially that the drain upon her resources could continue for years without causing an actual crisis. ... ...

"Not since the war started has the Government been so confident that the Allies will achieve victory," said the Premier. "When victory comes, it will be a lasting, durable victory."

Premier Asquith announced that as a result of the recent conference at Paris England probably will advance more funds to Serbia and to Belgium. This will be in addition to the $4,000,-000 already advanced to Serbia and the $50,000,000 advanced to Belgium.

Piano Recital At Conservatory

The pupils of Miss Pearl McKee, of the Conservatory staff, gave a recital on Saturday afternoon, the following numbers constituting the programme:

The Gallant Defenders, duet, Miss McKee, Mae McKim.

Hungarian Dream (Faber), George Ross.

(a) Rustle of Spring (Sirdireg); (b) Berceuse (Godard), Marian Harstone.

Carinette—Otto Gliddon.

Tenfel's Tanz, duet, Miss McKee, Isabel Baird.

(a) Mazurka (Godard); (b) Adoration (Thelma), Celia Dunsford.

(a) Nachstucke (Schumann); (b) Chanson Russe (Smith), Isabel Baird.

High Class Concert On Monday Next

A concert of exceptional merit will be given in St. Andrew's Church on Monday next, March 8th, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the church. The following artists will appear on the programme, and the public is assured of one of the best concerts Peterborough has had for some time:

Madame Leonora—James Kennedy, one of Canada's leading sopranos and teachers.

Miss Helen MacLaren, Mezzo soprano, soloist of St. Andrew's, pupil of Madame Leonora—James Kennedy.

Miss Blanche Walters — Elecutionist, graduate pupil of Mr. Owen Smiley.

Miss Eva Galloway—Pianist and accompanist, scholarship pupil of Professor Hamburg.

Mr. Treneer—Organist of St. Andrew's Church.

Tickets are only 25c, and may be had from any member of the committee.

LINERS SUCCESSFULLY PASS THROUGH ZONE

"St. Louis" Arrives at Liverpool While "New York" Westbound Came Through Without Incident---America Must Submit to the Newest Blockade.

SPECIAL CABLE:

NEW YORK, March 1.—The American liner New York, carrying 225 passengers, glided into port here today after a successful passage of the new submarine war zone around the British Isles.

Under the cover of darkness, and with four torpedo boats as a convoy, she slipped out of Liverpool and dashed with her engines going at top speed toward the open sea. Life boats swung from their davits ready for instant use. After she cleared the war zone the torpedo boats returned and she

House of Commons that the government has decided to lay an embargo against the shipment of all commodities, including food stuffs, into Germany. At the same time the Prime Minister said that steps will be taken to prevent Germany from shipping commodities of any kind to other countries.

Notes carrying this announcement have been sent to the neutral powers. They were transmitted by th British diplomatic representatives to-day, at about the same time that Premier Asquith made the Government's policy known in the House of Commons.

ROUMANIA ALARMED.

BERLIN, via wireless, March 1.—Roumania is alarmed over the possibility that Russia may gain Constantinople and dominate the Dardanelles in the event of victory for the Allies, according to the despatches received here to-day. She has called all her reserves to the colours.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—America must submit to England's proposed "blockade" against Germany, is the department experts' opinion this afternoon, based on what they know of the English plans through unofficial reports.. Anticipated advices on England's attitude had not arrived.

The English blockade probably will not work extreme hardships to American commerce, according to a prominent official. At present America can ship non-contraband to Germany, and receive certain dyestuffs and chemicals. Such trade will be halted of the blockade materialises, but the United States will be able to get their dyestuffs through a new invention of an Interior Department expert. A high authority stated he saw no surface reason for negotiations with England regarding this latest step.

A COMPLETE BLOCKADE

LONDON, March 1.—That Britain would adopt a complete blockade of Germany and stop shipping of all kinds intended for Germany and her allies, was stated this afternoon in the Commons by Premier Asquith, who said that Germany had by her under sea campaign of piracy violated all the conventions of warfare and Britain and her allies must and would retaliate with severer measures than any yet attempted.

Great Britain to-day made public her answer to the German submarine attacks upon British merchantmen. Premier Asquith announced in the in April will total two million dollars a day, the Prime Minister said. The coming demands for war purposes will be the largest ever made upon any country he said, but after seven months of war the whole empire is every whit as determined as at the outset, he declared amid cheers.

The laying of an embargo is virtually a decree of blockade of the German coast. It comes in response to the public demand in England expressed through the press that the government assert itself in drastic reprisals against Germany for her action in torpedoing British merchantmen without warning. The government believes that the new decree will swing the tide strongly in favour of the allies at once. It is believed that few neutral vessels will care to encounter the danger of running a blockade of the British fleet off the German coast, and that Germany will soon be "starved out" and forced to sue for peace. In government circles regret was expressed that German civilians should be made the innocent victims of England's new policy. The officials however justified their course by stating the belief that England by shortening the war is acting in the interests of humanity, including the German non-combatants. The United States, Holland, the Scandinavian countries and Italy are the nations whose commerce will be most affected by the British order. The government anticipates that some complications will result from the laying of the embargo. The officials, however, took the view this afternoon that by declaring all commodities destined for Germany absolute contraband, England avoids controversies with other nations. The war expenditures are steadily rising, the Premier added. By April 1st he said the war will be costing England at least $8,500,000 daily.

SQUADRON QUARTETTE WILL SING

Choral Society Has Arranged a Splendid Programme for To-morrow Night

At the Choral Society concert in the Collegiate Institute to-morrow night, a male quartette from the 8th Mounted Rifles will sing, and some of the young vocalists of the society will also sing.

A good programme will conclude with several standard choruses, including Elgar's; "It Comes From the Misty Ages," the famous war chorus which is being used extensively during this war.

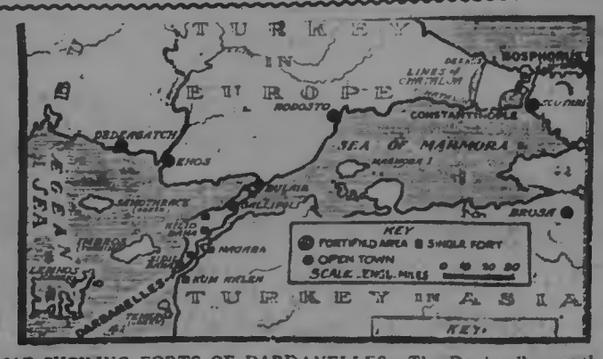
Mrs. Harriet Southworth Dies in Her 100th Year

Mrs. Harriet Southworth, whose death occurred recently at Brockville, was in her hundredth year, and one sister, Mrs. Scoville, of Lombardy, survives her at 97. Mrs. Southworth was born at Norfolk, England, but came to Canada with her parents when a girl of 14. She lived at Lombardy, Ont., until forty years ago, when her husband died. Since that time she had resided in Toronto, Ogdensburg, Peterborough, and Brockville. Mrs. Beckett, of 47 Fraser Avenue, Toronto, is a daughter, and Mrs. E. W. Chard, of College Street, Toronto, is a grand-daughter.



MAP SHOWING FORTS OF DARDANELLES.—The Dardanelles are the key to Constantinople and the effort to force them has been going on since the middle of December. In possession of this waterway the war ships of the Allies would not encounter any serious difficulty in being enabled to shell the Turkish Capital. The possesion of Constantinople would have the effect of driving Turkish naval power into the Black Sea, where they would be without any port of refuge.

MANHOOD COUNTS.

The labour organizations of Toronto are up in arms against the property qualification proviso for municipal representatives, and are demanding the abolition of it by the Provincial Legislature. A member of the Legislature may not have a roof to his head, may not own a rood of ground, or a stick of building, yet he can make or muddle laws for municipal councillors to wrestle with; while a man to be a representative in the humblest municipal hamlet must have certain real property—enough to qualify. It is to be presumed that the property qualification is required in municipal representatives on the ground that the possessor of property will make a man more careful in administering taxes to whose increase he will have to pay his share if his imprudent expenditure makes an increase necessary. Whatever force there may have been in this contention it does not exist now. With direct provincial taxation imposed, we need to have our Legislature members qualified by possession of property, so that they will be more careful not to increase their own taxation by resorting to extravagant expenditure, which is the chief, and, in the final analysis, the only reason we have to have direct taxation for provincial purposes. Manhood is the only condition of exercise of the parliamentary franchse, which with ability to vote intelligently, seems to be all that is needed. Why should not manhood, plus character, be an acceptable qualification for municipal representation? With true manhood and high character—of capacity and principle—a man cannot avoid being a good representative. With property qualification a man may lack real and proper manhood, and the qualities of character that are necessary in a good representative.

DOUBLE TAXATION.

"The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small"; but the mill of Provincial Treasurer McGarry doesn't grind either slowly or small; and added to the high cost of living and scarcity of money from unemployemnt, one mill on the dollar can represent a pretty serious addition to a burden that in many cases has reached the limit of endurance. Technically it is a fair tax in that it rests pro rata equally upon all; but it in effect does not. An addition of $1.00 to a tax bill may be considered a very small sum, as it is, in the abstract; but it becomes a rather important thing in cases where, after the ordinary taxes paid, this dollar is all that is left. Then its payment represents deprivation and real sacrifice. Such a tax amounts to little where there is larger capacity for payment, and when after payment, thousands of dollars of ready money are left available for the purposes of comfortable and even luxurious living. The increased taxation levied by the Dominion Government may or may not extract more from the individual citizen, but the individual citizen is permitted to regulate and determine the amount he contributes; he pays it by a slight, and in many cases almost imperceptible increase in price of the articles he buys, and the less he is able to buy, the less he pays into the public treasury—or to the protected manufacturer. Then again the provincial tax is a double burden upon the ratepayers of many municipalities. The Toronto Star, dealing with this phase of the subject says:

It ought to be possible in this country, at a time when a great, special, and patriotic purpose is to be served, to tax surplus and accumulated wealth, and tax it as largely as may be necessary, without levying at all on the bare homes and scant necessities of the poor. This should have been possible more especially in view of the examples Lloyd George has set in the United Kingdom. He has shown how it can be done; he has asserted the principle and worked out the practice. It was but necessary to follow his lead, using a little of the industry that he employs so unsparingly in the work of government. And Lloyd George, once so hated, is to-day acclaimed as the financial deliverer of his country by the very men and interests which he has so heavily taxed. Men with similar skill and courage, working fairly and shewing no favouritism, would have found a public spirit here at this time ready to approve broad and wise measures had they been offered for approval.

As it is, Mr. McGarry imposes a one-mill tax on all assessed property in the Province. Many of the counties have voluntarily taxed themselves already, while many others have not. Here is a list showing what some of the counties have done by way of contributions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund:

Peel and Perth have voted one mill on the dollar.

Elgin and Huron voted $1,000 monthly.

Northumberland and Durham, $5,000 monthly during war.

Bruce, $7,000 monthly for 10 months.

Prince Edward, $500 monthly for two years.

Lambton, $600 monthly for six months.

Peterborough City and County, $14,000 by a levy of one mill on the dollar.

Essex, $500 monthly for six months.

Leeds, $300 monthly for one year.

Waterloo, $2,500.

Carleton, $5,000.

Frontenac, $5,000.

Renfrew, $3,000.

Wellington, $27,000 during two years.

Of course those municipalities do not escape the turn of the McGarry mill. It falls like the rain, upon the rich and the poor alike, touching with comparative lightness the one and grinding the other raw. We don't say that the public would resent this taxation as contributing to their share in waging a just war. They may meet it with as much gladness as is compatible with paying out money; but a little bitter is mingled with the sweet in the reflection that the burden of one mill on the dollar for provincial purposes is negatively unnecessary; that it would not be now necessary if the people's money had not been so extravagantly expended by the government, that a big revenue, that with prudent administration, might have left a surplus, yielded under dessipating administration a deficit, that every man, woman and child, is obliged to provide for; not as a patriotic action; but as a penalty for misplaced and misused confidence.

PENITENT ARGUMENT.

Mr. Gillespie of West Peterborough a new acquisition to the Liberal strength in the Legislature, advances many cogent arguments in favour of a more effective policy on behalf of agriculture. Such appeals, based on the obvious results of present methods, cannot be too often repeated until a change of policy is effected.—Globe.

PROPERTY QUALIFICATION.

One of the absurd anomalies of the existing property qualification law for the holding of municipal office, is the fact that a member of the Provincial Legislature may not own a stick of property, yet under the property qualification law he would be ineligible to hold the position of alderman or municipal councillor. The law says a man may be qualified and competent to make laws for the nation or province, but he cannot be trusted to make the laws for his own resident, town or city unless he happens to be the owner of a pile of bricks and mortar.

The said pile of bricks and mortar, in the eyes of the law, gives a man a "vested right and interest" which qaulifies him to make the laws under which he and his fellow citizens must live. The possession of brains, and incidentally being the husband and father of a family of boys and girls who must be fed, clothed, and educated to be the future citizens, gives a man no "vested right or interest" in the town or city in which he lives. As though a parent's interest in the future and well-being of his children is not a greater "interest" than the equity in a mortgaged building?

It is, however, the old fight over the respective rights of "property" and the rights of human beings. The property qualification law is a relic of the dark ages that should long ago have been relegated to the limbo of the ages to which it belongs.—Industrial Banner

THE FRENCH FLEET.

Some days ago it was announced by way of Paris that the French cruiser Jean Bart had been torpedoed by the Austrians in the Adriatic. Fortunately she was able to reach port, and will shortly be ready for fresh service.

About the same time as the cable from Paris, telling of the Bart mishap, came one from the Straits Settlements saying that French marines had helped curb a mutiny of British native troops. These incidents have drawn attention to the fact that the French fleet is in the thick of things. Its operations in the war to date, while less spectacular than those of the British navy, are little less important. When the war broke out, the French grand fleet was in the Mediterranean with the great navy yard of Toulon as its base. Within a few hours it had the Austrian navy bottled up in Adriatic ports, where it has been held helpless ever since. In the early stages of the war it successfully convoyed large bodies of troops from Algeria to the continent, and assisted the British warships to insure safe passage for the British-Indian troops. It is helping to keep open the trade routes in both the Atlantic and Pacific, is assisting in the bombardment of the Dardanelles forts, and, according to recent cables from London, is co-operating with the British North Sea fleet against the enemy in that quarter. The fleet of France, third in strength of the navies of the world, completely up to date in equipment and splendidly manned is proving a most effective ally to Great Britain and Russia.—London Advertiser.

HOW CANADA, WITH INCREASED PRODUCTION, CAN HELP BRITAIN

Now is Canada's opportunity to make good her boast that she is the granary of the Empire. Many of her young men are displaying a martial turn and hastening to offer themselves, to sacrifice themselves, in the cause they have at heart. But there is even a deeper duty resting on this country. That duty, well fulfilled, while helping others, cannot fail to help ourselves. We shall be abundantly paid for all we do, and in doing will possess the proud sense of serving the right. To neglect the opportunity for improved production is to not only fall short of the call of patriotism, but to be guilty of a crime. We have the soil, we have the resources, we have the energy to justify our claim to be the Granary of the Empire.

Figures That Carry a Lesson.

Great Britain imported 51,786,915 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1913. She also imported 9,260,600 bushels from Russia, 2,050,527 from Germany, 804,533 from France, 201,653 from Roumania, 265,943 from Austria-Hungary, and 76,233 bushels from Bulgaria, a total of 12,759,949 bushels that will have to be made up. There was a decrease in Russia's exportation to Britain, 7,000,000 bushels in 1913, compared with 1912, and of 24,000,000 compared with 1911. In 1913, the United States supplied the United Kingdom with 0,08,879 bushels, an increase of 32,000,000 bushels over 1912 and 48,000,000 bushels over 1911, while Canada's increase in 1913 over 1912 was only 1,177,000 bushels. Gerat Britain's total importation reached 239,580,865 bushels.

Great Britain imported 14,245,000 bushels of barley from Russia in 1913, 3,240,533 bushels from Roumania, 5,208,700 bushels from Turkey in Asia, 832,087 from Germany and 622,533 bushels from Austria-Hungary; a total of 24,146,853 bushels. Canada supplied 5,977,533 bushels and the United States 10,355,567 bushels. Great Britain's total importations amounted to 52,538,245 bushels.

Great Britain imported 9,173,459 bushels of oats from Russia in 1913, 11,273,480 bushels from Germany, and 2,097,765 bushels from Roumania, a total of 22,454,600 bushels. Canada supplied 7,734,533 bushels and the United States 4,720,514. Great Britain's total importations of oats were 39,839,950 bushels.

Surely the foregoing figures carry their own moral to Canadian farmers.

Deficiencies That Must Be Made Good.

Great Britain imported 185,125,000 bushels of wheat from August 1st, 1913, to July 31st, 1914. Russia exported 153,267,600 bushels, and Roumania 45,642,000 bushels in the same period. How much will these two countries export this year?

Great Britain imported from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, 54,207,000 bushels of oats. Russia exported 24,760,000 bushels, Germany 25,077,000 bushels, and Roumania 17,196,000 bushels. The last three countries in 1915 will hardly export a bushel. How is the deficiency to be made up?

Great Britain from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, imported 46,169,000 bushels of barley, Austria-Hungary 8,064,000 bushels, and Roumania 18,941,000 bushels. How much is Canada going to do to make up the large shortage?

Bacon and Hams.

In 1913, Great Britain imported 5,440,287 hundredweight of bacon. Canada supplied 272,745 hundredweight. Russia, Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands furnished 3,129,870, and the United States 2,019,776 hundredweight.

In 1913, Britain imported 957,595 hundred weight of hams, of which Canada supplied 100,892 hundredweight, and the United States 951,835. In 1910 Canada only supplied 42,136 hundredweight.

There is some improvement in hams, but a sad falling off in bacon. Britain took 699,704 hundredweight of the latter commodity from this country in 1911, but as previously stated, only 272,745 hundredweight in 1913, a decrease of 416,999 hundredweight in two years.

Two Kinds of War Taxation the Direct and Indirect

There are three points in favour of Hon. Mr. McGarry's special war year tax that are lacking in the special taxes of the Dominion government, namely: It is in a sense a war tax; it is spread fairly over the people in the province, hitting rich and poor in proportion to their wealth, and by it every man will know exactly how much he is paying.

Mr. McGarry has much more reason to call his special levy a war tax than Mr. White has to label his new tariff a war tariff. A part of the money the province will raise with the tax goes to help prosecute the war—to pay for Ontario's contributions of food to the British government. Mr. McGarry says these contributions have amounted to $800,000, while he expects the new tax to yield $1,800,000. What the extra million is for, however, is to make up the deficit.

Then, while the Dominion government's tax comes almost altogether out of the consumer and at the same time places more money in the pockets of the Canadian manufacturer at the expense of the consumer, the Ontario tax is to be paid by the rich manufacturer on his property holdings as well as by the poor man on his house and lot or his income. The man owning a thousand dollars worth of property will pay a dollar while the man with ten times that amount of wealth will pay ten times as much of the special tax. And not the least of the favourable points is that each man knows in this way just what he is paying. Under Mr. White's plan the people will pay but will not know how much they are paying — least of all will they know how much is going to the government and how much to the favoured manufacturer.

But, as in the case of the Dominion tax, there is the question of the necessity for this special levy by the province. Could it, too, not have been avoided, in part at any rate, by proper economy on the part of the provincial government. Mr. McGarry declares he is proud to announce a deficit in the finances of the province because that deficit is caused by the gifts of the province to the Motherland. But to have the greatest benefit attached to it, a gift must entail a sacrifice to the giver. We believe that the people of Ontario, when the government announced its donations to the British government, naturally supposed that the government was going to provide for the payment of these donations by denying itself something. This is far from the case, however. There seems to have been no attempt to meet the unusual expense by economy in other directions. A million dollars of the new tax, too, it seems, is needed for something other than these donations.

The policy of both governments in this regard is at variance with the policy of the private citizen for meeting his war-time obligations.

As individuals, we meet the extra expense of the war conditions by cutting down on the luxuries we have been accustomed to. We try as far as we can to save on things that are not altogether necessary the money we are called upon to pay because of the special conditions imposed by the war. But the governments who are managing our public affairs for us do not follow this plan. There is no indication that it has even been considered.

There will be some complaint that the Ontario tax should not have been confined to property alone. We don't sympathize with this, however. If the people of Ontario are to be called upon to pay extra for war conditions, then all should pay, the man who puts the surplus of his income in the bank as well as the one who puts it into a home. If the tax is necessary, it seems to pe fairly apportioned.—Ottawa Free Press.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Being in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. The departmental estimates will come up for discussion. The whole will represent a higher expenditure than last year despite the efforts of the various committees to keep them down.

The Tax Rate.

There is much speculation as to the tax rate for the current year. It looked at one time as though the rate might be reduced by one-half mill. It may keep the Council busy to hold it down to last year's rate of twenty-five mills.

Increased Assessment.

The increasd expenditures that may be found necessary during the current year will be counterbalanced to some extent by the increase in assessment which amounts to something over two million dollars.

Commissioners Sympathize.

"Ye should sympathize with the efforts of the City Council to keep the tax rate down during this trying time" said His Honour Judge Hurycke at Saturday's meeting of the Police Commissioners. This remark followed the reading of a communication from the Council, asking the Commissioners to keep the estimates as low as possible.

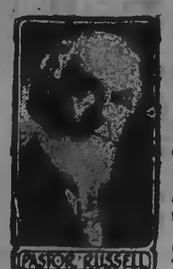
WHY, WHEN AND HOW THE SECOND ADVENT

"Billy" Sunday's View Is Better Than That of "Orthodoxy".

Bible Views Long Buried Now Coming to Light—Erroneous Teachings of the Creeds—Reasonableness of Bible Presentation — Instead of World-Burning, Messiah's Kingdom Will Bring World-Wide Blessing — Anarchy Destructive as a Fire Will Prepare the Way—"The Desire of All Nations."

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]



PASTOR RUSSELL

Norfolk, Va. "Why, When and How of the Second Advent," February 28. — Pastor Russell addressing a large audience here today, discussed How Christ's Second Advent," from the text, "If I go away, I will come again and receive you.' (John 14:3.) He complimented "Billy" Sunday by saying that although "Billy's" teachings do not come up to the Bible, nevertheless he is far ahead of so-called "orthodoxy" on this subject.

Mr. Sunday preaches considerably [illegible] this subject, and the Pastor, yet still comes far short of my conception of the Bible teaching Mr. Sunday's presentation recognizes that the Lord Jesus at His Second Coming will establish a world-wide Empire which will bless the entire world with light, knowledge and fullest opportunity to walk in the ways of righteousness. To this we agree.

But we disagree with Mr. Sunday's theory that the thousands of millions who died during the past six thousand years in ignorance of Christ are to suffer tortures to all eternity because of that ignorance. Amongst these billions he includes all who have never heard of Jesus' name in the true sense in heathen lands, and at home where, he explains to us, some of them were led straight down to Hell by the churches. These billions, according to Mr. Sunday, were very unfairly treated—very unlucky.

We disagree with this and present the Bible thought, that the dead are neither in a fiery Purgatory nor in a fiery Hell, but in the Bible Hell—the tomb. We insist that the Bible teaches that "all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God and come forth." The saintly will come forth to the rewards of the Church in glory with Christ in His Kingdom. Others will come forth to a resurrection—a raising up out of sin and death—by judgment. See Revised Version, John 5:28, 29.

These billions who have not intelligently heard of Jesus and His salvation are not on trial now. Their death is the penalty of Adam's sin and not of their personal rejection of Jesus, whom they never knew. It is to give these the opportunity of a judgment, or trial, during the thousand years of Christ's Reign, that they will be called forth from the tomb. As all died through one man's disobedience, all are to be awakened and brought forth to an opportunity of everlasting life through the obedience of the other man—Christ. The resurrection of the dead, both just and unjust, is their hope. (Acts 24:15.) Aside from a resurrection, there is no hope. It is in view of this that the whole world, good and bad, are said to "sleep with their fathers."

Those who style themselves "Orthodox" are still further astray from the Bible than is Mr. Sunday. While the latter proposes Millennial blessings for the fortunates living at the Second Advent, "Orthodoxy" declares to the contrary—that there will be no Millennium—that there will be no hope for anybody except the Elect few. They hold that, instead of establishing His Kingdom at His Second Advent, Jesus will destroy the earth and its inhabitants with fire. They overlook the teachings of the Lord's Prayer—that His people should pray "Thy Kingdom come," and expect it; and that they should believe that ultimately God's will shall be done on earth as fully as it is now done in Heaven. They neglect the Scriptures which tell that Paradise, lost as the Garden of Eden, is to be restored world-wide—that "the earth is God's footstool," and that "He will make the place of His feet glorious."—Isaiah 60:13; 66:1.

They neglect the Bible declaration that "the earth abideth forever"; and that God "created it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited." (Ecclesiastes 1:4; Isaiah 45:18.) They neglect St. Peter's declaration that the Restitution Times mentioned by all the Holy Prophets are to be realized at the Second Coming of Jesus. (Acts 3:19-21.) Instead, they hold, and express it in all their creeds—Catholic and Protestant—that at Christ's Second Coming the earth and its inhabitants are to be consumed with literal fire. They are led to thus give a literal interpretation to St. Peter's symbolic statements, which portray the fire of anarchy which will destroy present institutions and make way for the New Heavens and the New Earth—the New Dispensation of Messiah's Kingdom.

They fall into this error because of another formed during the Dark Ages: namely, that the only kingdom of God that this world will ever see will be such an one as it is now enjoying, while the various so called kingdoms of God are butchering each other. Each is trying to justify its own selfish course, and all unite in saying that the civilized nations of to-day are Christendom — Christ's Kingdom.

This theory began in the year 800, with Pope Leo III., since which time Catholics claim that the Church is glorified, reigning with Christ, and the Pope serving as the world's king—vicegerent, or instead of Messiah's. English, German and other reformers coming out of Catholicism brought with them the same theory, which has been falsely added to the Lord's Prayer in the words, "Thine is the Kingdom and the power and the glory forever," which words do not appear in the oldest MSS. nor in the Revised Version. Protestants generally, refusing the Pope as the vicegerent of Christ, are much confused when they attempt to explain the Kingdom for which they pray, "Thy Kingdom come," and the reference in Revelation to its lasting a thousand years. Protestant preachers are becoming Higher Critics, Evolutionists, etc., and take little account of the Bible testimony. What a pity that such do not instead resign their pulpits and enter business life, where higher standards of honesty prevail!

There are honest preachers who believe the Bible, yet find it difficult to believe respecting Messiah's Kingdom. Properly enough these argue that if Jesus has been glorified for eighteen centuries as a Spirit Being, at the right hand of the Father, and has been preparing the Church for the Heavenly Courts, it would seem to be a retrogression for Him to return to earth and establish an earthly kingdom with soldiers, servants, courtiers, etc. Properly they reason that the Lord Jesus to leave the Throne of Heavenly Glory, and return to sit upon a throne of gold and ivory, would seemingly be taking a backward step.

The difficulty is that these ministers have slipped a few cogs in the great Divine Plan of the Ages. What they need yet to note in the Bible is that Christ and His Church, His Bride class, the Royal Priesthood, the Household of Faith, are the only ones of the human family promised a share in the Heavenly rewards and blessings—that the Divine arrangement for the remainder of mankind is an earthly Eden, or Paradise, and human perfection in the Divine likeness. They fail to see that the saintly Church, now being gathered from the world for eighteen centuries, will compose a Spiritual Kingdom which, backed by Infinite Wisdom and Power, will be better able to serve the world's interests than could any earthly kingdom; and that, furthermore, the Divine Plan provides that the Ancient Worthies, from Abel down to John the Baptist, are to be resurrected perfect human beings, who will be honored by being made "princes in all the earth"—representatives, agents, of the invisible Spiritual Kingdom then in control.

Our Lord's many parables relate to His Church as a Kingdom class, a Royal Priesthood. This does not signify that He intended them to occupy places of honor and distinction now. The Master Himself was neither a King nor a Priest on earth. His is the Melchizedek Priesthood of the Messianic Age. Then He will also be the great King over all the earth. Well did He declare to Pilate, "My Kingdom is not of this Age" (John 18:36). As His saintly followers are to share in His Kingdom, they also must wait for its establishment. While waiting they pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in Heaven."

Of this Royal Priesthood the Apostle John declares, "The world knoweth us not." We are kings and priests only from the Divine standpoint, which none are able to recognize except "the brethren." Only in embryo are God's saints spoken of as the Kingdom class. They are now on probation. Jesus says that the overcomers will be granted to sit with Him in His Throne, as actual members of the Royal Priesthood, to reign with Him a thousand years.—Revelation 3:21; 20:6.

After telling about the resurrection of the dead, St. Paul explains that the resurrection of the Church to glory, honor and immortality will be first on the program. Subsequently all will come forth, "every man in his own order," and Christ shall reign until He shall have put down all insubordination. Other Scriptures clearly inform us that the length of His Reign will be a thousand years.

From the Bible viewpoint the Thousand-year Day of Christ is ample for the great work to which it has been consecrated by the all-wise Creator from before the foundation of the earth. Nor should we forget that all power in Heaven and earth is vested in the One who then will take the Throne. Neither should we forget that for eighteen centuries the Church has been under special preparation and instruction in the School of Christ, training for their work as a Royal Priesthood. They will be able to sympathise with the groaning creation and to be merciful, even in the administration of stripes necessary to many for their assistance along the Highway of Holiness, then opened up.

Some of the noblest minds have been repelled from faith in the Second Advent by the thought of an earthly Kingdom with Christ and the saints in regal state. They were quite right in thinking that earthly court and state would be beneath the dignity of Messiah and His Bride. The Scriptures declare that Jesus left His glory, humbled Himself to become a man, in order that He might become the great Sin-Offering for our race. But the Redeemer prayed to be glorified with the glory which He had with the Father before the world was; and He promised His Church a share in His Heavenly glory. Did He lead us to expect a Heavenly glory, Heavenly inheritance and glorious change from earthly to Heavenly conditions, and will He give us, instead, earthly glory and merely perfection in the flesh?

How slow we have been to see that God never purposed that either Jesus or His faithful Elect should remain in the flesh! A few Bible statements misunderstood got us into difficulty. We read, "Every eye shall see Him," and forget that there are eyes of understanding as well as natural eyes. We forgot that Jesus declares that very few now see or hear—only the saintly, whose eyes of understanding have been opened by the anointing of the Holy Spirit. We forgot that Jesus said, "A little while and the world seeth Me no more." When once we discern that He has been glorified—that He has been given a spirit nature again, that He no longer has the human nature which He surrendered as a Sin-Sacrifice, then we see why the world will see Him no more, and why the Church must be changed by resurrection power before she can see Him.

Jesus left the world, not so much in the sense of going so far away that He could not see His disciples and communicate with them, but rather in the sense that He would not see them or communicate with them. He would compel them to "walk by faith and not by sight," to "search the Scriptures," and to receive their spiritual blessings through the fellowship of the Spirit of Truth. By His Holy Spirit He would be with them, and not by personal contact or further manifestations.

His Second Coming would be at the end of the Age, to awaken His sleeping saints and to change them to the Heavenly state. Thus He would come again and receive them unto Himself—first the sleeping ones and subsequently those alive and remaining, who would experience their resurrection change in the moment of death. Additionally, in the Harvest with which the Age ends, He promised to take special supervision of the gathering of His Elect.

This stage of His Coming is called, in the Greek, His Parousia—His presence. The world is not to know of His Parousia. On the contrary, it is described as secret—"as a thief in the night." Jesus described His Parousia, saying that at that time the world would be eating, drinking, planting, building, and knew not of His Coming in the Harvest of the Age, even as the world in the days of Noah knew not. The intimation is, however, that some of God's people would be made aware of His Parousia; while others of God's people, the Foolish Virgins, would be overcharged with the cares of this life, and know not.

If Jesus really meant it when He said, "A little while and the world seeth Me no more," how can humanity know about the new, invisible Kingdom? The Bible answers most distinctly. It tells of the shining forth, the Epiphania, of the Messianic Kingdom. It tells of His Apokalupsis, manifestation, or revealment —"He shall be revealed in flaming fire." This flaming fire signifies severe judgments, as elsewhere. These are to be so severe that the elements of society will melt with the fervency of the heat in a terrible Time of Trouble. Additionally, "the heavens," the ecclesiastical systems, will be involved, and will pass away with a great noise, or commotion. It is from this revealing in flaming fire, Divine censure upon the world, that the great, the high, the mighty, the poor, all, shall seek to "hide themselves in the dens and caves of the earth"—in the social orders and in affiliation with strong governments, etc.

Gradually mankind will see that it is "the wrath of the Lamb" that causes the "Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation." The plowshare of trouble will go so deep that the world will effectually learn the lesson. As their eyes of understanding open still more widely, they will discern the beauties and blessings of the Messianic Kingdom —"the desire of all nations."

But first The Christ, Jesus the Head and the Church the Body, Bridegroom and Bride, must enter into the glory of the Kingdom. Then will be established the earthly phase of the Kingdom in the hands of the Ancient Worthies. The world will "see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets"; but they will not see the King, nor the Bride, nor "the virgins her companions" on the spirit plane. These will be as invisible to humanity as are Satan and his demon host at the present time.

One of our great obstacles in the past has been the failure to discern that God has been presenting two distinct salvations—that of the Church to the spiritual, Heavenly, Divine nature; and that of the non-elect, through the elect Church. To them will come the opportunity of earthly Restitution to human perfection, in the image and likeness of God, as was Adam—in a world-wide Paradise. Our Saviour's First Advent was necessary for the redemption of mankind. His Second Advent is for the overthrow of Satan and sin and for the release of sinners.

We cannot here discuss fully how Christ comes as a thief, but we offer free of charge a booklet which we have written with a view to making the matter very clear. Whoever will address me—Pastor Russell, Brooklyn, N.Y.—requesting a copy of Parousia Booklet—will receive a copy free.

Could Hardly Straighten Up For The Pain In Her Back.

Many women suffer from an excruciating pain in the back. They are not even able to look after the common duties of their housework, and cannot even walk at times.

The whole trouble is that the kidneys have become affected, and when the kidneys get "out of kilter" the whole system becomes deranged. On the first sign of a weak, lame, aching back you should not neglect it, for if you do, you may be sure that some serious kidney trouble will follow.

What you want is a kidney medicine, for kidneys only. This you will find in Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's Kidney Pills know nothing but kidney disorders, because they're made for kidneys only.

Mrs. George Craigie, Rose Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills did for me. I was suffering with a lame back, and for several days I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I had used quite a lot of other kind of pills, but received no relief. Just then my sister told me about what "Doan's" had done for her, so I decided to try them. I used three boxes and I am completely cured. I do not hesitate to recommend them to all."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Grey, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

"SPOILERS"

Famous Photo Play Opens at Grand Opera House Thursday, March 4th, For Three Days

(Initial Appearance in Canada.)

The first appearance of the famous film "The Spoilers," was made in Canada at the Princess Theatre, Montreal. This production is a visualization of the book of the same name by the popular American author, Rex Beach, and is in three acts and nine parts. It was produced by the Selig Company at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars, the company having gone to Nome to take the scenes. Mr. William Farnum and Miss Kathlyn Williams play the leading roles. "The Spoilers" tells not only a gripping, interesting, pure love story, but is filled with action and incidents from start to finish that will live in the memory of those who witness it forever. This story and film exemplifies and typifies real red-blooded Canadians and Americans. It graphically depicts the onward march of civilization to a cold, barren, rugged country that has taken its place in history as one of the richest possession of America, and is marked as the last of the great gold strikes.

This famous film has created nothing short of a furore in all the American cities where shown, having had a record breaking engagement in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. In the latter cities, thousands of people were unable to gain admission to this production.

Mr. Turner has secured "The Spoilers" for presentation at the Grand Opera House three days commencing on Thursday afternoon, March 4th. The prices of admission will be 10 and 15c for matinees and 10, 15 and 25c at night. Matinee at 2:30. Night 8:15.

TRAVEL

By F. M. DELA FOSSE

My earliest recollections are connected with India, centring round a [illegible] explorer, landed on its shores.

The Indian Empire is an immense empire, so immense that at one end [illegible] slopes of the ice-clad Himalayas, and a great city past whose walls rolled the waters of the mighty Ganges. The memories are vague and indistinct, and I could no more give the exact location of the province wherein the bungalow was situated, or the name of the city past whose walls the river flowed than I could, offhand, call out the letters of the alphabet backwards. But, confused and indistinct as these memories are, they are, nevertheless, realities. For there was something beyond the mere living in a bungalow, or the sight of a great river to rivet these things in my mind. In the first place the grandeur of the snow-clad peaks of the highest mountains in the world created such an indelible impression that even through the vista of the receding years I still see them looming up in the gathering shadows whilst the never-to-be-forgotten spectacle of human corpses floating past the city walls on the sacred waters created another impression on my mind that has never passed away. I did not know then but I know now, that the corpses were the corpses of Brahmin dead had been cast by mourners on the bosom of the Ganges to be carried to Paradise.

India is undoubtedly one of the most interesting countries in the world, and yet it is within only recent times that it has begun to excite that attention that its importance and merit deserve Its earliest historic records are obscure. We know that its subjugation was attempted by Sesostris, Darius and Alexander the Great, but we know little of the details. Tradition leads us to believe, however, that art and science flourished amongst the Hindoos long before they had obtained a footing in Egypt, Persia or Greece. But the written memorials of its past are so filled with fable that it is impossible to separate the true from the false, and we only get a true view of its history from the time that its discoverer Vasco De Game, the Portuguese other excessive cold, the fruits of the temperate zone and the pines of the far north are equally natives of its soil. Side by side with valleys of unsurpassed richness stretch tracts of impenetrable jungle and forest, peopled with some of the fiercest animals and deadliest serpents known to man .It is a country of contrarieties, for right in the heart of apparently inaccessible mountains will be found wonderfully fertile plains of unsurpassing beauty such as the little kingdom of Cashmere, which is held by many travellers to be a terrestrial paradise in miniature.

Leaving its physical aspects we may turn where we will and still find cause for wonderment in the customs of the people, their religious rites, their magnificent buildings, and the surlious juxta-position of splendour and squalor that their life exhibits. Their system of caste derived from the Portuguese word "casta," a breed, has obtained for many centuries and, strange as it may appear, there are many advantages derived from the exercise of it. It corresponds to the class system of other countries, but carries with it penalties for its loss which are, in many cases, absolutely abhorrent. There are four great castes in India. The Brahmins, who exercise all ecclesiastical functions, the Vaisyas, the Sudras, or labourers, and lastly, the Parishs. The Parishs can hardly be regarded as a caste, as they are held in universal contempt by all the other natives. Hindoos, who lose caste are ranked with the Pariahs, and the degradation is regarded as worse than death. There are innumerable sects or tribes, the most notable of which in days gone by, were the Thugs, a sect of assassins who worshipped the god Kali, who presided over sensual indulgence and destruction. The Thugs were exterminated years ago, but their fame survives. Whilst on this subject mention must be made of the Fakirs, that mysterious order of priests who live for the most part in convents and, having taken upon themselves vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, consider themselves part of the Deity. Some of these fanatics wear no clothing, and may be seen sitting naked, day and night, on a bed of nails under the shade of the great trees surrounding the temples of their idols. They perform many strange acts of penance, such as standing on their heads for a whole day, keeping their arms held aloft for weeks, making long pilgrimages, with their feet loaded with heavy weights, etc. They think that by such acts they earn an entrance into heaven. They are wonderful conjurers, too, and their feats are the amazement of everyone who sees them. One could write two or three pages more with case on the subject of the fakire as well as on many other aspects of Indian life. If enough has been written, however, to show what an interesting country India is, and to raise the desire in one here or one there to read books of travel relating to it, this article will not have been written in vain.

Japan Will Not Press Demands.

PEKIN, China, Feb. 27.—The outlook for an adjustment of the differences which have arisen between China and Japan has improved distinctly. The conferences between representatives of the two nations apparently are progressing toward a compromise.

The most important step yet taken in this direction was disclosed here yesterday. The Japanese Government has given indications which are regarded as definite, that it will not insist for the present upon the group of general demands which it presented.

Becker Denied New Trial.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. — Supreme Court Justice Weol yesterday afternoon denied the application of counsel for former Lieut. of Police Chas. Becker, who is under sentence of death, for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

The application was based on an alleged affidavit of Jas. Marshall, a negro who testified at the second trial of Becker, in which he recanted his testimony.

Girls With Beautiful Faces or Graceful Figures

Canadian girls have a world-wide reputation for beauty, but, at the same time, there are girls in our cities who possess neither beauty of face nor form, because in these instances they suffer from nervousness, the result of disorders of the womanly organism. At regular intervals they suffer so much that their strength leaves them; they are so prostrated that it takes days for them to recover their strength. Of course, such periodic distress has its bad effect on the nervous system. The withered and drawn faces, the dark circles and crow's feet about the eyes, the straight figure without those curves which lend so much to feminine beauty are the unmistakable signs of womanly disorders.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when women pass through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the entire system in excellent condition.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help get Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription in liquid or tablet form. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive confidential advice from a staff of specialists, that's free. Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada, at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.—Adv.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WHO WHS THE GOAT?

"If you put it in water on your desk it will keep fresh for days," said Dorine Fable as she pinned a marigold on the coat lapel of young Doctor Hanscom.

"I'll do it and you'll see me wear it home every night while it lives," replied the doctor. "And for good behaviour perhaps you'll do me the honour of pinning on another?"

Dorine nodded. Her dimples played about her mouth when she smiled and the sight of them had become a very interesting part of Doctor Hanscom's summer sojourn at the Laketon Hotel. He was a young veterinary surgeon and his office and visiting hours were not long, so that he had had the advantage over many of the summer men at the hotel by getting home early. And it seemed almost as if Dorine waited for him on the tennis court or on the veranda.

Several times on the suburban train that took them to the city he thought of the girl's face as she had reached up to put the little flower on his coat.

That evening while he was at dinner Dorine came into the dining room with her mother, and they both wore automobile costumes.

Dorine gave him her usual bright smile and nod, and then her eyes fell on his coat lapel, which was guiltless of adornment. A slight flush burned her cheeks and after that she gave him only cursory glances, and when he asked her to walk with him as he passed her in the corridor she declined almost frigidly.

For three days he did not have conversation with her. He saw her across the dining room with her father, mother and brother, and he received each time a cool little nod from Dorine. It was Saturday night at the weekly dance that he determined to talk with her.

He waited for her at the big double door leading into the ballroom. He had fully decided to force her to listen to him. As she came downstairs, lovely in a white dancing dress, he met her face to face.

"This has been our dance all summer, Dorine. Have it with me now." He put his arm about her and they stepped off together in the hesitation waltz they had learned to dance so well as partners.

When the dance was over he led her out through the French windows that opened onto a secluded veranda.

"Sit down," Joe said, drawing up a chair. Himself, he sat on the railing facing her.

"Now," he began, "what is the matter? Why have you deliberately avoided me for days?" He paused. "I know—it was because you thought I was careless about your flower — that I had forgotten it."

"You were—you did," said Dorine with asperity. "And I know very well why it was—"

"Dorine—" began Joe, but she interrupted him.

"Wait—let me tell you! Let me show you that I realize all about it before you tell me your excuse. She laid emphasis on the last word.

"George — my brother — told me when he saw me pinning it on you that you would never be seen wearing a yellow flower—that it was the emblem of the suffragist! So you let some one ridicule you out of it. I did not pin it on you because of my views on this woman question — though they are very strongly in favour of it—but because I was beginning to—well, to like you, and I always give father and George a buttonhole bouquet when they leave in the morning. I—I was very foolish to do it," she said.

"Dorine Fable, listen to me," the young man said, earnestly. "This sounds so funny I can hardly tell you, though I assure you it isn't funny to me. The morning you gave me that flower I was called out to the estate of Mr. Phillips to see what was the matter with the foot of a very fine goat. While I was looking at its foot the animal chewed my flower off and the stable man who was with us roared with laughter. If you doubt this, I will show you the withered stem still pinned to the under side of my coat lapel. I had not put it in water on my desk, but was still wearing it. Now, do you see how badly you have treated me? Do you, Dorine?"

"And—and it wasn't because it was yellow, then?" she asked.

"Search me! Maybe the goat was an anti-suffragist, but I'm not responsible for his views. Seriously, Dorine, aren't you sorry?"

Dorine nodded.

And then Doctor Hanscom whispered three little words in Dorine's ear.

Worse Than Submarines

Drink Hurts Britain Worse Than Enemy Says Lloyd George

LONDON, March 1. — At Bangor yesterday Chancellor Lloyd George in a public speech said there were workmen in the armament works who refused to work a full week, and added that this is due mostly to strong drink, "which is doing more damage than all the German submarines put together. The Government has wide powers to deal with the drink question, and it means to use them." he dtclartd. He said a small minority of the workmen employed in the armament factories had refused to work a full week because of the lure of drink.

The Government would use its powers discreetly and in a spirit of moderation, Mr. Lloyd George asserted, but "fearlessly." He was sure the public would support whatever action was taken and allow no indulgence of this kind to interfere with the country's prospects in the war.

Rousing Reception To Commissioner Richards by All Classes of Citizens

Enthusiastic Public Welcome in the Opera House to the New Leader of the Salvation Army in Canada on His First Visit to Peterboro'—Many Were Turned Away.

HOME GUARD ATTENDED

Peterborough gave Commissioner W. J. Richards, the recently appointed head of the Salvation Army in Canada, an enthusiastic welcome at a public meeting held on Sunday afternoon in the Opera House. Citizens of all denominations and classes were well represented. The accommodation of the Grand, from the back drop on the stage to the loftiest row in the top gallery, was taxed to the limit, and many were unable to gain admission. It was a spontaneous expression of regard to the successor of the late lamented David Rees, whose heroic self-sacrifice was one of the most pathetic and impressive incidents of the sinking of the ill-fated Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence last summer. It was a testimonial to the high regard in which the work of the Salvation Army has done and is doing in Canada, and particularly in Peterborough. Incidentally, the meeting was a tribute to Adjutant and Mrs. McElheney, not only as the officers of the Peterborough corps but especially for their whole hearted activities and interest in the city's welfare.

Commissioner Richards comes to Canada with a fine record in the Old Country, in Denmark, in South America, and more recently in New Zealand, where he was field officer. He is [illegible] predecessor, the gentle Rees. He has apparently a rich fund of humour, and in his narration of an anecdote or in the emphasis of a serious point to his address, suggests a histrionic talent beyond the ordinary. He breathes zeal, confidence, simplicity, and a love for the lowliest publican.

Deep Patriotism.

In his address, Commissioner Richards expressed a fine sentiment of patriotism in the present crisis, and especially in the future development of Canada in so far as his influence could be brought to bear. He spoke encouragement and compliment to the Home Guards, whose parade to the Opera House at practically full strength to assist in the public welcome, he mentioned.

Among those Present.

Mayor Buller performed the duties of chairman with the grace and savoir of experience. Among those on the platform with His Worship and Commissioner Richards, were Colonel Gaskin, second in command of this territory, Major Arnold, head of the singing corps, and Captain Barker, the Commissioner's private secretary, of Toronto; Brig. Rawling, of Montreal, His Honour Judge Huycke, Chief of Police Thompson, Fire Chief Howard, Ald. Dobbin, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Duffus, Ald. Saunders, ex-Ald. Duncan, ex-Ald. Langford, W. R. Morris, Jos. Batten, D. H. Moore, Dr. Carmichael George Powell, D. Kerneghan, ex-Ald. Anderson, R. Winch, R. E. Layfield, Dr. Amys, F. Bartlett, A. B. Cunningham, F. D. Kerr, E. F. Mason, and others.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Colonel Gaskin, after which a hymn was sung with the band accompaniment.

Major Arnold sang a solo in fine voice. Aljt. McElheney spoke briefly, thanking the citizens and especially the Home Guards upon their welcome. "You have paid us a compliment, and we appreciate it very much indeed," he said.

In his address Mayor Buller referred to the loss of Commissioner Reeves. "We thught it would take a long time to recover from the loss of the staff officers, but there are always provided some one to step up the times of stress." His worship said that it was a pleasure to welcome the Commissioner on behalf of the citizens, and hoped his administration would be fruitful of great good. "We appreciate the work of Adjt. and Mrs. McElheney have done in this city."

Commissioner Richards

The Commissioner's speech sparkled with humourous touches, mostly incidents in his long and varied experience. The body of his address was an outline of his credentials on coming here, and the work he would take up. He did not intend to pull up any foundations nor tear down any edifices which he found here. They were all deep and solidly built. "It is for me to put in a few bricks in the strong structure already reared." His predecessors had been able men. "I am not going to try to fill the shoes of the late Commissioner Rees. It is not possible that another could come here and take his place. I will try my best to carry out some of the ideas he had in mind."

His first credential Commissioner Richards said, was that he was a Salvationist through and through. He had not altered in the 37 years since his second bench at the penitent form. He had come up from the ranks through all the offices. His seven sons are all devoted to the work; one in Buenos Aires, another in Java, a third in Johannesburg, one in Bulowayo, Rhodesia, one in London, one in Toronto, and another in Amsterdam, where he had recently arrived from Berlin. "If I had 200 more children they would all be in it," he remarked.

The Salvation Army officers and men in Canada, the rank and file, were of the finest, he said—none better in the world.

Commissioner Richards made a plea for men to stand by their colours, not sway this way and that. Be on the Lord's side and stay on it, and, above all, have the "backbone" and principle of standing up for God. The man whose backbone is merely so much jelly gives more trouble to a minister and to the spiritually inclined around about them than can be estimated. On the other hand, the man standing firmly for his faith and conviction was a great source of strength and edification.

JUDGE HUYCKE.

In moving a vote of welcome and thanks to the Commissioner, Judge Huycke said: "It is for yourself, for the message you have brought, for your character, to do honour to the Salvation Army and the principles reverenced." His Honour included a neat eulogy of Mrs. McElhiney and the Adjutant.

R. E. Layfield, officer commanding the Home Guard, seconded the motion, speaking briefly and acknowledging the references made to the Guard.

Mayor Buller and the local visitors were given a hearty vote of thanks, with Col. Gaskin proposing it. The meeting closed with the Doxology and prayer.

The band, under Bandmaster Beer, were in grand form, and have never appeared to better advantage. Their march airs and the opening "Rousseau" at the Opera House were, above all, delightfully harmonious. One feels that already there are strong indications of improvement, if possible, under the new bandmaster.

The Home Guard acquitted themselves like veterans of the parade floor. They were out in large numbers, with No. 6 very strong, and with the Salvation Army Band at their head, their appearance was most creditable. The Junior Band, by the way, are worthy of mention in connection with the parade.

CANADIAN HONORS FRIENDS AND ISLAND

The above heading appears in the Isle of Pines Appeal of last week, together with a poem written by Mr. David Moore of Peterborough, who is spending some weeks in the West Indies, with headquarters at the Mountain Inn at Vivijagua. The verses were composed on the occasion of the 42nd anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. R. Walton, also residents of Vivijagua and formerly of Nelson, B.C., Can., and were read in response to a toast at the dinner given in their honour on the evening of February 5. Mr. and Mrs. Walton are old-time residents of Peterborough, and have many friends and relatives here.

If there e'er was a time
When a small bit of rhyme,
Would serve an occasion, I think it must me,
My good friends right here
When from far and from near,
We have met in this beautiful Isle of the sea.

For its fame and its worth
From the land of our birth,
Have beckoned and lured us to linger awhile
In this glorious clime—
And too swift speeds the time
In this land of enchantment, this beautiful Isle.

When the wintry winds roar
Round many a shore,
Here warm waters murmur, and bright the sun shines;
And happy the hours
'Mid the fruits and the flowers,
In this gem of the ocean, the fair
Isle of Pines.

And when follows the night
On the day's golden light,
And o'er valleys and mountains the bright moonlight shines;
Then our eyes must behold
Added beauties unfold;
So in dreams I will see thee, beloved Isle of Pines.

But it is not to praise
Thy nights or thy days,
Dear island of beauty I now pen
this song;
[illegible]
Two friends of our host
Who are with us to-night in this bright little throng.

For forty-two years
Amid gladness and tears
They have shared with each other life's blessing and joy;
And we see them to-night
Just as cheerful and bright
As when they were courting—a girl and a boy.

We have known them awhile
In this bright little Isle,
Very soon we will part some to never more meet;
But while we've been here
To our hearts they've grown dear,
And in mem'ry the meeting will ever be sweet.

And as these candles burn
One and all we may learn
A lesson that's old, and yet ever new—
How a loving regard
Wins a fitting reward,
And happy are hearts that are kind and true.

To cease I am loath—
But may Heaven bless them both,
And grant their dear hearts through years yet to come,
The best gifts from above,
And all gladness and love,
And many bright years, in their Isle of Pines home.
—David Moore.

Offer of Sharpshooters Declined.

LONDON, March 1.—Lord Cheylesmore, presiding at the winter meeting of the National Rifle Association, said that he had asked the War Office if they would permit them to raise a battalion of Bisley shots. The War Office refused this request, as they had formed a school of musketry. The offer to place Bisley camp and ranges at the disposal of the army was at once accepted. After serious consideration the council had decided that it was impossible to hold a Bisley meeting this year.

THE SOUNDING OF THE SEVENTH TRUMPET

Another important theme was delivered by Elder Johnston, last evening in the Woodmen Hall, over Nugent's drug store, entitled "The Sounding of the Seventh Trumpet." Taking for his text Rev. 10:7, where it says that "In the days of the voice of the seventh angel when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished." It was proven by referring to Eph. 3:2-4 and 6-9, also Col. 1:26,27, that this mystery is none other than the Gospel of Christ, and that when it said the mystery of God would be finished under the seventh trumpet, it meant that the Gospel would be finished. That such will be true was proven, from Rom. 9:28.

Mr. Johnston then traced out the history of the Gospel and proved that the Gospel began at Creation, by referring to such a Scripture as Rev. 13:8, last clause. He proved that Moses knew of Christ, in John 5:46; also Abraham, John 8:56, and Galations 3:8; also Isa. 53:5-7. Instead, therefore of the Gospel beginning only 1900 years ago the Gospel dispensation is 6,000 years old.

This work, however, he declared would be finished when the seventh angel of Rev. 10:17 sounds, and this will be when Christ leaves the sanctuary to come to this earth, and Mr. Johnston said that if those who believe in a future probation after Christ comes, will read Rev. 22:11,12, they will see that on the contrary, the doom of sinners is sealed by this decree before Christ comes; for after saying in this Scripture "He that is filthy let him be filthy still," etc., says in the next verse, "Behold I come quickly." How then, can the Russelites believe in a future chance after Christ comes? This passage shows the folly of that theory. The mystery of God, according to our text in Rev. 10:7, is to be finished, not continued on, after Christ comes.

Mr. Johnston then dwelt considerably on the nearness of the coming of Christ, and exhorted the people to get ready. But how can we ever get ready? There is only one way, and that is by accepting Christ, and asking Him to pardon our sins.

Mr. Johnston then enquired "What is sin?" The Bible defines it in I. John, 3:4, as being the transgressing of God's law. This is a Scripture, so Mr. Johnston said, the ministers do not dare to dwell upon, or else it would stultify them, for if they believe it a sin to violate God's law given on Sinai they would also have to preach that it is a sin to break the Sabbath command which says "The seventh day is the Sabbath."

A goodly crowd was present and listened with eager attention.

No Reduction In Prices

ST. CATHARINES, March 1.—Although it was reported to the Lincoln and Welland Vegetable and Fruit Growers' Association, at a meeting here, that the Dominion Canners had refused to retain the old price of 30 cents per bushel for tomatoes for canning, a resolution to rescind the motion passed a few weeks ago, pledging the members to decline to accept the lower price, failed to receive a seconder, and the chief topic of discussion was that the crop of tomatoes should be curtailed this year, and the growers should go into raising more staple foods, such as beans and grains, and thus help the patriotism and production movement.

Russians Abroad Must Serve.

LONDON, March 1.—The Russian consul-general here has issued a statement received from Petrograd announcing that Russians living abroad will henceforth be liable to military service and must return immediately to Russia. Those belonging to the classes called to the colors who remain abroad after March 1 will be liable to punishment, according to the Russian law.

Intentions Concerning German Commerce Will be Announced To-day

LONDON, March 1.—In the House of Commons to-day formal pronouncement will be made of the allies' intentions concerning German commerce. It will constitute one of the most important pronouncements of international law in history, upsetting old usages and making new rules. Urgent necessity, and Germany's departures from accepted principles will be cited as justifying the unusual and momentous course. There's no question but that the Government will have the enthusiastic support of the nation as well as the other allies, and when protests from neutrals come, as they surely will, the allied nations will present a united front, insistent upon having their hands free to deal with the unscrupulous enemy as they think best. There are indications that in announcing their policy they hold themselves at liberty completely to stop German commerce. Great Britain and France are not only threatening to follow that course, but fully intend doing so

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE POLICE MATRON

Improvement is Noted in the Morals and Discipline of the City —Mrs. McElhiney Made 630 Visits During the Year

STATEMENT OF WORK

A new addition to the list of annual reports that represent the work of the various municipal departments is that of Mrs. A. McElhiney, Police Matron. This office was established last year at the instance of the Police Commissioners and might be said to have resulted from the agitation for a policewoman.

Mrs. McElhiney reports as follows:

"I beg to submit my report as police matron for the City of Peterborough for the year ending 31st of December, 1914, and in doing so I wish to express my sincere thanks for all the kindness and help given me by the Police Commissioners, his Honour Judge Huycke, his Worship Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Buller, also for the help and encouragement given by Chief Thompson, and members of his department.

Out of the forty cases handled directly through Police Court some severe means had to be used to protect some of the women from themselves, and consequently they had to be sent to the Reformatory. Judging from letters I have received from time to time it seems as if this was the proper course to pursue, for most of them are coming to themselves, and I believe will be better for the descipline they are undergoing.

A Few Have Returned.

Other female prisoners who were either fined or let out on suspended sentence have done well, a very small percentage of them returning to be dealt with the second time. In fact some of them have been converted and are endeavouring to lead better lives.

In dealing with these cases we have found that following them up with a little encouragement has had a lot to do with their reformation. I have visited them and had them come to see me, and through this medium I have been able to keep in touch with them all.

The number of investigations that I have been called upon to make by the Chief Constable together with a number of others who came to me personally revealed the fact that a great many of the difficulties can be dealt with outside of Police Court, and we are hopeful that these investigations will result in much good.

We have sent 20 girls to homes and have had those responsible for their condition, prosecuted, and where sufficient evidence could not be obtained to carry on a criminal prosecution, they were made pay the expenses so far as possible. We arranged with our homes at Toronto and Ottawa, to take the girls and when they were ready to come out have seen that they got comfortable homes and dealt with the children when board or adoption was necessary.

A General Improvement.

Dealing with the children and parents where proper control was lacking has taken a great deal of our attention, but all along the line there seems to be a general improvement in morals and descipline in our city.

The following is a full statement of my work during the year:

Number of attendance at Police Court	55
Number of interviews	321
Number of visits	630
Number of investigations	50
Number of women sent to homes	20
Number of children dealt with	120

Was Well Received.

At Saturday's meeting of the Police Commissioners both His Honour Judge Huycke and Police Magistrate Dumble eulogized the work accomplished by Mrs. McElhiney.

WRITES FROM HOSPITAL

HAVELOCK, March 1.—The following interesting letter from Private Blatchford of the "Princess Pats" was received last week by Mr. Isaac Barlew.

Mr. Blatchford's friends here wish him a speedy recovery from his operation and hope that he will escape further injury during the war.

Military Hospital,
Princess Street, Manchester.

Dear Ike—Just a line to let you know I am all right. I have suffered a slight reverse by Mr. German, necessitating an operation, but hope to be soon fit again. I guess you what like to now a little of what it is like. Well, I am not much good at explaining things, but here goes. First of all you generally have to march five miles to get to the trenches, of course in the night. As you get near you come under fire and believe me you get that used to it that you take not much notice of it. Of course after all it's a great game of chance, as anyone of those bullets could hit you, but some miss, which makes the game worth playing. Well, after a time you get to your trenches and meet a very tired bunch of fellows coming out, who you are relieving. When you get inside you just sit down and the mud does the rest. It's not a bit of good trying to escape as the mud and water are everywhere, so you just make the best of it. In places fellows step into their necks and have to be dug out. Also, when there is no time to bury the dead they are left in a hole made by the shells and you would be surprised how quickly they disappear. Dead Frenchmen are everywhere, and I am sure in the summer that things will begin to buzz. I have had a couple of narrow squeaks, and had just left Capt. Newton when he got shot. That was one, and the other was when a stone thrown up by a shell hit the wrist watch given me by the good people of Havelock, taking the front away. How I happened to get hurt was in coming out of the trench. We had been heavily shelled all day and the going was not pleasant. How would you like, Ike, to be sitting behind a couple of feet of dirt waiting for a bullet to hit and then—. Well that is the game, Ike, in the day time, and the worst of it is you can't hit back, but leave that to our own artillery who, I must say, are pretty good at it. Each shell leaves a hole big enough to put a horse in. We had just paid a couple of our fellows in who had been killed and in avoiding them got in another pile and twisted my self a little. Well, I guess this letter is not very intelligible, but I will tell you better when I come back, if I have the luck. Give my respects to all friends.

Yours sincerely,
Pte. A. Blatchford,

INTERESTING MEETING OF THE W.C.T.U.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held Friday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A., with the President, Mrs. Whalley, in the chair. There was a splendid attenance.

Mrs. Matthews conducted the devotional exercises.

Mrs. T. W. Whalley and Mrs. H. A. Ellis were appointed delegate to the Dominion Alliance convention, which will be held in Toronto March 3rd.

After the business was concluded, Mrs. Morrison spoke on the life of Miss Francis E. Willard. In the first place she was well born. That is what the W.C.T.U. stands for, that children be well born. Her father and mother were fine types of Christians and always kept abreast of the times and thus held the respect of their children.

The first impression of her W.C.T.U. life was made in her forest home in Ohio, where she dwelt for years. She decided for Christ when she was 19 years of age. In the year 1874, the year of the Women's Christian Temperance Crusade, Miss Williard, busy as she was with her work at the University, found time to speak at temperance gatherings and assure the temperance women that she was with them hand, mind and heart. Her sympathy with the movement led to her resigning her chair in the University and going east to confer with the temperance people. While there she received two letters, one offering her the position of lady principal of a fashionable school at $2,400 a year, the other asking her to take the presidency of the Chicago branch of the W.C.T.U. She chose the latter, and afterwards she said, "I have felt that great promotion came to me when I was counted worthy to be a worker in the organized cause for God, home and native land. Agitate, Organize and Educate was her motto. Her last words were, "How beautiful it is to be with Jesus."

The thanks of the Union were given to Mrs. Morrison for her very helpful and interesting address.

CHIEF OF POLICE THOMPSON RECOMMENDS ESTABLISHMENT OF A PENSION FUND

Also That Each Member of the Police Department be Required to Pass an Examination in "First Aid" Before Being Advanced to Second Class Pay—Chief Thompson's Fifth Annual Report Contains Some Interesting Statistics—Substantial Decrease in Crime

Total number of cases—965.

Decrease over previous year—218.

Total number of residents apprehended—656.
Total number of non-residents apprehended—309.

Fines and costs collected during the year—$2,683.06.

Total value of property stolen during the year—$3,385.42.

Total value of property recovered during the year—$2,699.97.

Above are a few facts gleaned from the fifth annual report of the Police Department, as prepared by Chief Thompson. The record of the Department for the year 1914 is an excellent one, and reflects considerable credit upon those who are responsible for its operation.

It is gratifying to report that murder is not included in our Calendar for the year 1914. It is also a pleasure to state that our statistics show that crime is apparently on the decrease o the previous year; this, I contend, shows creditably for the Police Department, notwithstanding the increase in population.

I again take this opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough for their kind and valuable assistance to the Police Department at all times during the year.

I desire to thank the Board, personally for the courtesy I have received, and for their untiring efforts in endeavouring to keep the Department up to a high standard of efficiency.

I also desire to express my thanks to Chief Howard and his associates on the Fire Department for their willingness to assist the police at all times.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the Press of the City for their fairness in reporting matters in connection with the Police Department.

Value of property unrecovered $685.45; total, $3,385.42.

Unsecured Property.

There were 154 doors and windows of shops, offices, etc. found open by the police during the year 1914.

Ledgers.

During the year 253 persons were given lodging and shelter in the police cells, and those whom we considered deserving cases were provided with food.

During the summer season (from June to September) the Police visited temporary unoccupied houses twice every night, and while under our care only one was entered in which case all the goods stolen were recovered, the culprits dealt with, and the goods returned to the owner.

Fires.

Lost Children.

During the year, as usual, a large number of children who had strayed from their homes were taken care of by the Police until their parents could be located and notified.

In addition to our local work there were a number of arrests made for other Police Departments, of which I will only mention the most important ones:

Manuel Hannah, wanted for horse stealing at Regina, Sask.

Brodeur, wanted for murder at Springfield.

George Ross, wanted for false pretence at Cobourg, Ont

John Dalton, wanted for breaking parole, Buffalo, N. Y.

Normal Hurl, wanted for theft at Colborne, Ont.

Thomas Flannery, wanted for disorderly conduct at Cobourg, Ont.

Outages of Street Lights.

There were reported by the police to the Inspector of Lights outages to the number of 1,775.

Dogs Licensed.

There were licensed during the year 1914, dogs to the number of 611; money collected for licenses in 1914 amounted to $722; amount collected in 1913, $596. Increase, $126.

Recommendations.

I beg leave to ask your honourable Board to consider the advisability of establishing in connection with our Police Department a pension fund. I believe that this is an opportune time for such a move, as you no doubt are aware that our Department at present consists of practically all young men, and the probabilities are that it would be many years before there would be any demand on the fund.

It also has the effect of making members of the department feel more satisfied with their positions, as they have something to look forward to.

I would also recommend that each member of the Police Department be required to pass an examination in Firt Aid to the Injured before being advanced to second class pay. I would suggest that the Board make this one of the permanent rules of the Department.

I would also recommend that the necessary articles used in connection with First Aid be kept on supply in the Police Station to be used in cases of emergency.

Remarks.

At the beginning of the year 1914 your honourable Board appointed in connection with our Department a Police Matron, and I desire to express my appreciation of the able and efficient manner Mrs. McElhiney has filled that position, her kindly disposition and wise counsel has been of great assistance to the Court and myself in the handling of females and children. I also wish to thank Adjutant McElhiney for his constant attendance at the Police Court, and his willingness to help and assist those who need a helping hand.

I desire to again express my appreciation of the good work that has been done by Mr. George Cochrane, Agent for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. E. L. Goodwill, Solicitor for the said Society, for the efficient and able manner they have looked after the needy and neglected children of our City, and their valuable assistance in connecion with the Juvenile Court.

I regret, too, that death has removed from our Department during the past year, four members, namely: E H. Adams, P C. Charles McGinty, P. C. William Gill, and P C Wm. Paterson, all of whom were held in high esteem by the members of this Department, and, I believe, by the citizens in general.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada was scheduled to meet this year in the City of Vancouver, but I understand that negotiations are now being carried on by the President to have the convention meet this year in some Ontario city, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend, accompanied with the necessary appropriation.

D & A CORSETS

"D & A" or "La Diva" Corsets retailing at $2.50 are equal in style, material and workmanship to imported corsets costing $3.50 to $5.00; the duty and extra profit—for which you get nothing, explains the difference.

Quite aside from your natural wish to encourage Canadian workmen, it is worth your while, for the saving it involves—to buy a "D & A" or a "La Diva" Corset.

Special Patriotic Service George St. Methodist Church

"Your King and Your Country Need You"---Willing Service for a Momentous End

The members of the 39th Battalion, Third Canadian Contingent, attended Divinie service at the George Street Methodist Church, Sunday morning, where they listened with rapt attention to an inspiring address from the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Peever.

Personally, Mr. Peever was pleased to welcome them and to extend a word of cheer to the "Soldiers of our King." The men of the first and second contingents were in constant remembrance, and he prayed that God would shield and protect them and make them soldiers of Christ.

Seventeen young men had gone out from the George Street Church, as well as Miss Blewett, who had nobly volunteered as nurse, and is now serving in France; daily these were lifted up to a Throne of Grace, and other Pastors were doing the same.

The sermon, while it reathed a message of cheer, was most solemn and impressive throughout.

The text was taken from I. Cor., 16:13—"Quit you like men, be strong," and in explanation the preacher submitted two questions: 1. Why are you here? 2. What is the cause for which you are wearing the King's uniform?

Six months ago, and extending down to the present time, wherever you turned in the Old Land, the eye saw the sign:—"Your King and Your Country Need You." The Motherland saw the notice and answered the call: the soldier from his barracks, the clerk from his counter, the mechanic from his bench, the member of parliament from his constituency, the husband from his home and family. Even away across the seven seas the call was heard; from Australia and New Zealand came her fair sons, from the plains of South Africa came her bronzed men, and from India came her sombre warriors.

Canada also heard the call. From the Pacific to the Atlantic her sons, as here represented, have offered themselves. Our Premier pledged our last man and our last dollar, because of the great emergency.

This call has been heard and our sons and our daughters are giving their lives because of the greatness of the call. "Quit you like men, be strong".

The appeal carries a message of "willing service of free men in a free land."

These men are here not as a result of conscription, but because of willing service, and are the pride of the Empire. They responded voluntarily, not to a command, but to an appeal. The unwilling need not go; there is no coercion.

The strength of the British Empire is one of the greatest anomalies in the world. Its history is filled with inconsistencies. It is altogether illogical. There are ninety units in the Empire, and these are held together notwithstanding the fact that there is no Imperial Council, no Imperial Parliament, no collective body in control. Our enemies smile at us and prophesy our dismemberment, our going to pieces; but the call of the Motherland is responded to by free men from every corner of the world, thus emphasizing the strange power linking the Empire together, a bond of sympathy and love stronger than any Imperial Parliament.

Instead of being taxed the colonies tax themselves. Thousands of gifts have been sent as a free-will offering from a free-born people beyond the seven seas, whose sons, with rifle in hand, stand between us and our enemies.

We are held together by a unity of soul, a unity of purpose exhibiting the might and greatness of free spirits under a great flag which we love.

Second question: What is the cause for which you wear the King's uniform?

Are our people fully seised of the issues of the present conflict, of the tremendous task confronting us? Are these issues intelligible to us? As our conception, so will be our spirit of loyalty and our prospect of victory. There can be no defeat where there is a proper conception of the issues at stake. David, Samuel and Nehemish, three great generals, placed before their men the effects of defeat on themselves, their country, and their homes, which spurred them on to fight a great fight, and win a great victory.

In considering the causes, and by way of contrast, the nation with which we are at war, during the period of her preparation, declared they were going to risk downfall in attaining world empire. We find this spirit in their use of international treaties, of international usages of war, and to gain their end all these have been trampled into the dust, as they ride rough-shod over the corpses of harmless people; anything to accomplish their end.

At this juncture Rev. Mr. Peever held up to view a cartoon, which represented the maiden "Peace," who has held up her great beacon light of "liberty" for many years, in New York harbour, as stepping down from her lofty pedestal, because she could no longer gaze upon the atrocities in Europe.

In this great conflit our enemies have courage, they have science, and they have numbers; we have courage, science and numbers, and, in addition, a righteous cause, which forms the basis of our soldiers' courage.

To you will come hardships, trials, temptations and, possibly, death, which will cast its shadow over our homes. "Stand fast, therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness."

The first Canadian soldier to meet death was Private Richards of Toronto. He was a second-year Arts student at Trinity University, and had a most promising future before him. December 9th the sad news reached his heartbroken mother, who said, "I am proud of him, as I would have been of anything else he would have done. After all he did all that was asked of him, and that was all he could do."

Another picture from war's other side Mr. Peever cited: Mrs. Henphrey sat at the evening meal with her children, in Toronto, one night this month, reading a letter from her husband, who had departed from Salisbury some time before. Just before departing, a large consignment of mail had arrived for the soldier boys. His comrades had received letters, he wrote, but he had received none.

As they sat, there came a knock, a messenger bearing a yellow envelope, from Ottawa, announcing the death of her husband February 16th. Between sobs she wailed: "He would go; he said it was his duty; it is all over now, and to think he was one of the first to die."

You have heard the call, you have seen the vision, you are giving yourselves gladly as a sacrifice, therefore "Quit yourselves like men, be strong."

In conclusion, the speaker quoted that stirring appeal from Kipling, beginning:

"For all we have and are,
For all our children's fate,
Stand up and meet the war—
The Hun is at the gate."

And ending—

"There's but one task for all,
For earth one life to give;
Who stands if freedom fall?
Who dies if England live?

THE SOCIAL SIGN OF THE COMING OF OUR LORD

Sunday Evening Service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church

The Rev. Mr. Pogue continued his series of sermons last night on "The Signs of the Times," and dwelt more particularly on the "Social Sign of the Coming of Our Lord." He felt gratified and thankful for the interest which had been manifested in these sermons on the Doctrine of the Last Ages. In view of this, and of the number of questions which were being put to him, he had decided to deal in a simple form with some matters that had engaged their attention thus far, and give a birdseye view of the purpose of God from the beginning of time down to the present, first by inquiring into God's purpose, and second by studying conditions as we find them at the end of the age.

Is the World Getting Better?

One explanation or conclusion in Bible study we must come to, and that is the failure to understand God's purpose for this age, and to recognize the difference in the dispensations or ages.

"For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles, if ye have heard of the dispensation (age) of the Grace of God which is given me to you-ward; how that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery. . . which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the spirit. That the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the Gospel.'

One reason why we do not grasp the difference clearly is because of the lack of consistency in the King James' version of the scriptures. For example the "Harvest is the end of the world" should be the "Harvest is the end of the age."

To make clear the distinction, the preacher made us of a large chart to the rear of the pulpit, which definitely divided the ages since the creation.

First, the age of innocence, that of our first parents. This ended in failure on man's part, and in judgment on God's part, resulting in expulsion from the Garden of Eden.

Second, the age of conscience, from Eden to the Flood, a period of about 1600 years. Men became possessed of the knowledge of good and evil, and we learn that there was great wickedness upon the earth. This ended in failure on man's part and God's judgment in the Flood.

Third, that period of 450 years from the Flood to the Call of Abraham. God began an experiment of the race with Noah. Noah had witnessed with his own eyes God's judgment, and we would naturally look for an improvement, but alas, the people once more degenerated into sinful practices, until we find them forgetting God and desiring to build a tower to reach to heaven. This ended in a judgment from God; their speech was confounded, and the people were scattered upon the face of the earth.

Fourth, from Abraham to Moses. God decided to make Abraham a channel of blessing in the world, but once more we witness a gradual decline among the people, which ended in their slavery in Egypt.

Fifth, the age of law from Moses to Christ. God gave the land to Moses on Sinai. The greater part of that age's history was one of sinning and repenting on the part of man, until the time of Nebuchadnezzar, when the people were carried away into captivity. Then God sent His only begotten Son to be the Saviour of the people, but they added sin to sin by putting Him to death. Judgment was visited upon the Jews in the year 70, when over one and a quarter million were slain in Jerusalem. We are told that the blood ran so thick that it reached to the knees of the horses of the invading host.

Following this came the age of Grace of Love

Next shall come the age of Peace, of the millenium, when Jesus Christ shall reign upon earth.

The "Signs of the Times" indicate that this age is near at hand.

The Present Age. What Are Its Characteristics?

The scriptures speak of this age as an evil age, whereas many public orators refer to this period as a grand and glorious age. In the beginning of the age Christ told His followers "in the world ye shall have tribulation"; conditions have not changed any. Nowhere have the apostles told us that we might look for a difference, instead they say: "yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."

Goodness must be antagonistic to evil. Goodness and evil cannot stand on terms of peace. The present peaceful condition of the church shows that she is not following the commands of Christ. If she were she would be crucified on the cross. The church and the world have become very intimate; therefore the world will not persecute its own.

The teaching of scripture says that even Nature herself has come under the curse. "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together." The air is heavy with the germs of pestilence, cruelty and vice blacken the world's history. Everywhere we see disorder and unrest.

Contrast this with the age to come, when: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them." "They shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks . . . and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." When the world shall be delivered from the curse, when He shall set up His throne upon the earth and reign as the Prince of Peace."

At the end "there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles; there are the beginnings of sorrow," great tribulations, signs of the coming of the Son of Man in power and great glory.

In previous sermons the speaker had dealt with the Jewish sign; the tremendous deflection of the church from orthodox teachings; and the drift towards Unitarianism and Romanism. Daniel speaks of the Romans becoming masters. Witness the signs as expressed in this great world war. It looks as if the Pope will emerge with an influence not enjoyed since the Reformation. He is the only person in the world who could summon a council for the consideration of peace. The Archbishop of Canterbury could not do it; Rome would not listen. But let Rome speak and Protestants would jump to their feet. Rome holds the key to the situation. Let her cry and Protestants will think the better of her. To this the reverend gentleman offered not word of objection. Instead he said: "God bless every effort that has for its object, peace."

Witness also how quickly the German Emperor backed down when the Pope spoke re Cardinal Mercier.

Furthermore we have signs such as great increase of knowledge, and nation rising against nation.

Social Sign of the Coming of Our Lord.

"Go to now, ye rich men weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. . . . your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last day. Behold the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth; and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts as in the days of slaughter."

"Be patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord . . . stablish your hearts for the coming of the Lord draweth night."

Also classes and masses arrayed against each other, when the rich grind the poor and the poor hate the rich.

Some tell us that in order to break up the power which Socialism was gaining in his land the German Emperor, in order to save his crown, plunged his country into war.

Viewing conditions in the United States:

Wealth is in the hands of a few, tending to increase the impoverishment of the masses. Just at the time of the great appeal for unfortunate Belgium, a woman gave a banquet costing $40.00 a plate. The newspapers recently contained an account of the death of a poodle dog valued at $5,000. During its days of illness it had received every attention. It was buried in Kentucky and was conveyed to its last resting place by special train, which cost $10,000, when a hole in the back yard would have done just as well.

On every hand riots and tumults, which, though put down by the hand of the law, still emit a threatening smoke, showing the presence of a volcano of hate; murders, lynchings, swindlings, the nefarious White Slave traffic, the evils of the liquor traffic. The United States spend annually two billion dollars on intoxicating drinks and one billion, two hundred million on tobacco, while on all kinds of church work she spends only 165 millions.

In heathen Japan there is only one homicide for every 57,000 of its population, whereas in the United States there is one for every 9,000 population.

All these things point to great wickedness in the last days. Daniel fortells stress and trouble such as the world never saw before.

In conclusion, Mr. Pogue was of the opinion that the end of this present age was close at hand. The great event might take place at any moment, that of the translation of saints and the resurrection of dead saints. "Two women shall be grinding together; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two men shall be in the field; one shall be taken and the other left." Those left behind must pass through trials and tribulations such as the world has never seen.

The Rev. J. Campbell Morgan in his masterpiece "God's Plan of the Ages," holds that Christians shall be caught up in the air, then shall take place the marriage of the church to the bridegroom, to be followed by seven years of great tribulation. After that Jesus Christ shall come destroying the enemies, at the great battle of Armageddon, an engagement between the Lord of Hosts and the nations of the world; then shall begin the reign of Christ on earth.

Are you ready for the coming of the Lord? Have you taken Him as your Saviour? Have you been born again? Then joyfully will you hear of the coming of the Lord.

May you all be ready when the Lord doth come.

—PAUL PENMAN.

REV. J. A. MACKENZIE AT KNOX CHURCH

Preached to Large Congregation Yesterday Morning

"Thou shalt have no other gods before Me" (Exodus, 20th Chapter and 3rd verse) was the text of a very forceful sermon by Rev. J. A. McKenzie at Knox Church yesterday morning.

The words took us back to the beginning of the religious life of man, before the prophets and psalmists. They recalled us, too, to the time when God made known His will unto man. When these words were spoken the memory of their deliverance was still upon the children of Israel. There was no doubt that these words "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me" had a very special meaning to the people to whom they were spoken. It was a day when there were many gods which were often worshipped.

It was a popular heresy in this heathenish age to chase the almighty dollar until you got it; trample the other people under, if need be, and when you have the money, turn and apologize—offer a salve. It was wonderful how magnanimous wealth could be. People would say, how could they do good without first obtaining the wealth. So many went after the wealth first, and this was worshipping another god.

In the community were to be found those who kept bars, (dealers in seals), unwholesome factories, merchants who operated sweatshops. The hotelkeeper, manufacturer or merchant would not tell you they did not want you. People, in their eyes, were considered as merely sacrifices to the god of wealth.

But for those who succeeded in accumulating wealth there were as many who failed, though toying hard enough. They were, in God's eyes, as guilty as the others. It was not the money but how it was secured. When we tried to get wealth for the joy of possession we lost our sympathy for the hungry, the thirsty, the imprisoned, those outside the pale of society, those who were the Saviour's special care.

Would Open A Museum Here

Mr. E. G. Orme, of Brampton, is desirous of establishing a museum in Peterborough and has asked Mayor Buller to submit the following communication to the City Council:

"I am an ardent collector in shields, minerals and Indian relics and owing to my wife's poor health, intend leaving Brampton in the spring.

"I would offer to donate to your museum a very handsome collection in ecclenology, properly classified, and perfect specimens, also a large collection in minerals mounted; each specimen on standards, and a rare collection in archology. Will further agree to keep the museum up to the standard at my own expense and to act daily as curator of same

"I do not ask any salary, but a small grant of $150 to pay car fare and small outside expenses. It will be my intention to make the museum something to be proud of.

"I am personally known and have served professionally the following gentlemen: D. Bethune, M.A., L.L.D., Guelph; Dr. R. Orr, government archaeologist, Museum, Toronto; J. Manghan, Honorable Curator, Toronto; Professor Zaretl, B.A., B.P.A., Guelph; Professor Hult, B.A., B.P.A., Guelph. "E. G. Orme, Government Naturalist, Brampton, Ont.'

YESTERDAY THE JEWISH FEAST OF LOTS-PURIM

In the Jewish calendar February 28 marks the feast of Lots or Purim. The synagogal service for this festival is limited to the reading of the Book of Esther, upon the story of which the celebration is based.

Purim celebrates the victory of Mordecai, the faithful Jew, over Haman, the grand vizier of the King Ahasuerus, who plotted to distroy the Jews. Queen Esther, it will be remembered, had been elevated to the throne to succeed Vashti, who had displeased the king. Esther was a most beautiful and virtuous maiden, and it was through her intervention with the king that the heroism of Mordecai and the villany of Haram were disclosed to him.

The story of the book of Esther reads like a novel. Purim means have historical value. Purim means "lots" and the festival is so called because the day in which the destruction of the Jews was decreed, was chosen by lots. Purim is the time of general festivity among the Jews, and like most festivals of the Jewish calender, it is time for the giving of gifts to the poor.

CELTIC AND HEARTS HEAD SCOTTISH LEAGUE

Results of the Third Round of the English Cup---Everton Gained Two Points on Manchester United's Ground

LONDON, March 1—Norwich and Bradford City could not decide their third round English Cup replay Saturday, and will have to settle the issue during the week, as the fourth round is due next Saturday. Hull City disposed of Southampton by 4 to 0.

In the First League, the leaders, playing at home, could only draw with Chelsea in a pointless game. Sheffield Wednesday and Blackburn Rovers, the next teams in the standing, also drew at Blackburn, while Everton took two points on Manchester United's ground.

Derby County drew farther away in the Second League by winning from their nearest competitor, Woolwich Arsenal.

While Hibernians were holding Heart of Midlothian to a draw in the Scottish League Celtic were winning from Partick Thistle, the outcome being to leave Celtic and Hearts on equal terms at the top of the League table. Saturday's scores were:

Beavers and Unknown Were Victorious in Y Basketball League

In the games Saturday night in the 'Y' basketball league, the Beavers succeeded in downing the Hustlers, while the Unkowns put the lid on the Junior Business Men. Both games were fast and some of the best basketball yet shown was uncaged in the game between the Unknowns and Junior Business Men. The score of the game is misleading ,for while the victors had a good lead they scored 29 out of their 34 points in the first half, while their opponents scored 17 out of 19 points in the second half. The feature of the game was the splendid passing. While some of the baskets were scored from a distance, most of them were the result of snappy passes and team work. Dad Flowers has joined the Unknowns and has added a lot of strength to their team. He was in fettle Saturday night and succeeded in soring eight baskets as the result of good team work on the part of his team mates, who all played A1 ball. The Junior Business men couldn't seem to get started in the first half, and when they hit their stride in the second their opponents had too much of a lead. However, the losers did much of the scoring in the second half and made it one of the best games yet played in the league. Final score, Unknowns 39, Junior Business Men 19.

Jun. Bus. Men.—Cranfiel, Metherall, M. Turner, F. Turner, C. Sisson.

Unknowns—Flowers, Smith, McCarrell, Mulhern, Fitzgerald.

Referee—Carson; scorer, Dobbin.

The Beaver-Hustler game was close and hard fought all the way, the first half ending 18-12 and the final score being 28-22 in favour of the Beavers. This will give some indication of the closeness of the game. It would be hard to pick out any stars in this game as the honours were very evenly divided. Except that Capt. Dobbin found a phenom in Tom Gilchirst, who pulled off some one hand shots for the basket that made them all take notice. If John keeps this up, Capt. Dobbin will have a hard time to keep the big magnates in A series from getting their grappling irons out. Bill Carruthers was high man for the Hustlers with 9 points, Capt. Heaslip coming second with eight, while Lees was high score for the Beavers, while Dobbin and H. Flowers had six each.

Referee—Flowers; scorer, Long.

Line-up:—

Beavers— Thackeray, Lees, Dobbin, Gilchrist, Flowers.

Hustlers — Carruthers, Heaslip, Jones, Lewis, Lang.

SENIOR HOCKEY SCORES TO-NIGHT

St. Micheals vs. Victorias at the "Grand Hotel"

The hockey fans who were lucky enough to witness the final games at the Grand Hotel, last year, will no doubt be on hand. Not only the scores by goals will be given, but every incident of the game as it is being played will come over our special G.N.W. wire, direct from the Arena to the Grand Hotel. Don't fail to hear the returns to-night, as the only difference between being at the Arena and the Grand Hotel is that you have to imagine the play as the game is being played.

LOCAL BONSPIEL AGAIN POSTPONED

The local Bonspiel has been again postponed, but if the weather holds out there will be a "cross-your-heart, honest-to-goodness" offering on Wednesday evening. Two bonspiels, taking advantage of the cold spell, were responsible for the disarrangement of the local plans. Oshawa's games begin to-day with only two local rinks going. R. M. Waddell is skipping one, and it is said Herb. Martin has the other. To-morrow the Campbellford bonspiel opens. J. E. A. Fitzgerald and R. Sturgeon are going from the local club. Last year the trophy was won largely by the Sturgeon rink with Andy Webb playing lead, Percy Fitzgerald, second, and Jack Wiley, vice. Archie Moore will replace Wiley to-morrow, and Bob Sturgeon completes the quartette.

The ice in the local rink looks good this morning. The ladies were playing and apparently they found the surface hard and smooth.

HOCKEY

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE.

The schedule for this week's games is as follows:

Tuesday, 7 to 8—St. John's vs. All Saints.

Wednesday, 6 to 7—Charlotte Street vs. Mark Street.

Thursday, 7 to 8—George Street vs. Knox Church.

Notice.—The remainder of the rink fees must be paid in at once.—Hugh Austin, Sec.-Treasurer.

Collegiate Beat T.C.S. by 12 to 7

The Collegiate hockey team journeyed to Port Hope on Saturday afternoon and succeeded in administering a defeat to the Trinity College School team by 12 to 7. The Collegiate team lined up as follows:

Goal—O'Brien.
Defence—Eastwood, Long.
Rover—Knapman.
Centre—Huycke.
Right wing—Stevenson.

Reported That Spencely Bequest Is Increased

That $25,000.00 is to be Divided Equally Among Five Members of the Family of Late Mrs. Van Vliet.

NOT DEFINITELY KNOWN

The newest development in the bequest to the Spencely family is a report that an extra $25,000.00 is to be equally divided between five relatives tives, three of whom are Mark Spencely and his sisters, Mrs. Chatten and Mrs. King. It was stated that $25,000.00 had been left to some institution, and later it has transpired that this was illegal. At any rate some obstacle is said to have arisen and the sum is to be divided. Mr. Spencely when asked for information on this point, said that a conference of the family was to be held to-day, with Mr. W. H. Moore, and that a letter had been received from New York something to that effect. Mr. Spencely remarked that if the report was true his bequest would be increased from $10,000.00 to almost $15,000.00. The sisters, Mrs. Chatten and Mrs. King, will likely be beneficiaries to the same extent.

Mr. Moore stated to the Examiner this afternoon that a communication from New York had been received to the effect that the deceased, Mrs. Van Vliet had died without testamentary disposition of some $25,000. Mr. Moore further remarked that the whole matter had not been entirely proven, but that the present appearances of the bequest seemed conclusive.

Letter Written Before Leaving

For France—Mr. Robt. Dundas, Water Street, Hears From Brother

Mr. Robert Dundas, 716 Water Street has received a letter from his brother, who is with the First Canadian Contingent, now in France. The letter was written prior to his departure from Salisbury Plain.

The letter is as follows:

Dear Brother,—Received your letter last night and can assure you I was pleased to hear from both you and Ida. Was glad to hear that you were all well, but I am sorry you have been out of work; but I suppose it's the same all over—nothing doing. I would have written you long ago, but I did not know your address. I had forgotten your number. Well, Bob, this is sure some country. Everything seems to run on a much different system than in Canada. Believe me, I had some time at Christmas. But I did not go to Dublin, Ireland, as I expected. I went with a chum of mine from Peterborough. Fred Board (I don't suppose you know him) to a city called Bath (England). We had six days off, but believe me, if I get through the war safely I am going to see Ireland before I go back. But I don't think I could have a better time anywhere than I had while at Bath. The English people sure use us good. Well Bob, by the time you get this letter we will be at the front. We are going on February 7th. Some of the boys are there now. I miss the snow and cold weather you are getting over in Canada. It's nothing but mud here on the Plain. We were living in tents until a few days before Christmas. We have huts now. They are about 24 ft. by 60 ft. in size, and three huts to a Company, 120 to a Company. Just the same as being in the shanty. The only difference is we don't get out so early in the mornings. You asked me if I had seen George Cahoon. I have not, and I don't suppose I would know him if I did see him. I am the only Fenelon boy that came out with the First Contingent. Ida asked me if I have ever seen Tommy Heatherington. I have not seen him, either, and I believe it will be hard for me to locate him; but I will try. He is not in our Battalion. I will have to go to headquarters to find out and as soon as I get it I will send it to you. But it would be better for Ida to write to his people and find out. I have been sick a few days with tonsilitis and a bad cold, but I feel fine now.

I think I have told you all I can think of for this time. I had a letter from Bob some time ago. They are all well. Well, bye bye for this time.

Your loving brother,
Jim.

ITALIAN REMANDED

Ionerazoid Dmenegildo, who was brought to the City on Saturday from Welland, Ont., by Detective Newhall, appeared before Magistrate Dumble in the Police Court this morning, on a charge of having stolen $160 from another Italian in the City, and was remanded for a week. The police were unble to have their witnesses present this morning.

Mr. G. W. Hatton appeared in his official capacity as Crown Prosecutor, while Mr. C. R. Widdifield is defending the accused.

Drunk Fined.

James R. Bickell pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place on King Street, on Feb. 27th and was assessed $2 and costs of 50 cents.

Back Again.

"Sunny" Jim Wilson had three bottles on him when arrested.

"Has he been in jail since he was here before?" asked His Worship.

Jim was not in jail, but had been in the country. He wanted another chance, but His Worship thought a few days in jail, with a bath, would do him good.

"I am going to live among my own people from now on," said Jim. "I like people well off."

Two dollars fine and in default of payment, ten days in jail, was the best the Magistrate would do. "Sunny" Jim will be a boarder at Castle Nesbitt for the next ten days.

Did Not Appear.

Patrick Murphy was brought into the Police Station on Saturday evening, very drunk. Yesterday he was allowed out on the condition that he would appear in Court this morning. He was not there and his case was adjourned until to-morrow.

INCREASE IN FREIGHT RATES

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 1.—John F. Orde, K.C., Toronto, has been appointed counsel by the government to look after the interests of the people in the application of the Railway Company opening this afternoon for an increase in freight rates on the eastern lines. It is not certain at present whether any strenuous opposition will be advanced to the general principle of the increase in the rates on the eastern lines, but there may be opposition to the method by which the increase is proposed. Several of the influential bodies represented at the hearing will suggest that a straight increase of say five per cent. be considered similar to that recently granted by the Inter-State Commission on American lines.

Has No Faith In the Lamb And Lion Theory

It is the Conditions of the Atmosphere and Not Tradition That Causes the Weather—March Entered Fine This Year

A WEATHER TABLE

"In like a lamb, out like a lion," and vice versa, runs the tradition regarding the month of March.

Mr. R. F. Stupart of the Toronto Meterological Bureau discounts the lamb and lion theory.

The reason that he does not believe in the old saying is because it cannot be depended upon. Since 1873 it has proven to be true in about 50 per cent. of the years, while in half the seasons since then the weather on the first of March has been the same as on the 31st. It is the conditions of the atmosphere and not tradition that causes the weather, says the progonosticator.

Heaviest Snowfall.

March is not the worst month for winds, although many regard it as such. At that she has had her rough weather. On the 28th, 1876, there was a fierce old snow blizzard, and 16.2 inches fell, the heaviest one-day fall on record since 1849. On March 27th, 1876, 16 inches of snow piled up. At that rate there is yet a chance of this winter's snowfall being increased considerably.

Windy First Last Year.

No person can forget March last year; what a fierce gale prevailed throughout the first day, when for a short space of time the wind blew out of the northwest at 96 miles per hour. The month as a whole was not windy, and it "went out like a lamb," thus helping the old radition to work out right. Since 1900 it has worked out seven times, and in seven instances the weather on the first has been the same as the 31st of March. The following is a table of the weather:

Year.	March 1.	March 31
1900	Stormy	Fair
1901	Fair	Fair
1902	Stormy	Stormy
1903	Stormy	Fair
1904	Stormy	Stormy
1905	Fair	Fair
1906	Stormy	Fair
1907	Fair	Fair
1908	Fair	Stormy
1909	Stormy	Fair

A PRACTICAL LETTER ON CITY GARDENING

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read with interest the other night your note urging our citizens to cultivate their gardens, and as you invited correspondence on the subject, I should like to avail myself of the opportunity offered. I myself am never happy unless I am pottering around my garden, and have always been surprised at the number of gardens that get leave to lie idle. But I have great hopes of seeing Peterborough made what it ought to be, one of the most beautiful cities in Canada, and I'm sure you, Mr. Editor, have done your part nobly in trying to stir up interest in the City beautiful, and I hope you won't weary in your effort, for there are many who appreciate what you are doing.

Well, gardening is hard work, but I think why lots of people get sick of it is because they try to crowd a season's work into the space of a week. They have considerable energy for a few days, and then they are finished. Now, if the person who has never done much gardening would only attempt a small part and do it well, and continue the necessary work throughout the season, they would be surprised and delighted at the result, and I think they would not be content with a small portion of their garden the next year. Well, I hope the people of our City, and any city in Canada for that matter, will see it is to their own interest to grow some of their own garden truck. It will help to keep down prices, if nothing else, and if farmers can see any further than their own nose, they will be cultivating every acre they can spare. This is where Canada can shine this year and help on prosperous times once more.

I would like through this medium to make a plea for increased membership for our Horticultural Society, of which I am a director, and the interests of which I have very much at heart. It only costs $1 a year, and every one gets more than a dollar's value from it in options. Some people won't believe it, or wonder why it can be done. It's the Government grant which enables us to do it, and the more members we get the more money we have to spend on them. One of the options granted to members is a year's subscription to The Canadian Horticulturist, a magazine published right here in Peterborough, and I daresay the editor of that paper could make arrangements to have a series of simple cultural directions printed for the guidance of those people who don't know much about gardening, and any questions asked, suitably answered, to those who would like to take up the thing in earnest.

There is one other thing I would like to draw attention to, and it is the large number of vacant lots which lie idle year after year. Now the owners of these might let them out as gardens for a small rental, and if the City owns any idle land they might please take notice. It could be handled through our society, as it is one of our professed aims to see every foot cultivated.

In almost every city in Great Britain you will find allotment gardens, where on a Saturday afternoon, or evenings you will find working men busy as bees, and nearly every one with a small greenhouse, and I can tell you there is some competition among them. Now if there is any one who would like to become a member of our society, if they drop me a P.C. I will be pleased to call on them and explain the advantages they would secure, but have the dollar ready. Hoping I haven't taken up too much of your space, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain, yours truly.

W. H. YOUNG.

102 Chamberlain St., Peterborough.

WEDDING BELLS

KEELER—PATTERSON.

The marriage of Miss Edna Maude Patterson, Indian River, Ont., to Mr. Steward Scandrett Keeler, of Saskatchewan, took place Tuesday, at 3.30 o'clock, at 48 Brighton Street, Rochester, N.Y., by the Rev. John Nairn, Pastor of University Avenue Baptist Church.

The bride was unattended and wore a tailored suit of navy blue broadcloth and Taupe hat with large corsage boquet of violets, her class flower.

Mrs. Keeler was a graduate of the Rochester Homeopathic Training School for Nurses, Class 1912, and since her graduation has been Assistant Superintendent in the George McDougall Memorial Hospital, Pakan, Alta.

Pre-nuptial events were a dinner by Miss McCullough, 418 Mergs Street, a linen shower by Miss E. Barrie, 122 Averill Avenue, a variety shower by her former classmates at 48 Brigton Street, and a farewell dinner party on Monday evening, by Mrs. S. Campbell, 45 Champlain Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Keeler left on the 4.05 train for Buffalo and points in Western Canada. They will be at home in Keeler, Saskatchewan, after April 1st.

OBITUARY

VERNON RUNNELS

At the early age of 22 years, Vernon Runnels, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Runnels, passed away at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the family residence, 535 Downie St. Mr. A. E. Runnels is the manager of the A. G. Dickson drygoods store.

The late Vernon Runnels was well known among the younger people of the city. He has been ailing for about two years. He was an apprentice in the pattern shop of the Wm. Hamilton Company, and a member of the 57th Regt. bugle band. On Sunday, Feb. 15, 1915, upon the occasion of the rite of confirmation being administerd by Right Rev. Bishop Reeve at St. John's church, the late Mr. Runnels was confirmed on his sickbed.

He is survived by his parents, one sister, Mrs. F. Petrie, Hamilton, Ont., two brothers, Messrs. Vincent, Winnipeg and Dixon, at home.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, 535 Downie Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, for interment. Rev. Canon Davidson will conduct the service.

MR. RICHARD FALLIS.

A life-long resident of Cavan Township in the person of Mr. Richard Fallis, passed away yesterday morning at the family residence, Concession 6, Cavan.

The late Mr. Fallis has been ailing for some time and the end was not unexpected. He was well-known throughout the community having followed the occupation of farming all his life. For a number of years he was a Director of the Millbrook Central Exhibition Association, and until late years took an active interest in the affars of the Association.

Deceased is survived by his wife, one son Milton, at home, two daughters, Mrs. W. Belsh, and Mrs. D. Henry, both residing in Cavan Township, also three sisters.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon (Tuesday) at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, Concession 6, Cavan.

Played Joke On Railway

Examiner Special:

BRANTFORD, March 1—The presence of two paint cans on the track of the Grand Trunk Railway, at the Elgin Street Subway, yesterday morning, apparently connected together with electric wire, resulted in a big hoax on the Railway Company, which was featured in a Toronto paper this morning as a dynamite plot to blow up the subway. The joker has not yet been arrested.

400 Houses In Rheims Destroyed By Bombardment

PARIS, March 2.—The bombardment of Rheims was more severe on the night of February 21-22 than at any other time, according to Mr. C. Lenoir, Deputy for Rheims, who was in the city at that time. Shells began falling at nine o'clock and continued to rain down until a quarter-past two o'clock in the morning. The projectiles came from all parts of the German front, from the north-west to the east.

The gunners seemed to aim especially at the First Ward of the city, Mr. Lenoir said. This section had hitherto been spared. Fire broke out in twenty places at once and whole blocks collapsed like card houses.

Official reports show that more than two thousand shells have been thrown on the old working quarter of the city, causing the destruction of 400 houses. The bombardment was resumed at ten o'clock in the morning of the 22nd and continued intermittently until four o'clock in the afternoon.

"STARVE OUT GERMANY" IS NOW A POPULAR POLICY

THOUSANDS OF ENEMY ARE DRIVEN FROM POLAND

BRITISH PUBLIC HEARTILY APPROVE OF ALLIES' PLAN

London Press Gave the Government's Announcement of An Embargo Its Enthusiastic Endorsement—Premier Asquith Struck a Popular Chord

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 2.—The British public to-day registered hearty approval of the Allies' new plan to starve out Germany in retaliation for submarine attacks.

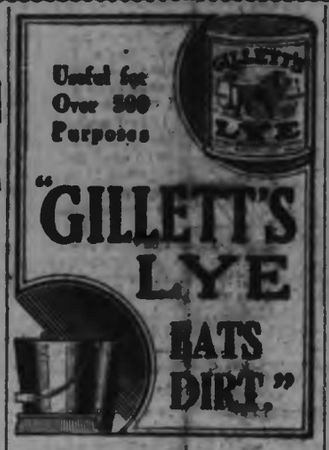
The London Press gave the government's announcement of an embargo its enthusiastic endorsement. Every where it was evident that Premier Asquith struck a popular chord in his speech in the House of Commons yesterday.

Following the lead of the Prime Minister himself, London papers expressed regret that the United States and other neutrals should suffer. But without exception they backed up the Premier in his declaration that the Allies would not be swayed from their course by protest of any neutral, no matter in what terms it is couched. In effect, they advised neutrals to stand aside and bear the inconvenience while the Allies deal a death stroke. But despite the Prime Minister's sturdy declaration to Parliament, and despite the equally strong position taken by the British Press, an under current of feeling to-day carried the opinion that an embargo decree against Germany persons were found who were unable to see how the government could ever enforce such a wide-sweeping and unprecedented a policy in the face of combined protests of the strongest neutral countries including the United States.

If a bombardment of protests from the neutrals, force an abandonment of the embargo idea, England and France will have a graceful retreat. They can point out that they merely reserved the right to act if compelled, but actually decided to put the programme into force. They can explain that Asquith's declaration was made for purpose of bringing Germany to her senses and forcing her to abandon "inhuman warfare."

GERMAN WAR BUDGET IS $2,510,500,000.

BERLIN, March 1—The Federal Council adopted the preliminary budget estimates, including 10,042,000,000 marks ($2,510,500,000) for extraordinary expenditures. This amount is for carrying on the war. The estimate of ordinary expenditures is 3,323,000,000 marks ($830,750,000). Almost all of the amount to be devoted to the war will be raised by loans.



LAST NIGHT'S BULLETINS ON THE WAR

FRANTIC EFFORTS BY GERMANS TO COVER BROKEN LINE FAILED

Russians Shot and Charged Way Through Village After Village—Many Prisoners Taken

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 2.—It is now known that a Russian cavalry brigade headed by Cossacks pierced the centre of Gen. von Hindenburg's army last Friday at the village of Krasnoselz on the River Orjiza, about midway between Ostrolenka and Przasnyez. Frantic efforts by the Germans to cover the broken line culminated in an amazing 48 hours of close-quarter fighting for the possession of Przasnyez. The Russian cavalary was well up on the flank of the German 25-mile front, stretching westward beyond Przasnyez. The enemy began pouring fresh troops from the frontier and attempted to maintain the battle simultaneously eastward against the cavalry, now supported by infantry corps, and southward against the chief Russian strength advancing from the Narew.

The operations throughout were of the fiercest character, without any possibility of manoeuvring movements owing to the great number on both sides. The Russians steadily shot and charged their way through village after village, while the Germans attempted to form again and started counter attacks. Their southern line, however, was gradually bent backwards by assaults sustained from Wednesday until Saturday.

German prisoners were taken in hundreds. They complain that their formation had been in confusion, and sometimes they were without leadership. For a whole day ammunition failed to reach them. By breaking the German line and capturing the foremost depot the Russians divided the northern campaigns into two parts.

GERMANS ON DEFENSIVE.

The Germans on the east have abandoned the initiative for a stubborn defensive against the Russians moving westward from the Niemen battles. In the latter several guns and a great number of prisoners taken belonged to the famous German 21st field corps, one of the best in the Kaiser's army which was usually stationed in peace time at its full strength on the French frontier.

Large captures were also made around Augustowo forest from the 40th reserve corps, recently organized. Their rifles and equipment were practically new.

The lion's share of the great achievement of breaking up Gen. von Hindenburg's elaborate scheme within a fortnight belongs to the Russian cavalry, especially their horses, which carried the men splendidly over a country where sharp frost made the surface of the thawed roads as slippery as glass. Great fighting seems now likely to develop along the line from Mlawa to Thorn, with the Russians from Przasnyez.

At the south-east corner of the Russian war line the main Austrian army has been forced into a dangerous position. The Russians from the Stry Valley attacked from the west, and rapidly defeated all the enemy's troops between Dolina and Stanislau. Another Russian column advanced energetically along the left bank of the Pruth and threatened the rear of the main Austrian quarters near Stanislau. The Austrians are now trying to retrace their route through Kolomea towards Bukowina. Their communications are in danger and a decisive battle may be forced on them near the Roumanian frontier.

CANADIANS ARE AGAIN UNDER FIRE

Special Morning Cable.

LONDON, March 2.—In the fire-swept battle zone of Flanders Canada's sons are upholding the highest traditions of British arms. For days they have been under fire, most of them in reserve trenches, where they are constantly shelled without opportunity of replying. Everywhere they have been complimented on their coolness.

After the novelty and tense excitement of the first experience, the boys say it is dull in the trenches. In some places the trenches are knee-deep in mud and water, as a result of which a number of men have been returned to the base ill. The casualties have not been heavy, and there have been no bayonet charges so far as I can ascertain.

TURKISH TROOP TRAINS HAVE BEEN HEAVILY BOMBARDED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 2.—Turkish troop trains, moving southward from Constantinople to reinforce the Dardanelles forts on the European side, have been heavily bombarded by British battleships in the Gulf of Saros, according to despatches received here to-day from Athens. Warship guns were also trained on Turkish fortifications on the north shore of Gallipo Peninsula, near Bulair.

LONDON, March 2.— The attack of the allied fleet on the Dardanelles has been interrupted. The Secretary of the Admiralty made this announcement to-day:

"The operations in the Dardanelles are again delayed by unfavourable weather. strong north-easterly gale is blowing, with rain and mist, which would render long-range fire and aeroplane observation difficult."

A despatch received here from Salonica says that Anglo-French troops that were landed from the international fleet between Erenkeui and the ruins of Dardanus, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, are reported to have been attacked by a heavy force of Turks last night and driven back to their ships.

The fighting in the darkness was very severe, as the Turks attacked with great ferocity.

It is unofficially reported that the Turkish losses in the outer forts which were destroyed by the fleet were small as the Turks fled as soon as their positions became untenable. The German gunners who were directing the fire of the big Krupps in the Turkish forts remained at their posts until the end.

An Admiralty report says that one marine was killed and three were wounded on the British battleship Vengeance in the attack on the Dardanelles forts on Friday.

A Daily despatch from Athens says: "Turkish forces are hurriedly concentrating on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles under Essad Pasha the defender of Janina."

The Paris Temps asserts that an agreement has been reached between France, Great Britain and Russia regarding the future status of the Dardanelles, which will give Russia free passage of the straits.

According to the Daily Mail's Athens correspondent Fort Dandanus, 12 miles up the Dardanelles, on the Asiatic side, has been silenced by the allied fleet.

The correspondent adds that diplomatic reports from Constantinople indicate that serious rioting there was suppressed after many arrests had been made.

Swing Bridge For Lindsay

LINDSAY, March 1.—Mr. Killaley, Acting Superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal, paid an official visit to Lindsay and inspected the present Lindsay street swing bridge, with a view to having it replaced with a handsome and substantial steel structure.

Mr. Killaley took a number of measurements, and it is understood that a part of the cement abutments on the north will have to be removed to allow the bridge the proper swing.

There were 1,220 accidents, causing 1,753 deaths in British coal mines last year.

Lord Kitchener Started the Yarn

"Russian Troops Through England" Was War Office Ruse

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 2.— The famous hoax of the first weeks of war, when a body of Russian soldiers said to number from 100,000 to 250,000 men was reported to have circled around from Archangel, landed in Scottish ports, and been shipped through at night to reinforce the British force in France, originated with Lord Kitchener himself, according to a statement made by a British officer to a correspondent of The Daily Dispatch.

It is a noteworthy fact that although the myth spread like wildfire through the United Kingdom, with any number of witnesses to swear that they had seen and talked to the Russians, in their native language, the press bureau did not issue an official contradiction for a long period.

Fee Feared a Surprise.

The Russian story, says the British officer, was designed to impress the German commanders in Belgium and Northern France, and to keep them in fear of a surprise either in the rear or on the western flank. It accomplished its purpose, for this dread was real among the German staff, and accounts to some extent for the retreat of Gen. von Kluck from Paris. To give colour to the report, Lord Kitchener is said to have caused a hundred transports laden with sundry goods to be sent from Scottish ports to Archangel after insuring them in Holland. And when the British troops were moved from various points in Scotland and the north of England to the channel ports, he ordered the blinds of the trains to be lowered so as to arouse popular curiosity and speculation.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frost

CHAPTER IX.

The overmastering energy of Heldon Foyle was at once the envy and despair of his subordinates. There was a story that once he went without sleep for a week while unravelling the mystery of the robbery of the Countess of Enver's pearls. That was probably exaggerated, but he certainly spent no unnecessary time for rest or food when work was toward—and he saw also that his staff were urged to the limits of human endurance.

Having spent four hours sleeping in his clothes, he deemed that he had paid full courtesy to nature. He unlocked a drawer, picked out a deadly little automatic pistol, and dropped it into his jacket pocket. He rarely went armed, and had never fired a shot in his life save at a target. But on certain occasions a pistol was useful to "back a bluff." And on the mission he had in mind he might need something. He felt in his breast-pocket to make certain that the enlarged photograph of the finger-prints found on the dagger were there, and sallied forth into the dusk.

In his own mind he had definitely decided on the immediately important points in the inquiry. There was Ivan, the missing servant, to be found, as also the Princess Petrovska. The police of a dozen countries were keeping a look-out for them. Then there was the knife with its quaint, horizontal hilt of ivory. Rigorous inquiry had failed to elicit its place of origin, yet so strange a weapon once seen would infallibly be recognized again. Finally, there was the question of Sir Ralph Fairfield.

The evening papers had seized avidly on a mystery after their own heart, and glaring contents bills told of "Millionaire Murdered on Wedding Eve. Strange Mystery." But Foyle had already seen the papers. He held straight on for the Albany.

"Was Sir Ralph Fairfield in?" The question was superfluous, for he had already seen Chief Detective-Inspector Green standing outside apparently much interested in an evening paper. And Green would not have been there unless Sir Ralph were about.

Foyle was received coldly by the baronet, and his quick eyes noted a half-empty decanter on the table. Fairfield was palpably nervous and ill at ease. He was plainly distrustful of his visitor's purpose. The detective was apologetic and good-humoured.

"I have come to apologize for my rudeness at Grosvenor Gardens," he began. "I was worried, and you were, of course, upset. Now we are both more calm, I come to ask you if you would like to add anything to what you said. Of course, you'll be called to give evidence at the inquest, and it would make it easier for you as well as for us if we knew what you were going to say."

Fairfield shrugged his shoulders. "I have told you all you will learn from me," he said quickly. "I suppose you've seen Lady Eileen Meredith."

"No." The lie was prompt, but the superintendent salved his conscience with the thought that it was a necessary one. "I don't know that she can tell us anything of value.

An expression of relief flitted over the face of Grell's friend. After all, it was something to have the worst postponed. A man may face swift danger with debonair courage, may be undaunted by perils or emergencies of sport, of travel, of everyday life. But few innocent men can believe that a net is slowly closing round them which will end in the obloquy of the Central Criminal Court, or in a shameful death, without feeling something of the terror of the hunted. "The terror of the law" is very real. Fairfield was no coward, but his nerves had begun to go under the strain of the suspense. It would have been different had he been able to do anything—to find relief in action. But he had to remain passively impotent.

"Well," he said, "I expect you're very busy, Mr. Foyle. I don't want to keep you."

The detetive received the snub with an amiable smile. "I won't force my company on you, Sir Ralph. If you will just dictate to me a description of the string of pearls that Grell showed you, I will go. Can you let me have a pen and some paper?"

Ungraciously enough Fairfield flung open a small inlaid writing-desk, and Foyle took down the description as though he really needed it. As he finished he held out the pen to Fairfield.

"Will you sign that, please? No, here."

Their hands were almost touching. Foyle half rose and stumbled clumsily, clutching the other's wrist to save himself. The baronet's hand and fingers were pressed down heavily on the still wet writing. The detective recovered his balance and apologized profusely, at the same time picking up the sheet of paper.

"I don't know how I came to do that. I am very sorry. It's smudged the paper a bit, but that won't matter. It's still readable. Good-bye, Sir Ralph."

So admirably had the accident been contrived that even Fairfield never suspected that it was anything but genuine. In a public telephone-box, a few hundred yards away, Heldon Foyle was examining the half-sheet of notepaper side by side with the photograph of the finger-prints on the dagger. A telephone-box is admirably constructed for the private examination of documents if one's back is towards the door and one is bent over the directory. Line by line Foyle traced "laterals," "lakes," and "accidentals," calling to his aid a magnifying glass from his waistcoat pocket.

When he emerged he was rubbing his chin vigorously. The prints were totally different. Sir Ralph Fairfield was not the murderer of the man so astoundingly like Robert Grell.

CHAPTER X.

The evidence of the finger-prints was entirely negative. Though Foyle believed that Fairfield was innocent, he never permitted himself to be swayed by his opinions into neglecting a possibility. It was still possible that the baronet might have been concerned in the crime even though they were some one else's prints on the dagger. At any rate, Fairfield was suppressing something. It could do no harm to continue the watch that had been set upon him. So Foyle left Green and his companion to continue their unobtrusive vigil.

To justify his stay in the box—for he was artist enough to do things thoroughly even though it might be necessary—he lifted the receiver and put a call through to Scotland Yard.

"This is Foyle speaking," he said, when at last he had got the man he asked for. "Is there anything fresh for me?"

"Nothing important, sir, except that Blake has found a curiosity dealer who says that the knife is one that must have come from South America. It is, he says, an unusual sort of Mexican dagger."

"Oh! Is the man who says that to be relied on? He isn't just guessing? We can do all the guessing we want ourselves."

"No, sir, we think he's all right. It's Marfield—one of the biggest men in the trade. By the way, sir, there's a lot of newspaper men been asking for you since you left. They want to know about Goldenburg."

"So do I," retorted the other. "You'd better be strictly truthful with 'em, Maitland. Tell 'em you know no more than is on the reward bill. They won't believe you, anyway. You can say I've gone home to bed, and that there will be nothing more doing this evening. Good-bye."

"A Mexican dagger," he muttered to himself as he left the telephone-box. "Now, if I were a story-book detective I should assume that the murderer was either a South American or had travelled in South America. It looked the kind of thing a woman might carry in her garter. And a veiled woman called on him that night."—he made a wry face. "Foyle, my lad, you're assuming things. That way madness lies. The dagger might have been bought anywhere as a curiosity, and the veiled woman may have been a purely innocent caller."

His meditations had brought him to a great restaurant off the Strand. He passed through the swing doors into the lavishly gilded dining-room, and selected a table somewhere near the centre. With the air of a man taking his ease after a strenuous day in the City, he ordered his dinner carefully seeking waiter's advice now and again. Then his eye roved carelessly over the throng of diners while he waited for his orders to be fulfilled. The apparently casual scrutiny lasted rather less than a minute. Then he shifted his seat so that he could see without effort the table where two men lingered over their liqueurs. A moment later one of the men noted the solitary figure of the detective.

He emptied his glass without haste and signalled to the waiter. Before that functionary had made out the bill Foyle had strolled over to the table, his face beaming, his hand outstretched.

"How are you, Eden" he cried effusively. "Who'd have thought of seeing you here!. Business good? Still picking flowers?"

An expression of annoyance crossed the face of the slighter built of the two men, yet he shook hands readily.

"Why, it's Mr. Foyle!" he exclaimed heartily. "How are you? We were just going. Let me introduce Mr. Maxwell."

They called him the Garden of Eden at Scotland Yard—probably because the unwary might have thought him full of innocence. His smooth, bronzed boyish face showed singular ousness and candour in every line. A glittering diamond pin adorned his necktie, expensive gold-cloth covered his waistcoat, a gold ring with a single great ruby was on his finger. That was the only ostentation about him and his quiet, well cut clothes were in good taste.

Foyle acknowledged the introduction.

"From the colonies, I suppose, Mr. Maxwell? I suppose Eden has told you he's just come over." Eden surveyed the detective with wide-open, innocent blue eyes in which there dwelt hurt reproach. "I hate to separate you, but I've got important business with him. Perhaps you'll meet another time."

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made
Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes 16 ounces—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 84 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex.

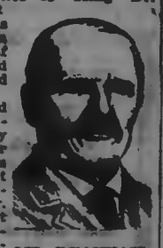
Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Operation Decided On As Only Means of Relief

But the Writer of This Letter Resolved to Try Dr. Chase's Ointment First and Was Cured.

This is not an isolated case, for we frequently hear from people who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment after physicians had told them nothing short of an operation could bring relief and cure.



MR. BEAUVAIS.

If you could read these letters, coming as they do, day after day and year after year, you would realize what a wonderful curative agent Dr. Chase's Ointment really is. Few ailments are more annoying or more persistently torturing than piles, and when this suffering is promptly relieved by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment there can be no doubt as to where credit is due. Friends and neighbors are told of the results and so the good word spreads, and Dr. Chase's Ointment is becoming known far and wide as the only actual cure for piles or hemorrhoids.

Mr. Charles Beauvais, a respected citizen of St. John's, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles or hemorrhoids, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a well-known physician who could not help me, and my doctor decided on an operation as the only means of relief. However, I resolved to try Dr. Chase's Ointment first. The first box brought me great relief, and by the time I had used three boxes I was completely cured. This is why it gives me such great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to everybody suffering from hemorrhoids as a preparation of the greatest value."

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOGGANS, 604 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs

are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

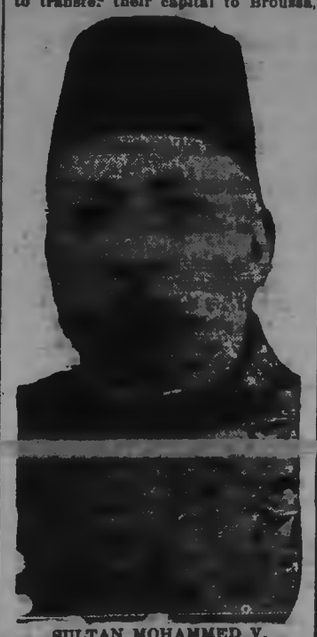
LONDON, March 1.—"According to diplomatic information received in Rome," says The Daily News correspondent, "the decision of the Turks to transfer their capital to Broussa,



SULTAN MOHAMMED V.

Asia Minor, was in direct opposition to Germany, which wished the transfer, if made, to be to Adrianople.

"The Prophet's mantle, together with all the important relics and treasures, already have been removed to Broussa, where the Sultan's harem also has been sent."

Weehawken Is Safe.

LONDON, Feb. 27. — The British tanker Weehawken, about whose safety some alarm was felt, has arrived at Barry, according to despatches received here yesterday. A lifebuoy and other wreckage picked up near Anglesey was lost overboard during a storm, the tanker reported.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers You

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

German Staff Keeps Behind Firing Line

Special to The Examiner:

THE HAGUE, March 1—The favourite theme of war artists, depicting a General surrounded by staff officers fearful for his safety, while he watches through his field glasses from some eminence within the zone of fire the fluctuating fortunes of his army, has become obsolete as far as the German army of the east is concerned.

Thirty miles from the firing line along the far extended eastern battle front the various staffs sit at their desks surrounded by topographical maps and photographs giving the most minute features of the country where the fighting is under way. When a line officer arrives at a staff headquarters from the actual front these maps are supplemented by his reports and the latest photographs of the enemy's lines taken from an aeroplane. When he returns he takes with him exact orders for the next move of the units directed by this particular staff. The brains of the army are thus kept far from any danger, even of shell fire, and the only thing that makes the work of the staff any more dangerous than the deliberations of a war college during peace times is the remote possibility of becoming the target of a raiding aeroplane.

This machinelike efficiency directing the actual fighting of the German army, it displayed [illegible] tion of the rear guard communications. Already two permanent railroads have been built into Poland by the Germans. One to Lodz and the other down the bank of the Vistula as far as the German lines have been pushed. A through train daily is now run between Lodz and Mons, thus connecting the most distant points in the east and west now under occupation by the German armies of invasion.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

To-night! Clean Your Bowels and End Headaches, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

New Phase of the War Begins With Success For The Allies

With Russian Victories, the Progress of the Allied Fleets in the Dardanelles and the Decision to Stop All Shipping to and From Germany, London Believes Important Turn in the Hostilities Has Come

LONDON, March 1.—With Russian successes in the region of Przasnysz, North Poland and Kolomet, East Galicia, the successful progress of the operations [illegible] Dardanelles and the decision of the allied governments to stop all shipping to and from Germany, Austria and Turkey, it is believed here that a new phase of the war is about to be entered upon.

While the success reported by Petrograd covers only a small part of the long front in North Poland, and the Germans have been able to record a counter success near Kolno, the general impression among military men in London is that not only has the German offensive in the north exhausted itself, but the tide is turning in favour of the Russians, who, with railways at their back, have been able to bring up more reinforcements than the invading arm, whose communications, after German territory is left, must cross a country of marshes and overflowing rivers.

Much more fighting, however, must be waged before a final decision is reached, and in the meantime the battle has been resumed in Central Poland, where the Russians have made a slight advance, and the engagements in the Carpathians, Eastern Galicia and Bukowina continue with unabated fury.

From what can be gathered from the official reports, the Russians, despite the onslaughts made upon them from all sides by Austrians and Germans, have been able to maintain their strength at all points and to throw in new troops where they were necessary. As a result the Austro-German plan of compelling them to weaken their centre by attacking the two extreme wings has failed, and while the Russians have been forced from East Prussia and Bukowina, they have been able to make a stand and, when reinforced, delivered counter attacks which apparently are making some headway. The only activity of any importance in the west is in the Champagne region, where the French continue their offensive and where the fighting, according to the German report, has been quite spirited, and in the country to the north of Verdun, where there have been heavy artillery engagements in which the French assert they have done damage to German guns and encampments. French airmen have been dropping bombs on Metz.

General Louis Botha's army continues to make slow progress in German Southwest Africa, but this is hardly as interesting as the news that at the opening of the Parliament of the Union of South Africa the guard of honour for the new British Governor was composed entirely of Burghers in khaki, a duty which heretofore has devolved upon British soldiers.

In a letter to the Parliament General Botha, who is at the front, said he expected the speedy end of the operations and appealed for leniency for the rebels, especially the rank and file, who, he said, "in most cases acted under compulsion or were the victims of wrong leaders."

The British government's peremptory demand that work should be resumed in the trades where work was being done for the army and navy seems to have had a salutary effect in connection with the recent strike. The officials of the unions advised the men to return to work immediately, and the Liverpool dockers and other workmen have already followed this suggestion.

THE GIANT AQUITANIA IS AGAIN READY FOR SERVICE

Special to The Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, March 1.— Fully repaired and with steam up, the Aquitania, of the Cunard line, is lying at the Gladstone Docks here ready for the sea. Her future is kept a close secret, but the fact that many of her fittings have been restored leads to the general belief that she is about to be restored to the merchant service by the Admiralty, which has found the giant steamship somewhat of a white elephant on its hands.

At the outbreak of the war the Admiralty took over the Aquitania with the idea of using her for a transport, and when the impossibility of taking her into any of the Continental ports where troops were being landed was realized, it was decided to transform her into a collier.

This indignity to the big steamship has never been forgiven by the people of Liverpool, who never fail to relate with much heat how the rich fittings were ripped out of the vessel. The work was done with axes and the dock was littered with the scraps of the beautiful panels and costly copies of famous paintings which made the ship the last word in the art of decorating transatlantic vessels.

Hardly had the Aquitania begun her prosaic task of supplying the British navy with coal when she ran down a smaller steamship, which, by what seemed a miracle, stayed afloat, but which afforded enough resistance to smash and curl back the bow of the Aquitania for a distance of fifty feet. The Aquitania towered so high above the other ship that the upper part of the bow was untouched and rung above the wrecked portion like a balcony.

Repairs have been under way ever since, and the ship is now ready for service. She is closely guarded, but a correspondent was permitted to pass the sentries this week, and although not allowed to go on board, from an exterior view he satisfied himself that the vessel was not again to be used as a collier. She is still wearing her war paint, and besides the guard of soldiers on the dock, she is protected on the water side by a converted destroyer.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"—DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh? Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone, and neither the moisture of an atomiser nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation. You breathe in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapour and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLAUGHLAN, the well-known representative of Parks and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size, 50c; sample or trial size, 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Judgment In Favour of Thomas

Peterborough Contractor Defendant in An Action to Recover $161.62

LINDSAY, March 1.—His Honour Judge Harding gave judgment in the case of R. F. Thomas vs. Jas. Bogue of Peterborough, awarding the plaintiff $161.62. This case was the outcome of a contract which the plaintiff had secured for wiring the local armouries. The main dispute was the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff should not be paid extra for wiring the tower, as this was included in the contract.

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The Simplest and Quickest Way is To Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Each Soldier At Kingston Should Have Twelve Pairs of Socks

To assure a sufficient supply of socks for the Peterborough men in the second contingent, Mayor Buller told the Council, last night, that each man should have one dozen pairs. The experience at the front, and in the training camps had proved that the men frequently trod through mud and water and suffer from wet feet. Capt. Gray, at Kingston, told His Worship that at least twelve pairs should be provided. Mayor Buller suggested that some of the ladies' associations, or some of the citizens might be very glad of the opportunity to help secure this comfort for each of the local men now at Kingston.

Rabbi and Child Burned To Death In Home By Germans

Wife of Rev. M. Weill, Held in Street in Front of Building by Soldiers While Husband and Daughter Were Tortured

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 2.— How an aged rabbi and his sixteen-year old daughter were thrust living into the cellar of their home by German soldiers, who then sprinkled the building with alcohol and set fire to it, burning them to death, is related in the Petit Parisien in an interview with the rabbi's widow, who was forced to stand in the street and watch the building burn. Crazed by the sight and with the sound of the dying cries of her husband and daughter in her ears, she fell to the ground unconscious, and later was found wandering aimlessly about the streets. She was taken to a hospital by neighbours.

The victims were the Rev. M. Weill, rabbi in the town of Luneville, and his daughter. The crime occurred on August 25, during the first occupation of the town by the Germans, and was committed as reparation for alleged sniping.

"I am an Alsatian, from Hagenau, where my relatives still live," said Mrs. Weill. "My husband was French, but was far too old to be called for the mobilization. We have lived in Luneville for seventeen years, at No. 5 Rue Castara, next door to the synagogue. When war was declared my son, fourteen years old, who now is my only child, was in Alsace. We tried to get him back, but on August 22 the Germans entered Luneville, and all communication was cut off.

"On the night of the 22nd ten German soldiers were quartered upon us. We gave up to them the first floor, which was the Hebrew school, and the next floor. My husband, my daughter and myself lived on the third floor. During the first two days the Germans behaved themselves fairly well. They kept demanding liquor and insisted that we serve them rapidly, but did nothing else.

[illegible] Non-Combatants [illegible]

"On the 24th, however, they tried to stop me from coming down stairs, and asked that our daughter, who looked to be older than her sixteen years, should wait upon them. My husband opposed this so strongly that they did not persist. On the afternoon of the 25th, at two o'clock, I received a visit from an old woman friend who was very feeble and who lived at the other end of the town.

"When she started home, about four o'clock, I offered to accompany her, and before leaving the house gave my husband the key to the cellar, saying:

"'One can never tell what will happen. Should they recommence the bombardment, go down to the cellar at once with the child.'

"He answered, laughing: 'My God, is it possible that any one can be so frightened?'

"I took our old friend home, then I took the idea into my head, on the way back, to make a slight detour so that I could buy the eggs that the Germans had demanded for their dinner. It was at this moment that I noticed that there were no civilians in the streets, but that the soldiers were gathering in ever increasing numbers. I began to hurry. In a moment I came to a group consisting of a man wearing a tanner's leather apron, surrounded by a guard of soldiers. Near him was a young man, who, I afterward learned, was his son, also closely guarded. As I passed the first group one of the soldiers killed the tanner by a revolver shot. Then a soldier in the second group shot the young man. The sight drove me to terror, and I began to run, shrieking, 'My husband, my daughter!' I heard a soldier call after me: 'We are going to kill them; we are going to kill everybody, for our wounded have been fired upon.'

Loved One in Burning Home.

"As I neared home, I could hear the sound of a heavy fusillade and could see flames rising above our neighbourhood. Repulsed, injured, menaced, several times thrown down, I at last managed, through my knowledge of German, to induce an officer to let me pass the cordon. Arrived in front of our house, I found the building in flames. attempted to enter the front door, to be pushed back by bayonets. Going around to the rear, I was menaced by levelled revolvers. I rushed back into the street, crying:—'My husband, my daughter!' A soldier called out:—'She is burning with her father!'

"I threw myself on my knees before an officer, who answered me by saying: 'The place is burning and whatever vessel on fire must burn!' While I was hanging to his clothing I felt myself seized from behind by the arms, and thrown across the street in front of a little cafe that was opposite our house, and the door of which was ordered by the Germans to be kept constantly open.

"There the soldiers told me that my husband had tried to get out of the house, but that he had been forced into the cellar at the bayonet's point. I was told how my daughter appeared for an instant at a window on the second floor that she had been heard to cry:—'Papa, papa, come quick; they are trying to take me!'

"She, too, had been thrust into the cellar, the key torn from my husband's hands, and they were locked in. Then the house was set on fire, and not burning quickly enough, they had taken casks of alcohol from the cafe and drenched the place with it. They told this in front of me, saying they were going to burn up the entire street, because some one had fired on their wounded from one of the houses. I cried and beseeched them, repeating that we had no arms, that my husband was an Israelite priest, known for his charity and meekness; they answered always: 'He is burning!'

Charred Bodies Found.

"I was cowardly enough to say: 'My daughter! Give me at least my daughter! But they told me:—'she is burning with her father!' Then I fainted. When I came to I found myself lying in the street. For hours I wandered around demented; then I met our Mayor, Mr. Keller, who urged me to find shelter in the fields with those of the inhabitants whom the fire had chased from their homes.

"I passed the night in the fields and the next day I was taken to the hospital, where I was for three weeks. The French came back, and I still held the faint hope that the Germans lied to me to terrorize me, and that perhaps I would one day see my husband and my daughter. One morning they came to me in the hospital and told me to be courageous. I was so feeble and so thoroughly frightened that I did not at first understand them. They then told me that they had found my loved ones in the cellar. I thought for an instant that they meant they had found them living, but no, it was their bodies they had found. The Germans had told me the truth. The charred bodies of my husband and my daughter were there—he seated with his back to the wall; the girl lying on her face, her features buried in the ground, crushed in the debris of timbers. They made me go to Switzerland; they searched through Alsace for my son, who rejoined me. That is all."

"I have given this horrid recital in its exact form," writes the correspondent of the Petit Parisien, "and have intentionally held to her own language. It is a deposition and not a newspaper article that I am writing. It is of the sorrows that surpass compassion. One does not shed tears over the horrible. Mrs. Weill was, if not rich, at least well to do. She lives to-day in one miserable room. She asks nothing of any one. At the head of her bed she showed me on a little folding table two photographs. They were those of the victims. The girl was so pretty. I repeat that I am not trying to add to this article any heart appeal, but I cannot refrain from speaking of this detail: Over the portraits of her husband and daughter—assassinated by the Germans— Mrs. Weill has pinned on the wall another portrait encircled with a tri-colour band. It is that of General Joffre."

MOOSEJAW AND ITS PROVISION FOR CITY GARDENING

The Moose Jaw Board of Trade is inaugurating a scheme for the cultivating of vacant lots in the City and are now trying to get all the owners of vacant property to give up their lots for the cultivation of garden produce. The Board last year carried out a successful scheme of improving the appearance of the City by getting the citizens to take an interest in vegetable and landscape gardening by competing for prizes, and this year it is intended that the scheme will be carried further to include all vacant property in the City where it is possible to get the permission of the owner to allow it to be converted into vegetable gardens.

Is 83 Years Old

And Her Heart Does Not Bother Her.

Thanks to MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. McLaren, Commanda, Ont., writes us under date of February 9th, 1914. "Sixteen years ago I took bad with my heart and nerves, and was not able to do anything. I tried a good many doctors, but they did me no good; in fact one doctor gave me up to die. I heard about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I thought I would give them a trial, and after using a couple of boxes I saw that I was improving. I kept on using them for quite a long time. I am eighty-three years old and my heart does not bother me at all.

"I am raising a little girl who was never very strong, and the doctor said that she had palpitation of the heart, so I started to give them to her. She is now twelve years old, and they are doing her more good than I can possibly tell you. I would advise anyone who has a weak heart to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, as they have done wonders for us."

Russians Score Notable Victory

The Princess Pats' Praised By Sir John French

GERMANS ARE BADLY BEATEN BY THE RUSSIANS

Along a Sixty Mile Battle Front the Kaiser's Troops Have Been Pushed Back a Distance of Twenty Miles and Are Retreating Before the Victorious Russians Who Found Unexpected Weak Spots in Their Lines.

SPECIAL CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 2.—Along a sixty mile battle front extending from the Vistula to Przasnysz, the Germans have now been pushed back for an average distance of twenty miles. The enemy's retreat continues, according to the despatches from Warsaw to-day, and the new German line, reaching fifty-five miles from Lipno to a point near Mlava, is being pressed back toward the Prussian cities of Soldau and Thorn. The Grand Duke has discovered unexpected weakness in the German lines north of the Vistula, the general staff declared to-day. To support his offensive in the Mazurian region, Von Hindenberg drew heavily on General Francois' army around Mlava, and on the German forces moving toward Warsaw through Plock. These forces are now massed west of Niemen between Augustof and the fortress of Grodno, exhausted and floundering in unfamiliar swamps. Their offensive has been shattered by the Russian artillery commanding the swamps causeways from Grodno; meanwhile the victorious Russian army that recaptured Przasnysz, operating as the right wing of the Russians north of Plock, is sweeping the Germans back in the region north of the Vistula. Southeast of Strytz and around Rosnatow the Russian drive has developed great momentum. The Austrians are retiring in great disorder. General Ivanoff has begun a new movement against Czernowitz, the Bukowina capital. The Russians have taken Sadagora, four miles north of Czernowitz.

UNITED STATES REPLY

WASHINGTON, March 2.—No country has a right to change the international rules of war. The conditions of war under which nations shall wage warfare, have radically changed but the rules as laid down and subscribed to by all the powers, still exist, and must be lived up to. Stripped of legal verbiage and diplomatic assurances of good will this will be the answer of the United States to the latest announcement of Great Britain and France. It is the position of the Wilson Administration and will be adhered to at all times. President Wilson emphasized to his callers to-day that he believes the international rules apply equally to all of the belligerent powers of Europe. All have certain pledged duties to perform so far as this country is concerned, and they will be reminded of these duties in the most friendly but perfectly firm manner.

ESCAPED SUBMARINES

HALIFAX, March 2.—Captain D. S. Davies, of the Canadian Elder-Dempster steamer Kawarra, now safely in this port, says that when two days out of Liverpool, he was stopped by a British patrol steamer, and warned that German submarines were in the vicinity. A few hours later he saw the submarines, which chased him, but by zig-zag steering, and the apparent disability of the machinery of the submarine, he was able to get away.

SALONIKI, March 2.—A despatch states that mines and submarines destined for the defence of Dedeaghatch have arrived at that port. According to a Havas despatch the guns of the allied fleets have destroyed the batteries of Kilid Bahr and Fort Sultanie (Chanak Kalessi), which guard the entrance to the narrowest part of the straits. Information from Mitylene and Tenedos is to the effect that over 100,000 Turks have been posted along the coast of the Gallipoli peninsula, near the Sea of Marmora, about 130 miles from Constantinople.

PETERBORO' BOYS IN THE TRENCHES

Lt.-Col. Rogers of the 3rd Dragoons Cables to Say That the 2nd Battalion is Just Back From a Week on the Firing Line.

CASUALTIES SLIGHT

Special Cable:

That Peterborough soldier boys in the first Canadian contingent, at least those who went with the 57th and 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, have had their first experience in the trenches, as announced in the Examiner last week, is confirmed by a cablegram from Lt.-Col. Rogers, former commanding officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, and now second in command of the 2nd Battalion of the First Infantry Brigade.

Lt.-Col. Rogers cables as follows:

Are back in billets after seven days in trenches with one of the best British regiments. Good experience; few casualties; officers well.

ROGERS.

The 57th's contribution of 126 men and the Dragoons' volunteers are in the second battalion and have thus come under fire for the first time. Lt.-Col. Watson of Quebec is in command of the second battalion. Lt.-Col. Rogers of the Dragoons is second in command. Major Jos. Mills of Peterborough, is the quartermaster, Capt. Garnet Greer, M.D., of Peterborough, the medical officer, and Lieut. R. W. F. Jones, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, transport officer. Major G. W. Bennett, of Peterborough commands A. company of the Battalion and has with him Lieut. C. H. Ackerman of Peterborough. Lt.-Col. Rogers' cable brings the satisfactory news that all of the officers have come through their first trial unhurt. The published casualty lists do not contain the names of any Peterborough men.

Relatives and friends here are beginning to receive cards from the boys at the front, the first to come since the expeditionary force crossed the Channel to France. Pte. O. D. Taylor, formerly of the Review staff, writes from "somewhere in France" to say that the battalion had been on the move for four or five days and had had little sleep. This was evidently written shortly after the Canadians arrived in France.

Word has been received from Sergt. Downes of the Coldstream Guards, the former local policeman, that he had been quite well and unhurt up to the time of writing. Sergt. Downes, who was a reservist, left here as soon as the war broke out to join his old regiment and is now at the front.

Annual Statement Reveals Highly Favorable Features

In spite of world-wide business depression, Canada's largest assurance company has just closed a highly satisfactory year. Total assurances on the books of the Sun Life of Canada now amount to $218,299,000, assurances written during the year totalling over $32,167,000. It is gratifying to Canadians to note that new business written during the year in Canada amounted to $15,998,000, an increase of $998,000 over the figures for 1913. During the year the Sun Life of Canada paid out to policyholders in death claims, matured endowments, profits, etc., the sum of $4,161,000 bringing the total payments to policyholders since organization to over $45,500,000. Other features which are worthy of note are an increase of not less than 15% in assets which now stand at over $64,187,000; an increase of 13% in net surplus to 6,502,000, and an increase to 9.71% in the average rate earned on the company's investments. It is also noted that the increasing scale of policy dividends will be maintained in accordance with which five-year and reserve dividend policies will receive larger dividends during 1915 than those received by similar policies in 1914.

Altogether, such a showing in view of adverse conditions is most encouraging and indicates that this conservatively managed company is in an even stronger position to-day than at any time in its forty-five years' history.

The secret of the quality in "SALADA" packets is in the immensity of the sales. The more people why buy "SALADA," the smaller becomes the necessary profit per pound, and consequently, the greater value it is possible to give you for your money. With the bulk tea merchant the temptation is to make a greater profit at your expense by supplying an inferior tea.

New Service Outfits Have Arrived Much to the Delight of the Men —Military Dance on Thursday Night

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The issuing of the new service uniforms for B squadron of the 8th C.M.R. was commenced at the armouries this morning and the men will be outfitted in a few days. Some of the necessary parts of the uniforms have not yet arrived, notably the caps, but they are expected to-day. In the meantime the men are being issued with boots, tunics, etc. Naturally they are delighted to get the uniforms which have been eagerly looked forward to.

The non-coms. of the 39th Battalion and 8th C.M.R. will hold a military dance in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe Street, on Thursday night of this week. Invitations are being sent out to-day. An enjoyable evening may be expected as the non-coms are royal entertainers.

The 39th Battalion were out for a route march this morning, taking a jaunt out to Jackson Park and then down through the south end of the city.

The following despatch from Kingston in regard to recruiting will be of interest. The big total supplied by the 45th Regiment is explained by the fact that the recruits were brought into Lindsay by train loads from Toronto, whereas the other units in the division recruited only in their own locality. The 57th Regiment leads the city regiments in the 39th Battalion, with its contributions beating Kingston and Belleville:

KINGSTON, March 1.— Recruiting for the third contingent has been stopped until orders are received about further units. For the 39th Battalion, 1,109 recruits have been obtained, and are now being drilled. The following regiments have contributed these numbers of men— Governor General's Foot Guards, of Ottawa, 142 men; 41st Regiment, 53; 42nd Regiment, 285; 43rd Regiment, 272; 56th Regiment, 22; 59th Regiment, 95 men, and McGill University, 250.

The 39th Battalion has now 1,088, the following regiments contributing these number of recruits—14th Regiment, 70; 15th Regiment, 98; 16th Regiment, 62; 40th Regiment, 142; 45th Regiment, 411; 46th Regiment, 190; 47th Regiment, 34; 49th Regiment, 164; 57th Regiment, 102.

For the 8th Regiment Canadian Mounted Rifles 439 men have been obtained, the 4th Hussars contributing 80 men; the 3rd Dragoons 142, and the 5th P.L.D.G., 216 men.

Recruiting Opens Again.

Although orders were issued on Saturday to stop recruiting for the 39th

JURY RENDERED AN OPEN VERDICT

In Connection With Enquiry Into Death of Helen Brown—Death Resulted From Illegal Operation —Girl Was Dying When Drs. Brown and Morgan Arrived.

THE EVIDENCE

That Helen Brown came to her death on February 24th, 1915, as a result of an illegal operation performed by some party or parties unknown to the jury.

The foregoing is the verdict that was rendered by a coroner's jury at the inquest that was held last night to [illegible] Brown, which occurred at 199 Hunter street, on Wednesday evening last. Coroner Dr. Greer presided. Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the examination. The chief witnesses were Dr. Eastwood and Dr. McPherson, who conducted the post mortem examination. Both doctors agreed that an abortion had been produced and was followed by blood poisoning which culminated in death. When the hour for the opening of the inquest arrived the doors leading to the Police Court Chamber were opened and such as could be accommodated were allowed in. The main bulk of the crowd was turned away owing to lack of accommodation.

The First Visit.

The proceedings opened with the examination of Dr. E. W. Brown. The deceased, accompanied by Mrs. Agnes Mowry visited Dr. Brown's office at noon on February 20th. Helen Brown went into the consulting room while Mrs. Mowry remained in the waiting room. Deceased complained of cramps in the stomach. She also told the doctor that she had fallen downstairs at her uncle's home and had suffered a loss of blood as a result. This had happened about a week before. She asked for some medicine to relieve the griping pain. Both temperature and pulse were slightly higher than normal. The doctor prescribed a small bottle of medicine. After that Mrs. Mowry came in and engaged in a general conversation with the doctor and the patient. They remained until the street car they were to take, came along.

Became Worse.

Four nights later or on February 24th, Dr. Brown responded to a telephone call to 199 Hunter street. He found the girl lying in bed, attired in a night dress. He was struck by the coldness of her arms and the feebleness of her pulse. There seemed to be a great disturbance with the circulation. He sent out for some brandy and gave the patient repeated doses. He then returned to his office for some strychnine and an instrument. Upon his return he found the patient very much worse, and decided that he would call in another doctor for consultation. Dr. Morgan was summoned by Mrs. Mowry. This was about eleven-thirty at night. All attempts at resuscitation failed. It was then decided to telephone for the girl's uncle. Ten minutes later the girl died.

Was Conscious.

The symptoms of the case were coldness of the extremities, fluttering of the heart, the peculiar ashy grey or slate colour of the face and panting instead of breathing. The girl constantly complained of pressure over the heart and begged of the doctors to relieve the condition. The patient went from ordinary health down to death in about two hours. Dr. Brown believed that the girl had overexerted herself. Deceased was talking right up to within fifteen minutes of her death. She gave no reason for her condition. Mrs. Mowry was there at the time. There were two beds in the death chamber, one in which the patient was lying and a single bed that was occupied by a little girl.

"What is your opinion as to the cause of death?" enquired the coroner.

Dr. Brown—"According to the history that I had of the case I would say that it was acute dilation of the heart, probably brought on by the exertion of vomiting. When she first came to my office I diagnosed her case as billiousness. When I learned that the day before her death, she had walked from Mrs. Paterson's home to the end of the car line, came up town on a stret car, and then walked along Hunter street, and up to the top flight of the house in which she died. I was led to believe that she had overdone herself."

Dr. Morgan's Evidence.

Dr. Morgan recalled the evening when he was summoned to 199 Hunter street. He arrived at the premises between eleven and twelve o'clock. He met Dr. Brown at the top of the stairs and was informed that the girl was in

MORE GAINS MADE IN THE CHAMPAIGN DISTRICT

French Continue Their Steady Advance Capturing Further Trenches and Holding Firmly All That They Gain —Germans Retaliate by Another Fierce Shelling of Rheims.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NOTABLE GAINS MADE

PARIS, March 2.—3 p.m. official.—A renewal of the German bombardment of Rheims and successes in the Champagne and Argonne regions, were reported in the despatches from the front to-day.

The Germans hurled fifty shells into Rheims, setting fire to several houses that escaped the previous bombardments. In a driving snowstorm the allies are advancing their lines in the Champagne region by bayonet charges against the German trenches. Notable progress has been made between Perthes and Beausejour and northeast of Mesnil. The prize regiments of the German army, constituting the Prussian Guard, have been hurled back by the allies in this region.

Violent combats are being waged in the Argonne. The allies have used mines effectively in recapturing positions taken by the Germans.

The enemy has made unsuccessful attacks upon the positions captured by the French on the heights of Vauquois, the French taking a number of prisoners. In Vosges a French gain of 300 yards near Celles, was officially announced to-day. The official communication also announced that the British repulsed the German attacks southeast of Ypres.

PATRICIAS PRAISED BY FRENCH

LONDON, March 2.—The Princess Patricias, Canada's crack regiment, were singled out for special praise by General French in an official report on the fighting around Ypres to-day. Following a heavy bombardment the Germans attacked the British trenches, the British commander reported. The Princess Pats repulsed the attack, and pursuing the Germans back over broken ground, captured one of the enemy's trenches, killing eleven Germans who remained. Near Labassee the British artillery has forced the Germans to abandon several positions.

PARIS, March 2.—The bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was resumed at ten o'clock yesterday morning, says an Athens despatch to the Havos Agency. A Russian admiral delegated to attend the council of the admirals, has joined the allied fleet in the straits, making the trip by way of Dedeaghatch, a seaport of Bulgaria, and the terminus of the railway line from Adrianople and Saloniki.

An Arrest Is Expected This Afternoon

Crown Attorney Hatton stated today that there was no doubt that the authorities would prosecute the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Helen Brown, which, according to a coroner's jury, resulted from an illegal operation. It is understood that an arrest will be made some time this afternoon. Particulars as to this could not be obtained up until the time of going to press. For several hours this afternoon Mrs. Paterson Mowry, in whose rooms Helen Brown died, was closeted with Chief of Police Thompson and Detective Newhill.

Shrouded in Mystery.

It is evident that there is much evidence in the hands of the authorities that was not revealed at the inquest. The Crown went so far as to produce sufficient evidence to warrant a verdict from the jury. This consisted mainly of medical testimony. They did not even produce the blood-stained bed clothing and personal effects which were concealed in the prisoner's dock from the morbid gaze of the curiosity seekers. Most of the jurymen glanced at them as they passed by to their seats. People whose names have been associated with the affair were conspicuous by their absence, and the whole was shrouded in mystery in so far as the spectators were concerned. The hearing came to an abrupt conclusion about ten o'clock last night with the announcement by Crown Attorney Hatton that no further evidence would be produced. Twenty minutes later the jury returned a verdict to the effect that an illegal operation had been performed by some party or parties unknown to the jury.

Arrested on A Charge of Murder

Dr. E. W. Brown, 474 George St., was arrested this afternoon on a charge of murder. The apprehension followed a lengthy conference which took place this afternoon in the office of Chief of Police Thompson. The charge arises out of the death of Helen Brown, who, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury, died as a result of a criminal operation.

INCOME AND EFFICIENCY.

We can the more readily sympathize with the desire of the railways to increase rates, provided that such an increase will obviate the necessity of reducing wages as a means of overcoming financial difficulties and creating a better balance betwen income and outlay. There seems to be from the point of view of the railways some ground for action that will insure to the latter a living profit; not so much profit, however, as receipts that will permit the giving of effectvie service, which in the practical sense, is all the public are interested in. The public are only concerned in the matter of profits so far as they are related to the problem of giving the public the required good service. The railways think they are also pretty heavily hit by what is euphemistically called the "war tax," a term employed as sugar-coating for the pill of increased taxation. The C.P.R. telegraphs have their business complicated and their interests affected in a way that makes the addition of the "war tax" on messages a distinct burden. Espec ially in the Canadian West it is claimed the long-distance telephones operated by the provincial governments, represent a considerable rivalry in business. Under the Confederation Act the long-distance messages cannot be taxed, so that the railway telegraph companies, with their business affected by the long-distance competition and the "war tax" superadded, in one case and not applied in the other, seem to have cause of complaint; and under the circumstances a claim is established for at least sympathetic attention to their demand for an advance in rates. It is of course as unpopular a thing to increase traffic rates, as it is to increase the cost of articles we purchase as daily necessaries; but when necessity demands an increase, we must make up our minds to bow to necessity, in one case as we do in the other. Adequate income in relation to expenses is the measure of operating efficiency, and the character of operating efficiency is the measure of satisfactory public service. Our whole fabric of agricultural, industrial, and commercial enterprise rests on transportation, and all these interests are affected beneficially or adversely by the quality and character of transportation.

THE CITY GARDEN.

"Back to the land" is the suggested cure of the conditions of urban congestion of population that creates so much economic disorder, unemployment and misery. When we wander far afield and come down to the husks diet of the prodigal son, we are some times glad to get back home, where there is always a welcome; and when, owing to the war and resultant conditions, we find ourselves hungry or greatly put about to get something to eat, we naturally turn, or should naturally turn, to mother earth, whose bread warm bosom always welcomes us. We have to practice economy—a new necessity to some of us—and we can, in the spring and summer especially practice a profitable economy—conserve the means of living and the acquirement of food by our own exertions in our, otherwise unoccupied time; by cultivation of, otherwise, neglected plots of ground, easily adapted to the work of kitchen gardening.

There are many places where the necessity of greater production calls for cultivation of neglected ground. The Nelsons, Birtish Columbia Board of Trade, urges the citizens to grow food stuffs on all the vacant lots in the city. If this is considered wise to do in a comparatively new country like British Columbia, it shows that the advantages are great. British Columbia is discovering that all the wealth does not come from placer mines or gold reefs. The best mine of wealth of all is the soil that can be made to produce wealth, that permits of the creation of wealth by human exertion. We, in Peterborough, can do better than Nelson. We can add to the cultivation of vacant lots, the cultivation of what soil about our homes, is not occupied by a little front lawn or the buildings.

There is no need for elaborate argument to show the advantage of such cultivation. A kitchen garden of even small size, properly treated and intelligently cultivated, can be made to yield for family consumption, an amount of food of a value we could not think possible unless we took careful account of what a similar amount purchased in the shops, or on the markets, would cost. We should find as others have found, by actual experience, that the fruit of the kitchen garden, would amount in money value to a saving of an amount (if a similar amount of vegetables were bought), that could easily represent a good share of the tax bill, or pay the interest on the mortgage which sometimes is an avoidable condition of the work of buying a home. If people would only learn to appreciate the value of small savings, the world would be easier. Street railway companies raise millions from an aggregate of five-cent fares, and a stamp of one or two cents amounts to millions in postal revenue. If every kitchen garden in Canada were cultivated carefully, the resultant crop in one season would amount to a value of millions—clear gain—money created from soil that before was worth nothing in the way of yielding available produce.

Little savings effected by the exercise of our industry in tilling a home garden would be sure to amount to a considerable sum, and is net gain, for the chief cost is our labour, the employment of our time not otherwise occupied. Ten, fifteen, twenty or twenty-five dollars' worth of vegetables raised in a kitchen garden, is just as good as similar amounts earned in the workship or factory. If our citizens generally would consider these things, and act accordingly, there would in one season be thousands of dollars added to the money available for comfortable living; an actual saving of thousands of dollars and an actual increase in home comforts.

One would like to urge upon our people to take this matter up; to do thinking and to make preparation for acting, now. We are in the first of the first spring months, and the season of growth will soon be upon us. We should be prepared for it. It is admitted that in agriculture as in horticulture, early seeding is the best promise of good crops. The war, and the disturbances and hardships it brings, are with us still. We must face the conditions and try to meet them. One of the conditions is lack of means, scarcity of money. This can be partly met by producing something that is money's worth, something we could not have perhaps if we had to pay for it in money we may not possess. Unemployment is sure to be one of our disadvantages. A man that cannot get regular employment would do far better in cultivating a little garden plot or vacant lot than in unproductive, soul-souring, disheartening idleness.

LUCKY BRANTFORD.

Not a factory in Brantford which had open doors when the war broke out, has closed doors to-day. With every one of them the sign hangs out "Business as usual!" Let us hope the day is not far distant when their early-morning whistles will appeal to as many men as usual.—Expositor.

ROWELL'S GREAT WORK.

Since the outbreak of the war nobody has done more and few as much as Mr. Rowell, to place before the Canadian people the seriousness of the situation and by his eloquence stimulate recruiting. Mr. Rowell has for months now unselfishly given of his time to this work. For some reason there have been too few of our prominent men engaged in this work. Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier have done their share, notably the latter, but apart from these not more than half a dozen of the many gifted speakers among the public men of Canada have taken the platform in the cause of the Empire at the gravest hour in its history. Canada already owes the Ontario Liberal leader a great deal for his virtue, stirring speeches on the war and our relationship to it. —London Advertiser.

THE OTTAWA SUBMARINE INCIDENT.

Naturally the British Columbia papers have been discussing the submarine episode at Ottawa at great length. It is quite evident that in view of the plain statements made by the Hon. William Pugsley, they are at a loss to understand the indignant outburst of the Premier. Mr. Pugsley drew attention to the fact that the order-in-council recommending the purchase of the submarines stated that the price was $1,080,000. The Minister of Marine admitted that the price actually paid was $1,150,000. Mr. Pugsley further said his information was that this money was paid out not by one cheque but by two. A cheque for $100,000 was issued to the company who built the boats. The other went to—whom?

The Vancouver Sun wonders why these plain statements and questions were not met by equally plain answers. "It is unfortunate," our contemporary says, "that the Prime Minister should be placed on the defensive, when it would be so much more simple to make a statement clearing away all the points upon which he in future may be attacked." This same view will occur to all who noted the indignant outbursts from the Government, accompanied not by specific information, but by the threat of the Premier that if Dr. Pugsley was looking for a fight his wish should be gratified.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

GERMANY'S PIN-PRICKS.

Before the high admiral's threat was uttered German submarines had sunk three of our merchant ships. They have since sunk four more—seven altogether out of the hundreds of vessels flying the red ensign and voyaging to and from our shores. These are facts to be remembered in England, even though they are ignored in Berlin. The Navy has to guard a long line of coast. It is almost impossible to prevent a submarine now and again slipping by the sentries of the seas but it is certain that its career of mischief cannot last long. The nation will accept these pin-pricks with perfect calm, and there is a sort of satisfaction in being able for once to find the enemy playing the game and waging war fairly instead of revelling in baby-killing.—London Express.

WHEN PEACE COMES.

Peace, when it comes, will not be based upon a compromise of conflicting theories, but upon the total abandonment of the conception, the contention or state of mind which brought the conflict on. The Kantian doctrine of duty to which all must bow, had come in certain countries to mean duty to state, and with this grew up the theory that a state which held its culture to be superior not only had the right, but must, as a matter of duty, impose it on lesser states by force of arms. Rent and riddled by a billion shells, there will not be a shred left of this theory when the war is over. Something not manifest yet but totally different will take its place, and for this the nations are battling blindly on. The war will be over some time; the last shot will be fired and peace will be hailed with prayers in the myriad temples and homes of earth. But the status quo ante will have vanished; an old order will have passed away. The institutions, the outlook on life, the theories which made men and nations what they are will be profoundly changed in Europe, and so modified that time will never bring back to conditions that were. The world can never again be what it was a year ago. Rochester Post.

THE PITIABLE PLIGHT TO WHICH BARBARISM HAS BROUGHT BELGIUM

The Sunday School Times of date February 14 contains a deeply interesting letter from Theodore Waters, who has just returned home after having helped to distribute a cargo of food to the suffering people of Belgium. He says in part:

My course in Belgium lay over that part of the country which has been ravaged by battles, and in the cities, towns and villages through which I passed I saw the havoc which these same battles produced in public buildings destroyed, homes demolished, graves holding men, women and children who once were happy in these homes. Worse, I witnessed the hopeless misery, the blank despair of the poor souls who are left behind to mourn the loss of their loved ones.

In Antwerp I saw over one thousand poorly-clad women, one in bedroom slippers, standing shivering in the snow and slush, waiting for food to be doled out to them. In Malines, under the shadow of the cathedral, its walls full of holes, its old stained-glass windows now but ragged remnants of a beauty that can never be replaced, I saw men, women and children gazing disconsolately at the ruins of the houses that once were theirs; poor people who begged something to eat of us as we passed. On the road to Brussels we overtook thousands of refugees tramping dejectedly along, weary and forlorn, returning to villages and towns where there is not now food enough to sustain those who are already there.

In Brussels we saw women holding babies snuggled to their necks, standing on cold street corner begging a centime for food. We visited the distributing stations and saw the food send over by kind-hearted Americans being handed out in all too meagre rations. They came in droves, these people, from all directions, and the clatter of their sabots on the pavements was a sad accompaniment to sadder thoughts; none spoke save to murmur a thankful "Merci, Monsieur!" as each portion was handed out.

In Holland I found thousands of refugees from Belgium huddled in retaining camps and on barges, some refined, some coarse and brutalized, all sleeping together without partitions to insure the least privacy.

We drove from Antwerp to Brussels in a two-horse carriage, drawn by a pair of animals too decrepit to be worth commandeering for army purposes. Our way lay along the road where the battles had raged and as we drove through the ruined villages it was like going to a funeral with the cemetery a long way out. Indeed, the country was one huge burying ground. Always between the ruined houses we could see graves. Graves, graves, graves! In some would be stuck a bayonet with a Belgian soldier's cap hanging on it. Above others were rough white crosses, rudely inscribed. "To the memory of a Belgian soldier. On one grave was a child's shoe, poor little mark of its parents' grief. Graves, graves! Orphans, orphans! A country desolated, its trees felled in rows to make way for the bullets, its crops long gone to seed and sticking leanly up through the snow. Houses in ruins or partly in ruins with the word "Bewoond" (occupied) chalked upon the doors to warn the homeless wayfarer that no more could be taken in.

Is it necessary to go into detail concerning that sad line of people, each with a hearful "Merci," uttered as the food was received, each hurrying away with a pitcher or pail of soup hugged under coast or shawl to keep in the warmth until the little ones at home could partake of its abiding nurture? No one needs a recital of details to realize the misery that lies behind it all, of the homes desolated, of the hearts broken, of the grief that will last through the year.

Give them this day their daily bread.

The picture drawn by Mr. Waters is a heart-rending one and a survey of it will not only stimulate American contributions for the relief of the Belgians, but will probably lead many Canadians to ask themselves if this country has done its full duty toward aiding a people who are in sore distress for no greater crime than seeking to maintain their neutrality in a quarrel in which they were not directly concerned. Upon the outbreak of the war Belgian relief funds were liberal, but the needs of these people are not to be met by spasmodic relief. Their prayer for daily bread will go up for many a long day to come.—Brantford Expositor.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Bankruptcy in the Court of Love

A Story For New Year's Day.

By WILLARD MALTBIE

"Bella," said Mr. Dudley to his daughter on the 31st of December, handing her a birthday present and giving her a kiss, "don't you think that a girl of nineteen is old enough to settle down and take some thought for the future?"

"I certainly do, papa."

"Today you begin a new year in your life, and tomorrow you begin a new year of the calendar. Suppose you do some thinking as to your actions during the past few years, make up your mind as to what is necessary in your case and form such resolutions as may seem essential to your future happiness."

"Tell me what you think necessary."

"The main thing I have in mind is this: The most important event in a woman's life—so I consider it—is her marriage—that is, if she is to be a wife. I have noticed in you an unfortunate propensity to regard those things which are preliminaries—in this country, where people usually marry for love—to the union of a man and woman, with the consequent rearing of a family, very much as you would consider a game of tennis.

"This, my daughter, is all wrong. Love is nearer akin to divinity than any other part of our nature. It is serious—very serious. I, your mother, your brothers and sisters, we who form a group so closely cemented, are held together by this one element in the composition of life—love."

"Oh, papa, how beautifully you talk!"

A shadow passed over the father's face, realizing from this remark that he had not produced the impression he desired. He was turning away disappointed when his daughter caught his hand.

"Really, papa, explain what you mean, and I will do what you wish me to do."

"Well, then, to come down to plain language, stop flirting."

"Oh, that's what you are driving at!"

"Yes. Tomorrow morning when you wake up refreshed after a good sleep think over your treatment of worthy and worthless young men, which is based merely on your fancy, and make a resolution that if you have any encouragement to bestow upon any one of them it will be given to some one who should you marry him—and you are now at a marriageable age—will make you a worthy husband, one you can be proud of before the world."

Bella sat musing.

"A penny for your thoughts," said her father.

"I was thinking that tomorrow morning will be a better time to make such resolutions than now."

"Why so?"

"Well, tonight I go to the Seymours to see the old year out and the new year in."

"What has that to do with resolutions?"

"Why, Jimmy Halliday will be there, and yesterday, just because I accepted a rose from Tom Erskine, he passed me on the street, pretending he didn't see me."

"Well?"

"Why, papa, you don't think I'm going to stand that, do you?"

"Do you care especially for Halliday?"

"Care for him! Of course not."

"Then why should you trouble yourself about him?"

"Oh, papa, how stupid you are! You don't understand such things at all. I will give Jimmy tonight as good as he has given me. Tomorrow morning I will make your resolutions"—

"My resolutions!"

"I mean that I will reform as you desire."

Her father, who adored her, gave her another kiss and left her, feeling that his words had been without effect. Not so Bella. She had really been impressed, but not for such general reasons as had been mentioned by her father.

Far down in the bottom of her heart was a soft spot into which a certain quiet, reserved young man, Edward Corwin by name, had settled himself without asking her permission. She had treated him in accordance with her usual methods, with the result that he had locked himself up—to speak figuratively—and all her efforts to get at him had signally failed.

Miss Dudley passed the evening of the 31st of December at Seymours', danced the cotillion with Tom Erskine, failed to favor Jimmy Halliday, smiled on Elliott Trecks and sat out a figure with Fred Swords, when she made up a spat with him, throwing him into ecstasies. Then, when all were assembled about a round table forming the new year in, she exchanged bonbons with Bob Sparkles, reviving a hope that had nearly died out. As for Edward Corwin, he was not present.

On New Year's morning Bella awoke and, looking at a tiny clock on a bracket, saw that it was 11 o'clock. Then she remembered her New Year's resolutions, and a troubled expression passed over her young face. New Year's morning was not so good a time for reform as she had supposed. A flower lay on a table that she had accepted graciously from Erskine, and she had agreed to go out with him for a ride at 3 in the afternoon. Halliday had been brought to his senses—so she considered it—and had received permission to call at 4 for the purpose of making a humble apology. Sparkles was due in the evening to say something very particular, but since Swords was also expected she did not see how he would have an opportunity.

Bella was very much ashamed of herself. It was easy for her to make resolutions, but how was she to keep them? Keeping resolutions is largely dependent upon freedom from temptation. But she had provided temptations that would beset her all the afternoon and evening of New Year's day. To make matters worse, she remembered several other engagements she had made with young men the day before the evening spent with the Seymours.

The word bankruptcy is usually considered to pertain to financial matters. Nevertheless there are a great many kinds of bankruptcy. There is social bankruptcy, where one is swamped with invitations; there is bankruptcy in one having assumed more duties than he can attend to. Miss Dudley's bankruptcy was that she had permitted too many young men to believe that there was a possibility for each of winning her. It occurred to her that the first resolution she should make was to apply for a discharge in the court of love. After such discharge she might make her resolutions not to become further involved.

Suddenly an idea occurred to her. She would simply "fail." She had heard of merchants failing, which she understood to mean that they simply lay down and let the throng of creditors pour over them. She would cut all her engagements—every one of them.

But how escape them? Flight occurred to her—ignominious flight. But flight alone was repugnant to her nature. Then she considered keeping her appointment with one of her suitors. No; that wouldn't do at all. Next came an idea of making a brand new engagement. She lay for some time turning this last proposition over in her mind, then made one fundamental resolution upon which a superstructure of good intent should be based.

It was 12 o'clock noon on New Year's day. Edward Corwin, lawyer, had been spending the morning in his room at home over an intricate case that he was obliged to work out and was thinking about luncheon when there came a ring at the telephone.

"Mr. Corwin?" came a woman's voice.

"Yes, I am Corwin. Who is it?"

"Bella Dudley."

"Oh, Miss Dudley! Happy New Year!"

"Same to you."

There was a brief pause, after which Miss Dudley proceeded: "This is a fine, sunshiny day. I suppose you are free on a holiday? It seems a pity to stay in the house with nothing to do. I wish they would revive calling."

"I am disengaged for the afternoon."

"How would you like to drive me in the runabout?"

"Very much. But I am surprised that you have no engagement for the day."

"If I tell you that I have a lot of them and mean to break them all [illegible]

"And if you told me your hair had no opportunity to make them I wouldn't believe you."

"True. Therefore never mind my engagements. Come at 3 o'clock and we'll have a spin."

"I'll be with you, most assuredly."

"One moment, please."

"A dozen, if you like."

"I would prefer to first consult you. Suppose we go to Sukemanse and dine at the Antlers. That would suit me if it will not be too cold for you coming back at night. Sukemanse is thirty miles, you know."

"I'll stand the cold."

"Very well. Sukemanse it is, with dinner at the Antlers, 5 o'clock. We'll go round by Terracesville."

"That will be fine. Goodby."

"Goodby."

* * * * * * *

"Bella," said Mr. Dudley on the morning of the 2d of January, "didn't you find it cold riding last night?"

"We had plenty of robes."

"What time did you get home?"

"About 10 o'clock."

"Several young men called in the afternoon," said Mrs. Dudley, "and two in the evening. They all seemed disappointed in not finding you."

"Did they, mamma. Please pass my coffee."

When the family rose from the breakfast table Bella told her father that she had something to say to him and, taking his hand, affectionately led him into the library.

"Papa," she said, "I've returned."

"How long will the reformation last?"

"Always. I'm engaged."

"Engaged?"

"Yes, engaged."

"For how long?"

"Forever."

"Mr. Corwin?"

The father embraced her.

"Do you believe the engagement will stick?" asked Bella.

"Yes," said the father.

"Why this man more than the others?"

"The others were Tom, Dick and Harry. This is Mr. Corwin. But how did you figure it out so quickly, sweet heart?"

"I concluded to go into bankruptcy in the court of love. But, realizing that I would get in the same fix again, I concluded to marry the man I really want and remove temptation."

However, that had the same result as bankruptcy, for marriage gives a clearance for all outstanding love debts.

FRANCE TO LIMIT NUMBER OF SALOONS

PARIS, March 1.—The Chamber of Deputies adopted the principal paragraphs of the bill limiting the number of new bars which may be opened and approved others making more stringent the regulations governing the sale of liquors.

The bill in its completed form will be passed this week.

PETERBORO' MEN THE BEST AT KINGSTON

"We have no better type of men than the Peterborough boys. They are the finest in the whole battalion. I wish you could send us another hundred." Such was Mayor Buller's report of a conversation he had with Capt. Gray of the 21st Battalion of the second contingent, now at Kingston. His Worship told the Council that he had found the Peterborough boys all in fine health and spirits. A number of them had been promoted, including Sam Thomas, who is a Colour Sergeant.

A new sanitary holder for tumblers is made of spring wire, so shaped as to touch the glass as little as possible.

STILL GRAY FIGURES LYING THICKLY IN ROWS GHASTLY EVIDENCE OF MAD FIGHTING

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 3. — Graphic, tragic, eloquent of the full meaning of the horror of war, yet simply told, is the latest account to be made public from the British official eye witness on the Ypres battle line.

"All the ground near the front line is ploughed up with shells and furrowed with the remains of old trenches and graves. The whole place is a vast cemetery in which our trenches and those of the enemy wind in every direction," he writes.

'In a sheltered spot there is a little graveyard where some of our own dead have been buried. Their graves have been carefully marked and a rough square of bricks has been placed around them. In front of the trenches German bodies still lie thick.

At one point of the brick fields recently some thirty men tried to carry our line. At their head was a young German officer who came on gallantly, waving his sword. He almost reached the barbed wire and then fell dead and he lies there yet with his sword in his hand and all his thirty men about him.

"It is the same all along the front in this quarter. Everywhere still, gray figures can be seen lying, sometimes several rows together and sometimes singly or in twos and threes.

"This description might serve, with a few minor alterations, for many localities along our front, where the fighting has centred around some wood, a village or trenches. It is as if each had been swept by a withering blast before which every object, whether a work of nature or of man, has crumbled into ruins or become twisted and deformed, and even the very ground itself looks as if it had been shaken by a violent convulsion of nature.

Attack Rose Deep in Mud.

"To the south of the Ypres-Comines Canal," the narrative continues, "the ground, although there are some enclosures, is comparatively open. To the north of it, however, there are many woods and these have become a tangle of fallen trees, interspersed with shell craters. To add to the hardships of such fighting the troops have been attacking on ground in which the men sink up to their knees in mud.

"Despite all these drawbacks," he says, "counter-attacks have been carried out with such resolution that in nearly all cases the original line has been regained. On the night of February 15, as our troops were advancing to drive the enemy out of one of these trenches, his guns suddenly opened a tremendous fire. Our men were in the open at some distance from the Germans at the time and being thus taken at a disadvantage their chance of success looked small. Without a moment's hesitation, however, the attacking line broke into a double quick and, pounding through the mud, burst into the German trench.

Three Survivors Hold Position.

"A counter attack on the 19th also was a most dashing piece of work. Trenches occupied by the enemy had been subjected to such a heavy fire that they would not await our onset. As our men charged forward cheering the Germans were observed to be leaving the trenches and hurrying to the rear.

"In one trench, which became in the course of the fighting more or less isolated, forty of our men continued to hold firm until every one of them had been either killed or wounded. In the meantime, word was brought to those in the rear that their ammunition was nearly expired, and seven men, the strongest available, were selected to bring up as much ammunition as they could carry. These latter found the three wounded survivors still standing amid the bodies of their dead and disabled comrades and still firing steadily. The support, slender as it was, came in the nick of time, for at that moment the Germans launched another assault which, like the previous ones, was beaten off and the position was saved.

"Our howitzers did especially good work on the trenches captured by the Germans at one point. Observers could see one lyddite shell after another bursting in the trenches and hurling the defenders into the air."

Quoting from letetrs which he says were found on the bodies of German soldiers, in support of his statement the eye witness says:

"There is no doubt the feeling in Germany toward the war is changing. They probably are as determined as ever to fight to the last but the early optimism and confidence are vanishing. It would appear also that the drain on the enemy's manhood is having a depressing effect.

"It is reported that even the ersatz reservists who are suffering from ailments which would render them unfit for military service, are being called on and that the supply of sound ersatz reservists had been exhausted in some districts. Some letetrs speak of the calling up of the untrained landsturm, which represent a large reserve still available, to make good the wastage of war."

CANCELLED RACING ENTRIES

LONDON, March 2.—The Duke of Portland, who for thirty years has been one of the leading figures on the British turf, has caused to be cancelled all his racing entries for the Epsom track, including those for the 1915 and 1916 Derby, because of the refusal of the Epsom Association to do without the use of its clubhouse for a few days.

This building is now being used as a military hospital, and the Epsom Association is soon to hold its regular meeting. When the association permitted the occupancy of its building as an hospital, it stipulated that the house be returned to it for its coming conferences.

In a letter of protest to the club committee the Duke wrote:

"Surely for one year the few followers of racing should be only too glad to forego their luncheons if by so doing it becomes unnecessary to disturb british soldiers who have been wounded for the sake of their country."

The committee yielded partly, and said that they would require only one floor of the building during race week. But this did not satisfy the Duke of Portland, and he caused the withdrawal of all his entries.

BRONCHITIS

If Neglected Will Surely Turn Into PNEUMONIA.

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold. It starts with a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest. At first the expectoration is of a light color, but soon becomes copious and of purulent character.

You have, no doubt, wakened up in the morning and have had to cough half a dozen times before you could raise the phlegm from your bronchial tubes, and when you do succeed in doing so you find that it is of yellowish or greenish color, and you get some relief right away. When this happens to you, you may rest assured that you have a touch of bronchitis, and if not cured immediately it will sooner or later develop into pneumonia or some other more serious trouble.

Cure the cold, stop the irritation, prevent bronchitis and pneumonia taking a hold on your system.

This can be quickly done by the use of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Rebecca Hove, Malagash Bay, N.S., writes: "My little boy, aged six, was always troubled with bronchitis, and when he had whooping cough he was worse. Doctors advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It gave him instant relief, and positively cured him."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

CITY COUNCIL REDUCED GRANTS TO HOME GUARDS AND DOCTORS

Ald. Dobbin Sounded the Economy Tocsin and the Council Had a Merry Whirl Before They Reached a Decision—Not Anxious About Arbitration's Award.

SOME OF THE DOINGS

The City Council tied themselves in a knot last night trying to decide the amounts of their grants to the Home Guard and the Medical Association.

Ald. Stratton's report from the Finance committee recommended $700 to the Guards and $300 to the doctors to help entertain the big convention of "medicine men" to be held in Peterborough this summer. Ald. Dobbin swung the economy sledge and rang the bell on the first attempt. In view of the extra expenditure occasioned by the war, the arbitration proceedings and also because of the fact that a large amount of rent in the city has not been paid, the Council, he said, should endeavour to carry out their election promises of retrenchment. He moved that the Guards get $500 and the Medical Association $200.

Dr. Amys and Dr. B. Kelly were present. The former told the Council that the convention would be a big event for the city and considered $400 would be a helpful grant to the local Association.

There followed oratorical flights upon the patriotism and merit of the Home Guards, the valuable assistance of the doctors, especially their work at this time, much of which was unrecompensed, their unrewarded work to the city, in the hospitals and so on. There were motions and amendments in quick succession until Mayor Buller was befogged and the City Clerk was almost reduced to sending out the S.O.S. call. At one stage, the deputation from the Guards and the doctors rose to leave. Mayor Buller had declared the result of one vote as supporting Ald. Stratton's report of the original recommendations. Major Layfield had even begun an expression of thanks. Then it was found that the result of the vote completely wiped out the proposed grants. The alderman—not all of them—proceeded to beat all around the bush again.

Two months' experience for the 1915 Council and they were unable to determine with despatch what they wanted or what they had really done.

Just then Mayor Buller began to get hot around the collar button. "This is the worst mess I've ever seen," he remarked in an aside.

Would Do With $500.

Major Layfield stated that the Home Guards would endeavour to get along with $500.

Ald. Stratton suggested that the grant in his recommendation be reduced to $500 and the report be adopting the Medical Association. This was done on Ald. Dobbin's motion.

More circumlocution, motions and amendments and finally Ald. Dobbin moved, seconded by Ald. Stratton, that the grant to the Medical Association be $250. This finally carried, after the most devious passage on record.

A ratepayer remarked afterwards that some one should present Aldermen Saunders, Edgar, Weir and McIntyre with iron crosses for their brilliant defensive retreat.

No Hurry For Decision.

The Council evinced no haste to learn the award of the Board of Arbitrators respecting the amount to be paid for the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant. A bill for $3,534.69 was presented from the Board and upon the payment of these costs the finding will be handed over. This sum includes the expenses of the city's arbitrator, R. A. Ross, including $523.65 preliminary expenses, $100 a day for 13 days and $90.85 train and hotel expenses.

Ald. Stratton moved that no action be taken. Some one will want to know the result more than we do.

City Solicitor Gordon said that the city has possession of the plant and there is not the same necessity of learning the award. He thought that some of the fees charged by the company's representatives might be taxed off. Ald. Duffus seconded the motion. If the company is successful the amount will be taxed against the city.

Wanted Information.

Ald. Edgar asked that a detailed statement of the Fire, Water and Light committee's estimates be presented to members not on the committee.

Ald. Green remarked that committees might as well be dispensed with and all the business be transacted by one big committee of the Whole Council, meeting every night.

Ald. Edgar replied that he had every confidence in the committee, but he wanted to know the details of what he was voting on.

Ald. Duffus said he was perfectly willing. He did not know that detailed statements had been given in the past to every member and believed the idea a precedent.

The estimates, with one exception, which Ald. Edgar sanctioned, were held up until another meeting of the Council. In the meantime all the members will receive copies of the estimates in order to have full knowledge of what the committee proposes to expend this year.

Roll Statement.

Statement of Roll ending Feb., 1915:

Total amount of roll for 1914	$302,932.48
Total amount deposited	283,799.30
Balance	$ 19,133.18
Amount deposited during January	$ 1,446.68

W. J. GREEN,
Tax Collector.

Auditor's Report.

Mr. James A. Hall presented the report of his audit of all the city's financial departments. He wrote that he found everything in good condition and correct.

Moved by Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that the usual 200 copies of the auditor's report be printed.—Carried.

Hydro-Electric Radial Union.

Ald. Duffus and Ald. Edgar presented a report of their recent attendance at the rural radial convention in Toronto. Mayor Buller reviewed the earlier work in this direction performed a year ago. The whole matter has recently been reported.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar, that $42 be paid as the city's fee for membership in this Union. The rate is $2 per 1,000 of population.

57th Band Request.

Geo. Chambers, secretary of the 57th Regimental Band, wrote, asking for annual grant of $500.00—Finance committee.

A. W. Ellson Fawkes, who acted as the city's engineer in the construction of the waterworks dam and station wrote, offering his services as consulting engineer if any work arises here.—Board of Works.

Ratepayers on Wolfe, Albert and Bolivar Streets wrote, asking for street watering service this year.—Board of Works.

The Chief Health Officer of Ontario wrote, asking for the proposed extension of the water mains.

BAND PRACTICES POORLY ATTENDED

Old Member Suggests That a Big Turnout is Needed

Sir,—I would deem it a favour if you would assist me to draw the attention of some influential individual to put a stop to the poor turnout at each practice of the 57th Regimental Band. It is to the city's benefit that such indifference should cease at once, and that each member should work heart and soul to make the organization an immense success. I have been a member of the band for years, but of late have not had the heart to attend practice for the simple reason the attendance is so poor. It is not justice to Mr. Gliddon, who, as everyone knows, is the right man in the right place. The music is of the first water an everything to make things comfortable. I have quite a walk to the armouries and don't feel inclined to budge when there is but a dozen men turning up to practice. We have lost two good men recently, principally because they could get a better turnout for practice elsewhere.

It is a disgrace to the Regiment, and a fine of $5 a man should be imposed for stay-aways. If we are not very careful we shall lose a man who is as good a man on his particular instrument as we have had for quite a while, and he is one of the band's latest captures at that. Rumour has it that there are other offers being held out in his direction. There should be strict rules and every member make it a duty to be on hand. Hoping I have not taken up too much space, I remain, an old member; also

Peterboro Asked to Help Defray Cost of Travelling Kitchen For 21st Battalion

A travelling field kitchen for the 21st Battalion of the second contingent of the Canadian expeditionary forces for overseas service is a necessary facility for the provision of which Peterborough will likely have an opportunity.

Mayor Buller broached the subject to the Council last night in connection with his recent visit to the military camp at Kingston, where he met the Peterborough volunteers at the recent military exercises. Capt. Gray of No. 3 Company wrote the Council explaining the service of the kitchen, and the desirability of securing one for the men. His Worship also referred at length to it. Capt. Gray said that the experience in Salisbury and in France had proved that a travelling kitchen provided more regular meals for the men in the field, and was therefore of essential importance. It would cost $5,000 and would be sufficient for the entire 1st Battalion now at Kingston. Various municipalities in this district are being asked to contribute toward the cost of one of these equipments for the reason that it is not included in the field impediments provided by the Government. Mayor Buller said that Mr. T. F. Matthews had prepared a list of names of local citizens whom he intended to approach for subscriptions to help defray the cost of a kitchen. He was out of town last night and Mayor Buller suggested that the question be left over until the Council could take it up with Mr. Matthews and any other citizens. It is likely that the Council will consider a donation. His Worship emphasized the essential importance of a travelling field kitchen to the comfort and care of "our boys" who will fight for the good old British Empire."

The general idea of this facility is that it consists practically of a big stove on wheels. Food is supplied hot and its special advantage is found in the fact that it can be moved close to the lines, providing a temporary base for meals.

Ald. Johnston Handed His Resignation To Council

But Old Comrades Declined to Accept it Until the Jovial North Ward Representative Has Time to Think it Over

NOT TREATED RIGHT

I beg to tender my resignation as a member of the City Council.

Yours respectfully,
W. J. JOHNSTON.

The above letter to the City Council last night explained the only vacant chair in the charmed circle, and as the aldermen gazed upon it and sensed its ghostly influence, the familiar seat gradually took the form of an aldermanic grave around which the little knot of City Fathers gathered to pay their respects to the departed. Ald. Duffus dropped the first verbal wreath, the tribute of an old comrade in arms. And as each alderman presented his offering it was noticeably bigger and more flowery than the preceding. It was a lachrymal, lugubrious occasion and the Mayor and Aldermen thought that an effort should be made to bring the deceased back to life.

Ald. Weir—He was a good head. The more I saw him the better I liked him.

Ald. Stratton—He was a good, faithful servant and has been long interested in the city's welfare.

Ald. Edgar—Let the whole bunch of us go up and show him we do not want him to leave.

Ald. Saunders—I feel that it is useless to send anybody to say anything to him.

Big tears were dropped when recollections of the jovial, good-natured Hydro William were stirred.

No one could explain the letter. It had fallen like a "Jack Johnston" bolting from the blue, with scarcely a warning hint.

While the others were offering their condolences, Ald. Duffus and Ald. Green, who had duly presented their respects, were doing a little more thinking and arrived at the simple suggestion of 'phoning the comrade.

Mayor Buller performed the duty and returned with a statement that Ald. Johnston had thought the matter over carefully. He told the Mayor that he felt he had not received fair treatment from some of the boys (I suppose he refers to the first of the year, Mayor Buller interpolated), and has made up his mind to resign. "He thinks it in the best interests of everyone concerned. He was the oldest alderman on the Board and had not received the treatment he felt he was entitled to. He felt hurt and thought the Council might as well accept it now was later."

Mayor Buller—I said, 'the Aldermen want you to remain.'

He said he would not say he would.

Mayor—I said I would tell the Council to receive it and he would come along just the same.

Ald. Johnston replied—Don't say I said so. My feelings are to resign.

Mayor Buller said he was one of those good-hearted fellows and if they let the letter lie over until the alderman cooled down he would come back in the regular way.

Ald. Saunders and Dobbin moved that no action be taken.—Carried.

The Council is in hopes that the wanderer will turn his steps again to the Simcoe Street corner and will place a light in one of the windows to guide him home.

ALD. JOHNSTON
His resignation was submitted to the Council last night, but the members want him to reconsider his decision.

Germany's Alcohol Supply Insufficient

BERLIN, March 1.—Germany's supply of alcohol is so far below the de- [illegible] "Spirits Central" organization, which primarily supplies the army's needs, has announced that it will be compelled to limit sharply deliveries of brandy and spirits for other purposes, especially for drinking. About forty per cent. of the former amount will be allowed to the larger industries for use in March and slightly more to smaller concerns. The supply of denatured alcohol for fuel and lights also must be curtailed.

An effort will be made to save for human consumption a large portion of the supply of potatoes now in distilleries and to induce distillaries to undertake the production of crude sugar.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

OLYMPIC GAMES SECRETARY KILLED WITH GERMAN ARMY.

BERLIN via London, March 2.—Captain Kurd Roesler, general secretary of the German Committee on Olympic Games, was killed in a recent battle in the Mazurian Lake district. Captain Roesler, who went to the United States with the German Olympic Committees in 1913, afterward retired from the army in order to devote his entire time to preparations for the Olympic Games, which were to have been held in Berlin in 1916. At the start of the war, however, he re-entered the army, and is said to have served with conspicuous gallantry, first in the western zone of hostilities, and then in the eastern.

THE VICTORY.

While here, there's strife 'twixt new and old,—
'Twixt good and better, constantly;
The better, thought sometimes subdued,
Victorious is bound to be.

Through strife, we've conquered vast domains
Of pride and ignorance and sin;
A thousand enemies without,—
Ten thousand secret foes within.

Through strife, we've made our foes to serve
The cause of peace and life and love;
Through bitter strife and agony,
Christ raised mankind to heaven above.

We suffer but a little while,
And he who would a victor be,
Ne'er takes a moment's rest, till he
Subdues his foes or makes them flee.

All does not end;—all will not end,
But that which harms and causes pain:
Right, Truth and Love, by earth obscured,
From out its depths will rise to reign.

CANADIANS' ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION IN FRANCE

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 1.—A letter received here to-day gives some interesting details of the Canadian contingent's life in France. The writer is Percy Buttery, who was on The Hamilton Spectator staff at the time of enlistment in the Canadian Ammunition Column.

"Owing to the very rigid censorship," he says, "I am unable to tell you exactly how we got here or exactly where we are now. We had a pretty rough passage across; far rougher than anything I experienced in my two crossings of the Atlantic. Upon our arrival we met a great reception and it was evident that the Dominion troops who had preceded us had established themselves in the affections of the French people, particularly the female portion thereof. Crowds lined the streets, cheering loudly and clamourously, and asking for souvenirs.

Many Girls in Mourning.

All along the route we met an equally enthusiastic reception. Union Jacks were flying from all public buildings and in point of numbers seriously rivalled the French national emblem. One feature of the crowd impressing me more than anything was the large number of young women dressed in deep mourning. At two stations en route girls handed us postcards on which were written their names and addresses, bitter denunciations of the Germans, and requests to us to send cards back from the front. Eventually we arrived at the village in which we are now billeted and which is about nine miles from the firing line. We can hear daily the booming of the guns, while at night rockets are used by both sides. This village, however, and its neighbourhood is so peaceful and quiet, and the inhabitants so calm that it scarcely seems possible that a big battle is raging a short distance away.

Driven Out by Bayonet.

This village was in the possession of the Germans for a couple of days but they were driven out by the bayonet, right back to the position in which they are now entrenched, and from which in a few days we hope to shift them. In the very field in which our horses are now picketed nineteen Germans are buried and large numbers of others are in different places round about.

Base Hospital at Cliveden.

Word was received here to-day that the Canadian Red Cross would guarantee the raising of the additional money necessary to bring the Duchess of Connaught's Canadian Military Hospital up to five hundred beds, and so enable it to become the base hospital for the Canadian contingent. The present accommodation of the hospital is one hundred beds. This means that the £12,000 has been found.

APPEALS FOR GENERAL

GENEVA, March 1.—Through the medium of the Swiss Red Cross, Mlle. Leman, daughter of General Leman, of the Belgian army, who defended Liege against the Germans in the early part of the war, has appealed to Emperor William of Germany to allow her father to return to his home in Belgium. Her argument is that the General, having lost the use of both his legs, can no longer be regarded as fit for military duties. Her appeal has been forwarded to Emperor William.

Pte. Jack Davis — Sergt. H. S. Hamilton

FIRST VICTIMS FROM FIRST CONTINGENT—The first casualties reported from the main contingent following their baptism of fire in the trenches are: Pte. Jack Davis, of Renfrew, Ont., and Sergt. H. S. Hamilton of the 51st "Soo" Rifles. Both are members of the 2nd Battalion of the 1st Brigade, which is composed of detachments from Ontario regiments. Both men were wounded by shrapnel.

CANADIANS HAVE DONE VALIANTLY AND THEIR WORTH HAS BEEN PROVEN

Most of the Damage Done to the Contingent Has Been Done by Frost-bite—Some Trenches Were Knee Deep in Water

NORTHERN FRANCE, March 2.—For seven days the Canadians have been fighting against the Prussian Guards and the Saxons in the first-line trenches. They have shown themselves splendid soldiers, and the losses, have been surprisingly small.

Sixty-three were disabled, owing principally to frost-bite sickness.

In their first engagement the men acted like old soldiers, being cool under heavy fire, while their discipline was good generally.

They fought for 24 hours, and then were relieved for that period by British troops.

One Canadian battalion was separated from the enemy by only 85 yards, while others were 700 yards apart.

Some of the trenches were knee-deep in water, and many of the men suffered from exposure. Other trenches are quite dry, and the dug-outs are snug.

Until moved up to the front, the Canadians in the reserve trenches were under every variety of gunfire, from "Jack Johnsons" to 18-pounders.

According to an officer who has just returned to the base, the men conducted themselves admirably. The infantry would have welcomed a bayonet charge to relieve the monotony of the work in the trenches, but this was impossible, owing to the wire entanglements and the muddy field separating the trenches.

On one occasion the Prussian guards charged the Canadians, but were caught by the wire entanglements before the Canadian trenches, and a whole company was mowed down. From each company crack shots were chosen as snipers, and they did effective work. Two Toronto men shot down eight men in a German patrol.

The following casualties among members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force have been announced:

2nd Battalion—Killed in action, Feb. 20, Bugler Edward Callan. Next of kin, Fred Callan (brother), Preston, Ont. Severely wounded, Pte. W. J. Broumpton, wounded in scalp; next of kin, Mrs. Elinor Broumpton, Catwick, Eng. Slightly wounded, Pte. E. Chapman; next of kin, Mrs. Jennie Chapman, Alisa Craig, Ont.

Second Battalion—Slightly wounded, Lc.-Corpl. J. H. Hannaford, in thigh; next of kin, P. M. Hannaford (father), Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Pte. John Davis, in foot; next of kin, Mrs. J. Davis, Renfrew, Ont.

Third Battalion—Severely wounded, Sergt. Victor Holland, in shoulder; next of kin, Mrs. G. Holland, 73 Gravelly Hill, North Birmingham, Eng. Slightly wounded, Bugler William Henry Sanders; next of kin, Rita Martha Sanders, 141 Manning avenue, Toronto.

Seventh Battalion—Killed in action, Feb. 26, Lieut. Herbert Beaumont Boggs; next of kin, Beaumont Boggs (father), 620 Fort street, Victoria, B. C.

The First Battalion is composed of men from Western Ontario regiments, the Second is mainly drawn from Eastern Ontario, but includes the Mississauga Horse, Toronto; the Third is composed of men from the Governor-General's Body Guards, the Queen's Own Rifles and the Royal Grenadiers, and the Seventh is drawn from British Columbia.

Of the men mentioned above, Sergt. Hamilton and Pte. Davis, of the Second Battalion have already been unofficially reported as wounded.

Lieut. Boggs was a member of the 66th Fusiliers. His father, Beaumont Boggs, went to British Columbia after serving in the Riel rebellion.

Another son of Beaumont Boggs is also at the front as a lieutenant in the 29th Lancers of the Indian army.

AN EXAMPLE OF SALESMANSHIP

I ran into him on a street corner, the "ham" in question being a street vendor of patent medicines. Gathered around him was a little crowd of men, with here and there a woman on tiptoe at the edge.

Standing on an old packing box the vendor was declaiming the virtues of the bottle he held in his hand.

"Good for man, woman or child," he cried hoarsely, holding a sample aloft. "Absolutely harmless to the system, but death to what ails you. Have you an aching tooth? Rub this ointment over the gums and cheek, and you'll save the tooth and the dentist's bill. Or rheumatism? Rub it in at night, and you'll rise fresh as a schoolboy in the morning. Headaches are instantly relieved by it. It takes the tire from tired feed. It's the most wonderful ointment ever invented." Whereupon he launched into an analysis of the why and wherefore which need not bear repeating.

"And now, gentlemen," he concluded, "you will want to take a bottle home with you. Only 25 cents—for a remedy you couldn't afford to be without if it cost $25. Who wants a bottle?"

I was close to his platform. A little man edged up to the speaker. "Did you say it will help rheumatism?" he asked.

Instantly the vendor's tactics changed. He was no longer the loud talker trying to get a rise. He leaned forward confidentially, close to the little man. "My dear sir, while this ointment is good as a cure for many aches and pains, because back of them are the same causes—it was first devised as a cure for rheumatism. That is its greatest virtue. Dr. Blank who is responsible for it, was himself a rheumatic invalid for years. He determined to rid himself of the scourge, and after long experimenting, formulated this ointment. It cured him and has benefited thousands of others. Just rub it over the sore parts of your body. Be sure to keep it up for thirty days. Four bottles will do the work for you. Yes, one dollar is right. Thank you."

In that little incident is an idea for the man who advertises and sells. The written advertisement is meant to get the "rise"—whether that ad. be the copy on a monthly mailing card, in a newspaper, a circular letter, house organ, an advertising blotter. While it may be more or less personal, pointed and direct according to the kind of audience reached, it cannot in the nature of things be absolutely individual in its message.

Such advertising is like the vendor talking to his crowd—meant to awaken interest.

But the minute that advertising has awakened interest to the point of an inquiry — advertising must step aside and salesmanship take the floor.

How quickly the vendor changed from the general to the specific and individual, when the little man asked if the ointment was good for rheumatism. The talk was no longer to the crowd, for the vendor had his cure from this "inquiry"—he was directing his message only to one possible customer.

He was no longer trying to create interest—but to make a sale.

You may talk to a crowd of possible prospects through the message of advertising, in order to get a list of actual prospects. But when you've got actual prospects lined up, don't answer their inquiries with letters that would do as well for Tom, Dick or Harry. Make them as individual as the information at hand will let you.

Or if it's a case of following up the inquiries in person—find out about the prospect before you see him, and then talk about the relation of what you're selling to his business or to himself. Sell it to him personally and individually—just as the vendor sold the one in a crowd.

He's a good clerk who shows no impatience in making a ten-cent sale, with a fifty dollar regular customer next in line.

Would Fix the Prices

W. F. Cockshutt's Foodstuffs Proposal Raises a Storm

OTTAWA, March 2.—W. F. Cockshutt, of Brantford, started a vigorous discussion in the House yesterday afternoon, when he proposed that the Government should control the price and exportation of foodstuffs, especially wheat and flour. Messrs. Mercer (S. Huron), Sutherland (N. Oxford), and Sir James Aikens (Brandon), were among the Conservative members who vigorously combatted the proposition. Mr. Sutherland said that the House had spent the day in debating a proposal at which the country would be laughing to-morrow.

The Prime Minister declared that there was a superabundance of food in Canada and said that the Government could not interfere with the price in times of depression, and Mr. W. F. Maclean (S. York) suggested establishing, not a maximum, but a minimum price for wheat. Mr. Maclean desired to see the price increased rather than reduced and urged wider storage capacity and a reform of the banking system, so that the farmer might be able to hold his wheat for a fair return.

The western Liberals severely criticised the member for Brantford and suggested taking off the duty on plows. They argued that the manufacturers as well as the farmers should make some sacrifices.

During the Parliamentary recess the Minister of Finance under authority of several orders-in-council issued Dominion notes in excess of the limitation imposed by the Dominion Notes Act to the extent of $26,000,000, out of which a loan of $10,000,000 was made to the Canadian Northern, and a loan of $6,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

OPINION IN WASHINGTON

Blockade Complete on U. S. Trade With Germany and Austria

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Duplicate announcements of the proposed "long range blockade" of the German allies were delivered to Secretary of State Bryan yesterday by Ambassador Jusserand and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice on behalf of the French and British Governments.

The announcement of yesterday on behalf of the British and French Governments that they will detain and restrain all commerce overseas with the German Empire, is accepted by high officials in Washington as tantamount to a blockade.

Should protests against the policy of Great Britain and France be registered by any of the neutral powers, the allies are expected to hold that their system of blockade is entirely tenable in view of the action of Germany in uttering and attempting to enforce and in a measure enforcing the war zone decree.

The direct effect of the general blockade of German ports will cut off utterly the commerce of the United States with both Germany and Austria.

GREAT RECEPTION

LONDON, March 2.—Two news agency despatches received in London from South-eastern Europe describe the warmth of the receptions lately given to General Paul Pau, of the French Army, in Roumania and in Servia.

General Pau recently had been in Russia, and it is evident that he is being employed by the French Government on special missions. A despatch from Bucharest says he received a hearty welcome on his arrival, and that he made himself popular in the capital.

The message from Nish says Gen. Pau came there from Roumania. At the station the French commander was welcomed by the Premier, Mr. Dachitch; the Servian Minister of War, and others of the Cabinet. As he drove to the French Legation he was given an ovation by the crowds which lined the streets.

A third despatch from Sofia says General Pau's trip through Roumania was expected to stimulate feeling in that country in favour of the Entente Powers—Great Britain, Russia, and France—in spite of the fact that the political situation in Roumania is still very uncertain.

Senator Dobresco has made a speech in the Roumanian Senate urging the abandonment of his country's neutrality. The Senator declared that only by such a course could the aspirations of the Roumanian people be realized. A representative of the Cabinet replied that the government was fully conscious of its responsibilities and appealed for the support of all parties.

84 British Officers Killed in 21 Days

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 1.—From January 26 to February 16, twenty-one days, the British forces in France and Belgium had eighty-four officers killed and 161 wounded, while twenty-five were reported missing.

This information is conveyed in the official officers' casualty list, issued recently. The list in its detail shows that the Coldstream Guards had five officers killed and five wounded in these three weeks. The other losses were rather evenly divided among the seventy different organizations now at the front.

Added to previous officers' casualties, the list shows that Great Britain since the beginning of the war has had 1,294 officers killed and 2,689 wounded, while 699 have been reported missing.

DOING GALLANT WORK.

Patricias Praised In Commons By Premier Asquith.

LONDON, March 2.—Premier Asquith paid a high tribute to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the course of his speech in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. He said: "Our own Dominions and own great dependency of India have sent us a splendid contribution of men, a large number of whom are already at the front, and very soon the whole of them will be in the fighting line in one of the actual theatres of the war. We hear to-day that the Princess Patricia's Regiment have been doing during the last few days a most gallant and efficient work. The territorial divisions are now fully trained and capable of confronting any troops in the world, and the new army, which lately has been under the critical scrutiny of skilled observers, is fast realizing all our most sanguine hopes."

JACQUES CARTIER AND ZAM-BUK

In 1534 Jacques Cartier, discoverer of Canada, and his crew, were saved from a terrible and fatal skin disease by an herbal remedy composed of the juices and saps of certain herbs. Mr. J. Cartier, of 2492 Clarke St., Montreal, a descendant of the illustrious discoverer, has just been cured of eczema by Zam-Buk. Mr. Cartier is a Justice of the Peace and Assistant Clerk of the Circuit Court. He is a member of the family of the late Sir George Cartier, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

Mr. Cartier writes: "Allow me to express my gratitude for the benefit I have derived from Zam-Buk. It is the best remedy for eczema to be found. I always keep it in the house as our family doctor. Its healing and curative power is immense. I wish everybody could know the high quality of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is the modern scientific representative of the crude essences and saps, which saved the life of Jacques Cartier in 1534. Zam-Buk contains these herbal extracts plus modern antiseptic properties unknown in the 16th century. Zam-Buk cures Ulcers, Piles, Eczema, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Chapped Hands, Cold Sores, and other skin diseases and injuries. All druggists and stores, 50c. box, 3 boxes for $1.25.

FREE TRIAL BOX will be sent on receipt of this advertisement, name of paper, and 1c. stamp. Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Takes Pasteur Treatment As Ruse to Reach Germany

Man Once Cavalry Captain Travels Three Months to Enlist, and When in Danger of Arrest by British Burns Leg With Red Hot Poker

BERLIN, March 2—The adventures of Edgar Boecking are among the most remarkable of the many experiences which Germans from many corners of the earth have had in trying to reach the fatherland for patriotic service.

Mr. Boecking was in Abyssinia when Germany went to war last August. He had been living in that remote section for six years, and was widely known there as a captain of cavalry in the German army. The ingenuity he was called upon to exercise in his trip home was worthy of Phileas Fogg, whom Jules Verne sent "Around the World in Eighty Days." It included an imaginary case of hydrophobia, to feign which Mr. Boecking had the nerve to burn two holes in his leg. These were to represent the bites of a mad dog, for treatment of which he successfully begged aid in expediting his trip to the Pasteur Institute in Cairo. He carred out his "bluff," even to the extent of submitting to the Pasteur treatment.

When Mr. Boeking determined, immediately on the outbreak of the war, to return to Germany to volunteer he first considered which was the safest of the three routes out of Abyssinia. The quickest, via Jibouti, would take him into French Somaliland, where he was well known and could not hope to escape detention by the French officers. A second route, via Massaua, led through neutral Italian territory, but French and British war ships were on the watch and were searching all Italian ships carefully. Apart from the danger of the hostile ships this route required a two months' trip by caravan in the rainy season. The third choice, which Mr. Boeking selected notwithstanding that it was perhaps the most risky way of all, was through the English Soudan.

Travels Through the Soudan.

He obtained a pass purporting to be issued by a neutral State and started out with eight mules and six servants. He believed the British would hardly assume that a German had the nerve to travel, after the out break of hostilities, through a region so strictly guarded as the Soudan. He started on September 23, and notwithstanding the rains, covered the distance, which ordinarily takes thirty-one days, in twenty-three.

In Gambela he encountered an Italian acquaintance, and, casting about for an excuse for his presence, recollected that this Italian had, in the previous year, been bitten by a rabid dog, a thing not uncommon in Abyssinia. Mr. Boecking promptly imagined that he, too, had been bitten, and told his friend he was on his way to Cairo to be treated at the Pasteur Institute there. He explained the situation to his friend, asking him to announce his arrival to the British authorities, and he, in the meantime, repaired to his hotel and carefully burned two holes in his calf with a red hot poker.

He had to wait in Gambela ten days for a steamboat to Khartoum. The whole time he suffered torments of mind for fear the authorities might be moved to telegraph to the British Legation at Addis-Aboba a query of his identity. They did not do so however, and Mr. Boecking left Gambela by steamboat, still keenly alive to the necessity of preserving appearances.

"The victim of a rabid dog's bite," he said to himself, "must, if possible, reach the Pasteur Institute within forty days to be certain of a cure. It is therefore up to me, if I want to make my dog story credible, to keep within this period, or, at least, to exceed it as little as possible."

Examined by British.

As he left the train he was greeted by seven British officers who told him he could not proceed immediately to Cairo, and that, since he had been bitten he must accompany them to the British military hospital. Two officers accompanied him thither. Two surgeons examined his "bites" and praised his foresight in cauterizing them. Mr. Boecking continues:

"After I had passed three days as a military prisoner in the hospital word came that I was to be brought before the Governor General. At noon I stood before His Excellency and learned, to my great delight (which I did not exhibit), that, as citizen of the neutral State of ——, I was free. His Excellency was kind enough to talk with me for an hour about conditions in Alyssinia and he sent me back to the hospital in his own automobile. There all my belongings were returned to me, and I was told that it was greatly regretted that, in consequence of a denunciation as a German officer, I had been arrested. I was to be permitted to go to Cairo unhindered, but a military escort would be given to me to prevent me from being molested.

"I was held for four days in Khartoum, but I can speak only in terms of praise of my treatment there. If I had been recognized as a German it would have been different. The English major who brought me to the railway station told me that I had been denounced as a German captain and he congratulated me that I had proved I was not. Otherwise, he said, I should have been brought before a court martial and either shot or condemned to life imprisonment for having a false passport."

Enlists on Reaching Germany.

At Cairo Mr. Boecking went directly to the Pasteur Institute and began taking the treatment. He remained for the prescribed twenty-one days, and upon leaving, on December 8, obtained a certificate from the French physicians of the institute that he had been treated with success. Arrived at Alexandria, he was again threatened with arrest, but his passport and Pasteur certificate saved him, and he was permitted to go on board an Italian steamship for Genoa.

One more ordeal awaited him. The steamship was stopped six hours before reaching Syracuse by a French warship, which examined every passenger aboard individually. Again the Pasteur certificate and the false pass port saved Mr. Boecking, and he finally arrived in Genoa after a trip lasting nearly three months. He volunteered for services as soon as he reached Germany and is now at the front.

COUNCIL DELETED PART OF INVESTIGATION JUDGE HUYCKE WAS ASKED TO UNDERTAKE

"If we've got to pay a bunch of lawyers, I'm opposed to it and will vote against it." This was Ald. Green's emphatic statement at the Council meeting last night regarding the cost of the Board of Education —G. N Gordon charges and counter charges which Judge Huycke has been asked to investigate.

The Council previously passed a motion asking the Judge to not only investigate the Gordon charges, but also tacked on an investigation of the expenditure of $85,000 for schools, and the $18,000 overdraft.

Last night Ald. Green thought that extensive pruning would be in the interests of the City. He advocated lopping off the expenditure for schools.

"If we want any explanation on this subject the Board of Education can give us what we need."

This was to cut down the investigation to the rights of Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hill to retain their seats on the Board of Education.

"I don't want to spend any money without getting value for it," Ald. Green continued, "and we will not be getting value by going into this thing."

His suggestion was simply that Mr. Hill and Mr. Gordon look after their own interests.

Ald. Stratton: "Will Judge Huyke undertake the investigation without a lawyer to get out the facts?

Mayor Buller—"I don't think he will."

It was suggested that a Committee wait on the Judge to get his opinion as to what was needed. That was the stage where Ald. Green set his foot on runnig up big legal bills.

Mayor Buller said he believed the Board of Education had spent the $103,000 judiciously, considering the time the buildings were erected. Regarding the Hill—Gordon matter he felt the Board should cleanse their own dirty linen.

Ald. Dobbin—"The questions before us were partly fact and partly law. We are eliminating the former and the Judge will determine the latter when the Hill—Gordon argument is before him.

On motion of Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. Stratton, it was decided to rescind that part of the original motion, asking an investigation into the Board of Educaton's expenditure of money, and that the motion refer only to the matter set out by the Board of Education in their communication to the Council; and that a Comimttee wait on Judge Huycke to see if it is satisfactory to him that the Corporation can proceed without the expense of securing a Solicitor to act."

Ald. Stratton seconded the motion.

Mayor Buller named Aldermen Green, Dobbin, Edgar and himself as a committee to wait on Judge Huycke.

ALMOST FAINTED IN THE STREET

In Daily Fear Of Death—Still "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd, 1913.

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. One day my eye caught a billboard of "Fruit-a-tives" and I said to myself "if Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it is good enough for me". I bought some. After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself wonderfully improved. In a short time longer, I cured myself entirely. My case was no light one, either, Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear that it would get around my heart and kill me. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion".

Sweeping Out Turks

Russian Army of the Caucasus Moving Forward Into Asia

PETROGRAD, March 2.—Russian troops are again moving forward on the Asiatic front, having cleared out the Turks from the Trans-Choroch region. The Russians have now advanced several marches, sweeping aside, destroying, and capturing the detachments and forces that venture to attempt any opposition. They are now approaching Ort Chai along one of the main high roads towards Erzerum from the west. From the east also a certain liveliness is again being exhibited, the Russians having taken a couple of guns from the Turks in an encounter in the mountain passes to the south of Alashkort. The two forces are marching in concert and are about equidistant from their goal from opposite sides. Nothing more has been heard of the Turkish raid into Persia which ended so disastrously at Tabriz. From all accounts received the Turks are heartily sick of the adventure into which they were forced by the Goeben on behalf of Germany.

Tried to Blow Up Cathedral

Anarchist Plot Discovered Just in Time to Prevent Catastrophe

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK., March 2.— Two Italians, believed to be anarchists, attempted to blow up St. Patrick's Cathedral, one of the most famous church edifices in the country, during 7 o'clock mass this morning. They were seized by detectives after a lighted bomb had been placed in one of the aisles. The sputtering fuse was stamped out before the worshippers knew of their danger. A third man was arrested at his home an hour later. Detectives are searching the cheap lodging houses for other members of a gang said to have plotted not only the destruction of the famous Fifth Avenue Cathedral, but the homes of several multi-millionaires, including that of Andrew Carnegie and the Rockfellers.

GIRLS! THICKEN AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Bring Back Its Gloss, Lustre Charm and Get Rid of Dandruff.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now — all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first— yes — but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp — Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft you hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

AUSTRIAN FINANCES IN A VERY BAD WAY.

BERNE, March 2.—A well informed Austrian financier admits that the financial situation could not be worse in Austria-Hungary. The Imperial Bank is issuing billions in extra bank notes, although the gold reserve for ordinary bank notes is already exhausted. No statement to this effect may be published, but it is an open secret in Austria-Hungary.

Jury Rendered Open Verdict

a dying condition. Deceased told witness about a fall she had sustained and which was responsible for the loss of considerable blood. It was with difficulty that the girl could say anything. Witness made the remark that he thought the girl would die, whereupon Mrs. Mowry is believed to have said—"for goodness sake do something for her." The doctors could not make a proper examination owing to the lack of proper light. Fifteen minutes after Dr. Morgan arrived, the case became hopeless and Mr. Paterson, uncle of the girl, was sent for. Witness was not sure as to the actual cause of death, and up until that time knew of nothing that would arouse his suspicion. The girl repeatedly complained of a weight in the region of the heart.

Left Uncle's Home.

Mr. A. W. Paterson, Cameron street, was next called. He said that he was chief inspector at the Canadian General Electric Company, and had resided in the city for twenty-three years. Helen Brown was his niece. She first visited Peterborough eight years ago. At that time her father was alive. She was an orphan at the time of her death. Deceased came to live with witness on April 4th last, coming from Boston. She commenced a course in the business college which she completed in September. Deceased continued to live with witness until last Tuesday, when she moved uptown with Mrs. Mowry. The reason she gave for leaving the home of her uncle was that she was in search of a position and would have a better opportunity of securing one by living uptown. Witness never saw his niece alive after she left the house last Tuesday. Up until a week before she left the home of her uncle she was in fairly good health, although she was not very strong.

Heart Was Normal.

Dr. J. H. Eastwood testified to having conducted a post mortem on February 27th, in company with Dr. A. W. McPherson. Outward marks of violence on the body were represented by the incision made by the embalmer. The heart was normal. Death was probably due to septic peritonitis. Witness did not think that the fall, which deceased is said to have sustained, responsible for the abortion that was produced. He did not think that medicines could produce the result that was found.

"Have you no faith in medicines that are advertised for such a purpose?" asked Dr. Greer.

"None whatever," said Dr. Eastwood.

Witness was strongly of the opinion that the result was produced by artificial means.

A juryman—"Were there any discolouration on the body such as would result from a fall?"

Dr. Eastwood—"None whatever."

Operation Recent.

Witness was of the opinion that the operation was of recent origin. Possibly within a day or two of death. Septic peritonitis or blood poisoning as a result of the operation was the cause of death. Recovery would depend on the kind of infection and the resistance of the patient. In this Dr. Eastwood was corroborated by Dr. McPherson. The latter allowed a period of from four to seven days as the time that would intervene between the time of the operation and death.

"This is all the evidence that the Crown intends to produce to-night," said Crown Attorney Hatton. "The cause of death is plainly indicated in the report of the doctors who conducted the past mortem examination."

Out Twenty Minutes.

In addressing the jury, Coroner Greer said that the preponderance of evidence was in favour of the supposition that the abortion was produced by external means.

The jury returned the verdict as given above after being out about twenty minutes. The jury was composed of Messrs. Roland Denne (foreman), John M. White, P. Alexander, Jos. Picard, Geo. Evans, Wm. Martin, C. B. Rowtley, John Allen, H. J. McCasman, F. C. Cubitt, J. A. McWilliams and Thos. Hendry.

CHOCOLATE PIE. NEW!

Something to whet the appetite of pie lovers at this 'tween seasons period is found in this inexpensive luxury; not too rich, either, despite its allluring name. Beat up three eggs, add a pinch of salt, four tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, one scant tablespoonful of flour. Mix well. Add one quart of a little less of milk, one heaping tablespoonful of Fry's Cocoa mixed first with a little of the milk. Pour into the pie crust and bake very slowly. Do not let boil.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

VICTORIAS ARE CHAMPIONS OF THE SENIOR O.H.A. SERIES

TORONTO, March 1.—Victorias are champions of the senior O.H.A. by virtue of their having gained a lead of one goal in the first contest, as the round by 15 to 3, and qualify to St. Michael's last night resulted in a tie, with the score 2 to 2. Over 7,000 saw the game, or, to be exact, 6,982 paid admission to see the two teams provide as strenuous and as close checking a game as has been witnessed in a long time.

Owing to the mild weather and the large crowd the ice became very sugary and slow after the first period, thus making it hard for the teams to manipulate the puck, and with the players sticking to their checks like glue it was anything but a game of sensational rushes. However, this was more than made up in the closeness of the score, which caused every move of the players to be watched with interest. This was especially true after St. Michael's had tied Victorias on the night after six minutes of the last period had been played. From then on was the most exciting and interesting part of the game, chiefly through the fact that a score for St. Michael's would tie the teams on the round. Laflamme, with three minutes to play, missed the Vic goal by inches when he was right in close, and this proved to be the final rally of the Saints, as Dissette was banished for upsetting Stephenson, and was not on until just before the final bell rang.

St. Michael's were perhaps better suited to the slow going than the Vics. The latter are the speedier team, but last night the sticky surface prevented them utilizing it. Good, stiff bodychecking was handed out, with the Saints the aggressors in this respect all evening. Some of it was legal, and at other times not, especially some of the flying tackles which Murphy took at several of the players. Fortunately for the Saints they were not caught at it. On the other hand, the Vics had more men visit the penalty box than the Saints, and in the first period had two men off at one stage, but even then St. Michael's were unable to bulge the nets.

Harry Meeking was the star of the game until the last period, when he was caught cold on several stiff checks, and thereby slowed up. It was Harry Meeking who won the game for the Vics by his brilliant work on the offensive, he getting both of the Vics' counters. In the first period he took the puck from alongside his own goal, and after passing two St. Michael players, went right between Dissette and Merrick, and then drawing Bricker out of the nets batted it into the corner. It was one of the greatest individual rushes of the season, even if it was bad work on the part of the St. Michael defence in letting him go between them.

ORILLIA'S EASY WIN OVER THE COLLINGWOOD TEAM

ORILLIA, March 1.—In the last of the semi-finals here to-night Orillia came back in the last period and defeated Collingwood by the lopsided score of 10 to 1. The score does not represent the play, the game being a hair-raiser from start to finish. By winning to-night's game Orillia wins the round by 1 to 3, and qualify to meet Wiarton for the intermediate championship of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The ice was keen and the seven cogs of the Orillia machine worked like clock work. Their tricky stunts and the combination had Collingwood completely baffled. The combination was marvellous and is a credit to the team. They are all in good shape and going fine and will make Wiarton go some for the silverware. No doubt Draper was the star of the performance. Never before has Draper shown up like he did to-night. He checked hard and his team work was errorless, and he figured largely in the scoring column. He played his wing and played it well and will keep his Wiarton opponent going some. Ross at centre was also there with the goods, his work in front of the nets being a treat. Jupp and McDonald played their usual consistent game, while the Orillia defence were invincible. Collingwood's lone goal was batted in from close range, giving Corbould no chance, but they never bulged it again, while every Orillia player except Corould found the nets.

For Collingwood MacLeod, Foulis and Belcher were the best, with Clark in goal doing some fine work. The score at the end of the first period was out all. Collingwood found the nets first, but Draper evened it up three minutes later. At the end of the second period Orillia led 3 to 1, and in the last period completely outclassed their opponents.

The line-up:

Referee—Lou Marsh, Toronto.

LADIES' CURLING COMPETITION

The points competition for the prize donated by Miss Dalton of Kingston, President of the Ontario Ladies' Curling Association will be played to-morrow morning, commencing at 9.30 a.m.

SPAIN WOULD JOIN IN.

Public Sentiment Strongly On Side of the Allies.

MADRID, March 2. — Many demonstrations were held in Spain on Sunday. The most imposing gathering was at Barcelona, where Socialist Radical speakers protested against Spain's attitude of neutrality and warmly upheld the cause of the allies.

Senor Lerroux declared that the Spaniards should change their attitude and co-operate with the allies in their triumph or Spain would otherwise be excluded from the peace conferences which will follow the conflict.

At the conclusion of the speech there were prolonged cheers and cries of "Long live France, England and Belgium."

Tried To Kill Enver Pasha.

PARIS, March 2. — The Temps prints a despatch from Sofia saying that news has been received there from Constantinople that an unsuccessful attempt was made Sunday to assassinate Enver Pasha, Turkish Minister of War, and Talaat Bey, Turkish Minister of the Interior. An attempt on the life of Talaat Bey was reported from Sofia on Feb. 26. He was fired at by a man in the street but was uninjured.

Dacia's Flag Hauled Down.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The American flag which flew over the steamer Dacia, captured last week by a French cruiser and taken into Brest, has been hauled down and the U. S. consul at Brest is sending the Dacia's crew back to New York City, according to cablegrams received here yesterday.

Captain McDonald was instructed to remain and to insist also upon the crew remaining. To the American consul at Brest, E. N. Breitung, the vessel's owner, addressed a message inquiring why the Dacia was detained and why her flag was hauled down and requesting the consul to look after his interests there.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Chicago Grand Opera Co. filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday, scheduling liabilities of $264,000 and assets of $61,500.

The Indiana State Legislature yesterday killed the bill which would compel all press associations to furnish news reports to any newspapers desiring service.

Turkish destroyers are reported, in a despatch from Tenedos, to have attacked Anglo-French mine-sweepers in the Dardanelles Sunday night, sinking two of them.

Passengers on the C.P.R. liner Grampian, which arrived in Halifax on Saturday, state that while coming through the Irish Channel she was chased by a German submarine.

Djemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish expeditionary force against the Suez Canal, has been recalled from the Egyptian campaign to take charge of the defences of Constantinople.

The Chilian steamer Ramcagna, bound for Venice, Italy, with a cargo of saltpeter, has been seized by French warships, the official German news agency announced yesterday.

The Guelph bakers yesterday put into operation a new schedule of prices. They advanced the price of bread from 12 to 14 cents for a three-pound loaf, and their pastry in proportion.

A militia order issued yesterday announces that the period of tenure of appointment of Col. Sir H. M. Pellatt, C.V.A., A.D.C., as brigade commander of the Sixth Infantry Brigade, has been extended to Feb. 20, 1916.

DEBATE DRAGS ALONG.

Most of Day In Legislature Is Occupied With Budget Speeches.

TORONTO, March 2.—Contrary to general expectations, the budget debate was not concluded in the Legislature yesterday. The day was taken up with speeches by the private members and the final big round is expected to-day.

Over-expenditure on civil administration was the criticism brought to bear by Joseph Ham (N. Brant). He found fault with the per capita expenditure on the prison farm and claimed the expense entailed by one cow to reach yearly $360.

Dr. Jacques, the new Conservative member from Haldimand, avoided politics, but discussed Ontario's relation to the war.

Severin Ducharme, the French-Canadian member returned in North Essex, declared, that there was no contention between the races in Ontario. All their differences had been sunk in one attitude since the war had broken out.

Roumania Has Signed Agreement.

PARIS, March 2.—Take Jonescu, Roumanian Minister of the Interior, informed a meeting of Conservative Democrats, who were discontented with the party's policy, according to special despatches from Bucharest, that he had not attacked the Government because J. J. C. Bratiano, former Premier and Minister of the Interior, had concluded a formal agreement for common action with the triple entente powers (Great Britain, France and Russia).

Proof of this would be found, Jonescu said, in the Roumanian loan made in London, which it would have been impossible to arrange if the Bucharest Cabinet had not made a categorical statement of its position.

Girl Takes Poison.

PORT HOPE, Ont., March 2.—About four o'clock yesterday morning Mary Leathwood, a home girl, residing at Mr. Ferguson's, Lake Shore road, committed suicide by taking poison. She was only about 14 years of age. She left a note saying that she left her personal effects to her sister. No reason for the act can be assigned, but she was of a melancholy nature.

Were Fined Two Dollars

Police Court Docket Was Ligh This Morning

Frederick Eastland and Isaac Murphy appeared in Police Court this morning on a charge of being found drunk in a public place. They pleaded guilty and were assessed two dollars each. Murphy paid both fines.

Mr. Corkery, proprietor of the King George Hotel, was present to lay a charge of assault against Murphy, but changed his mind.

"Get out of the hotel business and you will have no more trouble," admonished Police Magistrate Dumble.

A CORRESPONDENT FROM CHANDOS PRAISES THE NEW REEVE OF THAT TOWNSHIP

To the Editor of The Examiner:

The committee appointed at the meeting of the County Council during January session inspected Danes' bridge in the township of Chandos, Thursday, Feb. 18, 1915. Mr. F. J. Bullied, Reeve of Chandos, at the session of the County Council, took a bold stand to have the bridge assumed and built during the year 1915, and the result was that Mr. Bullied has secured the building of the bridge.

Mr. Bullied is a new member of the County Council, but seems to have quite an influence over the committee in regard to municipal matters. This can readily be seen from the fact that this being his first year in the County Council to have a bridge and assumed and built in the one year. No doubt the electors of Chandos can easily feel the need of such a popular man as Mr. Bullied. During Mr. Bullied's campaign for the Reeveship he gave the people his word of honour that he would do all in his power to advance the municipal matters of Chandos, and there is no doubt but that they feel they have marked their ballot in the right way.

"No Use Sending Men To War In Dancing Pumps"

Mr. MacDonald's Comment in Regard to Soldiers' Boots

OTTAWA, Ont., March 2.—H. W. Brown, director of contracts in the Quartermaster-General's Department, was examined by the Parliamentary committee to inquire into soldiers' boots this morning. Brown said that the samples sent out to manufacturers for the order of sixty-five thousand pairs of boots, was the same as the department had on hand for some time.

"Then why did the Government not provided as sample?" asked Mr. Macdonald.

"In the judgment of the department there was not time," said the witness.

"But there was no use sending men to war with dancing pumps on," said Mr. Macdonald.

Witness said his business was to buy what the Quartermaster-General told him to buy.

Mr. Pringle, counsel, said the United States Government had recently adopted for soldiers' boots a much lighter boot than that the sample supplied by the Canadian Government.

"But they are not supplied to United States troops to fight in the mud and slush of Flanders," remarked a member of the committee.

Vital Statistics For the Month

Substantial Decrease in the Birth Rate—Death Rate Same as Last Year

It is significant that the same number of deaths occurred in February of this year as for the corresponding month of last year, namely, 22. Fourteen marriages took place during the month as against twelve for a similar month last year. Births for the month show a decrease of 19 for the month.

Following are the statistics:

	1914	1915
Births	51	32
Marriages	12	14
Deaths	22	22

Building Permits.

A total of three building permits were issued in February, representing a valuation of $1,10.. In January, two permits were issued, the value of which was placed at $1,900. The same number of permits were issued for the corresponding month of February last year, representing a valuation of $300. In January four permits were issued, aggregating the sum of $28,500.

Issuing The Uniforms, etc.

Battalion, to day Lt.-Col. Walker, received word from Divisional Headquarters to continue taking on recruits until further notice. Enlisting has therefore been re-commenced at the Armouries under the same conditions as formerly. Intending recruits should not lose any time, however, in applying, as recruiting for the infantry may stop again at short notice.

Comforts for Soldiers.

The Canadian Kitchener League on Friday last sent away another box of comforts to the Peterborough soldier-boys in France, containing, socks, helmets, shirts, wristlets, etc. The League has also supplied the boys of the Third Contingent now at the Armouries with the same articles.

Mrs. Wm. Quinn, 82 Douro Street, received this morning from her son, Private W. T. Quinn ("Barney" among the boys), of A Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st contingent, the following letter, written on a French postal card and posted at Moutfort railway station, in France, Feb. 12. It was evidently written on the train and posted at the station:

Dear Mother—Am fine. Still travelling in cattle cars. Have fur coats and are warm and comfortable. Will write as soon as I reach camp. All anxious to get to the front. Have had some trip so far. Not sick yet. Three days. Write often. Love to all.

Explosion in West Virginia Mine Endangers Lives of 126 Men

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

THURMOND, W. Va., March 2 — One hundred and twenty-six miners are reported entombed by an explosion in a mine at Layland, in the new river coal fields. The explosion was said to have occurred shortly after 8 o'clock, when the day shift was on duty.

Sees End of War Within Six Month

Special Morning Cable.

LONDON, March 2—A military expert of the Daily Express, Lieut.-Col. Roustam Bek, writing in that paper, says:

"Col. Shumsky has openly declared in the Russian press that the present war will be over in six months.

"A man of great experience and strategical knowledge who has never been guilty of putting forth exaggerated statements in connection with the situation in the war areas, calmly and firmly announces this conclusion. Studying the ideas of my Russian colleague, I come to the opinion that Col. Shumsky has taken the most remote date at which the end of this terrible world-drama may be expected.

"My personal opinion is that we shall secure a triumph over our enemy earlier than the date fixed by my distinguished compatriot. After six months Germany will be in a state of such exhaustion that she will be unable to replace the losses of her army, even with the most incapable reservists."

YOUNG GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE

Port Hope Domestic Takes a Dose of Carbolic Acid

PORT HOPE, March 1 — Mary Leathford, a Barnardo Home girl, aged 20 years, employed as a domestic at the home of Mr. John Ferguson, Lake Shore road, committed suicide yesterday by taking carbolic acid. She was about as usual yesterday and appeared quite cheery. About 3 o'clock this morning Mrs. Ferguson heard a gurgling sound emanating from the girl's bedroom, and rushing in found her dying, with the empty bottle on the bed. Dr. Forest was called, but the girl was beyond medical aid. Coroner Aldrich decided an inquest was unnecessary. No reason can be given for her act, as she has always appeared in the best of spirits. That the act was premeditated was shown by a note disposing of her money and wearing apparel.

It Comes From The Misty Ages

Following are two of the best stanzas from Wensley's Epilogue from Banner of St. George, to be sung by the Peterborough Choral Society at the Collegiate Institute, to-night:

First Stanza.

It comes from the misty ages,
The banner of England's might,
The blood red cross of the brave St. George,
That burns on a field of white.
It speaks of the deathless heroes,
On fame's bright page inscrolled,
And bids great England ne'er forget
The glorious deeds of old.

Third Stanza.

O ne'er may the flag beloved
Unfurl in a strife unblest,
But ever give strength to the righteous arm,
And hope to the heart oppressed.
It says to the passing ages:
"Be brave if your cause be right";
Like the Soldier Saint, whose cross of red
Still burns on your banner white.

The music is by Sir Edward Elgar.

Of French invention is a rubber stopper with a flexible projection which can be folded down around the neck of a bottle for additional security.

Around the Theatres

AT THE EMPIRE.

Marguerite Clark is the particular star at the Empire's week. She appears as dainty and demure almost, as her personal appearance at the Grand some years ago. The big film in which she appears is "The Crucible," a stirring drama in which Miss Clark meets difficulties in the very first reel. They keep on increasing until the climax when the silver lining of the clouds begin to appear, faint at first, but broadening rapidly in the last scenes. It is an interesting film with many beautiful scenes.

AT THE GRAND.

The perennial "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," with Lovey Mary, is running at the Opera House for the first three days this week. This feature film introduces Beatriz Michelene to the movie fans. It is replete with interesting scenes and episodes, with realistic pictures of circus life. The homely cabbage patch stands out as the centre of various incidents. This film is well up to the standard of the multi-reels now in vogue.

THE TIZ-IT.

The war scenes shown at this theatre are taken along the River Lys, and are decidedly interesting. The bill includes an amusing film "Hazing the Honeymooners." A feature is the four-reel film "The Adopted Daughter," showing Ethel Grandin in the lead. There are several other good films in the programme.

Committed Suicide

Dr. E. W. Brown Ends Life Following Arrest in Connection With Death of Late Helen Brown

A tragedy was enacted in the police station early last evening, when Dr. W. E. Brown, aged 54, for many years a medical practitioner in this city committed suicide by taking strychnine. He had been arrested earlier in the afternoon on the charge of murder, the arrest having developed from the inquest into the death of Helen Brown, which a coroner's jury found had been due to an illegal operation.

Allies Make Further Gains in Champagne

Russians Continue Their Series of Victories

Germans Alarmed About Situation In Champagne

Bulwark of German Operations Has Been Sent to That Hard-fought Field to Try and Check the Allied Offensive.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, March 2—French military critics ask no better proof of the belief that the Germans are becoming seriously alarmed about the situation in Champagne than is found in the announcement by the French War Office that the Prussian Guard throughout the war both the bulwark and the battering ram of German operations, has been sent to that hard-fought field to try and check the allied offensive which has been sweeping forward victoriously for more than a week.

But despite the arrival of this formidable body of troops, the French infantry continues to press on. The afternoon communiques told of material advances in the Champagne district, and the evening statement supplemented the story with details of a series of successful attacks, one of which carried the French soldiers down and beyond the summit of the slope which they captured on Sunday.

The arrival of the Prussian Guards was related in the afternoon communique, yesterday, which also contained the gratifying announcement that the Kaiser's favourite contingent had failed in their mission.

KILLED NURSE AND CHILD.

Last Friday afternoon four German aeroplanes flew over La Panne, a small bathing place on the French sea coast. The airmen threw several bombs. One bomb carried away the cornice of a villa and killed a nurse and a little boy she was carrying in her arms. A military tailor was also killed. The aeroplanes did their best to disperse a Belgian column marching along the Adinkerke Road, but as they kept very high in the air in order to avoid the shells that were fired at them, the bombs were badly aimed and fell far from their target. Returning over La Panne the airmen did still more damage and claimed further victims, including the wife of a doctor. Afterwards the air squadron made off over Braydunes, but there found themselves face to face with British and French aeroplanes, so they immediately swerved off.

RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Amsterdam says that in all the Belgian towns along the Dutch frontier posters are displayed calling upon the populations to prepare for the billeting of a great number of German troops. This information is contained in a telegram received from Maestricht. The despatch adds that at Liege 29,000 troops are expected, at Seraing 5,000 and at Wandre 1,000.

Efforts of the French aerial forces in the past ten days have been efficacious, and some brilliant feats have been accomplished, according to a note issued by the War Office. As an example, the exploits of one aviator are described. It is said that on February 17 he discovered the location of 21 German batteries and the next day located a heavy battery, which immediately was bombarded, causing an explosion of caissons. The night bombardment of the barracks at Metz is cited as another incident. The War Office note declares that during the period mentioned there has been little aerial activity on the part of the Germans. The military value of the Zeppelin is declared to be slight. The note tells of the destruction of four dirigibles.

Keep Your Lungs Strong

This advice is doubly important with the knowledge that every three minutes some one in the United States succumbs to consumption and many refuse to realize they are afflicted until it is too late.

It is after colds or sickness, from overwork, confining duties or when general weakness exists that tubercular germs thrive because the resistive powers of the body are weakened.

Only with fresh air, sunshine and abundant rich blood can one hope to arrest their progress, and the concentrated fats in Scott's Emulsion furnish fuel for rich blood, and its rare nourishment helps strengthen the lungs while it builds up the forces.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or run-down Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known and is free from stupefying drugs. Avoid substitutes.

NEWS OF THE WAR AS CONTAINED IN DESPATCHES

BERLIN, March 2.—An admission by the War Office that the Russians recaptured Przasnysz and have renewed the offensive at both ends of the line from Neinr river to Bukowina. Russian reinforcements on all fronts have been so considerable that the Russians are pressing hard. In the Carpathians bitter fighting proceeds.

THE HAGUE, March 2.—A Zeppelin airship flying over Cologne protecting Rheims, has been blown down in a storm. The crew was saved but the airship was wrecked beyond repairs.

BERLIN, March 2.—Two spies were sentenced by the Supreme Court for transmitting by way of Basle, Germany, military secrets to the commander of the ranch fortress at Belfort.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Officials contend the British blockade as declared is not air tight, so denied they are entitled to stop America's non-contraband trade with Germany.

BERLIN, March 2.—Germanys latest reply to the American note expressed acceptance of virtually all proposals except one regarding the use of anchored mines, which is regarded as essential for defensive purposes. They will consider the abandonment of floating mines. Restriction of submarines has been agreed upon if ships refrain from carrying neutral flags or arming. An American commission in countries concerned for distribution of foodstuffs for civilians is suggested.

GLASGOW March 2.—Ten thousand Clydeside engineers are still on strike. Very few respected the governments order to return to work. Mass meeting yesterday favoured maintenance of strike. War material output is seriously held up. The government must do something to have order respected or the strike may spread to Tyneside, Liverpool.

ATHENS, March 2.—The bombardment of inner Dardanelles forts now continues. Kilid Bahr fort is practically dismantled, also Chanak. The reply from the forts is ineffective. Unofficial reports say several mine sweepers were sunk by Turks. There has been a demonstration in Constantinople favouring peace.

BELGIANS TO BE CLAD IN KHAKI

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 3 — The Daily Chronicle's correspondent telegraphs from northern France:

"Belgian troops are to be clad in khaki, after the style of Tommy Atkins. The transformation will take place gradually during the spring, and by the middle of the summer the whole Belgian army will be in khaki."

PARIS, March 1. — Raoul Gunsbourg, director of the Monte Carlo Opera, announces that the receipts of the season which is about to open will be turned over to the fund collected for the wounded soldiers of the allied armies.

It was for this opera season that M. Gunsbourg engaged Enrico Caruso, who is on his way here.

Russians Repulsed One Attack After Another

Enormous Austrian Losses in Fighting in the Carpathians ---In Spite of Repeated Defeats Austrians Return to Offensive.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, MARCH 2.—The Russian armies are now engaged in battles along virtually the whole eastern front. In North Poland having by means of large reinforcements been enabled to resume the offensive they are slowly pushing the Germans back to the East Prussian frontier. In the Carpathians and Eastern Galicia they have been engaged for several days in resisting fierce and repeated attacks by the Austrians.

Except in front of the fortress of Ossowetz, which they are still bombarding with their heavy guns, the Germans, according to the Russian official reports, have turned their backs upon the Russian railways, their first objective when they emerged from East Prussia on the heels of the retreating Russians a short time ago. In some places, however, they are fighting stubborn rear guard actions, which have led to close and severe fighting. The Russian offensive extends across Poland to the lower Vistula, where the Russian troops are holding back the Germans who threatened their lines south of that river.

For the moment, however, the Carpathians is the scene of the heaviest fighting. The Austrians, despite their repeated defeats and heavy losses in men and guns, have returned a vigorous attack between the Ondawa and San Rivers. This, according to the Russian account, was without any result

The battle continued all day Sunday and when it was ended the slopes of the mountains an the ravines were strewn with dead. Many of the Austrian units the Russian report says were annihilated to the last man. At other points along the mountain ranges similar attacks were delivered, and most desperate fighting occurred.

AUSTRIA REFUSES TO HELP PROTECT THE DARDANELLES

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 2.—The continuance of a heavy storm, accompanied by rain and a thick mist, which has interrupted the operations of the fleet engaged in forcing the passage of the Dardanelles, again interfered with the bombardment of the inner forts. The Turks are rushing a large number of troops to defend the Gallipoli Peninsula, the northern or European side of the strait.

A despatch from Athens says that Essad Pasha, the Turkish soldier who gained fame as a strategist by the defenec af Janina in the Balkan War, is on his way to command the Turkish troops defending the strait.

Essad Pasha is Provincial President of Albania, and it is most unlikely that he has left that country to join the Turks ,especially since he is the friend and protege of Italy, which country is known to hope for the reduction of the Dardanelles forts and the capture of Constantinople by the Allies.

If the weather does not clear up to-morrow it is believed the combined Anglo-French fleet squadron will proceed to the attack again in order to give the Turks no further time to strengthen their defences or to bring up more reinforcements. The fact that the German battle cruiser Goeben has been stripped of her 11-inch guns, which have been placed in the forts, is accepted as proof that hte Turks are much alarmed over the progress of the fleet, and realise that they cannot cope with the great ordnance of the warships with their present equipment ,their largest cannon being of 9.2-inch calibre.

A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens says: "After the destruction of Fort Dardanus the allied vessels bombarded the interior forts of Hamidieh and Yildiz Tabia. A naval division bombarded at the same time from the Gulf of Saros side of the peninsula fort, Boukali Kale, causing serious damage. The Town of Yenicher, near the fort of the same name, was burned."

"News has reached here from Berlin," says the Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent, "that the Turks are very short of ammunition for their big guns, and that the Austrians are making efforts to rush supplies through to Constantinople."

A despatch to the Daily News from Rome states that Germany is urging Austria to send warships, especially submarines, to the Aegean to surprise the Anglo-French fleet, but the Minister of Marine refuses to expose his warships to the risk of destruction. Moreover, the Austrian fleet is needed in the Adriatic, since the Italian fleet is concentrated and closely watching events.

The prevailing conviction in Austria is that the forcing of the Dardenelles is bound to influence Italy's attitude, hence surprises are feared.

ADMIRAL VON POHL.— New commander of the German battle fleet, succeeding Admiral Von Inglenohl, who was removed recently. Von Pohl was the man who announced the blockade of Britain.

CREW WERE ALL SAFELY LANDED

LONDON, March 3—The crew of the trawler Saphire which struck a mine in the North Sea yesterday, was landed at Hull to-day. The vessel went to the bottom.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO SUGGESTIONS

By America for Solution of International Problems Gives No Cause for Rejoicing

WASHINGTON, March 3. — Germany's reply to American suggestions for the solution of international problems arising from hunger, war and death zone gave the officials to-day no cause for rejoicing. They held its terms depended too much on the British attitude, and the British attitude they have found from the Anglo-French note is uncompromising and unrelenting. In fact the authorities still maintained that the German answer comes far from solving a series of problems involved and further that its counter proposals virtually kill American suggestions.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

"Yes, you'll excuse me now, old man," chimed in Eden blandly. "Call for me at the Palatial at eleven to-morrow, and we'll make a day of it."

Maxwell had no sooner accepted his dismissal than Foyle led the other over to his table. Eden walked with the manner of one uncertain what was about to happen.

"It is all right, Mr. Foyle," he protested eagerly. "It is all right. I haven't touched him for a sou."

Foyle began on the soup placidly.

"You're a joker, Jimmy," he smiled. "Don't get uneasy. I'm not going to carry you inside. Only you'll have to leave the Palatial to-night, Jimmy—to-night, do you understand? And if Maxwell turns up with a complaint against you there'll be pretty bad trouble. You'll be put out of temptation for good and all. There's such a thing a preventive detention in this country now, you know."

The Garden of Eden looked pained.

"Truth, Mr. Foyle, I haven't done a thing," he declared earnestly. "I'm trying the straight game now."

Heldon Foyle wagged his head.

"And staying at the Palatial," he smiled. "Oh, Jimmy ,Jimmy! I believe you, of course." And he went on with his soup.

Suddenly he looked up. "When did you last see Goldenburg?" he demanded curtly. "No nonsense, mind, Jimmy."

Eden's face had cleared. "So that's the lay, is it?" he said with relief. "I saw the bills out for him, and I don't mind helping you if I can, Mr. Foyle. He was never what you'd call a proper pal, and I don't bear any malice, though you've just done me out of a cool five hundred. That mug who's just gone"—he jerked his head towards the door—"was going to follow my tip and back a horse that won't win to-morrow. That's a bit hard, isn't it, Mr. Foyle?"

From his breast-pocket Foyle took a ten-pound note and slid it across the table. He followed Eden's meaning.

"Cough it up," he advised.

The Garden of Eden took the note and thrust it into his trousers pocket.

"He was in Victoria Station, talking to a foreign-looking chap, on Wednesday night." A look of astonishment crossed his face while he spoke. "By the living jingo, there's the very man he was talking to coming in now."

Foyle folded his serviette neatly, and rose.

"Right, Jimmy. I'll talk to you later. Go to the Yard and wait till I come," he said, and, walking swiftly across the room, thrust his arm through that of the new arrival.

"You are the man who used to be Mr. Grell's valet," he said quietly in French. "I am a police officer and you must come with me."

CHAPTER XI.

The man tried to jerk himself free, but the detective's fingers closed tightly about his wrist.

"There is no use making a scene, my man," he said, still speaking in French, his voice stern, but pitched in a low key. "You are Ivan something-or-other, and you know of the murder of your master. So come along."

"It's a mistake," protested the other volubly in the same language. His words slurred into each other in his excitement. "I am not the man you take me for. I am Pierre Bazarre, a jeweller of Paris, and I have my credentials. I will not submit to this abominable outrage. I know nothing of M. Grell; you shall not arrest me—"

Heldon Foyle cut him short. He quietly forced his prisoner outside the restaurant and signalled to a passing taxicab.

"I am not arresting you," he said, ignoring the protestations of the other. "I am going to detain you till you give a satisfactory explanation of your reason for leaving Mr. Grell's house on the night of the murder."

They were on the edge of the pavement close to the cab. Ivan with a quick oath wheeled inward, and struck savagely at the superintendent's face. Foyle's grip did not relax. He merely lowered his head, seemingly without haste, and, as the man swung forward with the momentum of the blow, jabbed with his own free hand at his body. So neatly was it done that passers-by saw nothing but an apparently drunken man collapse on the pavement in spite of the endeavours of his friend to hold him up.

The whole breath had been knocked out of Ivan's body by those two swift body-blows. Before he could recover, Foyle had lifted him bodily into the cab.

"King Street," he said quietly to the driver, and sat down opposite to Ivan, alert and watchful.

"Sorry if I hurt you," he apologised. "It will be all right in a minute. It has only upset your wind a little. That will pass off."

Ivan, his hands pressed tightly to the pit of his stomach, groaned. Presently he straightened himself up, and Foyle, calmly ignoring the assault, produced a cigar case.

"Have a cigar? I've no doubt you'll be able to make things all right when we get to the station. There's nothing to worry about. You will just have a little talk with me, and as soon as one or two points are cleared up you'll be able to go."

The case was struck angrily aside. Foyle smiled, and although his whole body was taut in anticipation of any fresh attempt at violence, he quietly struck a match and lit one himself.

"As you like," he said imperturbably. "They're good cigars. I have them sent over to me by a friend direct from Havana."

All the while he was speaking he was scrutinising the man who had been Grell's valet with deliberate care. Ivan was sleek and well-groomed, with a dark face and prominent cheekbones that betrayed his Caucasian origin. The brows were drawn tightly in a surly frown; a heavy dark moustache hid the upper lip, and though the shoulders were sloping he was obviously a man of considerable physical strength.

Foyle felt that it was going to be no easy matter to win this man's confidence. Yet he was determined to do so. Beyond the fact that he had vanished when the murder was discovered, there was nothing so far to suggest that he was the actual culprit. Certain it was, however, that he must have knowledge of matters which would prove valuable. If he would volunteer the information, well and good. The detective did not wish to have to question him, for such a course, however advisable it might appear, could be made to assume an ugly look in the hands of the astute counsel, should the man be charged with the crime. Where by French or American methods a statement might have been extracted by bullying or by cross-examination, here it had to be extracted by diplomacy if possible.

Sullen and silent Ivan alighted from the cab as it drew up under the blue lamp outside King Street police station. He passed arm-in-arm with Foyle up the steps. With a nod to the uniformed inspector in the outer office, the superintendent led him into the officer set apart for the divisional detachment of the Criminal Investigation Department. A broad-shouldered man with side whiskers, who was writing at a desk, looked up as they entered.

"Good morning, Mr. Norman," said Foyle. "This gentleman wants to tell me something about the Grell case. Just give him a chair, will you, and send a shorthand writer who understands French to take a statement."

"I shall make no statement," broke in the Russian angrily, speaking in French, but with a readiness that showed he was able to follow English. "It's all a mistake—a mistake for which you will pay heavily."

"Ah! that's just what I wish to get at. There seems to be a little confusion. Perhaps I have been over-zealous, but the fact is, Monsieur—er—Bazarre, you are wearing a false moustache, and that rather aroused my suspicions—see"

COULD NOT GO TEN STEPS
FOR THE PAIN IN HIS KIDNEYS.

When you get a pain in the back you may rest assured that it comes from derangement of the kidneys, for were there not something wrong with the kidneys the back should be strong and well.

Doan's Kidney Pills regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist. What more needs to be said? While Doan's Kidney Pills are not a "balm for every ill that flesh is heir to," they are a positive, never-failing remedy for every disease that has its inception in the improper action in those delicate little filters of the blood, the kidneys.

Mr. Adelard Cleroux, Eganville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for four years. They were so bad, at times, I could not go ten steps for the pain they caused me. My doctor could not do me any good. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought five boxes, and now I have been cured for over three years. I will recommend them to whoever may be suffering from kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Rheumatism

Just put a few drops of Sloan's on the painful spot and the pain stops. It is really wonderful how quickly Sloan's acts. No need to rub it in—laid on lightly it penetrates to the bone and brings relief at once. Kills rheumatic pain instantly.

Mr. James B. Alexander, of North Bergwell, Me., writes: "Many strains in my back and hips brought on rheumatism in the sciatic nerve. I had it so bad one night when sitting in my chair, that I had to jump on my feet to get relief. I at once applied your Liniment to the affected part and in less than ten minutes it was perfectly easy. I think it is the best of all Liniments I have ever used."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Frank Lunny, a Winnipeg fireman, died of injuries sustained when the hose wagon on which he was riding collided with a street car.

Forty per cent. of the students of Manitoba Medical College have enlisted for active service. Eleven of the final year will be given their degrees.

Emperor William has conferred the decoration of the Pour Le Merite order upon Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the German commander on the eastern frontier.

Two German aviators, who for two days have been clinging to their machines in the North Sea, were landed at Lowestoft yesterday by the British trawler which rescued them.

Admiral von Pohl, chief of the Admiralty staff, has been selected as successor to Admiral von Ingenohl, whose removal from command of the German battle fleet was made known Saturday.

David J. Minchin, for the past thirty years practicing physician in Berlin, Ont., died Saturday morning after a lingering illness of about a year. He was prominently identified with hospital work.

The Manning and Moore distillery and the F. G. Walker Distilling Co., two of the oldest concerns of the kind in the state of Kentucky, filed voluntary petitions in bankruptcy in the U. S. District Court.

A snow avalanche near Radou, in the department of Hautes-Alpe, France, has completely buried the hamlet of LaCaille. The houses are obliterated from sight, and it is believed some of the people must perish before they can be dug out.

Arrest Greek Notables.

PARIS, March 2.—The Havas Agency has given out a despatch from its Athens correspondent, who says that information has reached there from Sofia to the effect that the police of the Bulgarian capital have arrested a number of Greek notables charged with complicity with the explosion of a bomb the night of Jan. 15 in the local casino during a ball attended by the exclusive society of the city. This act resulted in the killing of two people.

TO FURNISH HOSPITAL.

Institution With 1,040 Beds to Go From Toronto University.

TORONTO, March 2.—The magnificent offer of the medical faculty of the University of Toronto to furnish and equip a hospital of 1,040 beds, to be placed at the disposal of the British authorities in connection with the war, was yesterday accepted by the War Office. Immediately a meeting of the medical faculty was held, with the result that a committee was formed to complete the plans.

The hospital will be the most ambitious undertaking of this nature yet attempted by Canadians. It will require a large staff of doctors and 84 trained nurses. All will be taken from the medical faculty of the University and hospitals affiliated with the University of Toronto. The hospital will be financed by the Militia Department, aside from a laboratory, which will have to be provided for by private individuals.

Cause of the Walk-Out.

GLASGOW, March 2.—The direct cause of the strike in the Clyde ship yards, which was ended by a Government order, was the importation of 3,000 American workmen. Learning that these men had been promised bonuses for rapid work, the native employes ordered the Americans to work slowly. This order was spurned by the Americans and the strike followed.

Brutality at the Bar.

Cross examination by lawyers is much less severe today than it used to be. Sergeant Ballantine once cross examined the defendant in a civil action in England so fiercely that after a quarter of an hour of the ordeal she fell down flat in the witness box and could not be further questioned. Chief Justice Erle, summing up, described Ballantine's cross examination as "an exhibition of brute force which I have never seen before in a court of justice and hope never to see again."

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

RUSSIAN PEASANT WOMAN.
© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

THIS YOUNG RUSSIAN WOMAN WAS BORN IN ONE OF THE POOREST PROVINCES OF THE TSAR'S DOMAIN. SHE CAME TO AMERICA IN STEERAGE AT THE AGE OF TWO YEARS, ALTHOUGH ONLY 24 YEARS OLD SHE HAS COMPLETED A HIGH SCHOOL COURSE, WORKED AS A STENOGRAPHER, STUDIED LAW AND HAS BEEN ADMITTED TO THE BAR. SHE IS NOW ASSOCIATE EDITOR OF A LEADING AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

RUSSIAN WOMAN OF THE CIRCASSIANS. SHE IS A BRIDE ABOUT TO RIDE AWAY WITH HER COSSACK HUSBAND.

AT an early age the Russian girl is acknowledged as an individual. No one in the family circle dares to suggest that her personality and its claims are of less importance than that of her brother. Her parents often err on the side of exaggerated respect of her freedom. But somehow this freedom is very rarely abused. Perhaps she is too serious and too taken up with mapping out her "career" to be injured by it.

Nearly every Russian girl "does" something after her education is finished, almost always means serious work and not amusement or sport.

Two of the most charming women of my acquaintance were allowed the most unlimited freedom in their earliest years. Their parents allowed these two girls, fifteen and sixteen years old, to take a villa in the Crimea and to spend the summer there, while they themselves went to Kissingen. The girls had a "chaperon"—a cousin, aged eighteen! These young women spent their days bathing and boating and making jam. But they also put in some hard work, the two younger ones passing a stiff examination on their return to Petrograd in the autumn.

These privileges of freedom seem to date from a very distant period, for we find a young princess in the twelfth century defying her parents and refusing all her tutors—and that at the mature age of twelve. This princess—Evrosinia of Polotsk—then retired to a convent and, desiring to found a library, she began to buy and to copy various books. Then she founded a convent of her own, where she taught the nuns to read and to write. Later she also founded a monastery, and for forty years she ruled both institutions with great success.

The spirit of independence and the pursuit of a personal ideal which drove the young Princess Evrosinia to leave her home still lives in Russia. To-day one can find scores of young girls, often of rich families, leaving distant homes, even against the wishes of their parents, and coming to the university towns to study. They live mostly alone or two or three together, very modestly, sharing what they have with other students. They will pawn or sell their last bit of jewelry to pay for some poorer friend's fees—or perhaps dinners.

In every university town there are special restaurants for students. These are run on unique lines. A great deal of the work is voluntary, and the food is extremely cheap owing to this and to the donations of people interested in the concern. The hard work, cooking, &c., is, of course, ordinary paid labor, but often the waiting is done by the students themselves, and the entire clerical and organising work is undertaken by the women students and various women who form a committee.

One of the first steps taken by the public in Russia after the declaration of the war was the announcement that in such restaurants free meals would be served to the entire families of those students who had gone to serve their country.

The Russian woman has perhaps greater opportunities than any other woman of showing her powers of organization.

Every country suffers periodically from some national disaster, but Russia has almost continual disasters in the form of famines and cholera—the latter scourge being practically annual.

The women play a most important part in the actual work of relief in both cases. The [illegible] being but comparatively simple, though there is often disease to be fought at the same time. But to work in a cholera stricken district is more than heartrending. It is dangerous in the extreme. The lack of proper hospitals, the insanitary conditions in the villages, the inadequate and uncomfortable housing of the doctors and nurses combine to make the work ghastly. It requires real heroism to volunteer for such work. Yet you will find women of all classes flocking to the stricken district, nursing the sick and caring for the children, themselves worn out, hollow eyed and often hungry, working till they drop.

Between 1897 and 1900, when there were a series of terrible famines, this society spent more than 7,000,000 roubles (about £70,000) for relief, and another 7,000,000 in medical aid, and yet their capital not only remained untouched but was increased, so numerous were the donations received.

The Russian Red Cross was, by the way, founded by two women, Mme. Sabinina and Baroness Fredericks, the latter also a Russian, though bearing a German name.

There are innumerable young women who are already veterans in this kind of relief work, and who with such training are likely to be of the greatest service when they undertake real Red Cross work.

There are numbers of other societies also founded by women, and working more or less on the same lines as the Red Cross. They all have permanent hospitals and staffs, and attached to them are convalescent homes, almshouses and often schools.

The best known of these societies is the one founded by Princess Shahovsky. Four sisters of this society, with the founder herself, went through the war in Servia in 1876. During the Russo-Turkish war there were already 118 of them caring for the wounded. And since then in every war in which Russia has taken part and in most of the big epidemics there have been sisters of this society. Many of them have received medals for their "valuable help and heroic self-sacrifice." There is, unfortunately, not space enough to do more than mention the wonderful and far-reaching work of the "Society of Fraternal Help," founded by Princess N. Troubetzsky, sister of Princess Shahovsky.

The idea of having a "flower" day to benefit such institutions is a very familiar one in Russia. There, as here, the idea originated with a woman. Every possible flower has its day. Marguerites are sold for funds for consumptives; lilies of the valley for children's creches and homes; the wheat ear for the famine funds and so on. Recently a flag day was inaugurated and £20,000 was raised. This sum is destined for the first member of the Russian army who enters Berlin.

During a war more than at any other time the general efficiency of the women plays an important part in the success of their country. This is especially so where there is conscription, for it is inevitable that life should become disorganised when all or most of the men withdrawn from it. In Russia women fill so many posts which in other countries are the privilege of men that they are still there to carry on the work when the men are gone—and in any case they are willing to take up a variety of occupations from which they are barred at ordinary times. It is true that they are welcomed and are given all kinds of jobs. Women act as clerks in banks and they occupy every kind of position in the municipal organization, even in times of peace. In certain villages they are occasionally elected as "dessiatski"—that is, a kind of policeman—among whose duties is that of collecting the young men whose time has come to serve in the army.

During the Napoleonic wars there was even a woman "starosta" (elder of a village). Nastasia—that was her name—led her villagers, armed with scythes and pitchforks, against the French invaders and took a great number of prisoners.

The Cossack women for many years fought side by side with their men, going into battle armed with anything they could lay hands on. This tradition—for it became a tradition that the women should take an active part in any battle—seems to have originated in 1774, when the Cossack town of Nasur was being besieged by the Tartars. The Cossack women helped by pouring not only boiling water and tar on the besiegers, but also the soup which they were cooking. Finally they became so bellicose that they sallied forth from the town dressed in their best red sarafans, armed and angry, and attacked the Tartars with great success.

And the Russian peasant women of to-day seem capable of living up to these traditions. Only a few days ago, when a German aeroplane fell in a village near the frontier, the women who were bringing in the harvest rushed to the spot and smashed the machine, belaboring the two aviators with their fists and hay forks. They overcame them, although the Germans endeavored to defend themselves with revolvers, and held them until some soldiers arrived and rescued the prisoners.

The women are ready, however, to show their energy in more peaceful ways as well, and we hear they are conducting almost the entire tram and postal service in both the capitals.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives". I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruit-a-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives".

MADAM M. CHARBONNEAU

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest stomach tonic in the world and will always cure Indigestion, Sour Stomach, "Heartburn", Dyspepsia and other Stomach Troubles.

THE POWER OF GOOD.

"Quit you like men, be strong!" "Overcome evil with good." The two are like one command. Overcoming means inevitably a struggle with a victory. It is likely to be a very silent struggle, with no sensational display of strength, but power there must be. And the greatest power will be found in the "still small voice."

The men and women who combat the evil in the world with the positive, persuasive, all conquering power of good are doing two things: destroying the disease and adding to the health and beauty of the world, both at the same time. Wreck and ruin are not spread by their victorious progress, but the wilderness is made to blossom as the rose. These crusaders have no time for anathemas nor for sounding the alarm. They sing as they go, eager "to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captive, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. . . . to comfort all that mourn; to appoint unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness."

Canadians Were Rushed to Front on Arrival in France

Instead of Being Kept in the Rear to Complete Their Training Members of Contingent Were Sent on to Trenches

NORTHERN FRANCE, Feb. 16.—Canada's volunteers probably will have had their baptism of fire by the time this letter reaches the Dominion. Instead of being kept in southern France "to complete their training" the members of the first Canadian contingent were rushed to the front immediately upon arrival on the continent. They were within sound of the guns less than a week after their departure from Salisbury Plain. They are now in the reserve trenches and the ambition of one and all is to meet the Germans.

Every member of the division, from the chief officer down to the private in the ranks, was astonished when the division was despatched to the battlefront, for, thanks to Kitchener, the opinion had prevailed before the contingent left England that the Canadians were to remain in southern France for several weeks for further training, and that this would be followed by several weeks on the lines of communication. The order to proceed direct to the firing line came as a complete surprise. But the Canadians were as delighted as they were surprised, and they made no secret of it. During the past four or five days trainload after trainload has passed up through a town near St. Omer, the men singing and cheering and making all sorts of demonstrations. Never were men in higher spirits.

The twenty-two thousand Canadians comprising the first Canadian division are now all together in the vicinity of Ypres, and it is understood they will shortly relieve the 27th British Division, to which the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry is attached.

Caused by a Submarine.

All the Canadians were safely landed at the French ports of Havre, Rouen and St. Nazaire. Most of them had an uneventful passage from Avonmouth, but at least one of the transports was chased by a German submarine when about ten miles from Havre. The troopship sought safety in flight and took refuge in the Bay of Biscay for a time, returning later to St. Nazaire. The troops on board belonged to the Army Service Corps or the Mechanical Transport Section, and were five days in making the voyage from England to France, while most of the other units crossed in a day.

The Canadians had a rousing reception in France, the people everywhere making a great fuss over them. A fine compliment was paid to the Mechanical Transport Section in the town of ——, where they were reviewed by a British General. "The Canadian division has the finest transport section of any division I have seen," said he. Not only were the men from Canada splendidly received by the French people, but also by the regulars and territorials of the British Expeditionary Force, who greeted them with ringing cheers and treated them as brothers.

Glad to be in France.

The Mechanical Transport Section made the trip up through France by road, the big motors making from forty to fifty miles a day. All the other troops were transported up country by rail, the various units moving up in much the same order in which they left their Salisbury Plain Camp.

When we saw the men of the Mechanical Transport they were packed for the night in the market place of a city some miles behind the firing line and were under orders to proceed to the front next day. The great motor trucks, loaded with ammunition for both infantry and artillery were formed up in six long rows.

"How do you like France?" we asked one of the drivers.

"Oh, this is great, especially if you 'parley vous,'" he said. "Believe me, we had 'some' time in ——. We had been living on bully beef and hard tack for five days, and when we got there we certainly had 'some' blowout. When we left camp at Salisbury we brought only one day's rations with us and the boat we came over on was not what, you might call a floating palace, although she was a good enough tub. Since arriving in France we've been sleeping in our trucks with one blanket apiece. Let's go and have something to eat."

Four or five of us walked up town. Presently one of the drivers spotted a shop which exhibited the sign, "English spoken." "Here we are, Jack," said he to one of his friends, "we won't need the book here." "The book" referred to is one which a lot of the Canadians are carrying. It gives them in French the equivalent of several hundred everyday English phrases.

Served With Ammunition.

Early next morning the Mechanical Transport Section left for the front. Every driver had been served with a hundred rounds or so of ammunition. "I've got four Canadian cartridges here," said one of them. "They'll be the first to go out of my rifle and I feel sorry for the German that gets in my way, for the British Tommies have been telling me that the Huns have been pulling some underhand things lately."

All that night and the three following days the Canadians were passing northward, and every hour brought them nearer the scene of action. On Sunday morning the Engineers passed through singing, "We are, we are, we are the Engineers," "O, Canada" and all the latest choruses. The men appeared to be in the highest spirits. On the train with them they had their pontoons, brought over from Canada. There is probably no more efficient unit in the division than the Engineers, and great things are expected of them.

We did not see anything of the infantry or the artillery, most of them having gone north before our arrival. At present they are billeted some ten or fifteen miles behind the firing line. All are living under active service conditions, their meals consisting of bully beef and hard tack, and their bedding of the softest thing that's handy. They sleep under one blanket.

The Ontario brigade, under Col. M. S. Mercer of Toronto, were the first troops to move to the front. They are now in the reserve trenches, where they have been joined by the other brigades.

It is interesting to mention how the men approached the battle-front. When they are fifteen or twenty miles off they are advanced gradually in battle formation. This goes on for several days, an advance of some miles being made daily, so that the troops are in the trenches before they are really aware of it.

Trying Conditions.

According to men who have just returned from the trenches, conditions there are very trying, the soldiers being compelled to stand up to their waists in mud and water. Another thing which makes the life anything but pleasant is the fact that the Germans have left hundreds of their dead in between the British trenches and their own, and they will neither remove the bodies themselves nor allow the British soldiers to remove them. It is feared that these conditions will make for trouble when warmer weather comes. The Canadians have heard of the abundance of mud and water in the trenches, but they are not in the least affected. They feel that it cannot be much worse than Salisbury Plain, and one man declared that if ever they sent him back to Salisbury Plain he would jump overboard.

Several members of the Expeditionary Force are in the hospital suffering from illness. Captain Coghill of Stratford, Ont., Quartermaster of the 1st Battalion, was brought down from Ypres suffering from pleurisy, and is now in the all-Canadian hospital at Le Touquet, which is commanded by Lieut.-Col. Shillington of Ottawa. A Sergeant by the name of Clarke, from London, Ont., also is there.

FIST FIGHT WITH SNIPER

German Sharpshooter Fell Out of Tree on Top of Briton

We were in the trenches, related Corporal Ayling of the Middlesex Regiment, when the order came along that the Germans were advancing. I was told to go along a road about twenty-five yards and bring in two sentries. When I got there one was missing and the other lying wounded under a tree.

I picked up the wounded man and started to go back to our lines when all of a sudden something fell on my back, stunning me a bit. Of course, I fell down with the wounded man in my arms, and a German sniper on top of me. He had fallen out of a tree.

Then we started a most exciting scrap, rolling on the ground. He was kicking, biting, and scratching, and the only way I could keep him quiet was to put my fist in his mouth. I fancy he mistook it for a pudding—anyway, when he bit I yelled so loudly that my chum, although wounded, could not help laughing. In fact, he started grumbling when I took my fist away out of danger, saying it was a pity to spoil a bit of sport.

All this time the fighting was going on fiercely, and my hands were full looking after my wounded chum and the prisoner. At last the Germans were driven off, and I was able to get assistance to bring my captive in.

4,000 GERMAN TEACHERS HAVE ENTERED ARMY.

BERLIN, March 1—The Budget Commission announces that out of 11,000 male high school teachers in the country 4,000 are serving in the army, while nearly half the high school pupils over seventeen years of age have entered the military service.

DACIA CAPTURED BY FRENCH CRUISER.— The issue raised by the Dacia is that of the transfer of ownership during war, she having been a Hamburg-American boat, recently sold to an American named Breitung and sent to Germany laden with cotton on a test trip. It was expected that she would be seized by England. The New York World says England cleverly escaped a sharp controversy.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

"Pape's Diepepsin" is quickest, surest indigestion cure known.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomach. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home — keep it handy — get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then when you eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diepepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

GEORGES CARPENTIER — The famous French pugilist who is reported to have been captured by the Germans while serving at the battlefront with a French regiment.

No Woman Need Have Straight, Lank Hair

Instead of burning the life out of your hair with a heated curling iron, you can add to its life by using plain liquid silmerine, and at the same time secure a far better and more lasting result. Your hair will have a delightful curl and natural wavy appearance, no matter in what form it is done up, if you will simply apply a little silmerine at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this through the hair from root to tip.

As you will not need to repeat the application for a considerable time—even if the weather be unusually damp—a few ounces from the druggist will last you a long while. This will not spoil the scalp or streak the hair, and it is neither sticky nor greasy. It is without question the best hair curling method yet found and no doubt will soon be as popular here as it is in England, where it originated.

OLD GUNNER FIGHTS ALONE

While it is said that modern warfare does not give to the individual many chances to distinguish himself, a British cavalry officer tells of a gunner who carries on a little war of his own. Going about as a traction engine, towing his gun behind him, he unlimbers, fires a few shots and goes on his way. That his work is effective is told by the officer, who wrote:

"There is an incident I must cite; it amuses us mightily. Some time ago, when closer to the lines, we were out exercising when the funniest old outfit came along—some old guy gunner with a big gun towed by a sort of traction engine. He was a funny looking old chap. He stopped his caravan, consulted some notes, and swung around into position and let off a couple of shots. The first one over, second short, and it appears he was quite satisfied with the next four, for he started picking up again.

"He had a kind of aeroplane with him, too, on a lorry, also in tow. He seemed to be running a little show of his own. Last we saw of him was around the corner with his traction engine half mired in the ditch. But it appears he knew what he was about, for he put one of the enemy's guns out of action with the four shots. He made us scream with laughing, but I hope he's going strong still."

SIDELIGHTS ON THE WAR

A patent of interest to the navy is a ship with an upper deck which can be released from the hull and will float when the vessel sinks.

Collapsible towers, adopted by the allies for searchlights and wireless telegraphy, are so light and compact that two men can carry a tower that extends to a height of 160 feet.

The British Army Council now definitely recognizes the right of Defence Corps throughout the country to wear uniforms, which consist of grey-green rainproof drill—a Norfolk coat, with roll collar, military cut shoulder-straps for privates, and low collar for officers—to be worn with breeches, brown boots, and gaiters.

Before the war broke out, the number of Jews in H.M. Forces consisted of about 100 officers and 300 to 400 men. The enthusiasm in the Jewish heart for the cause of England led to the result that no fewer than 10,000 Jews are now included in the records of the navy and army, whilst in the colonies likewise they have contributed a very large quota of fighting men.

The government of Peru has established a national aviation school at Lima.

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is Coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

SAVED BY A WATCH

Soldier Did Not Know He Was Struck Till Night

I've just had a very narrow shave, either from being killed or badly wounded, wrote a private in the First Middlesex Regiment to his brother at Beckenham. It was in the dash to take a good trench held by the Germans.

[illegible] and then went for them with our bayonets. It was absolutely clear ground between us and the Germans, not one bit of cover, and many poor fellows round about me went down as we tore across to come to grips. It was about half way across that I felt a sudden crack in the region of my waistcoat pocket, but not finding myself wounded I did not think any more about it.

We took the trench all right. The Germans stood it for a few minutes, and then fled, leaving the ground fairly strewn with dead and wounded. It was when I went to wind up my watch that night that I made the discovery that it had been smashed—with a bullet! Of course, that accounted for the sudden crack I had felt. The watch had probably saved my life. But I am now watchless.

For Rough, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

As March winds, flying dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolised wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, moth patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches or any surface eruption. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for one ounce of mercolised wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple, harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel will prove wonderfully effective.

German Ghoul Sentenced.

RENNES, France, March 1. — A German soldier named Carl Vogelsang, of the 26th Saxon Infantry, a native of Eisleben, has been sentenced here by a French court-martial to military degradation and death, having been found guilty of pillaging while under arms, of arson, and of despatching French wounded.

Strike is Called Off.

GLASGOW, March 1. — The peremptory order of the Government on Friday for the resumption of work to-day by the shipyard engineers at the Clyde yards, who went on strike for an increase in wages has produced speedy results. Committees representing the strikers decided Saturday to advise the men to return to work immediately.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GREY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns grey, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

STRONGEST LINIMENT IN 100 YEARS BEST FOR EITHER MAN OR BEAST

Nothing for Family Use Can Compare With It.

RUB ON NERVILINE

When you have [illegible] to wet and cold [illegible] full of pain, nerves are jumping with neuralgia, then you should have ready at hand a bottle of Nerviline. It robs pain of its terrors, gives relief to all suffering, brings ease and comfort wherever used.

No care or expense has been spared to secure for Nerviline the purest and best materials. It is prepared with a single aim: to restore the sick to health. This cannot be said of the preparation that an unscrupulous dealer may ask you to accept instead of Nerviline, so we warn you it is the extra profit made on inferior goods that tempts the substituter. Of him beware.

Get Nerviline when you ask for it, then you are sure of a remedy that will cure all aches, strains, swellings, and the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago.

In the last hundred years no liniment has been produced that can compare with Nerviline in strength, in penetrating power, or in curative ability.

For nearly forty years it has been Canada's household remedy, and mothers will do well to follow the advice of Mrs. Jessie Beggins, of Stella P. O., Ont., who says:

"Very frequently there are ailments in the family that can be cut short if Nerviline is handy. When my children come in from play, with a cough or a bad cold, I rub them well with Nerviline, and they are well almost at once. Nerviline is fine for earache, toothache, chest colds, lumbago, stiffness, rheumatism or neuralgia. In fact there is scarcely a pain or ache in man or beast it won't cure quickly."

The large 50c family size bottle is the most economical; trial size 25c, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

FRENCH STILL GAIN IN CHAMPAIGNE DISTRICT

DARDANELLES ATTACK IS PROCEEDING

CAPTURE FIRST LINE TRENCHES

Official Communique This Afternoon Shows That Importane Gains by the French in the Champaigne Region Art Being Continued---The Attack on the Dardanelles

PARIS, March 3. (Official.) — The French attacks upon the German lines in the Champaigne region in the past 10 days have resulted in very important gains, according to the official communique. "We now hold all the first line of German trenches," said the official communique, "from the nortwest of Perthes to a point north of Beausejour. We have progressed beyond this line at several points." Severe fighting continues around Badonviller and at Vauquois near Varennes. From Arras to the seacoast there is a lull in the activities.

AUSTRIANS LOSSES HEAVY

PETROGRAD, March 3, — The Austrian losses in killed, wounded and prisoners now total more than 70,000, as a result of the fierce fighting which continues at several points along the Carpathians, and in East Galicia, according to despatches from Lemberg to-day. The Russians have brought heavy artillery into position along the railway north of Czernowitz, and are now shelling the Bukowina capital at long range. A new offensive movement to retake Bukowina is about to develop. The combined Austro-German forces have been routed at three distinct points in the Carpathian and Galician fighting.

LANDING OF PARTY SUCCESSFUL

LONDON, March 3.—A landing party from the allied fleet to-day routed a small force of Turks on the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles, according to despatches received here this afternoon. Following their victory troops are moving northward, supported by several guns, to attempt a rear attack upon Fort Chanak, now under bombardment by the warships. Reports from both Sofia and Athens to-day again emphasized the seriousness of the situation in Constantinople. The public demand for peace and the threats of revolution have penetrated several other interior Turkish cities, including Adrianople.

REPULSED, SAYS BERLIN

LONDON, March 3.—The Berlin official statement to-day says that the attack of two British companies on the German positions at St. Eloi yesterday were repulsed after severe hand to hand fighting. (This is the point where the Canadian troops are in trenches.)

"WAR TO THE KNIFE."

AMSTERDAM, March 3.—Commenting upon the announcement of an Anglo-French "blockade" of Germany, the Cologne Gazette, the most powerful unofficial newspaper in Germany to-day said editorially: "German submarines will now endeavour to destroy all goods destined for England. If England wishes war to the knife, she shall have it."

AEROPLANE ATTACKS SHIP

DUNDEE, Scotland, March 3.—A German Taube made an unsuccessful attempt to blow up the Glasgow steamer, Dallsain, in the English channel, her captain reported on arrival to-day. The aviator hurled three bombs at the Dallsair. Each narrowly missed the mark and fell into the sea.

HORN IS INDICTED

BOSTON, March 3.—Three indictments returned yesterday in the United States court here against Wormer Horn, the German military suspect in conection with the attempt to blow up the C.P. R. International Bridge at Vanceboro, were made public to-day. Each of the indictments contains two counts charging illegal transportation of certain explosives on common carriers.

INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Board of Education Deals With Matter at Meeting Last Night

At the Board of Education meeting last evening, a communication was received from Mr. Hazen Ritchie tendering his resignation from the Public Library Board. It was accepted.

The committee on appointments reported as follows:

Gentremen,—Your committee beg to report and recommend that Miss Edna M. Henry, of Collingwood, be appointed on the Public School staff to succeed Miss M. M. Cadwell, who has resigned. Salary to be according to schedule and duties to commence after Easter.

Your committee also recommend that owing to the resignation of Mr. Hazen Ritchie from the Public Library Board, Mr. L. D. W. Magie be appointed for the balance of Mr. Ritchie's term.

The recommendations were adopted.

The personnel of the Industrial Committee for the year 1915 will be as follows:

Representatives from the Board of Education: Col. Miller, Messrs. John Crane, B. F. Ackerman, J. Smith, T. B. McGrath, V. Eastwood. Representatives from Manufacturers' Association: Messrs. E. G. Patterson, R. Denne, Thos. Barrie, Corkery, Sangster and Anson.

Mr. J. Hartley, 106 Murray street, in a letter informed the Board that he would take action if the snow, which he said was deliberately thrown from the Central School grounds, on his property, was not removed. Mr. Mowat reported that the janitor at the above named school had made some amicable arrangement with Mr. Hartley.

BAD FIRE IS RAGING

Drygoods' Block in Brantford is Totally Destroyed and Other Buildings Are Threatened

LOSS WILL BE HEAVY

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 3. — One of Brantford's worst fires occurred to-day, the E. B. Crompton drygoods block being a mass of flames. The loss there will be total, and will, even if confined to one block, be very large at $200,000. The fire started about 11 o'clock from the furnace room, though how is not known.

At twelve o'clock every fireman in the city was engaged with every stream of hose possible to play on it. The Crompton Block, a four-storey building, with basement, is already a total loss.

Unfortunate Girl Will Be Released

Mr. Joseph Wearing, who interested himself in the matter of having Margaret Duncan released from custody, has received the following letter from the Department of the Secretary of Stat.

"With reference to your letter of the 30th January last, to the Minister of Justice in behalf of one Margaret Leola Duncan, now confined in the Peterborough gaol, I am commanded to inform you that His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, has been pleased to direct that this girl be released from custody under the terms of a ticket-of-leave, on condition that she places herself under the care of the Salvation Army authorities, and is admitted into the Salvation Army Home for girls, as is promised."

Mr. G. N. Gordon received word to-day that the Governor-General has advised the Minister of Justice to direct that Margaret Leola Duncan be removed from the local jail providing she will place herself under the care of the Salvation Army authorities, and is admitted to the Army home for girls in Toronto. It is understood that these provisions will be carried out and the young woman will receive the necessary attention her condition demands.

Portable wireless apparatus, which is carried in an automobile and can be set up to work over a radius of 800 miles in 12 minutes, has been adopted by the United States army.

PRISONER IN THE AIR

Russian Aviator Carries Off An Austrian Soldier in His Bi-plane, Bringing Him Safely to Camp

A THRILLING EXPLOIT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 3.—For the first time in history a prisoner of war has been transported by aeroplane. Warsaw despatches to-day carried the news to the War Office with the recommendation that Terenti Paschaloff, a Russian aviator, be awarded a medal for unprecedented daring.

Reconnoitring with his mechanician, Paschaloff was forced to descend inside the enemy's lines in Southwest Poland because of engine trouble. An Austrian patrol surprised him while he was making repairs. Paschaloff turned his machine gun upon the enemy killing five. The sixth member of the patrol was captured by the mechanician and tied to the biplane which then started to return.

Crossing the Austrian lines the aviator was subjected to a heavy rifle fire. The prisoner managed to loosen his bonds and attempted to tear the levers from Paschaloff's grasp and dash the machine to earth. Paschaloff turned the levers over to his mechanician.

Three thousand feet above the ground with gusts of wind tilting the biplane perilously, the Austrian and Russian grappled behind the pilot's seat. Paschaloff seized a wrench and dealt his opponent a heavy blow on the head, stunning him. The Austrian was again strapped to the machine and brought safely into the Russian camp.

Watch Out For This Man

Have Him Detained and Notify the Police Department

A communication bearing the signature of Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, has been received by Chief of Police Thompson. It was originally addressed to Mr. Richard Hall, chairman of the Nicholls Hospital Board. It contains the following:

I am instructed to advise you that notification has been received from high authority that agents have been instructed to call on engineers and plumbers at different institutions and factories throughout the Dominion of Canada, asking the institution or firm to try a lubricant of which they will leave a sample in a box. It is reported that this box, when opened, will explode with great power and do damage to persons and buildings, as instead of a lubricant it contains a very high and powerful explosive.

You will inform your officers, engineers and staff of this fact, and if such agent should call at your institution offering such samples in this way you will endeavour to have him detained and at once notify the Police Department and this office by telegram or telephone.

FIRING AT LONG RANGE

Great Guns of Turkish Fortress and the 15 Inch Monsters of Queen Elizabeth Engage in Duel

LANDING PARTY REPULSED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 3.—The repulse of the Allies' attempt to seize the Turkish Isthmus near Bulair was reported in despatches from Athens to-day, regarding the progress of the Dardanelles bombardment. A British battleship supported by smaller warships shelled the Turkish fort on the Gulf of Saros for several hours. The Turks replied effectively with their heavy guns and defeated an attempt to send a landing party ashore to cut the line of communication between the European Forts and Constantinople. The warships have resumed the attempt.

The Anglo-French fleet has encountered strong opposition from the guns of Fort Kilid-Bahr on the European side of the Dardanelles. Athens despatches yesterday reported that the 15-inch guns of the Super-Dreadnought Queen Elizabeth had inflicted severe damage upon the fortress. Reports from Athens to-day indicated that Kilid-Bahr's great guns were roaring an effective answer and compelling the warships to bombard from long range. The Admiralty to-day did not credit the report that an Austrian fleet might be sent to the Dardanelles to attack the Allied fleet in the rear while the Turkish fleet moved out of the Strait and attacked from the front.

STRYCHNINE POISONING RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DEATH OF DR. BROWN

Fatal Drug Self-Administered While in a Depressed State of Mind—Deceased Had Made His Will a Few Minutes Previous to His Death—Protested His Innocence

INQUEST HELD.

Strychnine poisoning, said to have been self administered, was responsible for the death of a well known local physician in the person of Dr. W. E. Brown. The tragic affair occurred shortly before six o'clock yesterday deceased's apprehension on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Helen Brown, which is said to have resulted from a criminal operation. A coroner's jury that was empannelled to enquire into the cause of death gave it as their opinion that deceased ended his life while in a depressed state of mind, due to the lamentable circumstances in which he was placed as a result of the investigation. Prior to being confined in a special cell at the Police Station, deceased had discussed his case with his solicitor, Mr. A. E. Dixon. He also had his will executed, and suggested retaining a Toronto lawyer to co-operate with Mr. Dixon in his defence. It was while Mr. Dixon was looking over some papers in the guard room of the Police Station that the poison was believed to have been administered. Up till that time he had not been searched.

DRANK SOME WATER.

While reading some notes which Dr. Brown had made during the time he was closeted with Chief of Police Thompson and Mrs. Paterson Mowry, Mr. Dixon saw deceased turn away and apparently remove something from his pocket, following which he replaced a tumbler on the guard room table. The tumbler contained water, and was placed there as a matter of convenience. A few minutes later Dr. Brown complained of feeling unwell, and the interview with Mr. Dixon was postponed by mutual consent until after tea. He was then removed to his cell, and a few minutes later was found in a dying condition by Chief of Police Thompson and Rev. R. G. Peever. Dr. Greer was immediately summoned, but his services were of no avail, as deceased was breathing his last when he arrived.

INQUEST ORDERED.

An inquest was ordered by Dr. Greer, and the following jury empanneled: J. Maher (foreman), W. Martin, F. Stinson, C. Carroll, T. Meredith, R. Begley, W. Merrill, G. Evans, and G. Pringle. Two of the jurymen acted in a similar capacity on the previous evening, when an inquest was held respecting the death of Helen Brown, and at which the late Dr. Brown gave evidence as the attending physician at the time of death. After viewing the body the jury returned to the police court chamber, where evidence was heard concerning the death of the deceased.

Detective Newhall was the first witness called. He, together with Detective Meagher, went to Dr. Brown's residence yesterday at noon. After making some enquiries they apprehended the deceased on a warrant charging him with the murder of Helen Brown. The doctor appeared to be very much upset, and asked permission to see his wife and family before he left. He also asked to be allowed to have his dinner at home. Both requests were granted, upon condition that he did not leave the presence of the detectives.

A SMALL WHITE PAPER.

Detective Newhall eventually left, leaving Dr. Brown in charge of Detective Meagher. Witness later saw deceased at the Police Station, and was with him up until four o'clock, when he was handed over to Sergeant Kidd. Mr. A. E. Dixon then came in to consult with Dr. Brown over some private matters. After that he was searched by Chief Thompson and placed in a cell. A few minutes later a peculiar noise emanated from the cell in which Dr. Brown was confined. Investigation revealed the deceased in a convulsion. The Chief asked him what he had been doing, and the reply was 'poison.' Dr. Greer was summoned, and when he arrived he pronounced life extinct. In looking over some of the things that had been removed from the deceased's clothes, Detective Newhall discovered a small white paper containing some white powder. The crease lines were dirty as though it had been carried in the pocket for some time. The powder looked like strychnine.

Order for Transport for the Squadron Has Been Received Although There Are No Orders Yet as to When They Will Leave

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

That B Squadron, 8th C. M. R., will be leaving shortly for the mobilisation camp at Ottawa is indicated by the fact that an order for the transport of the squadron has been received here. No orders as to the time of departure have yet come through, but are expected at any time. However, it is not thought likely that the troops will be moved until their complete outfit has been issued. All the equipment has not yet arrived, although it has been shipped. Yesterday the men were issued with tunics, riding breeches, puttees and boots, but they will not don the uniforms until the caps and great coats are given out. The non-coms. of the squadron are in uniform, having been issued with caps from the stores of the 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoons.

The local company of the 39th Battalion had a route march this morning, marching to the Lift Lock, and then north to the Norwood road, returning by the Smith Street bridge. Several new recruits applied this morning.

Major Cameron, medical officer in charge of the men at the Armouries, was absent through illness to-day, and his duties were taken over by Dr. Kelly.

Corporal Jarrett, of the Divisional Cyclists, Toronto, is home on a couple of days' leave. Corp. Jarrett is a Peterborough boy, who went to Kingston with the 57th detachment to the Second Contingent, and with several other boys from here transferred to the Cyclists.

Arrangements have been completed for the military dance in the Foresters' Hall to-morrow night, under the auspices of the non-coms. of the 39th Battalion and the 8th C. M. R.

The orders from Ottawa that men of alien birth who have enlisted with the Third Contingent are to be discharged will have no effect here as the recruits taken on here are all natives of the British Empire.

His many friends will be glad to learn that Sergt. Geo. Grange's condition shows marked improvement to-day.

Lieut. H. G. Rogers, of B Squadron, who has been off on sick leave for the past few days, was on duty at the Armouries to-day.

DURHAM'S RECRUITS.

Port Hope, March 2.—The County of Durham has 134 recruits in the Third Contingent. They have received their preliminary training here and are a credit to the district. One of the officers, Major Lorn T. McLaughlin, of Tyrone, was presented at the annual meeting of the officers of the 46th Regiment held at Port Hope with a beautiful wrist watch with an illuminated face from the Council of Darlington Township. The presentation was made by Lieut.-Col. R. W. Smart. Another popular officer, Lieut. Gilbert Edwards, of Hope Township, has been presented by the men of his company with a similar timepiece.

TWO NEW BATTERIES.

Kingston, March 2.—Official notice has been received to recruit immediately the 25th and 26th Batteries for the 7th Brigade, C. E. F. Col. G. H. Ogilvie has submitted a list of officers for the battery to headquarters to be approved.

RETRIBUTIVE PAPER.

Germany has been forced since the opening of the present war to revise many of her sentiments and to forego the realization of many of her ambitions. She has met a steady procession of failures of her plans, the only realisation having been of the intent to be utterly cruel, unprincipled, barbaric and destructive, for destruction's sake, of property and life. When she was conspiring to outrage Belgium's neutrality; her rights and life and property, in defiance of the treaty to which she was a signatory, she characterized such a treaty as only a "scrap of paper." Now she has changed her opinion of a "paper" blockade is, to her mind, or the best she can do, the thing. It is quite in keeping with the German war clique's principles—destruction of life and property, for pure lust of blood and wreckage, without any military advantage. On the contrary her wicked plan of paper "blockade" not only does not effect its purpose as a blockade, but it has forced a retaliating policy—a policy to self-defence—by Britain and her allies—that results in an absolute blockade, that shuts out Germany, from the trade of the civilized world—that cripples her capacity for waging successful war more effectively than big battalions and big guns. Germany, by her barbaric expedient of a submarine destruction, has brought upon herself a swift and dire, effective and far-reaching retribution; she is shrinking from the thunderbolt whose forging she has provoked.

WHAT OFFICE MEANS.

The resignation of Alderman Johnston, and the only reasons given, bring into play a consideration of the duties and responsibilities of a municipal representative. Personally Alderman Johnston has a perfect right to resign without reasons—unless he choses to give them. But it is questionable if the only reason given — that "he had not received fair treatment from the Council of 1915"—is a valid reason to justify his resignation. He owes nothing to his fellow councillors. He has no right to expect anything from them except the official cooperation, necessary to give the highest effect to the work of the aldermanic body.' If, however, it is to be accepted that the election of a man to an aldermanic position is a personal favour; that he is elected for his own advantage; that his personal feelings and ambitions are the chief consideration, then one might recognize a feeling of unfair treatment as a justification of resigning. But if an alderman is elected as a public servant, to, in every way in his power, promote the civic interests entrusted to him, to give faithful service with the interests of his constituents as the first consideration, he must live up his trust, and take any incidental personal disappointment as a part of the penalty of his position. It appears that Alderman Johnston's colleagues set value upon his past services, and had confidence in his capacity for continued good service. That is a feeling that he has a right to expect, that indicates a fulfillment of the duties for whose discharge alone he was elected. If a civic representative has the assurance of the commendation of his colleagues, that is all that he has a right to expect. He has no right to exact personal favours and personal deference from his colleagues, or to expect any other reward than a personal sense of duty discharged, reward enough for any public servant, especially if to it is conjoined the confidence and approval of colleagues, who are best qualified to appraise the value of his services. An United States writer, Dorman B. Eaton, in dealing with the "spoils" system and "civil service reform," enunciated this important truth—

> Public office is a public trust, the authorities and opportunities of which must be used as absolutely as the public moneys for the public and not for the purposes of any individual or party.

Here we have a succinct and correct definition of the real responsibility of a public servant, whether in an aldermanic or other capacity. He is to serve the people without making any condition of personal advantage, or preferment, or respect, as a determining factor of his responsibility. When our public men, our representatives in Parliament, exalt the claims to consideration of the personal element above the claims that their positions make, they cease to become faithful public servants, and not only impair or destroy their usefulness, but become influences in the unfortunate conditions that too much discredit the conditions of public service.

MAMMOTH WARSHIPS.

The placing in commission of the battleship Queen Elizabeth in the attack on the Dardenelles forts brings to bear against the enemy the first unit of a new strength in the British navy which is the acme of heavy armament — longer range, heavier guns—that has defeated the Germans in the few naval battles of the war, but in these there has been nothing to approach the armament of the Queen Elizabeth. The 13.5 guns which sank the battle cruiser fleet of Admiral von Spee off the Falkland Islands, and which sent the Bleucher to the bottom before she could reach [illegible] have the heaviest naval guns in use up to the present. They have been much superior to anything the enemy has. The bringing into commission of the 15-inch gun places the enemy in an even more hopeless inferiority.

The Queen Elizabeth is the first of a new class of battleship to be floated — the Queen Elizabeth Class. There are four more of these battleships, each carrying eight 15-inch guns in addition to the other armament, which consists of sixteen six-inch torpedo tubes. These four are the Barham, the Malaya, the Warspite and the Valiant. And it is not only in armament but in speed as well that these new battleships are superior to anything yet afloat. Their designed speed is 25 knots, 28.5 knots being the given speed of the next heaviest and speediest class, the Iron Duke Class.

But the British Admiralty has something still more formidable than the Queen Elizabeth battleships ready for commission this year. It is the Royal Sovereign Class of five units, carrying ten 15-inch guns. This new type of sea fighter is of 29,000 tons with 44,000 horse power.

When these two classes are complete the British navy will have added ten battleships of its strength of such a size and armament that Germany could not hope to approach in years. In face of this the policy of attrition that the enemy hoped would eventually place his navy on an equal footing with that of Britain seems a puny thing.—Ottawa Free Press.

BUDGET DEBATE GOES ON.

Another Day will Be Needed For Wind-Up of Speeches.

TORONTO, March 3.—A sharp interchange passed across the floor of the Legislature yesterday afternoon before the budget dragged another weary day along. The galleries of the House were well filled with spectators who had come to see the Premier and the Opposition Leader cross swords on the matter of provincial finance, but several of the private members had yet to bear a share of the speaking, and another day was reserved for the wind-up.

When the House opened N. W. Rowell demanded when the T. & N.O. and Hydro-electric reports were coming down. It was most unfair, he said, that the Opposition obtained no opportunity to study out their case before action came.

Hon. T. W. McGarry came back vigorously to the effect that the municipal reports to the power commission should be in, or the Opposition would in a day or two be making that omission subject of criticism.

Fate of Miners In Doubt.

HINTON, W. Va., March 3.—Rescue parties late yesterday had brought out alive 10 men and recovered the bodies of nine victims of the explosion which entombed 182 miners in the Layland mines of the New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Co., seven miles from Quinnimont early yesterday. The work of rescue is continuing and is aided by crew of rescue car No. 8, of the United States Bureau of Mines, which reached the scene last night. From all available sources it is estimated nearly 165 men are still in the mines. Most of the entombed miners are foreigners.

Crews Are To Be Rewarded.

LONDON, March 3.—The officers and crews of British warships present at the capture or destruction of any armed hostile ship will share in the distribution of prize money, calculated at $25 for each person on board the enemy vessel at the beginning of the engagement. This order-in-council was promulgated yesterday.

Canada's 22,000 Soldiers In The Trenches Fighting Make Heavy Red Cross Calls

TORONTO, March 2.—At the present time there are about 22,000 Canadian soldiers in France. Eleven hundred of these are members of the Princess Patricia Light Infantry and have already been in action three times. The remainder are probably in the concentration camps, while it is not improbable that by this time a fairly large force is on the lines of communication. It will not be long before the greater part of the force is in the trenches and under fire.

Whether the members of the first Canadian contingent are in action in the course of a few days or a few weeks matters little as regards the medical and surgical supplies as well as warm clothing that will be needed. For a force of over twenty thousand men an enormous amount of these supplies will be required and it falls to the lot of the Canadian Red Cross Society to send out sufficient supplies to enable the Army Medical Corps to meet the requirements. Upon the people of Canada devolves a great and solemn duty and the society believes that they will fulfill it to the utmost.

While supplies and warm clothing are arriving at headquarters in large consignments it is impossible to sufficiently impress upon the supporters of the Red Cross the urgent need of supplies at the present time. If every woman in Canada were to make one pair of socks and every man were to buy one pair there would be over four million pairs sent to the soldiers. What a magnificent quantity of supplies could be sent to our brave soldiers at the front if every adult in Canada were to do something for the great cause. All cannot knit, all cannot give large sums of money, but all can do something.

For the past two weeks enormous quantities of old linen and new cotton have been sent to headquarters. These are eminently suitable for making into dressings and bandages and those who cannot knit or give donations can do their little part in the work of mercy, even if it is only rolling bandages. While the [illegible] was in camp at Salisbury the demand for supplies was not particularly heavy, but now that the soldiers are about to enter the trenches and take an active part in this terrible war the society will have all it can do to keep them warm and look after them when they are wounded or sick.

Since the Canadian Red Cross Society issued its appeal for funds and supplies a wonderful answer has been made. We are filled with thankfulness and pride at the result. We were confident from the first that it would be magnificent and it is a splendid example of the liberality, humanity and patriotism of our people. But though the response has been magnificent it is not enough. We appeal again to these noble qualities of the British race, and again we are confident that our appeal will be heard. We shall continue to call upon our countrymen and countrywomen to give for this sacred cause so long as the need for money and material lasts and we fell certain that they will continue to give for it to the utmost of their ability.

It is an immense need and an urgent need. The statement of the British losses which the Prime Minister of England, Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, made recently in the House of Commons, is a poignant reminder of the havoc of modern war. The casualties up to October 31 were approximately 57,000. There has been much heavy fighting since, which appears to have been to the full as deadly as that of the earlier engagements. The long lists that are being published each day show what numbers of our best are being daily laid low round the positions they so gloriously hold. It is to relieve those amongst them who are not past relief that we ask for money and supplies. The sufferings of our soldiers will be great, and only by a lavish and prompt expenditure will their pains be mitigated and their prospects of recovery improved.

A recent article written by the Medical Correspondent of the Times describes the work that has lately been done by the R.A.M.C. at Boulogne. Lord Knutsford stated a few days ago after a personal visit to that place that it was amazingly perfect. That is high praise coming from a life-long expert in hospital management. The medical correspondent confirms it to the full. When the correspondent wrote a few days ago every wounded British soldier in Boulogne was receiving the best which skill and equipment could give him. The numbers of wounded were great after the prolonged and furious fighting around Ypres, which had been waged for many days. But the authorities have risen to the occasion and one great result is that the severe cases can now be treated in France, and so spared the suffering and the dangers of a cross-channel passage.

The transport from the front which is the most trying and the most critical stage for many of the wounded, has been supportable as possible by the use of an admirably equipped hospital train carrying over two hundred beds. A hospital train for five hundred patients is one of the objects for which the British Red Cross have asked for money. There will be it has been provided. But trains cannot go everywhere, and often the wounded must be brought long distances to them, while in many cases, from congestion of lines by military trains, it is quicker and easier to bring the patients to hospital by motor ambulance.

Large gifts of money and supplies in huge quantities are needed and needed now. Money is always useful for there are so many things that the society wish to buy that cannot be sent in by the willing workers. This is a time when every loyal citizen of the British Empire is called upon to make some sacrifice for the cause of his country and the triumph of right over might. What better sacrifice can he or she make than by sending a donation, however small it may be, to the Red Cross Society. One or two dollars would not be missed by many, but what comfort and relief it may bring to some suffering soldier who is fighting for everything that we hold dear. Any sums of money or supplies may be sent to any of the provincial branches or to the head office, 77 King Street, East, Toronto.

The Provincial Treasurer's Nest of Insurance "Traitors"

The Honorable T. W. McGarry, provincial treasurer of Ontario, in his budget speech this week, figuratively put on a suit of armour, hipped a lance, mounted the white charger and galloped into the ranks of life insurance company directors. Some of those who witnessed the charge and heard the war whoops, were thrilled with the event. But in the light of to-day, the event looks nasty and was obviously a blunder. Mr. McGarry's speech regarding the refusal of the life insurance companies to pay the taxes which they contend are unconstitutional, was an unstatesmanlike and bitter outburst, a poor attempt to play to the gallery and a crossing of swords with some facts. From a young, inexperienced, vigorous politician, just hatched, one might expect such a wild speech as this particular one of Mr. McGarry. From a man experienced and fully temperate, energetic, such as we had believed Mr. McGarry to be, his first important utterance, as a cabinet minister, was surprising and very disappointing. It is surely not an indication of the kind of talk with which Ontario's provincial treasurer intends to decorate Ontario's credit. The quips of Mr. McGarry, heroic as they may have appeared to some, are by no means oratorical or statesmanlike feathers in his cap.

What was the point at issue? Simply that the life insurance companies and a large number, if not all, of their policyholders, believe that the taxation of life insurance premiums, is a tax upon the thrift and foresight of those who take out life insurance. This being so morally, the companies contend that, legally, it is an indirect tax and therefore unconstitutional. The Ontario government is suing the companies for the tax. In his address this week, Mr. McGarry is reported as saying that "there is no difference in the conduct of these insurance companies and that of the soldier on the field of battle, who, when he meets the enemy, and so much depends upon his bravery and fighting capacity, turns his back upon the enemy and runs away. What do they do with that kind of a man? He is shot, and generally the shot takes effect in the back."

Therein seems to be a veiled threat that as the companies, according to one opinion, are running a little legislative lead into the rear of the retreat. The companies objected to the tax long before the war broke out.

Here is another extract from a report of Mr. McGarry's remarkable speech: "These companies and the men running them, are just as much traitors to this country, as is the man on the field of battle who acts that way." That is an opinion, we think, that Mr. McGarry will have the pleasure of hugging to himself alone. With fine contempt for ethics and with apparently little solicitude for reputations, men such as Colonel Macdonald, Sir Edmund Osler, Judge Coatsworth, Thomas Hilliard, Dr. Aikins, Herbert Cox, J. H. Plummer, Sir John Gibson, E. R. Wood, Robert Bickerdike, Adam Brown, Duncan Coulson, Senator Lougheed, G. T. Somers, J. Gowans Kent, Alexander Laird, Hon. William Harty, Sir Herbert Holt, James Ryrie, Thomas Bradshaw, W. G. Gooderham, Senator Mason, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Montague Allan, Hume Cronyn, Elias Rogers, Edward Gurney, L. Goldman, J. K. Osborne, Charles R. Hosmer, T. B. Macaulay, and a hundred other men, are dubbed as traitors.

"I am warning these companies now," a newspaper report of the speech reads, "that if through the litigation they have brought upon this government any court should be found which will give effect to the legal technicality they haive raised and allow these people to get out of paying the money they justly should, then this legislature, exercising its supreme authority, will be asked to pass legislation, not alone insuring the collection of this $145,000, but will penalize these companies who refuse to pay this taxation."

In these words, the provincial treasurer again makes the mistake which might be expected from a political or cabinet fledgling, but not from a mature mind,— the mistake, while in power and having parliamentary privilege of throwing reflections broadcast, practically threatening, and exhibiting what almost looks like a petty spirit of revenge.—Monetary Times.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BY ORDER OF THE BOARD

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

For seven years old John Fosdick had been paying teller of the First National bank in a western town. He had secured the place through having the friendship of the president. But there had been a "ring" against him in the bank. Without the president behind him, even after he had held the place for three or four years, he would have been fired by those in authority.

The seventh year was drawing to a close when old John was caught up. A stranger presented a check which he hesitated to pay and about which he consulted the cashier. Later on the cashier stated that he had ordered it to be held pending examination. Old John said that he had been ordered to pay it at once. The check was paid, and, being spurious, the bank was $300 out of pocket.

The president being in Europe, the board took the case under advisement, and "by order" the old man was fired out into the world to begin life anew. There were resolutions, of course, and one of them was to the effect that the bank presented him with the sum of $100 for long and faithful services. He put on his hat without protest, and he left the bank without taking the money. At his humble home an old, anxious wife met him and, wifelike, gave him sympathy and encouragement first of all.

"Never mind, John; never mind," she kept saying. "We have a few dollars ahead, and you are only fifty-five years old, and something good is sure to turn up. You have fought too long to give up now."

But the weeks went by and nothing turned up. The business world has very little use for an old man who has no capital. John Fosdick's savings were gradually used up, the generosity of his few friends exhausted, and there came a day when the question of food and fuel became a serious one. He was not one to sponge or turn beggar. If the world would not let him earn his food, at least he would go out of it and hope that his going would open the hearts of men toward his widow. After pondering for an hour he started out with the firm intention of drowning himself in the river. It was a blustering November day, and as he passed the bank with bowed head, bent shoulders and well worn garments even those who had deprived him of his place felt a touch of sympathy. He was making for the suburbs and a highway bridge and wondering how long it would take to drown and what men would say of him when dead when he caught sight of a man and horses skulking behind an abandoned factory. It was singular, bound on such a mission as he was, that he should have seen or wondered and speculated on why these men and horses were there, but he had scarcely passed the old factory when he suddenly turned about and ran for the business part of the town with speed that astonished himself.

In the vaults of the First National bank was a sum close upon $3,000,000 deposited there temporarily by a railroad company. Outside the vault was a big safe containing $25,000 more. It was a quiet afternoon, with few people moving about. Over 100 of the men living in town had gone over to the new town of Prairie Flower to an auction of real estate. There hadn't been a better opportunity for years to make a dash at the bank. It was a civilized young city, but within striking distance of No Man's Land and a hundred desperate outlaws.

Of a sudden old John Fosdick, bareheaded and his gray hair flying, burst into the bank. He was speechless with his running, but he did not try to use his voice. He dashed open the gate and seized the heavy doors of the safe and closed them with a bang. Several employees tried to seize him, but he shook them off, and just as firing and yelling were heard on the street he slammed the doors of the vault. He had only turned from it when four border ruffians rushed into the bank, each with a pistol in hand, while three others remained outside and fired at every pedestrian in sight.

"Hands up and money out!" shouted one of three who entered the bank, and in an instant every official and employee was covered.

"Gentlemen, the bank is closed for today," said John Fosdick.

"Open the safe and vaults or I'll blow your brains out!"

"I have a key to neither."

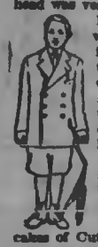
"You liar! Take that!"

The old man sank with a bullet in his brain, and the white faced cashier would have opened safe and vault with his own hands but for the arrival of assistance. A few citizens had gathered and killed one of the watchers and wounded another. This caused a stampede on the part of the desperadoes. They did not even grab the money packages in sight, but hastened to get away as fast as possible. John Fosdick did not drown himself, but he lay dead. He had been discharged on account of old age and carelessness, but his speed and acumen had saved the First National bank from being cleaned out. He wondered what men would say of him after death. They said he was a hero. He had hoped men would have pity on his aged widow. When he had been laid away the bank voted her a life pension, the citizens and the railroad company made up a public purse, and she wanted for nothing the rest of her life.

BOY'S HEAD A SIGHT FROM ECZEMA

In Blisters. Itched and Burned Badly. Had to Put Gloves On Child's Hands. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Healed.

10 Abbott Ave., Toronto, Ont.—"My boy had eczema badly all over, but his head was very bad and was affected most.



It came out in blisters and it was a sight to look at. It itched and burned so badly that I had to put gloves on the child's hands. It came out first on his face near the ears, then went to his head and then on his body. His head was like a fish it was so bad.

"I used ——, also ——, and others, and nothing did him any good. I gave them up and tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and at the end of six weeks he was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Carroll, Jan. 1, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores. Sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

NEWS OF HASTINGS AND VICINITY

Happenings of Interest—Special Meetings Being Held

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, March 2.— March is coming to us in lamb-like clothing, but may leave us like the boisterous lion.

Mr. W. L. Clark of Leamington, is spending a week in this vicinity in the interests of the social and evangelical movement of the Methodist church. Mr. Clark is an attractive speaker and addressed three different audiences on Sunday in the church here. In the morning his subject was, "Father and Mother." In the afternoon, "Life," for men only, and in the evening, "Son and Daughter." Every afternoon and evening during the week Mr. Clark will address the people on different subjects.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson has received and accepted a call from the quarterly official board of Smithfield for the coming conference year.

Quite a number of the men in this vicinity attended a public auction sale at the farm of Mr. W. Cameron, of Asphodel on Tuesday last. The weather was very disagreeable and consequently the crowd was not so large as otherwise would have been the case. Mr. Jibbs, of Peterborough, conducted the sale.

Owing to the recent thaw, followed by the severe frost, the streets are in a very icy condition and some sprains have been the result.

The choir of the Presbyterian church met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Warner (both of them being members of the choir), and presented them with a kitchen shower, coupled with heartiest congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness.

A carload of Massey-Harris implements was unloaded at the station here during the past week. Mr. Drummond, of Peterborough, was in charge.

Messrs. G. Beavis and W. Fife spent Saturday in Peterborough.

The Quarterly Board of the Methodist church here extended an invitation to Rev. I. Snell of Blackstock, for the coming conference year.

Miss Ethel Collins is holidaying with friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sayer were at home to their friends on Monday evening and entertained a goodly number.

Mr. J. Stevenson sent a large consignment of live stock to Toronto on Thursday last.

Mr. Harry Carter of Otonabee visited friends here last week.

Mrs. A. Greenley is visiting friends in Peterborough, etc.

Messrs. Wally and Will Buck visited last week at the home of their uncle, Mr. Oliver Buck, near Peterborough.

A pleasant evening was spent by a number of young people at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. McKee on Friday, when all present thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

Mr. Richard Walsh was in Markham on Monday.

Miss Kathleen Gallagher of Warkworth, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Bailley here.

Mr. Gould of Colborne, has been the guest of his son, Mr. W. Gould, town.

Mr. R. C. Doxsee has been at Heard's Station for the past two weeks, whither he was called by the illness of his father.

Mrs. C. Beamish left for her new home in Picton during the past week.

Mr. W. Stuart of Peterborough, gave us a call a few days ago.

Mr. Harold Beavis disposed of his farm stock and implements on Wednesday last. Mr. A. Wilson, town, was auctioneer.

A few friends were entertained at the home of Miss Lily Carter on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Frank Runnels attended the funeral of his nephew in Peterborough on Tuesday of this week.

The subject of Mr. Clark's address on Monay night, for everybody, was "Success."

War Tax Hard On Poor Men

Does Not Touch the Wealthy Says Dr. Pugsley in the House

OTTAWA, March 3.—F. S. Scott, the newly-elected member for South Waterloo, delivered his maiden speech in the budget debate last night, and made an excellent impression upon the House. He spoke briefly in support of the Government's policy, and declared that he had not received a single complaint from his constituents respecting the tariff increases or the war stamp duties.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley asked if complaints had been made in respect to the disposition of troops of the first contingent under command of Col. McLeod (York, N.B.).

Gen. Hughes said that all of the soldiers were naturally anxious to get to the front, and some complaints had been received respecting the disposition of the troops, but it was a matter entirely for the Imperial Government. Anything like a dual control of our soldiers at the front would be out of the question.

Resuming the budget debate Mr. Pugsley criticized some of the war taxes. He said the poor man who drew a check for ten dollars paid the same tax as the millionaire who closed a big business deal with a check for fifty thousand dollars.

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) defended the policy of the Government, and criticised the course of the Opposition. The Government, he thought, should try to convince them of the error of their ways, and if they would not be convinced, an appeal to the country should follow.

Mr. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) said he had no doubt that the banks and big corporations would pass on any taxes they paid to the "poor devils who had to borrow money." He did not blame them in the least, as it was only human nature to pass on the tax to somebody else.

Mr. Stevens (Vancouver) moved the adjournment of the debate.

The Joy of Good Health Is Now Experienced

Nervousness, Dizzy Spells and Sleeplessness Are Now a Thing of the Past.

This is a cheerful letter from Mrs. Peacock, and it should bring joy to the heart of many a reader of this paper. Dizzy spells and sleeplessness are symptoms of exhausted nerves, and are the burden bear of many women, who do not know just what treatment to use.

MRS. PEACOCK.

You can read Mrs. Peacock's letter and take courage, for she has proven that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a complete cure for these troubles. So pleased was she with the results obtained that she wants other women to know about this food cure.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 23 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states:—"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

In a more recent letter Mrs. Peacock writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good, and I would be pleased to tell everybody so."

In nearly every issue of this paper you will find letters about Dr. Chase's medicines. If this one does not describe your case watch for others or write to us. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Where the PRAIRIES Challenge The MOUNTAINS

IT is a prevailing idea in the Homeland and also in Eastern Canada that the Great West from Winnipeg to the Rockies is one dead level treeless plain, wholly given over to the cultivation of grain; that the only place where beautiful scenery may be found is in the great mountains beyond.

There is doubtless some reason for these incorrect notions, for grain growing has been boomed and extolled till outsiders believe it to be the sum and substance of the West.

Photographers have pictured the great ploughing machines at work on the long furrows that only terminate with the horizon in the far, far distance. Humorists have told of the touching farewells between the farmer and his family when he starts on the long furrow leading into the unknown. Yet the dead level plain is intersected with beautiful river valleys—rugged and picturesque, crowded with wild flowers, wild fruit and fine trees—is dotted with thousands of lakes, many unnamed and little known and teeming with fish. In the Parkland districts groves of poplar, willow and maple, forests of birch and spruce afford shelter to great herds of cattle and horses, and make such a picture as will rival any to be found in the finest parks of old established countries. But the photos will speak for the district in which they were obtained, and which is not in any way unique in scenery or productions, and claims no monopoly of the good things which the pictures illustrate.

NORWOOD DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Held Recently--Standing of Pupils in Public School in February Examinations

Special to The Examiner:

NORWOOD, March 2.—Inspector Lees visited the Norwood Public School last week.

Mr. Donald MacNaughton was in Peterborough last week.

Mrs. G. Grover, of Toronto, is spending a few days in town.

Mrs. E. P. Cuffe was in Toronto last week.

A very pleasant social evening was spent at the Armouries on Friday evening, when the I.O.D.E. entertained all who took part in or assisted in the preparation of the operetta "The Courtship of Miss Canada."

A very interesting and instructive address on "Paardeburg" was delivered by Rev. Mr. Irwin, and the remainder of the evening was spent in games, etc.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds have moved into their new home on Alma street, which they recently purchased from Mr. Isaac Puffer. Mr. Puffer has moved into the Foster home, which he has purchased.

A game of hockey was played on the Norwood rink on Friday evening, between Havelock and Norwood, the result being 5 to 4 in favour of the home team.

We regret to report that Mr. Wm. Rogers is quite ill, having been stricken with typhoid fever.

Rev. G. A. MacLennan, of Chateauguay, Quebec, a former Norwood pastor, took charge of the anniversary services in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

Mrs. Andrew Marks is visiting in Toronto.

Mr. Fred Taylor has rented Mrs. George Grover's farm.

On account of illness Mrs. Hamilton, convener, Civic Service Committee, Toronto Women's Patriotic League, was unable to attend the patriotic meeting, on Thursday night, under the auspices of the Dominion Department and the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Her place was filled by J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.

Mr. John Weir was in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Fred Taylor has sold his residence on King street to Mr. Clysdale, of Hall's Glen.

Rev. Mr. Irwin and a number of young men from town attended the Young Men's Convention, held in Havelock, on Saturday.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church held a sale of home-made cooking on Saturday in the Duffield block, and were very successful in their sales. They purpose doing this the last Saturday of each month this year, in order to increase their talent money.

Miss Zella Paget, of Havelock, visited Miss Pauline Weir on Saturday.

Mrs. Hart, of Havelock, was in town on Saturday.

The March meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will be held on Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the Sunday School. At this meeting delegates will be appointed to attend the Branch meeting.

Mrs. H. MacLachlan returned to her home in Keene on Thursday, after a couple of weeks' visit with friends in town.

The regular monthly meeting of the I.O.D.E. was held in their room at the Armouries on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 25th, when the officers were elected for the coming year, as follows:

Regent—Mrs. E. P. Cuffe.
1st Vice-Regent—Mrs. R. Birdsall.
2nd Vice-Regent—Mrs. J. E. Roxburgh.
Secretary—Mrs. B. W. Squire.
Assistant Secretary—Miss Helen Anderson.
Treasurer—Miss V. Butterfield.

A very full and interesting report of the year's work was given by Miss Blanche Pearce, who, on account of poor health has given up her position as secretary. It was decided to have the report published.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Pearce for her very successful work during the previous year, also to all who helped in any way to make the operetta a success.

The ladies of the Baptist Church are giving a seven-cent tea on Friday evening, March 5th, at the home of Mrs. N. Collins.

The Public School Cadets, who are being trained by Mr. J. R. McKelvie, received their rifles last week and have begun their rifle drill.

The honour roll for February in the Norwood Public School is as follows:

Much In Little

In the Cathedral of Lubeck, Germany, is the following inscription:

"Thus speaketh Christ our Lord to us:
Ye call me Master, and obey me not;
Ye call me Light, and seek me not;
Ye call me Way, and walk me not;
Ye call me Life, and desire me not;
Ye call me Wise, and follow me not;
Ye call me Fair, and love me not;
Ye call me Rich, and ask me not;
Ye call me Eternal, and seek me not;
Ye call me Gracious, and trust me not;
Ye call me Noble, and serve me not;
Ye call me Mighty, and honour me not;
Ye call me Just, and fear me not;
If I condemn you, blame me not."

DR. ROBINSON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Tamworth Physician is Accused of Causing the Death of Miss Blanche Yorke.

SURPRISES PROMISED

NAPANEE, March 3.—The trial of Dr. C. K. Robinson, the young Tamworth physician charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke, of the same village, began here yesterday and the chief feature in the crown's case was the testimony of three witnesses who swore they had been in the doctor's office on the night of her disappearance, and had seen the murdered girl's hat and raincoat lying on the table in the waiting room. The bulk of the day's evidence had to do with these articles of dress and several witnesses were called in support of the contention that the garments were Miss Yorke's.

The court room doors were thrown open to the waiting crowd at 1.30, and in ten minutes every available inch of standing room was occupied. Fully half the audience were women.

J. A. Hutcheson, K.C., prosecuting attorney, intimated that if Dr. Robinson was not found guilty on the charge of murder, he should be convicted of a lesser offence. He pointed out that a doctor may, in an attempt to save a woman's life, perform an operation which, unless in extreme circumstances would be illegal.

Daniel McGregor, who for four years had been engaged to the dead girl, was nearly the last witness to be called at the afternoon session. He admitted to Crown Prosecutor Hutcheson that he was responsible for Miss Yorke's being in delicate health. He stoutly denied any knowledge of her condition, though, and said that although he was aware she was taking medicines prescribed by both Dr. Robinson and Wilson, he believed they were for stomach trouble and indigestion.

J. S. Taylor, furniture dealer, told the court of his reclaiming the furniture in Robinson's offices, and the discoveries of himself and his assistants when in the house.

At six o'clock adjournment was made until 9.30 Wednesday morning. The trial will probably conclude tomorrow.

W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee is assisting Mr. Robinette on the defence. Although the defence attorneys would say nothing of a definite character, they freely intimated they had a few surprises to spring and hoped successfully to defend the young physician. During the trial yesterday Dr. Robinson seemed very self-composed and confident.

CONDEMNS HYMN OF HATE.

Frankfort Newspaper Also Objects to Greeting, "God Punish England."

LONDON, March 3. — The correspondent of The Daily News telegraphs from Rotterdam:

"The Frankfurter Zeitung strongly condemns the German campaign of hate.

"'For months,' says this journal, 'we have indulged in all kinds of extraordinary letter headings and forms of greetings which are unGerman and are an imitation of Gallic theatricalism.

"'The hymn of hate might well have arisen from honest internal excitement, but greetings such as the well known "God punish England" are nothing but a vulgar theatrical pose.

"'They are at the worst simply ridiculous because they are spreading a spirit, even if only on the surface, which is entirely at variance with the subsequent drawing together of nations, which must come.'"

Heroic Soldier-Cop.

HAMILTON, Ont., March 3.—The conspicuous bravery and gallantry for which Constable Finlayson was mentioned in despatches by Gen. French consisted in carrying sixteen wounded French soldiers from a blazing building which was being heavily shelled by the Germans. He also took two wounded officers from one of the French trenches to a hospital two miles distant. Chief Smith received word to this effect yesterday.

Germans To Bring Up Troops.

LONDON, March 3. — A despatch to Reuter's, from Amsterdam, says that in all the Belgian towns along the Dutch frontier posters are displayed calling upon the populations to prepare for the billeting of a great number of German troops. This information is contained in a telegram received from Maestricht. The despatch adds that at Liege 20,000 troops are expected, at Seraing 5,000, and at Waadren 1,800.

WANTED A REPUBLIC.

South African Rebels Planned to Haul Down British Flag.

LONDON, March 3.—The Morning Post publishes the following from Cape Town:—"An important blue book issued here deals with the history of the late South African rebellion. It says that the aims of the rebel leaders are very clearly expressed in a letter written by De Wet on Nov. 5:

"Our purpose is to get to Maritz, and after arriving there to return immediately with Maritz to Pretoria. There, in the capital of South Africa, we shall, if God so wills it, haul down the flag and proclaim our independence."

Misrepresentation was the most formidable weapon in the rebels' arsenal. The provincial patriotism of the Orange Free Staters was artfully inflamed by appeals like the following: "Who is to have the honor of being the first to hoist the Republican flag? It is for you to decide. Botha and the Transvaalers are ready. Are you going to let them forestall you?"

Belgium Must Starve

German Retaliatory Move Makes Relief Work Hopeless

THE HAGUE, March 3.—The German Government has determined to refuse to grant any more safe conducts for American relief ships to touch at English ports for coal on the homeward voyage, according to advices received here, and it is also reported on the same authority that a permit for the return voyage to the United States will be given only vessels which take the course north of the Shetland Islands.

It is considered in influential circles in Holland that the efforts of the American Commission of Relief to save the civilian population of Belgium from starvation are thus threatened with immediate danger, as Rotterdam is the only practicable port through which the Belgians can be fed, and it is argued that the relief ships must be able to proceed to and from that port by the direct route with a safe conduct under the commission flag, or the whole work of relief will become absolutely hopeless for practical reasons.

The American Minister to the Netherlands, Henry Van Dyke, on being apprised of this report, said:

"I am infinitely sorry for this. I have done my best to get a better answer from Berlin, but none comes. Surely ships engaged in this humane work ought to be sacred, but it seems not. Just now the case looks dark. God pity Belgium if the decision stands."

SOLDIERS GO FREE

Grand Jury Refuses to Indict the Quartette Who Killed Duck Hunters

WELLAND, March 3.—Provincial Police Officer Delaney of Fort Erie and the three Canadian soldiers, Corpl. Archie Kaye and Privates Leslie Kinsman and Edward McIntosh, were freed yesterday on the charge of manslaughter by the action of the grand jury at the Spring Assizes in finding "no bill" against them. The charge was laid as a result of the shooting and killing of Walter Smith, and the serious wounding of Charles Dorsch, both of Buffalo, at Fort Erie, on Dec. 28. The case attracted international interest because of the fact that the victims were American citizens. The soldiers were on frontier guard duty at the time.

Chancellor Sir John A. Boyd, addressing the grand jury, said in part: "The Buffalo duck hunters were acting illegally in being where they were. It is for you to determine whether it was a case of culpable and unjustifiable manslaughter, or whether it occurred through a mistake."

It Ruins Hair To Wash It With Soap

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for shampooing is just ordinary pure mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), it's cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Turkey Doomed

Austro German Papers Foresee the Fall of Constantinople—Proposals of Peace

TO TRAP ITALY

LONDON, March 3.—An Exchange telegram from The Hague says that Austrian and German newspapers which publish comment on the operations in the Dardanelles have generally admitted that it is only a question of time before Constantinople will fall.

German papers urge that Austria negotiate with Italy regarding the cession of Trentino in consideration for Italy's participation in the war on the side of the Teutonic allies.

An Exchange telegram from Athens states that large bodies of the Turkish army which was concentrated at Smyrna have departed, probably for the Dardanelles.

The Turkish Government has called up all the men in Constantinople who are forty years of age or under without distinction as to race or religion.

According to reports received from Constantinople, via Athens, Prince Sabah-ed-Din has telegraphed the Sultan, urging him to conclude peace with the allies quickly in order to prevent a catastrophe to Turkey.

A despatch from Saloniki states that mines and submarines destined for the defence of Dedaghaich have arrived at that port.

According to the Havas despatch, fire from the guns of the allied fleet has destroyed the batteries of Kilid Bahr and Fort Sultanie (Chanak Kalesi), which guard the entrance to the narrowest part of the Straits.

Information from Mitylene and Tenedos is to the effect that over 100,000 Turks have been posted along the coast of the Gallipoli peninsula, near the Sea of Marmora, about 130 miles from Constantinople.

Naval men are of the opinion that when the fleet gets to work in earnest relays of ships will be sent against the forts, and thus, when one section is away replenishing fuel and ammunition or having guns replaced, the others will keep up the bombardment.

Interior Forts Shelled.

PARIS, March 3.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens says:

"After the destruction of Fort Dardanus the allied vessels bombarded the interior forts of Hamidish and Yildiz Tabia. A naval division bombarded at the same time from the Gulf of Saros' side of the peninsula Fort Boukali Kale, causing serious damage. The town of Yenicheir, near the fort of the same name, was burned."

Egypt Is Quiet.

LONDON, March 3.—A statement given out by the official press bureau last evening says:

The following was officially issued at Cairo yesterday:

"Since the last official communication there has been nothing fresh to report. There are no signs of any renewed advance on the part of the Turks.

"Reports from Syria show that there is no likelihood of any famine. Prices of foodstuffs have risen, but stocks are fairly plentiful in most districts. Imported articles naturally are very dear.

"The relations between the Mohammedan and Christian elements continue excellent."

MOTHER RESTORED TO HER FAMILY

Writes a Letter to Tired, Worn-Out Mothers Telling How Vinol Made Her Well and Strong.

Jackson, Miss.:—"I shall feel repaid for writing this letter if I can help any tired, worn-out mother or housekeeper to find health and strength as I have.

"I have a family of five, sew, cook and do my housework and I became very much run-down in health. I had indigestion and stomach pains and headaches. Often I would be in bed for several days at a time, and before I took Vinol I tried too many remedies to mention, without benefit. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and before I had taken one bottle noticed a big improvement. Now I am well and strong and my old time energy has been restored. Vinol has no superior as a tonic for worn-out, run-down, tired mothers or housekeepers."—Mrs. J. N. MELTON, Jackson, Miss.

We ask every tired, care-worn, run-down, nervous man or woman in this vicinity to try Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, and they too will soon be able to say that Vinol has built them up and made them strong. Remember, we will return your money if it fails to benefit.

JOHN THIRNBECK'S FATHER HONOURED ON HIS 90th BIRTHDAY

The Westmoreland (England) Gazette of the issue of Feb. 6, contains an interesting reference to the father of Mr. John Thirnbeck of this city. The article is as follows:

Mr. W. P. Bonstead, of Settlebeck, chairman of the Sedbergh Magistrates, received numerous congratulations on Thursday of last week, the day of his 89nd birthday. On the pervious day Mr. Robert Thirnbeck, who resided in the Sedbergh district for over 80 years, but now lives at Newby Bridge, celebrated his 90th birthday. Amongst the latter's congratulations was a poem composed and sent by the Rev. Mr. Heath, vicar of Staveley-in-Cartmel, who is himself 76 years of age. The last line describes the nonagenarian as the "Grand Old Man of Fidler Hall."

Mr. Thirnbeck, senior, celebrated his 90th birthday on January 27th.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS.

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

There's a Striking Note of Individuality About the New Spring Suits Now on Display at Cressman's.

FOREMOST in the Spring Wardrobe is the Coat Suit, and at Cressman's one will find Suits that are smart and yet conservative; they combine comfort with the newest ideas of fashion and have that dainty touch of difference—always associated with "Cressman" clothes—which places them in a class far above the ordinary, giving the wearer that air of individuality so greatly desired. Another marked feature of the display is the unusually low prices prevailing on these Suits—for instance:

The "RUSSIAN" Suit
Is a very smart creation in the favored Sand color, the material being an Armure. The Coat shows the Russian blouse effect with inverted pleats at back, satin sleeves, collar and cuffs of suit colored Satin. The Skirt is made with new flare bottom, yoke and panel front. Unusually low priced at..... $35.00

The "COUNTESS" Suit
Is developed in Fancy Coupe Cravette in a perfectly delightful shade of Belgian Blue. The Coat is made on straight lines with box pleated effect at back and satin belt, roll collar of Blue and Black Brocade. The Skirt is made with flared pleated flounce finished at top with cluster of tucks. Very moderately priced at..... $30.00

The "MILITAIRE" Suit
A very stylish Spring Suit is made of Navy French Serge, this model is fashioned on strictly Military lines. The Coat is trimmed with three rows of narrow Black Braid at bottom, convertible Military collar. Tailored Skirt with hip pockets and circular flared bottom. Specially priced at..... $25.00

Mr. Gillespie's Recent Speech in Legislature

Maiden Effort of the Local Member in the Debate on the Budget Presents Need of Careful Attention to Agricultural Requirements—Suggested Temperance Legislation

Mr. Speaker,—In rising to resume the debate on the budget, I do so with some timidity, being a new member, but when I think of the change in the new Parliament of 1915, I feel somewhat like quoting from scripture the passage which says, the old things have passed away. We have a new Lieutenant-Governor, new Speaker, a new Premier, a new Cabinet and 33 new members, and as the honourable member from West Bruce called the attention of this House to a new method of presenting the financial statement.

As I said before, it appears as though the old things had passed away and, sir, I hope some of the old things have passed away and the honourable, the new Premier and his government will at this time of changed conditions be big enough to consider suggestions from this side of the House, and if he and his government think the suggestions are in the interests of the people of this province. I claim, sir, that the time has come when the people of this Province and this Dominion look to their representatives to stop playing politics and do business for them on business principles. And, sir, at this time of national crisis, I say sir, that we have a legitimate excuse for beginning to practice in this Legislature what is done in all municipal governments, consider all questions on their merits and arrive at a conclusion in the best interests of the people regardless of from which party the suggestion comes.

I can say, sir, that at this time of stress and strain it is not the intention of the honourable member on this side of the House to criticise unfairly but rather to criticise in a way that will help the government, and I want to point out in a friendly way what I consider it is the duty of the government at the present time to give their special attention too. In the first place, I agree with the honourable member from West Bruce when he pointed out that it would be much fairer for the honourable provincial treasurer to include in his deficit the $544,491.17 credited from the Federal government as interest on the T. & N. O. railway in 1912 and 1913, and instead of admitting a deficit of $697,928.58 he should admit a deficit of $1,242,419.75 and present to the people of Ontario the true facts as they stand for the year ending October 31st, 1914.

It has been pointed out by the honourable members on this side of the House for years that if the Government did not take heed of reckless expenditure they would have a deficit, and to-day it was proved to be the truth, and war or no war, we were bound to find ourselves in this position. This has been coming on us for the past five years and the government should have foreseen these changes and adopted a policy of retrenchment. We on this side do not object to spending money if wisely spent in the interests of the people and providing we have the money to spend, but we do object to spending money recklessly in the face of a large deficit.

I find in the past ten years, expenditures on civil government has increased from $344,006.28 to $790,998.80 an increase of $446,992.52. over double, while the total increase in population is only 15.8 per cent.

Increase in education amounts to in ten years $2,068,545.84, less 949,806.78, which is $1,068,739.06, and will anyone say that the educational system of today is benefitted correspondingly to this increase, especially in the rural school sections.

Then we come to agriculture, the basic industry of our province and the increased expenditure on agriculture is the amount spent in 1914, $710,-133.55. In 1904, $446,481.29, an increase of $263,652.33. In the years of 1904 and for a number of years after the agriculturist was greatly benefitted by the then system of education, but in the last five years conditions have changed rapidly, the rural population of old Ontario has been decreasing rapidly and the city population increasing rapidly, and here is where I point out that had the Government adopted resolutions from this side of the House, they would have been today in a better position to deal with the question of increased production. I find that in 1913 it was moved by Mr. Mayberry, seconded by Mr. Marshall, that in view of the alarming decrease of approximately 100,000 in the rural population in the counties of old Ontario, during the period of ten years as disclosed by the Dominion census of 1911, and in view of the general scarcity of farm labour throughout Ontario, which for some years past has caused grave concern to the farmers of the Province and has resulted in a amterial diminution in the agricultural production of the Province, this House is of the opinion that a select committee of the House or a commission of practical men should be appointed to inquire into the whole situation and report as to what means can be taken to remedy or improve existing conditions.

Mr. Duff moved an amendment, seconded by Mr. Lucas, that all the words of the motion after the first word "that" be struck out and the following substituted therefor. This House desires to express its satisfaction that the aggregate value of the output of the farmers of Ontario continues to increase year by year, and that individual prosperity is greater than ever before and this in the face of opening up of free lands in the Northwest and the great industrial expansion of the province, and this House approves the efforts which have been and are being put forward by the Government to increase the supply of farm labour, and rejoices in the striking agricultural development which has followed the efforts of the Department of Agriculture in many sections of the Province, as evidenced by advancing land values and the general optimism and progressiveness of the people. —Carried.

Also a similar motion by Mr. Bowman and Mayberry in 1914 was defeated.

I find in 1913 a commission known as the Public Roads and Highways Commission was appointed and I hold in my hand their very full report and incidentally they bring in a very strong report on agriculture. My point, Mr. Speaker is this, that had the government of 1913 adopted the motion of the Liberals they could have had a full report last fall from the Commission and instead of spending all this money in education, it could have been spent in a way suggested by the Commission, which would have been, I am sure, to supply experienced farm help.

The lack of experienced help on the farm is the chief cause to-day of our short production. The farmer and his wife have practically made slaves of themselves and many of them have retired to-day from the farm and became consumers rather than producers.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I wish to impress on the Government that if they wish to sit on that side of the House longer than the next four years (and I hope they don't) they must wake up on their educational policy, agricultural policy, and last but not least, their temperance legislation, for I contend that had it not been for the last appeal of the late Sir James Whitney in the Massey Hall meeting a great many more Liberals would have been to-day sitting in this House, and I cite as my authority for this statement, the two bye-elections held since in West Hamilton and Dundas.

The honourable member for Dundas said yesterday that the expenditure on Government House "cut no ice" in his bye-election, but I submit, Mr. Speaker that something cut some ice in the bye-election of Dundas by the small majority of 59 votes in favour of the government candidate, and if your government, Mr. Premier, wish to keep pace with public opinion, you must wake up on some of the Departments I have mentioned.

ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY'S RECITAL

Although St. George's Choral Society's ranks have suffered severe losses since their presentation of Judas Maccabaeus they appeared vigorous and efficient as ever in their work at the Collegiate Institute last night. They presented a very pleasing miscellaneous programme to an assembly which, if not particularly numerous, was encouragingly appreciative. The concert was carried along with a snap and swing for which the conductor, Mr. R. J. Devey, deserves a passing commendation. He permitted only one encore to be given, Mr. T. Ward receiving the honour. As a result the National Anthem was reached by ten o'clock. As already mentioned the Society has lost considerable of its talent, the majority of the male withdrawals resulting form responses to the call for military recruits. At least six additional members are going with the third contingent. However, the vocal strength of the organization did not appear to have been materially impaired. The basses were in particularly good form last night and in Elgar's rousing chorus from "The Banner of St. George" entitled "It Came From the Misty Ages," they provided a splendid setting. In this selection the whole choir responded to the leader in a most satisfactory manner. It was easily the gem of the evening. Miss Ethel Hill read the epilogue to enable the audience to appreciate the deep patriotic sentiment of the lines. Miss Hill's presentation, by the way, was decidedly effective.

The opening fantasia of nautical airs brought out the choir's powers, especially in the full volume of "Rule Britannia," which was stirringly rendered. Mr. Harry Hill had the solo of "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" and displayed a very pleasing voice. "The Unseen Choir," and the double number at the conclusion, from Judas Maccabaeus, completed a gratifying recital by the Society.

The ladies sang "The Gypsy Chorus" from "The Bohemian Girl," appearing alone to good advantage.

Mr. Ward's "Will-o'-the-Wisp" number left little to be desired. He has a splendid voice and knows how to use it.

Miss Moore, Miss Quartermaine and Miss Rathbone acquitted themselves very creditably in their solos.

Owing to the absence of Mr. Chandler who is out of the city for a short time, a mixed quartette sang a humorous setting of a nursery rhyme. The quartette was composed of Mrs. Wm. McLaren, Miss Saunders, Mr. Harry Hill and Mr. G. Gladwin.

Miss Marjorie Mather was heard in a pianoforte number, playing Rubinstein's "Le Reve" in a lulling, dreamy tempo befitting the subject.

The military quartette of the Eighth Mounted Rifles are members of St. George's Choral Society. Their singing of "The Soldier's Farewell" was quite pleasingly done. Corporal Geo. Harris and Privates Eldred, Walter Flowers and Arthur Theobald composed the quartette, who should be a cheerful acquisition to the extempore musical gatherings of the men in service.

Miss Flowers played the accompaniments to the Society's numbers, and Mr. Devey for the solists. Altogether it was a very encouraging recital, particularly to followers of the Choral Society. Their principal numbers were uniformly good, and it is pleasing to know that despite depletions from the ranks of talent, the chorus continues not only to maintain its standard, but to show improved form, as was noticeable in "The Unseen Choir" and "It Came From the Misty Ages."

No Further Safe Conducts For Belgian Relief Ships

SPECIAL CABLE:

THE HAGUE, March 3.—The German Government has determined to refuse to grant any more safe conducts for American relief ships to touch at English ports for coal on the homeward voyage, according to advices received here, and it is reported also on the same authority that a permit for the return voyage to the United States will be given only to vessels which take the course north of the Shetland Islands.

PETERBOROUGH MAN APPLIES FOR POSITION

Chief of the Toronto Fire Department—Applications Will Be Considered To-day

TORONTO, March 3.—To-day the Board of Control will consider applications for the position of Fire Chief for Toronto's Fire Department. Already fourteen applications have been received from candidates in Toronto and other parts of the Dominion. Just what will materialise when the Controllers delve into the question is a matter of speculation. According to some members of the Board of Control, that illustrious body has not as yet considered upon what lines they will proceed in the matter or reorganising the department.

APPLICANTS FOR THE JOB.

Following are the applicants: Chief of Police Alf. Cuddy, Calgary; Ex-Alderman Burgess, Toronto; Chief Jas. Armstrong, of the Kingston Fire Department; Wm. J. Smith, the present acting Deputy of the Toronto Fire Department; Captain McLean, of the Dundas Street section; W. P. Breta, a Toronto newspaperman; Donald Guthrie, Fire Chief of Nelson, B.C.; Thos. F. Sylvester, Toronto; Geo. H. Hill, Toronto, Chief Davis, Chief of Fire Department, Victoria, B.C.; James Corbett, Chief of Fire Department, Massey-Harris Co.; Wallace T. James, Assistant Chief, Hamilton Fire Department; A. Forrest, Chief Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough; R. Topping, West Toronto; F. N. Wetmore, Chief Fire Department, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Inspector Alf. Cuddy, Calgary; Chief Davis, of Victoria, and Chief William Graham, of Ottawa, are among the possibilities.

SHE SAW SMALL CLOUDS.

That Is How Airwoman Knew She Was Under Fire.

PETROGRAD, March 3. — The Princess Snakbovsky, who recently went to the front as a military aviator, has sent back to the editor of The Bourse Gazette an account of her flight over the enemy's positions. She had made three flights, the shortest an hour in length, and the longest two hours, when the letter was written.

"As I found myself over the German lines, I began to observe beneath me small clouds, which informed me that the enemy had opened fire upon me. Somehow I did not feel afraid, even when the bullets came quite close to me. Some of them even pierced the wings, but fortunately did not touch any vital part of the machine. After half an hour's flight one grows accustomed to it. Owing to trouble with my petrol supply I was forced to return to the starting point sooner than I intended to."

Americal Consul Fee, at Bremen, reports all members of the crew of the American steamer Evelyn, sunk by a mine in the North Sea, are safe except one fireman, who died from exposure.

A bulletin issued yesterday says that Madame Bernhardt is suffering from an attack of an indisposition to which she has long been subject, and not connected with the operation she recently underwent.

The death occurred in Edinburgh yesterday of Prof. James Geikie, a distinguished geologist. Prof. Geikie was born in 1839. He was emeritus professor of geology and mineralogy at Edinburgh University.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hiss, Brantford, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Tooth Brushes For the City School Kiddies

Board of Education Will Purchase a Number on Report of School Nurse

In accordance with the report of Miss Kennedy, school nurse, that there are pupils who are unable to purchase tooth brushes, the Supervision Committee of the Board of Education will purchase a number of brushes and allow the nurse to use her own discretion in their distribution.

At the regular monthly session of the Board of Education, held last evening, at which there were present Trustees B. F. Ackerman (chairman), V. Eastwood, R. Deane, Dr. Burnham, Col. J. D. Miller, T. B. McGrath, J. Smith, W. H. Hill, Secretary Thompson, H. R. H. Kenner and Inspector Mowat, the report of the School Nurse for the month was read as follows:

Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—The following is the report of school nursing for the month ending March 1, 1915.

Number of inspections	690
Number of pupils advised to have medical attention	68
Number of pupils advised to have dental attention	308
Number of pupils excluded because of uncleanliness	6
Number of houses visited	21

The majority of children have tooth brushes, yet there are a great many who have not, and these are children who are unable to pay for them.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) E. P. KENNEDY,
School Nurse.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner's report on the attendance at the Collegiate Institute was as follows:

Form.	On Roll.	Average Attendance

PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS MEAN BAD BLOOD

People who have impure or impoverished blood should be careful to take only a vegetable and temperance remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is and has been for over 40 years.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulations begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the eliminative organs.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache and constipation

Depend upon this grand remedy to give you the kind of blood that makes the skin clear, the mind alert, the vision keener and puts ambition and energy into the entire body. You won't be disappointed. For free advice or free booklet on blood, write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets not only the original but the best Little Liver Pills, first put up over 40 years ago, by old Dr. R. V. Pierce, have been much imitated but never equalled, as thousands attest. They're purely vegetable, being made up of concentrated and refined medicinal principles, extracted from the roots of American plants. Do not gripe. One or two for stomach corrective, three or four for cathartic.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

What's Doing in Civic Circles--Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

Construction work on the outfall sewer is progressing. Thirty-five or forty men are employed on the job. The Engineering Department is having considerable difficulty with the quicksand, which is common in the locality through which the sewer is passing.

The Mayor's Committee.

Mayor Buller stated this morning that the special committee of which he is Chairman, has not yet waited upon his Honour Judge Huycke in connection with the deletion of one of the matters that was set out for investigation They will probably make an effort to see the County Judge on Saturday.

Building Permits.

Building permits have been issued to Mr Charles Rishor and Mr. P. O'Connor. The former proposes to raise a kitchen of a double house at 247-249 Simcoe Street, at an estimated cost of $500. Mr. O'Connor will erect a stable at 501 Bolivar Street, at an estimated cost of $30.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

Extending Car Service.

The Street Railway Commissioners of Brantford have decided to extend the Eagle place line by a loop and provide three new cars for the system. The Board of Works will at the same time pave Erie Avenue, the main thoroughfare of Eagle Place The cost of the street railway extension will be about $30,000, including the new cars.

Brantford Rate 24 Mills.

City officials figure the tax rate for the year at 4 mills, one and a half greater than last year, this including the Provincial tax of one mill. It may yet rise to 24 1-2 mills.

Joins Immigration Dept.

Former police constable W. Meehan of Berlin, who was in the limelight in the recent police investigation, has joined the Dominion Immigration Department. He has been assigned to the position of inspector along the border at a salary of $1,450 a year.

MEDAL FOR PETERBORO' GIRLS

MRS. MATTHEWS MADE TOP SCORE IN POINTS COMPETITION AT RINK

The points competition by the members of the Ladies' Curling Club this morning returned the following top scores: Mrs. Matthews 26, Mrs. Sanderson 25, Mrs. Goodwill 24. These scores are highly creditable and it was admitted at the rink this afternoon that not many of the men would ordinarily equal Mrs. Matthews' score. The points game demands accuracy and of course an intimate knowledge of the various plays. The ladies showed most proficiency in the port and draw shots, but were somewhat off on the shots requiring faster stones. At that it is believed more of the ladies would have had better scores had the ice been played on before they used it. The surface was pebbly and proved hard going as the result of a recent light flooding for to-night's bonspiel. As the pebbly formation wore off, a light snow was raised. Some of the ladies found it difficult to reach the rings. It is likely they will continue their attempt to make higher scores, and Mrs. Matthews will also probably attempt to improve on her 26 score.

Strychnine Poisoning Responsible, etc.

THE FAREWELL.

Detective Meagher described the incidents that occurred at the deceased's house after Detective Newhall left. Witness and the doctor went into the dining-room and partook of some dinner. Dr. Brown asked his wife for a blank cheque, which he filled out and endorsed in her favour. He then put on his hat and coat, bid his wife, daughter and sister good-bye, and left for the Chief's office. Witness saw no more of the deceased until he was brought down into the guard room about four o'clock. His solicitor, Mr. A. E. Dixon, was allowed to see him on his own responsibility. It was at this juncture that Station Sergeant Kidd took charge of the deceased.

UNDER CLOSE OBSERVATION.

According to the evidence of Sergeant Kidd, the deceased was never out of observation of the officers except during the time that he was in conversation with Mr. A. E. Dixon. Later he was searched and placed in a cell. Chief Thompson then left the station, and was about to go home when he met Rev. R. G. Peever. The latter expressed a desire to see Dr. Brown. Accompanied by the Chief, the two men entered the station by way of the City Clerk's office, and after passing out of the committee room door, heard an unusual sound. They found the deceased in a dying condition. Five or six minutes later he was dead.

MADE HIS WILL.

The next witness called was Mr. Dixon. The latter was summoned to the station about four o'clock in the afternoon. Arriving there he found Dr. Brown, who requested him to look after his case, and also spoke about employing counsel from Toronto. Asked who he wished to have, deceased replied that he did not know. Mr. Dixon suggested a half a dozen names. Matters of evidence were also discussed, after which Dr. Brown requested Mr. Dixon to prepare his will. He made what Mr. Dixon considered to be a sensible will. Witness returned to his office and had it typewritten. He returned later, and, at Dr. Brown's request, had it witnessed by Police Magistrate Dumble, who happened to be in the building. Mr. Dixon was with the deceased for about fifteen or twenty minutes. The latter seemed to be very much depressed over the affair.

DECLARED HIS INNOCENCE.

After the will was signed and disposed of, deceased handed Mr. Dixon a paper containing some notes that he had made in connection with the interview that had been held in the presence of Mrs. Mowry in the Chief's office earlier in the afternoon, at the request of Dr. Brown. While reading the notes, Mr. Dixon had a faint recollection of Dr. Brown reaching for a glass of water which stood on the table in the guard room. Later he complained of feeling unwell, and remarked that he would probably feel better after tea. He protested very strongly his innocence, and felt keenly his arrest on the unsupported evidence of Mrs. Mowry.

SENT FOR MRS. MOWRY.

Chief Thompson was the next witness called. When Dr. Brown arrived at his office shortly after twelve o'clock, he remarked: "This is an awful thing Chief." The latter said, "Yes, you are aware of the charge that is against you." Dr. Brown replied, "Yes, I heard it, but I don't know whether I understand it, I am in such a nervous condition." Witness then read the charge from the information. He told Dr. Brown that it would not be necessary for him to say anything, and that anything he did say might be used as evidence when he was put on his trial. He insisted on talking, and asked to see another party who was at the house when Helen Brown died. The party was sent for, and remained in the Chief's office until about four o'clock. She made a statement in the presence of Dr. Brown. The notes that Mr. Dixon received later were made during this conversation.

VERY MUCH DEPRESSED.

The doctor seemed to be very much depressed. Witness advised him not to become downhearted, but to fight the thing manfully. He was then handed over to Sergeant Kidd. Later the Chief went down into the guard room and saw Mr. Dumble affix his signature to the will. At that time Dr. Brown was sitting close to the table, and so close to the water glass that the Chief removed it for fear he would upset it. He then went out for a few minutes and left Dr. Brown with his solicitor. It was agreed that Mrs. Brown would visit the station about eight o'clock in the evening in company with Mr. Dixon and arrange for counsel from Toronto.

THE SEARCH.

Following this the Chief proceeded to search the deceased. He removed from his clothing a small surgical instrument, fifty cents in change, a watch and a number of small articles, also the small white paper from his overcoat. About this time he complained of feeling unwell. The Chief took him by the arm and told him to brace up. Dr. Brown replied, "Oh, Chief, I am done, I have quit." He then placed him in the cell and pulled a robe over him. The Chief then put on his overcoat and left the station. Meeting Rev. R. G. Peever, witness returned, and while passing through the committee room door heard a scream. He hurried to the cell and found Dr. Brown in an agonising condition. Asked if he would like to see Mr. Peever, deceased said "No." The Chief talked to him and then took him by the wrists, when the dying man was heard to say, "Poison, poison." Dr. Greer arrived a few minutes later and pronounced him dead.

POWDER WAS TESTED.

The paper that was removed from the deceased's overcoat when the search was made was then located and a small portion of white powder found enclosed. This was later tested by Dr. A. W. McPherson and found to consist of strychnine. Dr. McPherson, who was put into the witness box, said that the drinking of water with the poison would tend to hasten death, as the system would absorb the poison much faster. Detective Newhall identified the paper produced by Dr McPherson as being the paper found on Dr. Brown by Chief Thompson.

FACTS WERE PLAIN.

Coroner Dr. Greer, in addressing the jury, said that the facts of the case were so plain that he could have given a certificate as to death without the necessity of holding an inquest, but as the law demanded an investigation into all deaths occurring in public institutions, an inquest was imperative.

The jury, after being out for about an hour, returned a verdict to the effect that Dr. Brown had come to his death from strychnine poisoning, which the jury believed to have been self administered while in a depressed state of mind.

The Empire's Solidarity And German Culture

A well-known city barrister, in a moment of relaxation from the practice of professional philanthropy, conceived the following striking combination of parody and inspiration, with the idea of contrasting the solidarity of the British Empire and the ruthlessness of German "Kulture":

From Yukon's icy mountains,
From India's coral strand,
Where Africa's sunny fountains
Roll down their golden sand;
From British North America
All overseas domain,
From Australia and New Zealand,
'Neath the southern cross, they came.

The mighty hosts of Britain
March'd to war, so say,
The battle cry was freedom,
The tune was "Tipperary";
The Sydney of Australia
Ploughed not the seas in vain,
She sank the haughty "Emden"
Of buccaneering fame.

The bayonets of our soldiers
Made brutal Germans dance,
When routed from their trenches,
On the blood-red field of France;
Then hurrah for the Allies' forces
And deeds of valor done!
Hurrah for reign of justice,
And cause of freedom won!

The traditions of Lord Nelson
And Wellington proclaim,
'Til every ransom'd nation
Shall bless our Empire's name;
Waft, waft, ye winds, her story,
And you, ye waters, roll
'Til like a sea of glory,
It spreads from pole to pole.

Sons of the Huns and Vandals,
Your tribal blood we see
In deeds of brutal outrage,
Transcending cruelty.
The "Baby-Killers" cowardice
And their inhumanity
Reveal their German "Kultur,"
And their rank stupidity.

Innocent blood of millions,
Must on the Kaiser pour;
And the great and just Avenger
Will damn him evermore;
The noble act of Britain
Will, forgotten, never be;
Her sacrifice for Belgium
Enshrines humanity.

The Germans' "chant of hatred"
Will, on themselves, rebound;
"The Chant of Love for England"
Will, thro' the world, resound;
The nations, in their gladness,
This song, will ever sing,
And breathe the prayer of Britain,
"God Save Our Gracious King."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CALLS HEFFERNAN GREATEST DEFENCE PLAYER IN GAME

The Toronto Telegram says: Victorias beaten on their forward line were forced back, driven to their defence line and here it was that they won. Heffernan proved without a question that he is the greatest defence player in the game, and Gooch seconded his efforts with grand blocking. This pair saved Victorias from a sound beating.

Heffernan never played a better or harder game, was all over the ice checking, blocking and rushing. They saved the situation time and again when their first line of defence on the forward line had been distanced and beaten.

More than that the two found time and necessity to rush up the ice and Heffernan's speed was terrific. Gooch was not as effective in his rushes as on former occasions, but his work in this department served the very necessary purpose of relieving the forwards.

COLLINGWOOD TIES UP ROUND WITH BERLIN

COLLINGWOOD, March 2.—In the return game in the junior O. H. A. semi-finals between Berlin and Collingwood the locals won by a score of 5 to 2, but as Berlin won the first game by 4 to 1 the result on the round is still undoubted, and will be played off on neutral ice.

On keen ice one of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the best game here this winter. The visitors started off with a rush and scored their two goals before the locals settled down. Shortly afterwards J. Herberts scored for the locals, and the first period ended 2 to 1 in favour of Berlin.

In the second period the locals had much the better of the argument, scoring three goals, and a fourth one [illegible] which was not allowed, the period ending 4 to 2 for Collingwood. The prospects were now bright for winning the round. In one minute after the commencement of the third period J. Herberts scored a neat goal that tied the round.

After this each team tried their hardest to score the winning goal, but both goal-keepers and defence were on edge and stopped everything in sight. For most of the second and third rounds the game was played with six men a side. A Berlin player was injured in the second period, and went off for the balance of the game, taking C. Herberts off with him, and in the third period C. Herberts and another Berlin player came together with great force, and both went off for the balance of the game.

For the locals it would be hard to pick the most effective men, but Foulis and J. Herberts shared the goal-getting honours. Cheeseman of the local defence, played a grand game, time after time boring his way through the entire Berlin line. Reg. Noble played a hard game. Karges was the best defence for the visitors, and Shirk and Krug were best of the forward line.

The line-up:

Referee—W. M. Tackaberry of Toronto.

Jack Fitzgerald's Rink Won Seymour Power Cup

J. E. A. Fitzgerald's good rink brought home another cup when they won the primary honours in the Campbellford bonspiel yesterday. They bagged the Seymour Power trophy, the highest prize in the bonspiel, playing the following games in the bonspiel draw:

Defeated J. Stewart, of Campbellford, by 13-7;

Defeated R. Sturgeon, of Peterborough, by 11-9;

Defeated F. Smith, of Campbellford, by 13-10;

And in the finals they defeated Jack Moore, of Keene, by 16-7.

This is the first time the Seymour trophy has been won by the local club. The Fitzgerald rink got the trophy, and each member received a silver cup, a miniature of the big trophy.

The local players enjoyed the Campbellford trip.

Bob Sturgeon's rink entered the finals, and has a good chance to win this round.

The Fitzgerald rink is composed as follows:

Alex. Archibald,
Ray Best,
Harry Foster, and
J. E. A. Fitzgerald (skip).

BILL DONOVAN HAS BEGUN WITH YANKS

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 2—Manager Bill Donovan, with eleven Yankees under his command, rode into Savannah at noon at about the same time that a chilling breeze from the ocean swept over the fair city. The Yankee contingent from the North found only two veterans here, although nine had been ordered to reach Savannah to-day. Mullin and Ray Hartzell were the players who arrived ahead of the Huston-Donovan party.

On his arrival Donovan found a letter from Scout Joe Kelley in which the latter had glowing praise for the pitchers working out at the Springs. Ray Keating, who reported two weeks ago almost twenty pounds overweight, has taken off the surplus flesh in a most surprising way, and all doubts about the Bridgeport boy getting into proper condition have been dispelled. He is almost at his right weght now. Cole and Warhop have been pronounced by Kelley as being just as fit as possible at this stage of the training season. Caldwell, who was a late starter, is coming along slowly but surely. The optimistic letter from the scout made Donovan's smile become wider than ever.

BASKETBALL

In a fast game of basketball last night at the Y. M. C. A., the Intermediates won from the Junior Collegiates. Both teams worked hard from start to finish and at the end of the first half it looked as if the Collegiates would go away with the game, the score being 7 to 3 in their favour. In the last half Pringle scored some fine shots, thus winning the game. The final score was 14—11 in favour of the Intermediates. The stars for the Collegiate were Canniff and for the Intermediates, Pringle. Following is the line-up:

Intermediates—Centre, Pringle; forwards, Thorndyke, Helson; defence, Hamilton, Copp.

Collegiate — Centre, Canniff; forwards, G. Green, J. Green; defence Smith, H. W. Copp.

A copper mining company in Peru operates a smelter 14,000 feet above sea level, the highest altitude for such an industry in the world.

SIX CLUBS IN CANADIAN LEAGUE THIS SEASON

TORONTO, March 3.—A meeting of the Canadian Baseball League will be held in Toronto on Friday for the purpose of completing reorganization and whipping things into shape for the coming season. It was to have taken place yesterday, but at the suggestion of the Ottawas President Fitzgerald consented to a delay until the latter part of the week. The schedule will probably be turned over to a committee. It will, of course, be definitely decided in the first place whether or not the league shall continue, though the majority of the clubs are apparently favourable.

It looks as if the circuit will consist of six clubs, with Peterborough and Erie dropping out.

McGraw Has 41 Giants At Marlin Training Camp

MARLIN, Texas, March 1—Manager McGraw did not arrive here today in time to superintend the training of his combined group of Giants. It went on without him and he was two days late when he finally arrived.

A motor whizzed into town late this afternoon from Waco containing Manager McGraw. He was at once asked whether there was anything doing with the St. Louis Club for a player, and said there was not.

Arthur Fromme arrived from California and is player no. 41 to report. The forty-one assorted ball men were too many for one park and the prearranged plan to use two fields was put into operation. The regulars, with a scattering of the newer element, went to the main field, while most of the youngsters who were here last week, flocked to the old field, which is not so commodious as the other.

Kinsella being away, the overseeing of the work of the veterans was done by Christy Mathewson, who did not make an exacting boss, for the first day's practice was not hard. Arthur Devlin had the younger brigade in charge. The afternoon session quickened considerably over that of the morning, for the forenoon was chilly and raw, with the sun out in the afternoon.

The first day's grind of the veterans and nearly veterans consisted of more batting than anything else, a [illegible] ers, some jogging around the bases, and a fielding session of the inner cordon consisting of Merkle, Doyle, Fletcher and Lobert, the most likely combination of the season's regular infield.

With the veterans in the morning were Catcher Smith and Press and Williams of the new pitchers. Matty did not unlimber his arm at all, the season being too young as yet for him and neither did Fromme. All the other pitchers exercised their whips. Matty, Meyers, Tesreau and Marquard put in most of their day playing handball, though Tesreau and Marquard jobbed to the batters for a spell. Schupp also furnished serving to the batters and Williams supplied them with more speed than they are accustomed to seeing at this time of the year Another youngster who had something on the ball was Gipe, who was assigned to the veterans in the afternoon. Glass and Kirmayer of the recruit division also helped out with the regulars in the afternoon.

When the outfielders were not batting they scattered about the field making themselves useful as the whim moved them. Burns played both third base and the outfield until a passing blister inconvenienced him.

Fred Merkle put his newly-acquired golf swing into operation. The result was not at all startling, though the ball travelled with a comparatively light application of power.

Young Holloway is still lame and a new second string nfiled performed at the freshman field. Holke was on third, Brainerd on second, Kores on short and Reed on third. Their work was snappy. Young Beatty took his day's toil with the veterans, and among the abundance of infield talent lying around his work was by no means least impressive.

Several of the Giants attended another fire last night. Early in the morning and within a block of the hotel there was a big blaze, the second within two days. Some of the players slept right through the excitement, but others heard the racket, dressed and went over.

MARTY O'TOOLE GOES BACK TO THE MINORS

COLUMBUS, O., March 2—Marty O'Toole, pitcher, formerly with the Pittsburgh Nationals, signed a contract [illegible] bus American Association team the coming season, according to a message from South Framingham, Mass., where Manager Quinn signed O'Toole He will be considered part pay for Hinchman and Gerber, sold to the Pittsburgh Club last fall.

HAD DYSPEPSIA

So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Newfield, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any ad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Victims Of New Game

"Lieut." Kirby's Cheques Returned as Worthless

Several local stores, the Peterborough Book Store, the McDermid and Jury and Cressman's have apparently been victimized by an old swindle under a new guise. On Saturday a man in officer's uniform who gave his name as Lieut. Kirby of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons of Waterloo, P.Q., bought articles in these stores and gave in payment cheques on the Toronto branch of the Bank of Commerce. These have been returned as worthless and meanwhile "Lieut." Kirby has disappeared from Peterborough. At Cresaman's and the Book Store he gave $5 cheques, while McDermid and Jury cashed a $10 one.

COUNTS ON ROUMANIA

Dr. E. J. Dillon Believes Differences Between Russia & S. Have Been Adjusted

LONDON, Tuesday, March 2.—Dr. E. J. Dillon, who has been investigating the attitude of Italy and the Balkan States toward the coming changes in the Near East, in a despatch from Rome to the Daily Telegraph, says he learns from Roumania that the chief reason why the Russian Minister there left suddenly for Petrograd was to describe the undesirable and erroneous impression caused by the words of the Russian Foreign Secretary at Buharest and Constantinople, and to suggest the advisability of clearing up the points on which Rumania was anxious that there should be no room for present disquietude or future misunderstanding.

Having myself discussed matters with the highest authorities in the Russian Empire," he says, "I am convinced that Russia's proposals for the settlement of the Near Eastern problem, in so far as it affects the waterway between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean, will include a perfectly satisfactory adjustment of Rumania's recognized rights as a riverian of the Black Sea, and that this adjustment will not be confined to the actual exercise of the right claimed, but will be incorporated in international law. The disappointment caused by recent events may now, it is hoped, be compensated by the forcing of the Dardenelles, and those further operations in the Near East, which the success of this offensive will involve or invite.

"In Italy, too, the necessity of envisaging the international situation as modified by the Anglo-French offensive in the Near East from the point of view of opportunity is forcing itself on the minds of all public men. Some who have heretofore been convinced partisans of neutrality pure and simple are, to my knowledge, reconsidering their position and reluctantly avowing that circumstances are stronger than human will. The independent press also lays due stress on this aspect of the matter, and with [illegible] propounds the motives for intervention which seem most adapted to convince conscientious, scrupulous, and undecided patriots.

"Meanwhile the Government, with the acquiescence of all political parties except the so-called official Socialists, is putting the finishing touches to the military measures which shall enable it to confront all contingencies without misgivings. Already some 1,200,000 men are with the colours, and practically all the other arrangements have been made which this move involves.

REV. W. H. WHITE M. A. APPOINTED TO THE RECTORSHIP OF ST. LUKE'S

Appointment Made by the Bishop of Toronto at Unanimous Call of the Congregation

HIS CAREER

At the unanimous call of the congregation, Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeney, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, has appointed Rev. W. H. White, M.A., Rector of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, to succeed Rev. F. J. Sawers, M.A., who recently became Rector of St. Peter's Church, Cobourg. Mr. White has acted as locum tenens at St. Luke's during the past month, and the news of his permanent appointment to the parish will be received with a great deal of pleasure by the people of St. Luke's.

Rev. Mr. White is a man of very wide experience in the service of the church, and his ministry here should be a decided stimulus in the accomplishment of good works, not only in his own particular parish, but in the community at large.

REV. MR. WHITE'S CAREER.

Rev. Walter Henry White, M.A., was educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope, and afterwards at Trinity University during the time that Rev. Dr. Symonds, a former Rector of St. Luke's, was a professor there. He graduated with first-class honours in classics and philosophy. Afterwards entering High School work as classical specialist at Picton. Later he became Master at Bishop Ridley College, St. Catharines. While there he was invited to become fellow and lecturer in classics at Trinity College, Toronto. Among those attending his lectures was Rev. F. J. Sawers. During his six years on the teaching staff of Arts Faculty he read for Holy Orders. He was ordained to the Priesthood by the late Archbishop Sweatman in 1899. In 1900 he went to London, England, where he spent two years in parish work in the south-east part of the great Metropolis. On returning to Canada he served as Vicar of Barrie until 1906, when he was offered and accepted the post of organising missionary in the Diocese of Qu-Appelle. For seven years he was occupied in organising the new settlers into congregations and parishes, selecting sites and building small churches in districts of Southern Saskatchewan, as they were opened to settlement by the building of railways.

Threatened with nerve strain, and obliged to retire from prairie work in the summer of 1913, he went to England, where he was engaged in work among the Surrey Hills, near London. Upon the outbreak of the war he offered his services as chaplain to the Canadian authorities in London, but was referred to Ottawa. He returned to Canada at Christmas time, to find the supply of Anglican chaplains far in excess of the demand.

During January Rev. Mr. White acted as locum tenens at Cobourg, coming here for February. Mrs. White, who is at present in Ottawa, intends to join her husband here at once, if not before.

Churchgoers and Non-Churchgoers

Western Pastor Says There is Little Difference Between Them

NEW YORK, March 4.—There is no difference between the way Christians live and men and women who make no profession of religion, according to the Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., known as "The Tall Pine of the Sierras."

"The man, who is a church member drinks [illegible] at the club as the man who never enters a church. The woman who is a church member plays bridge whist and dresses in the same captivating and suggestive way that the women who have nothing to do with Christianity," said Dr. Matthews last evening in a sermon at the Rutgers Presbyterian church, Broadway and Seventy-third street. He was talking on "Modern Worldliness." He said these statements were true, in spite of the fact that Jesus Christ said, "Come ye out from among them and be ye separated."

"Women who call themselves Christians use just as much paint and powder and rouge as women who never darken a church door," said Dr. Matthews. He said that the churches were filled with pernicious placidity and that sixty per cent. of the pulpits of the United States had "dummy tomb stones' for occupants.

"Some churches when a sinner enters the door show just as much warmth as a cellar refrigerator," said Dr. Matthews. He said these preachers should get out and "go to work in the corn fields." He also referred to many clergymen as "parrots."

The Western pastor told his hearers not to hire "professional mourners" to sing or take any part in funerals. He said the only kind of music at the funeral of a Christian should be "hymns that proclaimed victory."

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of the most pleasant and effective remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

TURKISH FLEET FLED AT THE APPROACH OF THE ALLIES

The Germans Were Forced To Abandon Their Wounded

ADMIRALTY PUZZLED AT MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

Of the Turkish Fleet---While a Heavy Fog Hung Over the Strait Turkish War Craft Steamed Silently Out of Nagara Road Into Sea of Marmora.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 4.—(Special Cable.)—The Turkish fleet, assigned to give battle to the Anglo-French war ships inside the Dardanelles, has fled at the approach of the allied war squadron according to Athens despathes to-day.

While a heavy fog hung over the Strait, the Turkish war craft lifted anchor and steamed silently out of Nagara road and into the sea of Marmora. With the lifting of the mist allied aviators reported not a single Turkish war vessel in the Strait, and reconnoitring flights far up the Marmora Sea failed to reveal their whereabouts.

Admiralty officials to-day admitted they were puzzled at the mysterious disappearance of the Turkish fleet. At the bombardment of the Dardanelles nearly the entire naval forces of the Sultan were concentrated in the narrows of Nagara Road to block the progress of the allied fleet toward Constantinople.

The successful advance of the Anglo-French warships brought them to within six miles of the spot where the enemy's fleet was concentrated. The Turks are believed to have withdrawn to the very approaches of Constantinople prepared to pass the Bosphorus and enter the Black Sea if the Ottoman capital falls.

Turkish aviators flew over the allied fleet all day Sunday and the report they made of the strength of the bombarding forces is believed to have caused a precipitate retreat.

ENEMY IN THE ARGONNE AT THE MERCY OF THE FRENCH

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, March 4.—Progress by the French troops in the Champaigne district, between Rheims and the Argonne forest, which has been noted every day for more than two weeks, has resulted according to the official communique issued last night, in the occupation of a large section of the ground which has been strongly held by the Germans since their retreat to the Aisne.

It is believed that the Germans are concentrating forces in Flanders for a new drive at the Channel ports, notably Calais. This belief is based on a despatch from London saying that the German commanders have received orders to stop all traffic on roads leading from the interior of Belgium to West Flanders in order to prevent the leaking out of news regarding the movement of troops.

MASTERS IN THE ARGONNE.

The following supplementary official statement was issued late to-night by the French War Office:

"It can be stated that in the Argonne, where we had been constantly attacked since December, the roles in the last three weeks have been reversed. To-day we have gained the undisputable ascendancy. These local actions, of which the Argonne is the theatre, show that more and more the enemy is at our mercy and that our moral superiority is assured.

"We have obtained this result by a series of limited operations energetically carried out, and although the German forces which confront us are extremely courageous, we feel that at a given point and moment we are masters and can do what we wish."

The statement gives the details of one of these engagements, which, it says, occur daily and show the splendid ardor of the troops.

A fleet of aeroplanes, many of the machines driven by the better known of the military aviators in this region, flew slowly over the cemetery at Lepine to-day during the burial of Lieut. Mouchard and Sapper Maillard. The two men were killed when their aeroplane caught fire and fell. The accident occurred during the night patrol, and the flames from the burning aircraft were seen for miles.

A son of Jacques Seligman, the art expert, who is fighting for the allies, although he is a German by birth, has been mentioned in the official despatch for bravery in the face of the enemy.

M. Ribot, Minister of Finance, will ask the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow to raise the limit of the issue of national defence treasury bonds, which was fixed at 3,500,000,000 francs (£700,000,000), of which 3,065,000 francs had been subscribed by Feb. 28. The subscription of these bonds has not slackened since the issue of the national defence stock beginning on February 25, of which 428,000,000 francs (85,600,000) was subscribed in the first three days.

EGYPT EXPECTS NEW INVASION

Believed at Cairo Turks Are Preparing for a Second Attempt—Big Guns Buried in Sands

Special Cable to The Examiner:

CAIRO, March 4.—Will the Turks make a second attack on Egypt and the Suez Canal? That is the question both civilians and military are discussing here. The balance of opinion would appear to favour the belief that Djemel Pasha will make at least another attempt before giving the task up as hopeless. Many people believe his efforts early in the month was but a reconnaissance in force, and now that he has a better idea of what he has to face he will try again with all the strength he can muster.

Reports speak of fresh bodies of troops in motion near the frontier. It is added that half a dozen big guns are being brought along. These are mounted on carriages with centipede wheels, and each is drawn by a span of 24 oxen.

Some prisoners say the army started off from Palestine without artillery, and it may be gathered from this that the artillery used in fighting was sent off along before the army started. Others believe that long before war with Turkey was declared the German officers with the Turkish army in Syria sent forward artillery to be buried in the sands ready for an advance across the desert.

DR. ROBINSON'S TRIAL AT NAPANEE

Special to The Examiner:

NAPANEE, March 3.—Giving evidence in his own behalf to-day, Dr. C. K. Robinson, Tamworth, accused of the murder of Blanche Yorke, admitted, he performed an illegal operation on her to save her life, that she died in his office, and in his desperation he cut her body up and buried it in his cellar.

40,000 GERMAN TROOPS NARROWLY ESCAPE CAPTURE

Berlin War Office Admits Defeat in Recent Fighting Around Przasnysz--Germans' Position Was Most Critical

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

BERLIN, via wireless to London, March 4.—Forty thousand German troops narrowly escaped capture or annihilation by the Russians in recent fighting around Przasnysz, it was admitted at the War Office to-day. Only by the most desperate fighting and by forced marches did the Germans extricate themselves from extremely dangerous postions. For a whole day the bloody conflict was waged in marshes, the Slava attempting to surround the German corps whose position was most critical. Toward night the Germans cut their way back toward Przasnysz. They were forced to abandon their wounded.

LONDON, March 4.—In their determination to relieve Przemysl and drive the Russians out of Galicia the Austro-German armies, which for some weeks have been on the Galician side of the Carpathian mountains, have during the last few days made repeated attempts to break through the Russian entrenchments, but without success. Since Sunday last, when in massed formation they threw themselves against Russian troops holding strong position, the Austro-Germans have attacked again and again in spite of the heavy losses which this kind of fighting entails.

Yesterday, according to the Russian official account, the Austrians delivered furious attacks between the San and Ondawa Rivers, only to be thrown back, they were in their previous efforts. Elsewhere they made several fruitless attempts around Koziouwka and Rojanka, at the latter point losing two companies, which were surrounded and annihilated.

LOSSES VERY HEAVY.

No estimates have been published of the losses sustained by the Germanic armies in their efforts to break through the Russian lines at these places, but they are believed to have been very large, as the Russian positions were almost impregnable. Regarding the Austrians' attempt to outflank the Kussians in Eastern Galicia, two Russian official reports in succession have reported that the Austrians suffered a severe reverse, and that yesterday they lost in prisoners alone more than 6,000 men. The Russians captured also a number of guns and a large quantity of transport material.

On the other extreme wing in North Poland the Germans have either assumed the defensive or are retiring, except at Ossowetz, where they coptinue to bombard the fortress. Berlin reports unofficially that at this point the Germans have succeeded in silencing two of the forts. Their attempt to approach the city, however, has been repulsed by the Russians. The Germans, while claiming success near Augustowo, where they captured 1,500 prisoners from among the Russian forces who tried to cross the Bobr River, admit that they have withdrawn their advance guards south of Myszyniec, and that the Russians have been feeling their way forward to the northwest of Przasnysz.

The fact seems to be that the Russians are advancing along the whole northern line, but very slowly, because of the mud which impedes the movement of guns and transport waggons. They have been able to reinforce their armies at every threatening point, and are now considered to be in as good a position as the Germans, who have left their railways behind them.

French Society Trains Dogs For Service in the Field

LONDON, March 3.—Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P. for Croydon, who for some months has been director of the wounded and missing department of the Red Cross Society, in a letter home states:

There is a very interesting society in France known as the Ligue des Chiens Sanitaires, which trains dogs of all sorts, apparently, to carry despatches from one trench to another or to hunt for wounded men. They very kindly asked me to their training ground, and I am very glad that I went. There, in a large open space, were Airedales, curly coated sheepdogs, black Belgian collies (with a dash of the hyena in them, I should say) and Scotch collies. They were all kennelled up and brought out one at a time for their lesson. In the field there were trenches and fences, pits and gravey mounds, obstacles of all kinds. The dogs were each at different stages of proficiency in the art of tracking wounded; some had begun learning that week; others had been with the trainer for months, and one was a perfectly trained dog which the police had used for a couple of years.

The latter was a little wonder; he could climb wire netting or a stone wall like a cat, and he had the nose and pace of a first class pointer. It was beautiful to see him work. A man goes by devious paths and ultimately hides in a pit enclosed in a fifteen foot wire cage, like the walls of an aviary without the roof. The dog is brought on the ground by his trainer, picks up the scent almost at once, and off he goes. Finally he reaches the pit, makes three springs up the fencing, finds the man, takes his cap and races back to his master. He is then put on a leash, and off he goes again at full speed, dragging the man with him as fast as his legs can carry him over the broken ground until he reaches the wounded soldier who is then tended and, if possible, brought back to the nearest field hospital.

These dogs, I believe, are in general use in the French and German armies, but hitherto I fancy that there are few, if any, among our British regiments. It would be an interesting experiment to try some among our troops, who could certainly work the dogs if any soldiers in the world could.

Will Fly The Union Jack

SPECIAL CABLE:

NEW YORK, March 3—"I'll fly the British flag all the way across," declared Captain J. B. Ransom of the White Star liner Baltic when warned today against German submarines. "I won't take down the flag for any German submarine that swims," he added. The Baltic, sailing to-day, carried 145 passengers.

Greece Is Preparing For War

Special Cable:

PARIS, March 4.—A despatch to the Temps from Athens says that immediately after a Cabinet meeting held yesterday the Crown Council was summoned to the palace and held a session under the presidency of King Constantine. Among the eminent statesmen taking part were former Premiers Rhallays, Zimis, Mavromichalis, Dragoumis and Theotokis. They deliberated on the question whether Greece should act in the present crisis. Parliament has been summoned to meet after the council has finished its deliberations.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

His hand did not seem to move, yet a second later the heavy moustache had been torn from the man's face. He started to his feet with an exclamation. Foyle waved him back to his chair.

"I only wanted to make sure that I was right. Now, monsier, I want to make it clear that I was right=ss to make it clear that I have no right to ask you anything. If you wish to say anything it will be taken down, and what action I take depends on what you say."

Ivan scowled into the fire and preserved a stubborn silence. Whether he knew it or not, he held all the advantage. Unless he committed himself by some incautious word there was little to implicate him in the murder. Suspicion there might be, but legal proof there was done. It would scarcely do to arrest him on such flimsy evidence. The Russian police had failed to trace his antecedents and the Criminal Investigation Department were ignorant even of his surname. He had been known simply as Ivan at Grosvenor Gardens.

Foyle tried again and this time his voice and silky and soft as ever as he uttered a plainer threat.

"I want to help you if I can. I don't want to have to charge you with the murder of Mr. Grell."

The warm blood surged crimson to Ivan's face. In an instant he was out of his chair and had leapt at the throat of the detective. So rapid, so unexpected was the movement that, although Heldon Foyle had not ceased his careful watchfulness, and although he writed quickly aside, he was borne back by his assailant. The two crashed heavily to the floor. As they rolled over, struggling desperately, the grip upon the detective's throat grew ever tighter and tighter.

Half a dozen men had rushed into the room at the noise of the struggle, and strove vainly to tear the Russian from his hold. But he hung on with the tenacity of a mastiff. There was a ringing in Foyle's ears and a red blur before his eyes. With a superhuman effort he got his elbow under the Russian's chin and pressed it back sharply.

The grip relaxed ever so slightly, but it was enough. Instantly Foyle had wrestled himself free, and Ivan was pinioned to the floor by the others.

"Handcuffs," said the superintendent sharply.

Some one got a pair on the prisoner's wrists, and he was jerked none too gently to his feet. A couple of men still held him. At a word from Foyle the others had gone about their business, with the exception of Norman. The superintendent flicked the dust from his clothes and picked something which had fallen during the struggle from the floor.

"You admit you are Ivan, then?" he said quietly.

The Russian showed his teeth in a beast-like snarl.

"Yes, I am Ivan," he said. "Make what you can of that, but you cannot have me hanged for the murder of Mr. Grell—and you know why!"

retorted the detective smoothly. "Yes, I know that."

He counted the rough-and-tumble but little against the fact that the Russian had now admitted that he knew it was not Grell's body that had been found in the study. Here was a starting-point at last.

"What I want now," he went on slowly, "is an explanation of how you came to have possession of these."

He held up the thing he had picked from the floor. It was a case of blue Morocco leather, and as he opened it a magnificent string of pearls showed startlingly white against a dark background.

"These pearls were bought at Streeters' by Mr. Grell as a wedding present to Lady Eileen Meredith," he said. "How do they come in your possession?"

"They were given to me by Mr. Grell," cried Ivan. The fierce passion that had made him attack Foyle on the hint of arrest seemed to have melted away.

Heldon Foyle's mask of a face showed no sign of the incredulity he felt. He made no comment, but ran his hands swiftly through the Russian's pockets, piling money, keys, watch, and other articles in a little heap on the table. Beyond a single letter, there were no documents on the man. He scanned the missive quickly. It was an ordinary commonplace note from a jeweller in Paris, addressed to Ivan Abramovitch. This he placed aside.

"May as well have his fingerprints," he said, and one of the officers present pressed Ivan's hands on a piece of inky tin, and then on a piece of paper. The superintendent glanced casually at the impression.

"All right," he said. "Take those handcuffs off. You may go, Mr. Abramovitch."

The Russian stood motionless, as though not understanding. Foyle wheeled about as though the whole matter had been dismissed from his mind, and he caught Norman by the sleeve.

"Drop everything," he said in a curt whisper. "Take a couple of men and don't let that man out of your sight for an instant. I'll have you relieved from the Yard in an hour's time."

"Aren't you going to charge him, sir?" asked the other in astonishment.

"Not likely," said Foyle, with a laugh.

CHAPTER XII.

Heldon Foyle walked thoughtfully back to Scotland Yard, satisfied that the shadowing of Ivan Abramovitch was in competent hands. With the strong man's confidence in himself, he had no fears as to his decision to release the man. He was beginning to have a shadowy idea of the relation of pieces in his jig-saw puzzle. Ivan, he knew, ought to have been arrested if only for failing to give a satisfactory account of his possession of the pearl necklace. But the superintendent had, as he mentally phrased it, "tied a string to him," and it would not be his fault if nothing resulted.

It was well after midnight before he had finished his work at Scotland Yard. He had had a long interview with the Garden of Eden, in which promises were adroitly mingled with threats. In the result the "bunco-steerer" had promised to keep his eyes and ears alert for news of any one resembling Goldenburg. There was a string of callers who had been discreetly sorted out by the superintendent's diplomatic lieutenants. Finally, he pulled out the book which dealt with the case, and with the aid of a twpist added several more chapters. With a sigh of relief, he at last sauntered out into the cool, fresh midnight air.

Nine o'clock next morning saw him again in his office. Sir Hilary Thornton was his first caller. Foyle put aside his reports at his chief's opening question.

"Yes, we've taken every human precaution to preserve secrecy," he replied. "Every one who knows that it is not Grell's body in the house has been pledged to hold his tongue. I have managed to get the inquest put back for three days, so that there will be no evidence of identification till then. This gives us a chance And I've made out a confidential report to be sent to the Foreign Office, so that Grell's Government shan't get restive. Here are the latest reports, sir."

The Assistant Commissioner bent over the sheaf of typewritten documents for a little in complete absorption. As he came to the last sheet he gave a start of surprise.

"So you let this man Ivan go Do you think that wise?"

"I'm fishing," answered Foyle enigmatically. "I couldn't have better bait than Ivan. There are three men sticking to him like limpets now, and a couple are keeping an eye on Sir Ralph Fairfield. I think that will be all right. Do you remember the Mighton Grange case? We knew there had been a murder, but couldn't do anything till we found the body. Dutful, the murderer, would have slid off to some place where there's no extradition, but for the fact that I had him arrested on a charge of being in the unlawful possession of a pickaxe handle. This affair is the converse of that. We can't afford to have Ivan under lock and key."

Sir Hilary Thornton bit his lip and looked steadfastly at the scarlet geranium on the window-sill, as though in search of enlightenment.

"I believe I see," he exclaimed after a pause. "Ivan must have been something more than a valet. He's a superior type of man, and the conclusion to be drawn if he knows that Grell is alive—"

"Precisely," interrupted the superintendent.

"Any result from the offer of a reward for Goldenburg?"

A flicker of amusement dweit in Heldon Foyle's blue eyes. "Yes. He has been seen by different people within an hour or two of each other in Glasgow, Southampton, Gloucester, Cherbourg, Plymouth, and Cardiff. Our information on that point is not precisely helpful. Of course, we've got the local police making inquiries in each case, but I don't anticipate they will find out much. Still, it will keep 'em amused."

(To be continued.)

Cures Coughs and Colds on their first inception, and will thereby prevent you from becoming affected with some serious lung trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia or even consumption.
When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it as there are many imitations on the market.
"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c; and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
Mrs. Thomas Bridges, Corrie, Ont., writes: "I was so bad with a cold I gave up work, and I was in bed four weeks being unable to do anything. I thought the cold was turning to bronchitis, so I changed my medicine to Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles, and they completely cured me, and I am as strong as ever. I highly recommend it to all sufferers.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. Annie Cameron, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. Charles Rowe, R. F. D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

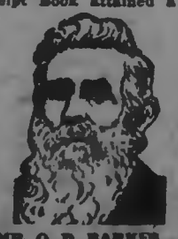
"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET
"TIZ," for tender, puffed-up burning, calloused feet and corns

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "TIZ" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.
As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.
Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

Was Personally Attended by Dr. A. W. Chase
Before He Became Famous as the Author of Dr. Chase's Receipt Book.



MR. O. D. BARNES.

Here is a letter from an aged gentleman who consulted Dr. Chase, long before his Receipt Book attained a world - wide circulation or his family medicines became known to the ends of the earth.
Like most people of advanced years his kidneys were the first organs to break down and when doctors failed to help him he remembered the physician who cured him of pleurisy in his younger days.
Mr. O. D. Barnes, R.F.D. 1, Byron, Mich., writes:—"About fifty years ago, when living in Ann Arbor, Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, was called on to treat me for pleurisy. Ever since that I have used and recommended Dr. Chase's Medicines, and have two of his Receipt Books in the house.
"Some time ago a cold settled in the kidneys, causing backache, frequent urination, dizziness, and affected the eyesight. My appetite failed and I could not sleep nights. Two doctors failed to do me any lasting good, so I started using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The results have been highly satisfactory to me. Appetite improved, I gained in weight, sleep and rest well, and feel strong and well. My kidneys resumed their natural functions, and I believe that my cure was due to Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. I am 78 years old, superintend work on my farm, and can turn in and do some work myself."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Submarine Episode

By F. A. MITCHEL

There was a time when warfare, its appurtenances, its novelties, indeed, everything pertaining to it, was public property. The Japanese changed all that, making everything secret. Since the Russo-Japanese fight the war correspondent has had a hard time of it, and many officers are pledged not to reveal what occurs in the line of their duty. When I was assigned to the command of a submarine I was obliged to make pledges that prevent my giving certain points connected with this story.
